Woodfibre mill to double output

RAYONIER HAS PLANS TO ELIMINATE ODOR

The new construction planned at Woodfibre by the Rayonier Company will include the latest devices for reducing odors from their kraft mill. The new installation will include a black liquor oxidation tower to handle the entire output of the mill.

The company has been working with the B.C. Research Council on the problem of odor from the mill.

WOODFIBRE produces the finest Kraft in the world.

Govt. to grant forest areas

More than 400 men will be employed in the $21-million expansion program of the Woodfibre pulp mill.

According to W. E. Breitenbach, president of Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Limited, the program calls for increasing the capacity from 250 tons of bleached sulphate pulp a day to 550 tons.

The mill now employs 350 people.

The construction project will employ about 400 men and is scheduled for completion by the summer of 1965.

Basic mill design has been completed.

Engineering is being handled by Rayonier staff and the consulting firms of Sandwell and Company, and Phillips, Barratt-Hillier.

ORDER PLACED

A $2 million order for a large pulp drying machine has already been placed. Many parts of this machine will be manufactured in Vancouver.

"In deciding to make the investment," said Mr. Breitenbach, "the company is relying on obtaining supplies of pulpwood harvesting areas now under investigation."

"Preliminary applications for these areas have been accepted by the Provincial Government," he continued.

Woodfibre mill was converted from production of sulphite to high quality bleached sulphate pulp used in kraft papers just two years ago. Provision was then made for future doubling when markets could be obtained.

"The quality of the pulp produced at Woodfibre has more than met expectations," said Mr. Breitenbach. "Its success in world markets has made the expansion possible at this time."

"The best equipment known to minimize kraft mill odors will be installed," he continued.

"We have been working with the B.C. Research Council on this problem and the new installation will include a black liquor oxidation tower to handle the entire output of the mill."

"Fuller integration and more complete utilization of the company's forest resources will result from the enlarged operation," he reported. "This will come through greater use of cedar and fir and of the entire large Rayonier sawmills at New Westminster and Marpole.

In addition pulpwood and smallwood will be harvested from areas where it is not now being utilized."

OTHER MILLS

This is a further major undertaking in the company since Rayonier Incorporated acquired a controlling interest late in 1954. This new expenditure and a two million dollar improvement program now under way at the Port Alice cellulose mill will bring to 68 million dollars the total capital expenditures made by Rayonier Canada in its various operating divisions since 1954.

The major additions included in the project are a recovery boiler, power boiler, lime kiln and causticizing equipment, continuous digester, brown stock washers, a complete bleach plant, a 202-inch pulp drying machine to replace the existing old machines, an automatic cutter and layboy, additions to the water supply system and extensive service facilities.

Woodfibre was one of the earliest pulp producers in the province. It came into production on unbleached sulphite in 1912.

Becomes two parks

Minister reveals Garibaldi split

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood in a meeting with the Garibaldi Joint Action Committee revealed that the government intends to divide Garibaldi Park into two provincial parks.

The area adjacent to Squamish will retain the name of Garibaldi Park while the southern portion near Haney will be renamed the Golden Ears Park. Garibaldi will be developed as a ski area and for winter sports while the southern portion will be for summer use and camping.

Better access to Diamond Head is under consideration and lodge type facilities at the chalet will be expanded.

The other key ski-lng area is at Whistler Mountain where Garibaldi Lifts Ltd. has crown leased areas outside the Park boundaries. The company also has property outside the Park. Garibaldi Lifts also plans to build a ski lift to the top of Whistler Mountain. This was one of the sites suggested for the 1968 Winter Olympics.

Five shelter locations have been planned for the Black Tusk area, one has been built near the foot of Sentinel Glacier, and others are under construction.

A new trail is being built from Garibaldi station to Black Tusk Meadows.

The new trail will go to the foot of the Barrier, a distance of approximately 3 1/2 miles, and then climb two thousand feet to the meadows, approximately another three miles.

It is expected that this portion will maintain a steady grade of approximately 12 per cent.

