Paradise Valley complex spreads to Cheekye

J. V. Puttkamer had added to his resort holdings along the Cheakamus river with the recent purchase of Cheekye Lodge.

In 1961 he bought 430 acres along the Cheakamus and has built a restaurant, banquet hall, motels, playground and camping area. Next step will be eight two and three bedroom bungalows for rental occupation by the end of May and more motel cabins.

In 1962 nearby Fergies Lodge at the highway bridge over the Cheakamus came up for sale and he bought it.

Now he will take over the adjacent Cheekye Lodge on March 7.

On logging road

Burt Wray dies in rock slide

Last rites for Albert Lawrence "Burt" Wray, 34, were held in New Westminster, February 19 at 1 p.m. Burial followed in the family plot in Langley.

He was killed Friday in a rock slide while building road to his logging operation north-east of Brohm Lake about 15 miles north of Squamish.

Surviving are his wife, Betty; three sons, four-year-old twins Gary and Brian, and Lonnie, 2; a sister, Mrs. Frank (Peggy) Lasser of Whonnock; and his widowed mother, Mrs. Lonnie Wray.

His wife, family and mother live in the Mamquam district, about three miles north of Squamish. They had also made a home for his two nieces who had lost their mother a year ago.

Burt was a partner in Halkey Logging Ltd. with Norman Halvorson. The two young men had worked together in the Squamish area as logging contractors for some years and more recently had formed a company and acquired timber of their own.

It was while building road to this timber that the fatal accident occurred. A 30-foot rock bluff had just been blasted and he was clearing the right of way with a bulldozer when more rock let go, covering the machine.

Halvorson, powder - man Norm Squire, the Dickie brothers, who were falling timber on the right of way, and others from Squamish who came as soon as they heard, worked four hours to extricate the body.

A coroner's inquest will be held in Squamish, February 22.

EUGENE KLYMCHUK

Scotia Bank manager here

Eugene Klymchuk is the new manager of the Squamish branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Though a native Albertan, most of his banking experience has been gained in British Columbia.

During his junior years in the bank he worked at Nanaimo and at 49th and Fraser, Vancouver. From here he went to 10th and Langley, Burnaby, as manager and most recently was manager at McBride.

His wife, Irene, is a Nanaimo girl, and they have a son, Gregory, 6, and a two-year-old daughter, Lynda Gale.

Jack Nolan heads Woodfibre club

Jack Nolan was elected president of Woodfibre Community Club at the annual meeting February 13.

Thirty members were present in the Community Hall to hear president Whitfield's report for the year 1962 and that of the various committees.

Financial standing of the club is considered good.

Britannia WA hears China missionary

Mrs. S. Edgcombe of New Westminster, provided the program for the February meeting of the Britannia W. A.

A missionary for 30 years in China, she had many experiences to relate and stories to tell. The last part of her life in China was spent under "City Arrest" - compliments of the Communist regime.

Mrs. F. Baxter reported for the committee that catered to the congressional dinner and Mrs. L. Chisholm was named convener of the Spring Event.

Logger injured

Logger Allen Tremblay was seriously injured when hit in the head by a choker, Monday, February 18.

At press time Tuesday morning his condition was reported as fair in Vancouver General Hospital.

He was working for CRB Logging Co. in the Mud Creek area north of Squamish when the accident occurred.

His wife and family live in Squamish.

When Larry opened Royal it was really open

L. G. Urquhart, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, Squamish Branch, has been transferred to Vancouver, Main and Hastings Branch.

He came here while the bank offices in the Chieftain Hotel were still under construction, propped a wooden door on two saw-horses, put some flowers on each end, set a sign on the street "Royal Bank of Canada" and was open for business.

The date was a cold September 26, 1957, and there were no doors, windows or counters in the bank. There are doors and all that now, and a staff of seven which would indicate that the doors are still open a great deal.

At that time there was one other bank in Squamish, The Bank of Nova Scotia. But at the other end of the block the Imperial Bank had bought two vacant lots adjacent to MacKenzie's store and in the race to be first before The Royal were negotiating for temporary office space in The Squamish Times building.

