Government Acts On River Control

Riprap Squamish: Dyke Mamquam

The Provincial Government has undertaken erosion control on the upper Squamish River and a measure of flood control on the Mamquam.

In a phone call to the Times a week ago Wednesday, MLA Don Robinson said he had just concluded successful meetings with the ministers of highways and agriculture on this matter of local river control.

Bulldozers will move into the Mamquam this week to push up high dykes comparable to those washed out earlier this summer.

At the Big Bend in the upper Squamish riprapping with heavy rock will also begin this week. This job is being shared by logging companies using the road, Empire Mills and Squamish Mills.

Dyking will be done on the Mamquam, he said, and although rock riprapping is desirable, he was not sure that there would be money available for this further protection.

Erosion at the Big Bend, about 20 miles north of Squamish, has necessitated re-location of the government road about once a year in the past six years. Heavy rains sent the river over its banks in this area early last week.

Flooding of the Mamquam near the highway bridge is quite common and the view is widely held that, without dyke protection, the Mamquam might seek a former channel now built up with industry and residences.

Nine For Mrs. Axen

3 Local Ladies Win PNE Prizes

Mrs. Bertha Axen, a perennial exhibitor at the PNE, took three firsts and six seconds in the home arts, textiles and foods sections.

Other local exhibitors were Mrs. J. H. Johnson, two firsts (land pony), white wool hand-spun, red currant jelly, wild fruit jelly, canned plums, canned strawberries.

Mrs. Axen came first in the flax spinning, a craft she learned in her Scandinavian homeland, first in canned pears, active candle, and second in first in canned fruit, any other variety.

Mrs. Hurren won second for her novel knitted bed jacket and second yarn (spun from hair of a Shetland) for hand knit cardigan.

Beach Swimmers At Empire Pool

Britannia Aquatic Club sent 45 members to the Summer Clubs Swim Meet at Empire Pool on Friday and Saturday and placed ninth. It was a large representation and Instructor Andy Gold certainly didn't expect 45 winners but he does hope to install a little competitive spirit in his charges.

As a coach he finds it just a bit frustrating that the team is so carefree and happy-win or lose. Summer jobs have played havoc with his 15 and 16 year old divers and anchor men and potential winners who train casually are a disappointment.

Of the 18 clubs entered from Woodfibre, Cultus Lake, Crescent Beach, Penticton, etc., Britannia placed about 9th—final results are not in yet. Most of the 'Britannia' points were scored by the under 12 group.

Twelve members of the club will compete again in a meet at Cultus Lake August 26. Meanwhile Andy is training his swimmers for the Red Cross and Royal Life Saving Society tests.

He expects to have taking the tests about 20 beginners, 20 juniors, seven intermediates, seven seniors and six bronze medallions.

Bride-Elect Feted

Miss Kolly Helgason was honored by her friends with a surprise shower in St. Joseph's Hall on the evening of August 21st.

Seated at the head table with the guest of honor were her mother, Mrs. G. Helgason, her sister Miss Helga Helgason, the groom's mother Mrs. A. McKenzie and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Nellie Powell.

Hostesses for the occasion were Miss Sandra Farrow, Miss Sally Allott, Mrs. Don Behrner, Mrs. J. Helgason, Miss Lynda Kirkwood, Mrs. Richard Munro and Mrs. Don Breckenridge.

The room was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells. White candles and a floral centrepiece of summer blossoms adorned the head table while small bouquets decorated the individual tables.

Service To Exhibitors Special By Fall Fair

Some very important changes have been made in the accepting of entries for the ensuing Fall Fair, to be held this year at Paradise Valley, on September 8th.

Last week's paper advised that entries would be accepted downtown, and also Paradise Valley. To help exhibitors, arrangements are being made to accept exhibits in a local store on the main street from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Friday, September 7th; from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Axen of Brackendale, and from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Paradise Valley.

It will be possible, in addition, to pick up entry numbers on Thursday in the store downtown, between the hours of 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. This would assist the larger exhibitors, in that they would be able to attach their numbers firmly to their exhibits, before taking them to the Fair buildings or the depots.

So, if you should not have your articles ready to enter when the Fair depot closes downtown, you are still able to enter anything you wish up to 10 p.m. on Friday night, at one of the other depots, either Axen's or Paradise Valley.