IWA CHALLENGES FOREST MINISTER

Lands and Forests Minister R. G. Williston has been challenged to appear at a public meeting called by the IWA Local 1-71, to be held in the Parish Hall on Thursday, July 25th.

This is the latest development in the case which saw local forestry officials charge nine loggers with evading fire fighting duties. All but one of the cases was dismissed when the loggers appeared in court.

Later demands for an inquiry resulted in charges by the union that Deputy Minister R. G. McKee had "visited Squamish to whitewash the whole affair."

The union then requested that Mr. Williston order an immediate investigation into the matter by some person not connected with his department.

Painting classes offered

Five large paintings and three pencil portraits are on display at the Squamish Public Library. These are the work of Edith Marchant, who has been painting for many years and has taken art classes at UBC.

The paintings are done in rhoplex, a plastic which is mixed with powdered paint and water. It can be used to obtain a texture similar to oils or as a glaze.

Miss Marchant hopes to be able to hold outdoor painting classes for children this summer, along the lines of Vancouver's "Painting in the Park" classes. Mrs. E. Hansen and Mrs. Swanton are interested in working with her on this project and if anyone would like to take such a class they are invited to contact her at 892-3814.

Ten years ago this week

Rock work was being done at the Red Bridge and the rock bluff blasted to re-route the highway and eliminate the sharp curve onto the bridge.

More than sixty children were attending swimming classes at Britannia Beach each Saturday morning.

Death ruled accidental

A verdict of accidental death with no blame attached to anyone was reached at the inquest, held in Squamish on Monday, July 8th, into the death of Patrick Pierre, who was killed when struck by a train.

The accident occurred on July 2nd at approximately 12:45 a.m. at mile 75.5 on the PGE. Mr. Pierre, who was section worker at Parkhurst was struck by a freight, extra 594 north.

ROCK SLIDE BLOCKS PGE NEAR PORTEAU

A rock slide blocked the PGE tracks near Porteau last Saturday, July 20, for seven and one-half hours.

Loosened by heavy rain, the slide covered the tracks under some 15 feet of rock for a distance of 120 feet.

An extra gang from Squamish cleared the right of way by 1 p.m. and the number one train, four hours and 25 minutes late, was able to proceed.

PGE officials stated that, while rock slides are not unusual, they are uncommon in July and heavy rains at this time of year cause more damage than they do in the normally wet months.

Injured ranger carried to safety

About thirty men assisted in bringing an injured park ranger, William Alley, aged 21, down the eleven mile trail from Black Tusk Meadows to Garibaldi Station on Sunday.

Alley, who is a university student, working as a park ranger for his second successive summer, was seriously injured while doing a routine park patrol near the Barrier on Saturday morning.

A rock came down the mountainside, shattered into pieces and knocked him over a cliff. He suffered a broken leg, crushed shoulder and possible internal injuries.

He managed to crawl to a spot where he knew the other ranger, George Lorenz, would be passing. It took Lorenz eight hours to bring Alley to the cabin in the meadows.

Word was sent out with hikers and Dr. Kindree left Squamish at 1:30 a.m. on Sunday, and with a party of six men from Garibaldi station reached the cabin at 9 a.m.

An Air-Sea-Rescue helicopter attempted to get in to the meadows on Sunday but the low cloud grounded them at Garibaldi station for the day.

About 2 p.m. the party started to carry Alley out over the rough trail. Const. H. Bryce and Const. G. Polegi, with Forest Officer Jack Carradice and a group of boys from the forestry camp on the Manquam River went in to help them and met the rescue party at Packer's meadows at about 6 p.m. The helicopter again attempted to reach them but was IN satisfactory condition in Vancouver General Hospital is Bill Alley, Garibaldi Park ranger who broke his leg over the weekend.

WILLIAM E. "BILL" BREITENBACH, "We have faith in the future."

PLAY CARDS and listen to the local radio station are just some of the new features on the latest addition to Squamish Coach Lines. Owner-operator Leon Keyes states that the new bus will be used on charter runs and driver will be Bob Chester.

Garibaldi Is For Summer Too

Development of the northern areas of Garibaldi Park as a winter sports area while the southern portion containing Alouette Lake is to be used for summer sports and camping certainly reflects some queer thinking on the part of the recreational branch of the provincial government.