However, The Royal and Urquhart, in overcoat, sweater and gloves, beat them to it. He was doing business with just three unfinished walls, roof and carpenters all over the place.

The Imperial, now Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, still owns the lots and they are still vacant.

Back in 1957 business interest in Squamish was high with the opening of the railway to North Vancouver that year and the Squamish - Vancouver highway slated for opening in 1958.

During his 5½ years in Squamish Urquhart was a busy man in community affairs with Scouts, Lions, Chamber of Commerce and other organizations.

He has the 20-year pin for Scouting and three years ago was awarded the coveted Medal of Merit for outstanding service to Scouting.

The new manager is D. Lattimer from Hazelton, B.C.

Tribute To Our Bankers

Managers of both Squamish banks are being transferred this month and this community will miss them. Both were active in community affairs as well as in the affairs of their business.

We do not pretend to know the reasons for their transfers at this time when all signs point to a period of unprecedented business expansion but we think it would not be because of any shortcoming of either man; both are going to larger branches and, in that sense, are being promoted.

However, we suppose the reasons lie with the policy of banks which may dictate that when there is a major change in the business situation it can be encouraged and evaluated best by a fresh mind untrammelled with the drag of the former condition and at once stimulated and sharpened by the strangeness and newness of a different community. Both banks, through sub-branches in other communities, started and maintained important ties that, if nourished and strengthened, will determine the destiny of Squamish as the business centre.

Fred Collins of the Scotia Bank just recently brought Woodfibre under the administration of his bank, Pemberton,

Public Opinion And The Election...

Mankind has always favored oracles and soothsayers who have been the most enigmatic, making pronouncements which could be interpreted to suit the hearers.

And then there is public opinion. Even in the Coast-Capilano riding, there are grounds for scepticism about whether there really is something worthy of the name of public opinion, or whether it exists, it really is a potent force.

Concerted opinion of various groups on subjects close to their pocketbooks is recognizable. When the groups are large enough and determined enough to impress their views on politicians, it may be the part of political wisdom to yield to them.

But to dignify these views with the title of public opinion is to do them too much honor.

For the next 50-odd days before the election, we will hear much of public opinion polls. They will try to find numerical backing for the popularity or unpopularity of political parties in an attempt to forecast how an election might turn out at a given moment.

But the fact that a certain person polled in Squamish or Woodfibre or Pemberton says he dislikes one party more than the others does not mean that he will invariably vote in accordance with his expressed opinion. Perhaps dimly, but in the long run surely, the average Coast-Capilano voter recognizes that an election is more than a popularity contest.

The hope of democracy lies in ballots cast for parties that have the courage to do what is fair and right and live up to its promised covenants.

The catch, however, is that politicians, in their search for a fleeting popularity, may lose sight of what fairness is.

Squamish Waistline...

Are the people of Squamish and Pemberton Valley getting fat?

According to the latest measurements compiled by clothing manufacturers, the Canadian family is getting dramatically bigger in height, width and circumference. The figures show that during the last hundred years, males in Canada grew three inches taller, gained 25 pounds and expanded four suit sizes.

So don't you gentlemen start laughing over the fact that the womenfolk grew three inches also, and packed on 22 pounds during the same time.

Right now the average Joe is 5 ft. 10, weighs 158 and wears a size 36 belt. At this rate he would be 6 ft. 2, tipping the beam at 176 pounds and wearing size 42 suit by the turn of the century.

As for the women, a foundation manufacturer indicates the average female waistline is expanding faster than bust or hips. In 1900 there was an average 12-inch difference between hip and waist measurements. Now the average is 11½ in.

By the year 3,000, Canadian women should average 5 feet 10 tall and about the same from east to west.

A man will be able to hug them in any direction and know the difference.

Of course 3,000 A.D. is still a little time away. A.W. go on and have that banana split. Honey. We love 'em in any size and shape, eh fellahs?

Economic Growth...

The following paragraphs are from an article by Henry Hazlitt, well-known economic analyst, author and speaker, which appeared in the December, 1962 issue of "The Freeman" entitled "Planning vs. The Free Market". In the light of the current concern about Canadian economic growth this clear and concise statement merits the thoughtful consideration of all Canadians.