It is hoped that this will encourage more exhibits in our outlying areas, as well as downtown Squamish. A phone call to one of the depots will mean that you and your exhibits will be picked up and taken to the depot or to Paradise Valley, so that no one should hesitate to enter whatever they may have.

If any further information is required phone 194.

Books are also still available, either at the Squamish Hardware, or by phoning the above

Sidewalk Superintendents Invited To New Mill Site

Company officials are taking steps to alleviate the scarcity of sidewalk superintendents at Canadian Collieries new mill site at Squamish.

Local people are hereby invited to inspect the site and building progress at any time according to plant superintendent J. Gordon Noel and plant manager Ed McDonald.

Visitors are asked to use the centre gate rather than the one leading down from the forestry station. On weekends, check first with the watchman.

The no trespassing signs, said Mr. McDonald, are mainly to divert hoards of curious tourists from their Empire Lumber Division mill site.

Fly, Camp, Hike...

Girl Guides At Black Tusk

by Arlene Ingraham and Lee Gebhart

Eight Girl Guides flew into the Black Tusk Meadows for a nine-day camping trip on Saturday, August 11. They were accompanied by Mrs. C. Tatlow and Mrs. L. Ingraham.

Carl Ingraham and Mike Flack went in with them to help set up the camp.

Guides on the trip were Arlene Ingraham, Lee Gebhart, Jacqueline Buffrey, Diane Flack, Sharon Kindree, Linda Robinson, Margaret McLeod and Barbara Goss.

From the landing spot they had to carry all their supplies into the campsite located two miles away. Many had to make a second trip.

The girls went on three major hikes—around the Black Tusk, up Gentian Peak, and finally, up the Black Tusk itself. They also made several smaller hikes. The average hike for one day was ten miles.

Special thanks to Mrs. C. Tatlow, Mrs. L. Ingraham, the Park Rangers (George and Bill) and Mike Flack for helping to make our camp the success it was.

Education Articles To Bring $900 In Prizes

Cash prizes of over $900 will be awarded by the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association for the best writing on education appearing in the country's print media.

In announcing the 1962 awards, committee chairman, Mrs. J. D. Taylor of Hamilton said, "We are looking forward this year to increased participation on the part of Canadian weekly newspapers whose wholehearted support of the conference on education in March had so much to do with its success."

These awards will recognize and encourage outstanding Canadian newspaper and magazine writing in the field of education from January 1, 1962 to December 31, 1962.

The best series of three or more related articles or editorials on problems or achievements of education in the community, the province and the nation will be considered, as will magazine articles.

For series work, $300 will be awarded. For single articles, $100 will be given as a prize.

JUDGES SET
The competition will be administered by the Canadian Education Week Committee but judges are from varied walks of life.

Dr. Emmett O'Grady, head of the department of English at Ottawa University; Alvarez Vaillancourt, director of public relations at the university of Sheerbrooke and Dr. W. R. Wees, vice-president of W. J. Gage Limited are judges for the competition.

ENTRY FORMS
Editors, publishers or the writers themselves may submit tear sheets (or photostats) to Miss Beverly Hales, Canadian Education Week Committee, Box 580, Adelaide Street P.O., Toronto 1, Ontario not later than January 12, 1963, and entry forms are available (but not necessary) from that address.

PET SHOW
The Fall Fair Pet Show will be held from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. under the covered walk between the High School and Mashiter School, on Saturday, September 8. Pets will be judged by Pat McCawley, of Britannia Beach. Entry fee will be 10c per entry. So bring all your pets down to the school and display them. Let's see what you have, children!

Anyone who might have any of these articles and who would be willing to display them, please contact him at the Advan Tire garage, Cleveland Avenue, across from the Post Office.

There will be exhibits of lapidary by the class under Mr. Boyd.

It is hoped that arrangements can be made to display the paintings done by the Britannia Beach artists, and also those who attended art classes in Vancouver last winter.

The door prize this year will be two large photo selections of Squamish and area, donated and mounted by Victor Bopp.

PHOTOGRAPHIC DISPLAY
Mr. Bopp would appreciate receiving any antique cameras or any photography equipment made before the 1940's. These will be on display in a locked case at the Fall Fair.

Will Dyke On Mamquam Be Effective...?

River control work on the Squamish and Mamquam rivers has been undertaken by the Provincial Government. These rivers, with a long and notorious history of instability, flood easily, change channels at will and erode unprotected banks. The work now underway is indeed welcome but is it enough?