We agree that Diamond Head, the Black Tusk and Whistler mountain are superb skiing areas. But they will be just as interesting to summer visitors. Granted that the summers are not very long, but there is no place close to Vancouver where such magnificent alpine scenery can be found.

The mountains, glaciers, lakes and wide meadows with their colorful alpine flowers have been described so often that there is no need to elaborate on them.

There are certain geological features which would be of interest, especially to tourists. These include volcanic cones, a lava flow which dams a valley and retains the waters of Garibaldi Lake, the cinder cone, mountains of columnar basalt similar to the Giant's Causeway in Ireland, the Tusk and Table mountains, which are the basaltic cores of volcanoes which extruded through the ice during the last Ice Age.

A road in to Diamond Head is a necessity. Already the area, which is rather difficult to reach, requiring a six-mile hike, is very popular. A good road ending at the chalet, with a pattern of trails radiating from it would make this an immensely popular playground for the lower mainland.

In the Black Tusk area, we would suggest a road to the foot of the Barrier. A good three mile trail in to the meadows would help to preserve this portion of the park. We can sympathize with the government's wishes to retain the wilderness beauty of this area and do not agree with those who would like to see a road to a spot on the meadows overlooking Garibaldi Lake.

However a three mile trail with a good grade should not discourage the average hiker. We would not advocate a lodge or cabins in Black Tusk unless they were well back from the meadows and hidden in the trees.

B. H. Brown, chairman of the Garibaldi Park committee of the Squamish Chamber of Commerce, which has advocated the development of the park for many years says "the park is as much for summer use as winter." And we agree with him.

We're Missing The Boat...

Newspaper legend keeps warm the memory of a youthful reporter who, having been sent out to cover the most important wedding of the year, came back and sat around doing nothing.

After a while his editor asked him why he wasn't writing the story. The reporter explained that there wasn't any story; the intended bride did not show up.

The biggest story of this summer is the fact that two industrial wonders of the Pacific coast sit in our midst unknown and unheralded by the tourists.

For instance, did you know that the Canadian Collieries sawmill is one of the most modern of its kind in North America? Did you know that the Woodfibre kraft mill is second to none for modern processing of pulp?

For The Women Of Squamish — A Community Service...

The pulp and paper town of Powell River has a unique home-help service, being operated by one of their local women's clubs on a non-profit strictly-service basis.

Called the Home Helper's Service, it functions from a shared office with its own phone, from Tuesday through to Friday, 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Also it makes available to homes needing emergency housekeeping, baby-sitting, a file of applicants.

A small charge is made to defray the necessary minimum office expense. Initiated last year on a restricted basis, the Powell River group has expanded to meet the needs of homes incapacitated through sickness, bereavement, vacations and emergencies. Details on the experience and references of those who are willing to work in homes for temporary periods are kept, as well as a file of reliable babysitters.

Why can't these industrial centres become tourist attractions?

We could be wrong, but from the viewpoint of laymen, it seems as though our local Chamber of Commerce could look into the possibility of working with management in establishing a tour, once a day, of the sawmill. Details, such as time, number of people, guides, could be worked out between Chamber and mill management.

In a similar manner, why not look into the golden opportunity of establishing charter trips from Squamish across by ferry and a tour of Woodfibre once a day. This would keep the tourist in our area longer, give employment to more people and bring in a greater share of the tourist dollar.

As a community service, it is filling a need and is, in the opinion of The Times, an idea which could well be copied by Squamish, Britannia and Pemberton. As an employment service, limited of course to home-help, it stands ready to save many worried hours of fruitless searching by offering a central registry.

How about it ladies? Here is an excellent opportunity of accepting a challenge... that of organizing and operating a worthwhile service so greatly needed the year round in your district. It is just one more step in making our community a better place in which to live.

Let's Walk Once In A While...

We are always being told that walking is good for us. Of course it is. But sometimes it pays unexpected dividends, too.