"The way to get a maximum rate of 'economic growth' — assuming this to be our aim — is to give maximum encouragement to production, employment, saving and investment. And the way to do this is to maintain a free market and a sound currency. It is to encourage profits, which must in turn encourage both investment and employment. It is to refrain from oppressive taxation that siphons away the funds that would otherwise be available for investment. It is to allow free wage rates that permit and encourage full employment. It is to allow free interest rates, which would tend to maximize saving and investment.

"The way to slow down the rate of economic growth is, of course, precisely the opposite of this. It is to discourage production, employment, saving, and investment by incessant interventions, controls, threats, and harassment. It is to frown upon profits, to declare that they are excessive, to file constant antitrust suits, to control prices by law or by threats, to levy confiscatory taxes that discourage new investment and siphon off the funds that make investment possible, to hold down interest rates artificially to the point where real saving is discouraged and malinvestment encouraged, to deprive employers of genuine freedom of bargaining, to grant excessive immunities and privileges to labor unions so that their demands are chronically excessive and chronically threaten unemployment — and then to try to offset all these policies by government spending, deficits, and monetary inflation."

One for Our B.C. Lions To Watch...

With pride and pleasure the Ottawa Rough Riders have announced the signing of a defensive halfback who distinguished himself as a player for the Denver Broncos and, previously, for the University of Montana.

His name is Bob O'Billovich. Those fighting Irish crop up everywhere!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Squamish Times:

Consistent with the current sense of indecision in Canada while experiencing normal growth in gross and per capita national production is a continued uncertainty in B.C. This is in spite of the fact that the primary industries and most lines of distribution remain at a satisfactory level and exchange advantages are reflected in earnings of export industries. British Columbia's areas of indecision continue to be chiefly as to political trends and in labour relations.

British Columbia's bad press due to its labour relations troubles came in late 1962 from four strikes involving fewer than 150 persons. It was due to the aggressiveness of a number of the labour leaders in blaming labour legislation for the fact of a deliberate policy of militancy to force the issues in these strikes to the satisfaction of the unions concerned. This involved the deliberate use of violence on the picket lines. When the restraint of law and order was felt, several of the leading figures in the labour movement of British Columbia not only were on the picket lines but defended the right of mobs to prevent plants from operating with non-striking and replacement personnel. In the heat of the situation the labour leaders concerned made statements that later embarrassed them and which they attempted to explain away. Their tactics softened when NDP leader Strachan, discovering widespread public disapproval of picketline violence condemned the policies and acts of some labour leaders.

What has emerged from the affair, however, is an avowed determination by the organized labour movement in B.C. and its sponsored NDP political organization to get rid of a situation in which a company would have the right to hire replacement in the event of a legal strike. It is assumed, with justification, by the NDP — which promises such legislation if elected — and by the labour leaders concerned that this would be all the strength they needed to win all strikes by immobilizing every firm that failed to come to terms with a union.

Such power of life and death over industry by a labour movement allied with a party socialistic in its philosophies and thus prepared to see employers in private industry exposed to such hazards, to pay political debts of the party for labour support, is what chiefly undermines confidence in industry in B.C. It will continue to do so until the threat is not greater in B.C. than in any like part of Canada.

GHID Tax returns cut in half

B.C. Hydro and Power Authority properties and installations have been removed from the tax rolls available to Garibaldi Hospital Improvement District.

This cuts by more than half the amount GHID can raise by the less than one-half mill levy allowed yearly if needed by Squamish General Hospital and approved by the government.

If BCH&PA were taxable the amount would be $12,000 this year, according to GHID chairman A. B. Mackenzie. As it is a recent application by GHID was approved in the amount of $5,700.

GHID, since it was formed in 1959, has not made the levy yearly. This is the second time, the first being in 1959, at which time B.C. Electric was taxable and $10,525 was raised.

Mackenzie heads GHID

A. B. Mackenzie is new chairman of Garibaldi Hospital Improvement District. Annual meeting was held in Chieftain Hotel, February 13.

Secretary is L. R. Norton of Britannia Beach. Other trustees are R. E. Farquharson, Brackendale, and T. B. M. Fougberg, Pemberton.