The riprapping job on the Big Bend may be enough deterrent there to warrant the expense of the work but pushing up a gravel dyke along the Mamquam danger spot is a waste of time and money.

Our MLA, Don Robinson, says there is not enough money at this time to protect the dyke by heavy rock riprapping.

We hope the government can be persuaded to change the plan here because an unprotected gravel dyke is quite likely to disappear during the next high water.

However, if only gravel dykes are to be used on the Mamquam there is a way to make them effective and that is to straighten and deepen the channel upstream from the highway bridge for sufficient distance to relieve its meandering nature.

This may be the plan and we hope it is. To build a dyke such as was done before is no solution and very little protection. High water could wash it out in a matter of hours.

Research Memo For Woodfibre...

British Columbia Research Council which works quietly and diligently for industry issued a release last spring about the deterioration of "paper maker's felts".

The item went on to explain in research jargon that the "conditions under which micro-organisms decompose the protein of wool fibres have been studied in the Council laboratories and methods have been developed for determining the amount of the damage."

This is mundane stuff for the layman to read, but it points up the important fact that there is an important service for industry in the Research Council. And it deals with anything from finding a cure for "Swimmers' Itch" to developing a uniform basis for colour-grading in apple-packing plants.

We honestly wonder if Rayonier officials who operate Woodfibre have tossed their problem of mill odor into the laps of Research Council's lab technicians. Woodfibre mill would present a most interesting case history for Council workers and who knows, it is possible their research may produce the solution.

Research is the key to tomorrow and we feel sure that Rayonier will not rest until they have licked this problem of smell. The "Sniff Patrol" is great copy for newspapers but it's not getting to the nub of the situation. Research and more research will bring the answer.

How Far Are We From This...?

Pertinent comment on public attitudes of labor union leaders comes from the Washington report of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. This is: "One of the most interesting achievements of the men who control America's labor unions is their ability to speak out of both sides of the mouth simultaneously and still keep a straight face."

When the doctors of Saskatchewan went on strike (except for the maintenance of emergency service), the labor bosses through the union press cried "mutiny" and a "shameless political play" in defiance of the legislature. But when a union officer called a strike against two New York hospitals and threatened to strike 11 others, this was nothing more than "pursuing a course of action to gain a measure of dignity," and the defiance of a court injunction in continuing the hospital strike was perfectly all right.

A few weeks ago while the AFL-CIO News cried for an end to discrimination, a group of Negro union hodcarriers from Chicago were picketing the AFL-CIO Washington headquarters, claiming discrimination.

This must be art of double-talk with a union label.

Elimination of firemen on diesel locomotives in the United States is the subject of acute controversy in that country. The railway brotherhoods, all together, are doing their best to eliminate railway jobs by insisting on maintenance of outmoded work rules of the type that collectively are known as featherbed-ding. It may be that there will be a permanent board that will decide what rules are necessary and what are not.

New labor organization in the U.S. is reported by the Wall Street Journal. Six girls in Roselle, New Jersey, have organized themselves into a baby-sitting union, complete with a code that calls for time and a half (75 cents) for each hour worked after midnight. They also refuse to do any extra chores for their employers, such as housework.

The paper comments: "Well, we can sympathize with the young ladies. Baby-sitting is not an easy job, involving as it does such tasks as watching television, reading movie magazines and emptying the employer's refrigerator. Indeed there is no job to rival that of baby-sitter — unless it's assistant fireman on a diesel freight train."

"But even granting the extraordinary nature of the job, thoughtful men will still recognize in the baby-sitters' action a serious threat to the general welfare. Alas, if baby-sitters can organize, they can also strike."

"America has discovered that, for brief periods at least, it can do without steelworkers, without autoworkers, without dockworkers. But what would happen if all the baby-sitters walked off the job on the same night? If the Republic still stood in the morning, we'll bet unions would be placed under the anti-trust laws in nothing flat. And the only dissenters would be labor leaders—single labor leaders."

There's A Great Day Coming...

One of the more common causes of family friction around the average home in Squamish or Pemberton Valleys is dirt, the plain ordinary kind of dirt.

Kids are bawled out for coming home with their clothes dirty. Their fathers are scolded for tracking mud on clean floors and dropping ashes on rugs. Dirt, like sin, finds favor with very few people.