Walking to work the other morning we noticed two goldfinches flitting from twig to twig ahead of us, each one like some burnished golden figurine. They would sway on the bough for a moment and then flit on to the next shrub.

It was a beautiful morning and the sight of the darting feathered songsters made it just that much more beautiful. Had we been driving to work we would probably never have seen the birds and thus missed something that enriched the day.

Walking gives one time to notice little things that are so easily missed when we dash into a car and rush off in a hurry to get things done. Take time out some time to walk leisurely along a road or trail and see the things one so often misses. It's well worth while.

Story of Sarawak

During the past few weeks I have told you a little about our higher primary boarding school at Bario.

It does not possess luxurious buildings and there is a lot of equipment that it still needs, but it has the most valuable asset that any school can have: bright, industrious, well-behaved, mature, cheerful pupils. School has now been open for more than three months but during this time there has not been a single disagreement among the children. Arguments, fistfights, name-calling, sulking, tantrums and tears are unheard of.

Maintaining discipline constitutes absolutely no problem, even though we have the children with us 24 hours a day.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Manson Toynebe, former principal of Gleneagles school, has been in Sarawak for four years as group headmaster in their school system. Mr. Toynebe works under the Canadian Colombo plan. He recently returned to Canada on leave and brought news of his adopted son who will come to Vancouver to attend the University of B.C. when he has completed his education in Sarawak.

seven days a week. The youngsters, who range from about 10 to 14 years of age, are always well behaved, while they display a degree of maturity and dependability not usually expected from children. For example, they take turns conducting the early morning prayer service, and whether a teacher is present or not this is conducted in a reverent fashion that would do credit to an adult lay minister.

Many Canadians consider that a North American tendency is to force children to grow up too quickly, and while I was still teaching in Canada I sometimes expressed sentiments along these lines.

Now I find myself wondering if just the opposite is not the case.

Contrast to Canadians

A striking difference between youngsters of this part of Borneo and Canadian youngsters is the way in which they develop.

Here children retain their naturalness and respect for adult authority right through their teens, while at the same time they very early develop a sense of responsibility normally expected from considerably older persons.

On the other hand, Canadian children often seem to lose their naturalness and their respect for adult authority early in life, and then to enter upon a protracted period of adolescence sometimes lasting as long as twenty years, or even a lifetime.

Thus in the Kelabit Highlands one finds teenagers who are unsophisticated but mature in outlook, while in Canada teenagers often are very sophisticated though quite immature in their approach to life. Kelabit children are exposed to all the mysteries of birth, life and death from early age, so that no lessons on the birds and bees, boy-girl relationships, dating, etc. are required.

There is no topic in health or science that cannot be discussed quite freely and frankly with a mixed class of boys and girls. There is no smut, no lewd notes, no washroom art and no peeping toms.

Mental ills non-existent

Child guidance clinics and child psychologists would find themselves very short of work. We have no disobedient children, no destructive children, no children who crave extra attention, no children who steal, no children who are jealous of brothers or sisters, no children who have nightmares, or children who suffer from the growing list of mental disturbances to be found in most Canadian schools.

What we do have is youngsters who are able to hike for up to a week through the jungle carrying their food, clothes and bedding with them.

When they reach their school they are able to take care of themselves and their belongings for the five or six months until they return home again.

Even the youngest of our pupils can accept responsibility for slaughtering and butchering a pig or goat, while classroom and dormitory clean-up is completely organized by the children. Never do you hear a child complaining that it is not his turn.

In a few months' time Sarawak is to have its first general election, conducted entirely by secret ballot. It will also be the first election in which more than one candidate has run in the Kelabit Highlands, the first one in which political parties have made their presence felt, and the first one in which there has been universal adult suffrage.

Young teach democracy

To explain the fine points of a democratic voting system to an electorate virtually none of whose members can either read or write would be a formidable task for any government officer or group of officers to tackle. We are counting on

Ottawa Diary

Finance Minister Gordon's Canada-first budget brought up a question which is basic to the survival of Canada as an independent country, i.e. is an increase in our present standard of living or overriding objective or are we prepared to pay a heavy price for separate nationhood?