Farquharson was appointed representative to Squamish Hospital Board meetings.

Editor, Squamish Times:

We, of the New Democratic Party, view with great distaste the crude manner in which the United States has attempted to bludgeon our country into the acceptance of nuclear arms.

We are of the opinion that the contemptuous attitude of the States towards Canada is a reflection of our loss of stature in international affairs in general and in our relationship with our immediate neighbour in particular, under the Diefenbaker administration or rather lack of administration.

This government blithely spent 700 million dollars of tax money on the purchase of Bomarc missiles, obsolete Voodoo fighters and Starfighters from the USA, all of which are useless without nuclear warheads, after first scrapping the far superior Avro Arrow and thus practically wrecking the thriving Canadian aircraft industry. Having done this we have had the spectacle of the late Minister of Defence going up and down the country speaking out in favour of nuclear weapons, whilst his cabinet colleague, the Minister of External Affairs speaking in Canada and at the United Nations against their acquisition by Canada. And all this time, ole Brer Diefenbaker... he don't say nuffin!

Next we are treated to the spectacle of a Liberal provincial convention passing a resolution against nuclear weapons for Canada, and after being informed of Mr. Pearson's statement of the same day, endorsing nuclear weapons, hastily reversing its resolution.

This would hardly qualify the Liberal party's claim to be a grass-roots movement.

Mr. Pearson was won over, he said, by the revelations made by the retiring Commander-in-Chief of NATO, American General Norstad, that the Diefenbaker Government had committed Canada to accept a nuclear role three years ago. What a pathetic excuse!

Does Mr. Pearson consider himself bound by other commitments made by the Diefenbaker administration? The Columbia River Treaty for instance? If so, why bother to change governments, if the only choice is between the Conservative Tweedledum and the Liberal Tweedledee?

Fortunately there is an alternative, and that is the New Democratic Party, whose policy on nuclear arms is very definite and explicit, and is most definitely not going to be affected by any revelations from military Moses such as General Norstad, or by any pressuring from the US State Department, the Pentagon, visits without invitation to conferences in the Bahamas or elsewhere but only by the membership at provincial and national level, Mr. T. C. Douglas.

We can do no better than quote a statement made by our national leader, Mr. T. C. Douglas.

"The New Democratic Party believes that Canada should stay out of the nuclear club. The almost negligible military gains from Canada becoming a nuclear power would be more than offset by the spread of nuclear weapons resulting from any enlargement of the world's nuclear club. At the present time, the US has ten times the nuclear deterrent power of the USSR. The pressing need of our time is not to increase the nuclear deterrent, but to reduce the danger of nuclear war. This will not be accomplished by having more and more nations acquiring nuclear weapons."

"Now that both the old line parties are committed to accepting nuclear weapons, the Canadian electorate has a clear cut issue on which to cast their ballots. Since it is their lives which are at stake, the Canadian people have the opportunity to render their decision before any final commitments are made."

Use research to find out educational needs

Is the intricate and all-important process of educating our children an art, or a science... or tradition-hallowed guesswork?

Private enterprise in Canada invests huge sums in finding the best way to sell people things they never knew they wanted. Government spends hundreds of millions each year on research in the physical sciences, in industry, in agriculture, and in the military services. But by contrast, so little is spent on educational research that it is not possible to obtain even an estimate of the amount.

So says C. M. Bedford, president of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation, writing in the February issue of "Canadian Home and School" magazine, on Canada's need for widespread, massive support for educational research.

Recently some 300 million dollars have been spent, under Bill C49, to build new technical and vocational schools. But there is no substantial evidence, says Mr. Bedford, that this program is the best answer, or even a good answer, to the problems of preparing young people for life in our rapidly changing society.

PRESSURE FOR CHANGE

Today there is great social pressure for change in education. Just about everybody has proposals to make: team teaching, programmed learning, teaching machines, a second language for the elementary school, a revision of Indian-Eskimo education, the extensions of family allowances (to keep more students in school for a longer time), new methods of teaching arithmetic and science, new methods of selection of students for universities, a shift system for high schools (involving extension of the school year)...