The arguments it causes are usually drab and uninspired. In short, who needs it?

Now, however, there appears to be a glimmer of hope that victory may be coming.

Henry Dreyfuss, a New York industrial designer, foresees the day when homes will be equipped with kitchens and baths that clean themselves; when closets will contain devices for cleaning and pressing clothes electronically.

He predicts the time will come when dirt and mud will be removed from feet and clothing by electronic gadgets in the entrance to a home.

There won't be any problems with dirty sheets and towels. They'll be made of soft disposable cellulose.

Dirty pots? They'll be made of foil which can be tossed in the garbage, if there is still such a thing as garbage.

It probably all sounds wonderful to the harassed housewife of today and although this workless wonder is probably a few years away, it at least gives cause for hope.

Mr. Dreyfuss says that if homemakers are interested in seeing their dreams fulfilled they should give serious thought to their needs and let industry know what they want.

Sounds simple enough. There's your cue, ladies!

FLOOD LIGHTS at the small boat dock, Squamish, are being secured by Denis Wood high above the wharf on special supports. Lighting is one of the improvements that wharfinger Alex Gleam has been trying to get from the federal government for some time. On and off switching of the lights is controlled by an electric eye which is responsive to light and darkness.

History Notes

Henry Judd's Letters From Diary

Henry Judd, whom everybody called Harry, was fresh out from London, Ontario, when the following adventure took place. He writes:

"On November 12th, 1889, we started for Squamish (from Vancouver) at 11. That is Messrs. Bowman, Simpson, Sutherland, Crawford, Creolman, Wood and myself board the tug Saturna. The last two are the men I am going to be with."

We arrive at the mouth of the river and camp for the night near a big waterfall, in a shanty used by Indians during salmon runs. About midnight a skunk is discovered in the shanty, but as we are afraid he will make things disagreeable if interfered with, we allow him to go when he gets ready and we go to sleep.

Nov. 13: We strike camp at 7 a.m., half the party going to get Indians to pilot us up the river; the rest staying to look after the goods. The Indians come at 10:30 and we reach their camp four miles up the river at noon. We have dinner and start to climb the rapids. We take the shallow water at the sides of the river and push the canoe along with poles. In places we have to walk while the Indians have to turn out in the water and lift the canoe along. We pass a river called by the Indians "Che-ar-kamish" at 6 p.m. and camp with some Christian Indians about a mile above. We rent a tent from one of them and make it my first night under canvas.

We make another start at daybreak and find that we have comparatively calm water. While at dinner a pair of deer come trotting along the beach. Mr. Wood uses his rifle at 180 yards without effect and the deer disappear in the bush.

We arrive at the claim at 5 p.m. I have heard that Messrs. Bowman, Simpson & Co. gave up before they reached their claim, which is five miles below ours. We build a camp out of cedar boughs and sleep first class. Nov. 15: We see lots of wolf and deer tracks on the sand. We start to build a log house, and I patch up the bower with cedar bark.

Nov. 16: Rain expected to-night. I have the bower so it will turn most of the storm. We get two grouse today. Some Indians on their way down the river called on us.

Nov. 17: Rain turned us out at 3:30 this morning. Our bower is not water-proof and an hour's work makes it all right again. Grouse for today and I make a batch of bread.

Nov. 18: Fine today and I shoot another grouse.

Nov. 19: Have a poisoned hand which will keep me from writing for a while.

Nov. 20: Rain comes on again. My hand becomes very painful.

Nov. 21: We leave our bower today for a more substantial house. We get a fine day for moving.

Nov. 22: The new house is built of logs; about 10 x 12 feet, and will be used as a chicken-pen later on. We have the spare of a house 24 x 16 feet ready for the rafters.

To be concluded next week.

Halvorsons Report On Trip To Norway

Former Norwegians, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Halvorson, have had a bit of time in which to catch their breath after spending the summer in their homeland. A few of their more pertinent comments on their stay may be of interest.

Needless to say, Norway has undergone a few changes since the Halvorsons left for Canada more than thirty years ago. The roads are numerous and well paved, attempts have been made to link roads so that visitors need not travel the same highway twice. Considering the geography of the country which bears a strong resemblance to that of B.C., this has been no mean accomplishment.

Most schools are consolidated and children are transported from their homes by buses.

The weather, too, is like our own. The summer was cold and wet.