No postwar Canadian government, until this one, attempted to make any significant change in Canada's commercial policies. Each administration since the war has tried to raise our living standards by permitting an unlimited inflow of foreign capital.

But the foreign exchange crisis of last year, demonstrated that this is not a foolproof design for progress. It worked admirably when the world was hungry for our raw materials. It didn't work at all well in a rebuilt international economy where a nation's ability to meet price competition increasingly determines national prosperity.

The Gordon budget—whatever its merits and demerits—at least attempted to draft a new economic policy for Canada.

So far, it has failed to win the support of most Canadians. Why? Because it reveals Canada's basic dilemma.

We want the highest possible standard of living—which implies unlimited amounts of foreign capital to develop our resources and industries. And we also want a sense of independence and sense of control over our own destiny—which implies some restraint on foreign ownership of Canadian companies.

This dilemma is not new. It has been with us since Confederation.

One of Mr. Gordon's misfortunes is that he has had to take a stand. He has decided to legislate for more Canadian ownership and control. Yet to be masters in our own house may well mean that our generation will be less prosperous than it might otherwise have been.

The Fact Is!

By RAY NESTMAN

Hi Folks,
Well, this is my week to be nice to everybody, because I am getting married this Saturday.
For those of you who are already married, I guess you know what I am going through and for those who are thinking about it — Stop! — (Thinking, that is). It's nothing but confusion from the day she said yes. But let's face it, confusion was never so wonderful.
The girl I am marrying is a Human Dynamo. She charges everything. Seriously though, I look forward to many happy years in this valley. Probably until I die.

Speaking of Death, I do hope when I take my final walk that our local graveyard will lie in better shape than it is now. Who is supposed to look after it? This is quite a heartbreaking sight to see.

Such a place should be a beautiful spot for the family and friends of those who have passed away to visit. But is it? No! It is a shambles from the fence inwards. The fence is not painted, the grounds are not tended and I don't think a hand has been lifted to improve this situation in the last year.

I would like to know what they do in other communities to keep their last resting places so nice. Please someone, an answer!

NOTE TO BUSINESSMEN AND WORKERS

We all have lanes behind our various establishments. Do you not think it would be a good idea to park our cars back there and leave the main street for our customers and tourists?

It is not necessary to leave a car parked on the main street all day while our customers and tourists are searching for a parking space.

I said earlier in this column that this was my week to be nice to people. It seems I am contradicting myself right and left here. But there is no good in thinking one thing and saying another. You know I meet a lot of tourists in my job and you should hear some of the comments I get. As follows:

"Why don't they pick up the refuse from the streets?"
"Aren't there any public washrooms in this town?"
"Can't we rent a boat up here?"

As you can see, most of the things I have to say are not my thoughts, but those of visitors to our valley.

So come on village officers, Tourist Bureau, businessmen, citizens, everybody. Let's show these people they are wrong. Clean up those streets, paint and fix up. Show pride in this — 'Your' community.

If any of you folks are interested in ball games you should come out to the park for an evening and watch some real good ball, even if the boys are not playing too well. You can always be sure our umpire, Jim Sanderson, will get in the odd squabble.

It's quite a thing to hear the fans calling for blood — but whose?

Overheard at Trolls in Horseshoe Bay — Wally McDougall and family visiting with Mr. Troll after a very successful day at the races. "When he visits Mr. Troll you can be sure more horse meat is discussed than roast beef."

CHEEKEYE 'COON IS STEADY CUSTOMER

One of the best customers at the Cheekeye dog house is a racoon who has been coming in regularly for a meal. Bob Silcock says that she usually comes to the side door, but on occasion he has heard her scratching on the wall below the counter.

On occasion she has eaten a whole loaf of bread, slice by slice, but ice cream is still her favorite. She holds this in her front paws and obviously relishes it just like a youngster.

The pet's regular visits will be one of the things the Silcock's will miss when they go to Garibaldi next month. They are remodelling a small building on their property on the highway near Garibaldi for use as a drive-in.

In new store McDougall offers decor service

Dennis McDougall of McDougall's Music and Furnishings, says that his new store will offer "a complete home decorating as well as home furnishing service."