Where changes do come about, it seems to be mainly because individuals and organizations promote them, rather than because the changes have proven value. Education must stop this "flying blind"; it must develop "navigators"—research procedures.

USE RESEARCH

Research yields facts upon

Expert to advise on recreation

Every Thursday for the past month Dr. R. Ramsay, assistant professor in the school of recreation and physical education at UBC has been at Britannia conducting a survey for the Community Club.

The club asked Dr. Ramsay to determine if facilities were being used to the best advantage, if the most popular activities were being offered, if a full time recreational director should be employed?

Every adult and every young person from 6-19 years in the community has been asked to fill out a questionnaire dealing with the use of his or her spare time and Dr. Ramsay has had about 30 personal interviews with key members of the community.

He hopes to be able to report to the club executive on the result of his survey before the semi-annual meeting of the club in March.

which to base decisions; it facilitates and increases the accuracy of prediction, thereby reducing the number and magnitude of errors made.

It is an investment, not an expense. Parents, teachers, administrators, governments—all need research help in solving educational problems.

Development in excellent research at the Universities of Alberta and Toronto, and by the Toronto Board of Education are notable exceptions to the low level of educational research elsewhere in Canada.

A giant step towards raising the levels has been the recent formation of the Canadian Council for Research in Education.

(444 MacLaren Street, Ottawa). The Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation members, and all others interested in improving both the quality and efficiency of Canadian education, are urged to inform themselves as to the objectives and functions of the new Council. By writing to them and to work out ways and means of providing assistance.

Let us give to the development of our children's minds and characters, more of the benefits of scientific research, such as we lavish on the development of better mousetraps, deodorants and atomic reactors.

Don't let spring catch you unread

The Squamish Public Library has purchased a number of new books for the pleasure of its patrons. Also on order are a large number of books for the young readers and these should begin to arrive before too long.

If spring isn't around the very next corner how about enjoying one of these books while you are waiting?

Among the books recently placed upon the shelves the following will probably be widely circulated:

PGE RAILWAY TO THE NORTH by Bruce Ramsay is a must for localities. The author traces the tortuous history of this railway as it developed from a legendary oddity to a vital link in B.C. transportation. The illustrations are especially noteworthy.

VANCOUVER by George Kuthan and Donald Stainsby pictures the brash western metropolis in delightful pen and ink sketches plus tongue in cheek descriptions.

A TURN AT THE WHEEL by Stirling Moss describes the years 1957-60 during which British racing cars and their drivers achieved complete dominance over their foreign rivals.

FOREVER FREE by Joy Adamson is the final chapter in the life of Elsa and her cubs. This volume is as well written and as profusely illustrated as the preceding ones.

TONK AND TONKA by Eugene Ackerman is for the young people; the story of two geese from James Bay who join the flock for the southward journey and of how Tonka adopted the little ducklings whose mother had been killed by a goshawk.

THE WHALE PEOPLE by Roderrick Haig Brown is the story of the Hotsath Indians of British Columbia who hunted the whales of the Pacific.

For the Elks League Joan Knight took 221 single as well as 569 3-game, while Bill Galy got 257 single and 687 3-game. Several other good scores showed up, Dick Bouwman 222, John Shaw 214, Howard Bryce 211, Vi Ker 203 and Doreen Shaw 204. The Jets and Hiballers are tied for top with 3 points each.

The Riding Club didn't split their points up much. Gertie Street took high single 280 and 683 3-game and Larry Urquhart had 285 single and 600 high 3. Rene McIntosh's average jumped to 194 and Larry's stays at 187.

In the Squamish League there was one bowl-off for low score of the week between Art Eraboni and Tom Rivett. Tom won!

The Bantams are continuing their good bowling. For the girls Lynn M. had 149 single and 356 3-game, while Ron Kuhn had 250 single and 688 3-game. The Untouchables lead with 35 points.

Bob Bishop, for the Hospital Hill League made a 3-game total of 741, Jack Carradice had 298 single, and for the ladies, Louise Fowler got 199 single and Fran Hurren 570 3-game. She also had 194 single. Other good scores in this game went to Harvey Hurren 251, Marsh Hurren 216, and Tommy Fowler 215.