In most homes the heat, which is electric, had to be turned on in the evenings. It was a rare day, says Mrs. Halvorson, when she did not welcome the comforting warmth of her sweater.

The rains interfered with the drying of the hay and in many fields the hay was hung over five strands of wire to be dried by the blowing of the wind.

Norwegian women are more occupied with handicrafts than Canadian women; knitting, crocheting and embroidering are vocations with most housewives and some of the work done is very intricate.

Every window ledge is filled with indoor plants which are the owner's pride and joy.

Native costumes, whose style and design vary with the different areas of the country, are owned by most of the residents but are usually worn only on special holidays or festive occasions.

Mr. and Mrs. Halvorson saw some of these when they attended the wedding of one of his relatives; although the bridal party was attired very much like members of a local wedding, a few of the guests wore the costumes of their county.

Music festivals must be much the same the world over; for the one the visitors took in reminded them of the young people in our Legion Band. And at the head of the parade was a very smart majorette.

Mr. and Mrs. Halvorson spent most of their time looking up relatives and old friends. These in turn planned gatherings in their honor. At one of these one hundred and twenty-five people took part. What a wonderful occasion that must have been!

As for flying, they enjoyed it. Mr. Halvorson, however, is still wondering at Greenland's name.

They passed over it on a clear day and were able to look down on a white waste with here and there a bare mountain top. The bareness was not caused by warmth but simply because the snow could not cling to the sheer rock. The visitors have but one regret; they wish they had gone home long ago; also they have a bit of advice for those who are contemplating such a journey: go now while your mind and body are in a good state of health.

Trans-Canada Highway Trans-Canada Motorcade

Sault Ste Marie — After 3,203 miles of exciting scenery, overwhelming hospitality and a continuing look at Canada, (via the Trans-Canada Motorcade) I am convinced this is also a land of shopping plazas and plush motels. The boom years since World War II have changed the face of the country immeasurably but the most consistent feature to emerge is without doubt the plaza. And the emergence of good tourist accommodation is something too few of us appreciate. We have to bow to no one in this field.

Another greater and more subtle change has taken place on the national scene is the attitude of Toronto to the rest of the country. Twenty years ago they called it the largest lighted graveyard in the world, and the people who lived there didn't care. Today Toronto is booming with vigor, coursing with an injection of new Canadians who are making themselves felt in the realm of culture and business. Toronto today is just about the most cosmopolitan place in the country.

We were greeted by its Mayor Nathan Phillips who appealed to all of us to love this city. He declared Toronto embraced an affection for all parts of the country; it was no longer hog-town, and that he was everyone's mayor. He also disclosed that 25 different racial groups belonged to the city and that he was mayor of all of them.

Later in the same day our group was introduced to Premier Paul Lesage of Quebec who declared that his province needs understanding by the rest of Canada and that it stood ready to be Canadian to the hilt no matter what the misinformed might think. It would seem that in at least two instances, traditional parochialism was breaking down. In fact Premier Lesage was in Toronto to officially open the Canadian National Exhibition, the first time such a ceremony had ever taken place in French.

In riding through the thousand odd miles across Ontario you cannot help but be in awe of its opulence, its self-sufficiency and its vigor. From Sudbury to Sault Ste. Marie there is a whole new band of settlement with clean towns, superb roads and excellent accommodation for the visitor. In fact, the network of roads out of Toronto is overwhelming but there are few parts of the province that aren't easily accessible.

But the picture isn't all on the credit side. To travel north on a Saturday morning is to join the greatest migration of recreation-seeking lemmings in the country. They flock to the Muskoka district which used to be an area loaded with tranquility and offering a haven of relaxation. From what we could see of it from our 12-car cavalcade, it is merely a recreational suburbia going through the motions.

Ontario... keen, green and clean. Truly the capital of Canada in more ways than one.

Highlights of another week on wheels... The brilliant wit and charm of Ottawa's Mayor Charlotte Whitton... renewing acquaintanceships with migrant newsmen from B.C.: Peter Bruton, Brud Delaney, John Maclean... ## Busy Summer At Public Library

The Squamish Public Library has had an exceptionally busy summer, due, no doubt, to the inclement weather.

The board and staff are grateful to Mrs. W. J. Timney for her assistance while some members of the regular staff were away on holidays. Thanks are also extended to Mrs. R. Street for her generous donation of books.