"I'll be able to take a bare room, or house if that is what you want, and plan the materials to be used, color scheme and furniture. If there is any color or style of furniture the customer prefers, it will all be worked around that," he added.

Not only will he be prepared to plan and decorate the interior of the building, but he can also supply any material required for the outside of the house.

Custom made furniture will be one of the features he will stress.

"In fact, I am doing this now," Denny explained. "In one house I am working on the owner wanted a divider and a desk and as the area wasn't too large, we planned the divider to show a solid panel on one side with planter on top, poles to the ceiling and light fixtures, and built the desk right into the other side of the unit. It's working out fine."

He had taken courses in industrial arts in school and was planning to make architecture his career, but after his two year session in hospital, he did not feel prepared to go to university. So he went into business for himself in the record shop five years ago and has branched out into furnishings and this new home service.

"I've been studying decorating, color schemes and home planning for a long time," he said, "and so far my customers have been satisfied."

He planned and engineered his new building and "there haven't been any bugs yet," he added. "But I'm keeping my fingers crossed."

He commented on the mauve paint on his new building and said it was his favorite color. The paint is a special combination filler sealer for concrete blocks and it is the first time in Canada that this has been mixed with color.

"I had quite a time getting them to do it," Dennis said, "they were afraid that the color would not mix properly as the base is almost like jelly. At that it took about four hours on a special machine to mix each five gallon lot required. And it took a great deal of paint to cover the building."

W.V. urges provincial odor control

Of interest to Squamish are two resolutions which will be presented at the UBCM convention by West Vancouver Council.

One will be a resolution urging the UBCM to ask the provincial government to stop kraft pulp mills and other industries outside the municipality from polluting the air.

The other deals with Garibaldi Park and will ask the Union of B.C. Municipalities to keep the alplands surrounding Garibaldi Lake in a natural state for hikers.

The resolution would ask that ski lifts be kept out of the Black Tusk meadows and that better and longer trails be built there for hikers as well as some shelter huts.

Everything else in the picture on the preceding page was made entirely or partly of cellulose. Cellulose is one of man's most useful raw materials, and Rayonier in British Columbia alone can produce well over 400,000,000 pounds of it a year. In addition to serving Canadian and U.S. customers, we ship millions of pounds to Free China, Japan, India, Italy, France and dozens of other free-world countries . . . much of it from our mills at Port Alice and Woodfibre. From it are made rayons, acetates, cigaret filters, cellophane, plastics, tire cords, photo films and papers—all told, some 6,000 useful products you'll find all over the world. • Take away the Rayonier cellulose? Better get going: we turned out 3,500 pounds of it while you were reading this advertisement — 900 right here in British Columbia!

CEMENT TRUCK belonging to Express Ready Mix at Shannon Falls overturned Thursday afternoon. Driver, Fred Martin, escaped unhurt but had to crawl out of the window.

Driver unhurt in truck upset

Truck driver Fred Martin escaped injury when a cement truck, owned by Nick Nazarec of Express Ready Mix Concrete at Shannon Falls overturned in a ditch near the Little Chief Drive-In on Thursday last week.

Martin said he was pulling away from the drive-in when a car came around the corner. It was coming fast, so he stopped and tried to back up. However the mixer was running and the vibration caused him to slide off the edge of the road and the truck turned over in the deep ditch alongside the road.

He crawled out of the window and escaped unhurt. A cat was needed to pull the truck out of the ditch. This must have been Martin's unlucky week, as the day before he had spent most of his time chipping cement which had been allowed to set in the mixer.

Read Romans 8:1-6
If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed. (John 8:36.)

I am one of many who have escaped the inhuman, godless, and freedom destroying policies in effect in some countries today. I have tasted of the liberty that is the birthright of every human being under God's sun.

I highly treasure my newfound liberty. I am able to move about without constant fear and to speak freely with others. Above all, I can worship God in absolute freedom. To be at liberty to do these things is great and wonderful and makes life worth living.

Yet there is a liberty far richer and sweeter still. Not long after I left my native land, I came in contact with Jesus Christ and His liberating power, which set me free from sin and death. Truly, my cup of joy runs over!