The Teachers-Britannia League feel they should call themselves the "200 club", by the looks of some of the scores. Ann Schierling 235 single and Hanna Hansen 577 3-game. Tom Croft 283 single. Other scores over 200 went to Henrick Hansen 238, Tom Sawtell 228, June Hong 225, Olive Baxter 225, Shirley Comer 222, and Hanna Hansen and Ted Ulmer 221 each. Nice bowling!

In the Hen's Tens Rosann McCormack had 151 single and 418 3-game. Other hi 3's went to Tina Weiss 382 and Hilda Golay 375. Singles went to Eleanor Binning 147 and Verna Vass 139. The Mudhens top the league with 6 points.

Men's Tens showed some rather startling results. Sam Bonde had 233 single, which is a noteworthy score and he went on for high three of 567. Joe Skarratt had 512 3-game and singles of note went to Ken Farrow 182, and Ed Bishop 180. Paul McKenzie's "Spare" bowled a team 3-game total of 1962 with only 4 players. The Pingeters lead the league with 4 points, and the Spares are tied with the Roaring Tens with 3 points each.

The Independents had a mediocre night of it. Rick Hunter had 241 single and 579 3-game, while B. Beckenridge got 272 single and 804 3-game. The Untouchables had a team high 2-game of 2662 and the Real McCoy took single team game of 962. The Guttergang and Pinheads tie for top with 5 points each.

In the Royal Purple League, Alice Bonde showed the way with 308 single and 892 3-game. Other good scores went to Dolores Bird 236 single and 589 3-game; Dorothy Dawson, 248 single and 584 3-game; Velma Routeledge, 201 single and 567 3-game; Marg Hendrickson 565 3-game and H. Chuerden 513 3-game.

Howe Sound Timber League seemed to be in a general low slump this week with lots of low scores—some down to 42, 63, 56, etc. However, some of the bowlers didn't catch the disease, namely Grace MacDonald and Al Hendrickson. Grace had 203 single and 575 3-game while Al made 222 single and 657 3-game. The Alders lead so far in the second half.

PGE League had a fair night. Hazel Armstrong made 198 single and Eve Beckman 549 3-game. Max Bailey got 258 single and 591 3-game. Other good scores went to Bert Toms 190, E. Smith 170-202, Bill Curran 207, Olga Kuhn 192.

I promised the results on the three games between the PGE head office in Vancouver and three teams from the local league. I was sorry to hear our locals didn't take any points but were not beaten too badly. The Vancouver bowlers were very pleased with our lanes and evidently all the participants went home happy about the whole thing.

Hidden prizes were won by Marie Trainor and Al Grayba, both of Vancouver office. How about more week-end challenge games from other communities?

Don't forget, there are still some lost articles at the lanes, wanting to be found.

Put your locks on your lockers

By Christine Mader

Talk about support, we really got it! At our Fun Fair last week we cleared around $700.00.

Does the long line-up in front of the wishing well prove something about our wishful generation? The slaves, of course, were a big success and attraction (I'm not just prejudiced) and Heather MacDonald was the most expensive slave—what was your secret, Heather?

Most of the stuff was already sold out quite some time before we had intended to close shop. Even the people who had permission to eat, drink and mess study periods to work on their projects thought their work was well worth it. Perhaps the most ambitious souls were those students, mostly juniors, who came around to clean up the gym on Saturday morning. Almost everything was sold: candies, books, cakes, and two of the puppies.

Janet Brait is back from Victoria, and now at least one member of our school population knows what "they" do in the legislature.

Last week I mentioned our clock. I did this with the hopes that someone would PLEASE return the thing to its place above the telephone by the front entrance. Everyone is dreadfully lost without it: how are we to judge whether we can make it to class on time, or if we need to leap up the steps by three's? Many a student has had to get a late slip simply because he judged

Brownies help fund

The 18 Brownies of the St. James Pack can now look back on the cold they endured during their Christmas carolling.

They did it for donations to the B.C. Muscular Dystrophy Association fund. The Brownies now know that their small contribution helped put that fund over the top.