Donors are advised that the Library Board is always grateful for the gift of books; in case of duplication the extras are turned over to the Hospital Auxiliary for placement on the library shelves at the Squamish General Hospital.

A number of new books have arrived for the young people, some of them have been requested by our young patrons and will soon be well read. Among them are the following:

BLACK STALLION RETURNS by Walter Farley, is another in the popular stories about the famous black stallion and his progeny. This story takes him to a distant land.

RESCUE DOG OF HIGH PASS by Jim Kjelgaard is the story of a St. Bernard dog in the high Alps and how he and the priests of the St. Bernard Hospice carry out rescue work in the snowy mountains.

WILD DOG OF EDMONTON, by David Grew. The love of a boy for his dog on a lonely farm on the North Saskatchewan River near Edmonton is the theme of this book.

CAPTAIN COOK, by Ronald Syme. The sub-title, "Pacific Explorer," describes in two words the essence of this book. The story follows Captain Cook through the Pacific Ocean, the Hawaiian Islands and British Columbia.

And for the adults there is a new volume in the Life-World Library entitled "Italy." Like the other books in this series it is comprehensively written and beautifully illustrated.

Striking Fence At PNE

No construction job in the world is surrounded by a gayer, giddier, gaudier fence than the new million-dollar livestock building at the Pacific National Exhibition.

The fence of many colors just didn't get that way by chance. A color consultant was called in to spruce up the planking and give it a gay festive air for the big August 18 to September 3 exhibition.

The fence has eight colors and is in a bold, striking off-vertical stripe pattern. Work will go on during the fair on the new 3200-seat arena, scheduled for completion late this year or early next.

And fair patrons will be able to keep up with the work. Holes of various sizes and at different heights will be cut in the fence for the benefit of sidewalk superintendents. This will be just another of the many "free" attractions at this year's PNE.

MOUNTAIN RESCUE by aerial car is practiced at Murrin Park near Britannia Beach by members of Mountain Rescue group of Vancouver. "Casualty" was lowered from 90-foot cliff strapped in aluminum stretcher suspended from cable. (photo by Jack Brian)

STRETCHER, in two pieces, is taken up are members of Alpine Clubs or other cliff by one of the group, all of whom climbing groups.

ANC And DDD Herald Advance For BCT Users

New issue of the Howe Sound and Sechelt Peninsula telephone directory, which goes into effect Sunday (September 9), will have the second general appearance of all-figure numbers, with some 1500 Squamish, Pender Harbour, Pemberton, Port Mellon and Britannia Beach listings changed to what is known as ANC—All Number Calling.

Sechelt and Gibsons exchange telephones were converted to the new seven-digit numbering system two years ago.

North Shore District officials for the B.C. Telephone Company say this use of ANC in Howe Sound and Sechelt Peninsula communities is part of a program which will see the entire BCT system converted to the all-digit numbering system within the next four years.

Because of the many number changes involved, telephone users commencing Sunday, September 9, are advised to consult the new directory before dialing the new seven-digit numbers.

The new numbers have three-digit prefixes followed by the four figures of the telephone number. For example, Squamish numbers will begin "892," Pemberton "894," Britannia Beach "896," Port Mellon "884" and Pender Harbour "883." A typical Squamish number would be 892-5210. Woodfibre public telephone numbers will begin "897."

Already, thousands of telephones in other parts of British Columbia have all-number listings in line with the continent-wide program of conversion to ANC. By the end of 1961 the combined total of such listings for Canada and the U.S. had grown to approximately 8,000 and is expected to increase to 14,000,000 by the end of this year.

DIRECT DISTANCE DIALING Telephone officials say that the main reason for adopting ANC is that the telephone industry as a whole is running out of numbers due to the tremendous growth in the number of telephones in recent years and the advent of DDD—direct distance dialing—a self-dialing station, long distance service which becomes available in the exchanges of Squamish, Pemberton and Britannia Beach in September.

The introduction of ANC will increase the number of exchange codes from 540 to approximately 800, giving the industry "elbow room" to handle further telephone growth.

For the telephone subscriber, it means a uniform numbering system which makes for faster, easier, more accurate dialing.

For example, it eliminates the confusion between the figure changes involved, telephone users commencing Sunday, September 9, are advised to consult the new directory before dialing the new seven-digit numbers.