This glorious liberty is intended for every person regardless of race, color or nationality.

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for lands where Thou art honored and loved, where each individual enjoys his right of liberty. Continue to protect these lands, and let us not be unmindful of our brothers and sisters oppressed by powers of evil. We pray in our Redeemer's name. Amen.

Thought for the Day: O that men today might come out of bondage into the perfect liberty of Christ!

West Van councillor Save Alplands, Greenwood asks

Councillor Joan Greenwood last Monday asked Council to raise their voices to save Garibaldi Lake Alplands for future generations.

Council agreed that a plea for conservation of the area, approximately one-seventh of the entire area of Garibaldi Park, should be sent as a resolution to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities. The resolution points out that the park naturally lends itself to division into four separate recreational areas, Alouette Lake and Golden Ears, Diamond Head, Whistler Mountain and Singing Pass, and the Garibaldi Lake Alplands and Black Tusk Meadows. There is good access to the first three areas now or under construction. Therefore, it is suggested that the Alplands be reserved as a natural area where permanent mechanical fixtures such as chair lifts and commercial developments are forbidden.

IMPROVE FACILITIES
Improved hikers' access, with shelter huts and extended trails as planned, are approved, but other areas are considered more suitable for automobile access and commercial development, and the resolve insists no road for summer access be allowed in the reserve. Black Tusk Meadows and Garibaldi Lake Alplands, states the resolution, offer an unique high level natural park of rare and fragile beauty within easy reach of metropolitan Vancouver. The resolution was drawn up by the Garibaldi Alplands Committee headed by H. R. Hayward, Mrs. W. Oliver, Dr. W. H. Mathews, Dr. V. C. Brink, W. Barnes and C. Fenner.

When he left for work in the morning, he expected nothing more than a quiet dinner in the evening with his wife. However, when he arrived home his brother, Mr. James Chisholm, and his wife from Sacramento, Calif., were there to greet him.

Also present were Mrs. H. Chisholm's sister, Mrs. L. D. Squair of California and Mr. and Mrs. C. Rundgren of Vancouver.

Pioneers hold picnic

Rain failed to dampen the spirits of the hardy old-timers who turned out for the annual Squamish Old-Timers' picnic at the Duck Pond in Stanley Park on Saturday of last week.

A light rain was falling as the group of 31 picnickers boarded the bus, but they were all determined to go ahead with plans for the day. An almost equal number went down in private cars, and in all there were about one hundred people at the event.

Among the former residents noticed there were: Mrs. Isabella Blake, the former Widge Galbraith, Mr. and Mrs. J. Heiliger, Mrs. Blundell with her two daughters Dorothy and Kathleen, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Dixon, Mrs. M. Powell, Mrs. Minor Bazley, Mrs. H. Graham, Mrs. A. McDonald of Vancouver.

The former Joan Isaac with her husband and family who are out from England, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Stephens, Miss Ethel Edwards and her father, Mr. Jim Edwards, Mrs. Alex MacDonald of Nanaimo, the former Lizzie Paul, Mr. Alex Rutledge, and Mrs. D. McLeod, the former Vera Edwards.

Book circulation hits all time high

Membership and circulation at the Squamish Public Library for the first six months of this year are at an all time high: Adult memberships have increased by more than 35%, from 76 at June 30, 1962, to 103 at the same time this year.

Circulation figures are up by 9%, from 4607 to 5105, with the adults showing increases from 1377 to 1976 in fiction; 43.5% and in non-fiction from 801 to 855, 6.7%. However, the children's figures are below last year's dropping from 2429 to 2184, just over 11%.

Mrs. Freda Munro, the librarian, believes that this is due to the excellent libraries now in the schools in this area. Proof of this surmise is shown by the increase in the number of children's books being taken out since school closed.

Some new children's books have been placed on shelves, as well as a number of adult ones, mainly mystery novels.

Sandberg completes course

Ben Sandberg, Imperial-Esso agent in Squamish, was one of 12 successful graduates to complete the first agency management training course sponsored by Imperial Oil Ltd. in Vancouver.