New cars, old names

What's new in the automotive field? Not much, says the B.C. Automobile Association, particularly if you are thinking of the names of cars today and during the early years of the horseless carriage.

Meteor? A car by that name was manufactured first in 1902. Comet? 1907. Falcon 1909. And there was a Continental in 1907!

A Rambler came out in 1900, an Ambassador in 1921, a Metropolitan in 1917.

There was a Dart in 1911. Newport in 1916, a Special in 1906, Riviera in 1907, and Electra in 1913, a Classic in 1917 and a Hawk in 1914.

When you move check this list

Serious financial loss and many needless worries result from neglect of small details during a change of residence, warns the All Canada Insurance Federation.

Many moves are made in the spring—a time of change and activity—and the All Canada Insurance Federation, representing more than 220 competing fire, casualty and automobile insurance companies, makes these recommendations for a worry-free move to a new home.

1. List your new address with the post office and telephone company.
2. Use post office supplied cards to notify regular correspondents of your change of address. Only first class mail is forwarded.
3. Inform your insurance agent. Fire and burglary policies may not completely cover your new residence. General liability insurance is not in effect on your new abode until the new address is listed with your insuring company.
4. Register the change with your bank. Credit references checked at your old address may prove embarrassing.
5. Let your doctor know. An emergency call without the correct address could be dangerous to your family.
6. List the new address with the automobile license bureau so your license will be valid.

7. Check your automobile insurance agent. Accident insurance premiums may be higher or lower in a different area.

8. Reaffirm the new address with the post office within 90 days.

World day of prayer

The first Friday in Lent, March 1st has been chosen as World Day of Prayer for women.

The local service will be held in Squamish United Church with women of the Anglican, Britannia Beach and Pentecostal churches participating.

The churches involved take turns as hosts for this yearly event.

World Day of Prayer has a two-fold purpose—to meet in prayer and to contribute to world-wide needs including aid to refugees and Braille publications. The program to be used this year was prepared by women of Korea who have been assisted by funds obtained from this service in the past.

Guest speaker will be the Rev. E. Fullerton of Britannia Beach. This is the first time that the women of Britannia Beach have taken part in the service.

OIL PAINTINGS of Squamish and Britannia Beach done recently by Lawrence Barrs are now on display at the Alex Fraser Galleries, 5669 Granville St., Vancouver. They have been done as part of a program to publicize B.C. throughout the province and reproductions will appear on post cards, calendars and hasty note cards. The artist and his wife are holding the pictures, above.

B.C. Tel. lowers long distance

Station-to-station long distance telephone rates on calls over distances of 165 miles within the province and over similar distances between B.C. and Alberta points will be reduced February 15, according to an announcement by B.C. Telephone Co.

The revised rates were approved by the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada following an application by the company.

A company spokesman said the reduced rates represent an annual saving of more than $200,000 to long distance users, station-to-station being the fastest and most economical way of placing long distance calls.

Following are some examples of old and new rates on calls between B.C. and Alberta points and within the province:

Vancouver to Edmonton, weekdays, now $1.95, was $2.30; nights and Sundays, now $1.55, was $1.70.

Vancouver to Calgary, weekdays, now $1.90, was $2.15; nights and Sundays, now $1.50, was $1.60.

Vancouver to Prince George, weekdays, now $1.75, was $1.95; nights and Sundays, now $1.35, was $1.45.

Vancouver to Kitimat, weekdays, now $1.85, was $2.10; nights and Sundays, now $1.45, was $1.55.

Long Distance Rates

REDUCED AGAIN

For the second time within less than a year rates are being reduced by British Columbia Telephone Company.

The lower rates, effective on February 15, are for station-to-station calls within B.C. and to Alberta on distances of more than 165 miles.

These reductions are the result of continuous efforts by the B.C. Telephone Company to provide the best in communications service at the lowest possible cost.

Now there are more reasons than ever to use long distance for personal and business calls.

The following are representative examples of the old and new rates — 3 minute station-to-station calls

	Weekdays		Nights and Sundays
	OLD	NEW	OLD	NEW
Vancouver to Prince George	$1.95	$1.75	$1.45	$1.35