Sandberg, company agent in Squamish for the past three years, received his graduation certificate from regional sales manager Arden-Haynes.

The Imperial Oil course, believed to be the first of its kind in North America, is designed to give agents wider knowledge of marketing and management techniques. Classes were held over a three-week period in the company's Vancouver training school.

Among the many subjects under study were effective selling, operating efficiency, business management, credit, plant and truck maintenance costs, equipment selection, manpower requirements and accounting systems.

New booming grounds

CRB Logging Ltd. have moved into their new booming grounds on the east bank of the Squamish River. They had been using the former Empire Mills dump and grounds at the old mill site.

They built the log dump last year and have been waiting to put in the access road. This road leaves the new truckers route just south of the railway tracks and across the highway below Castle's crossing and thence for approximately a mile to the new site.

Work on the road has just been completed and the first loads went over the new dump last Thursday.

Bob Bruntlett, CRB's booming contractor, with his boat the "McKivior" towed the boomsticks and machinery to the new site on Wednesday evening.

Halray Logging Co. Ltd. hope to move into the booming ground vacated by CRB.

COMPETITORS VIE FOR NEW TROPHIES

Competitors in the annual Squamish Loggers' Day Sports will have three new trophies to vie for on Saturday, August 3.

The Chieftain Hotel will present a challenge trophy for obstacle bucking. Mackenzies will give one for the axe throwing and Point Grey Towing is donating one for the log birling.

These will be held by the winner for a year and then will be up for competition again. But small commemorative trophies will be presented to each winner and these will become his personal property.

Tom Kirk of New Zealand, champion axe chopper, unbeaten in North America, will put on an exhibition at the Loggers' Day Sports in Squamish on August 3. He is appearing at the Loggers' Carnival, in Hayward, Wisconsin, this week and will be on TV in the "Wide World of Sports" on Saturday over Channel 4 from 5 - 6:30.

Artie and Jube Wickheim, log birling champions from Sooke, will give an exhibition of log birling as well as competing.

WEEKEND WAS FOR DUCKS

Nearly three inches of rain fell in Squamish between noon on Saturday and 4 p.m. on Monday.

The rain was accompanied by high winds on Sunday night and Monday morning.

On Monday afternoon the Squamish River was over the road at the Pilchuk, but the road was still passable.

Work on roads continues

Work on the loggers' road from Mamquam to Squamish using portions of a former railroad grade was continued last week-end.

Four trucks owned by Canadian Collieries hauled gravel from the old mill site and a drag line worked there on Saturday loading the trucks.

Squamish Mills had a cat working on the road and a grader levelled off the gravel after it was dumped.

A culvert was put under the road half way between the Mamquam River and the old mill site. Considerable gravel remains to be done before the road will be usable.

Crews had to leave early on Saturday as heavy rain made the ground soggy and difficult to work in.

Drilling of rock across the mill pond at the former mill site on River Road started on Friday. Squamish Mills are branching off the main truckers' road just above the mill pond and will follow the east side of the old Mamquam River channel to their dump near the Kosy Motel.

Fill has been pushed up to make the road and the rock work is all that remains to be done.

STUART MCGOWAN - his aim: good clean pictures

TV series has German shepherd as top star

by LOUISE SPRATLEY

Stuart McGowan, Hollywood director whose experience reaches back to Mack Sennett comedy days, finds himself with a dream star: one that has no temperament, is always on time, is never sick and loves everyone.

The star is London, Chuck Eisenmann's German shepherd dog.

London is starring in the "Littlest Hobo" series for a TV package to be distributed worldwide, and the 39 episodes are being shot in B.C.

Headquarters are in Parry Films Studios at 1825 Capilano Road and residents are becoming accustomed to seeing scenes shot against the backdrop of the North Shore.

Stuart McGowan, a sunburned, kindly-faced man from Hollywood, has a refreshing sense of values, and he likes his pictures to mirror them.

"I think people look at TV for amusement or education but I don't think you can mix them. Good, clean entertainment is the best thing you can give them.

"We have always tried to make a picture that has a moral value. We could make sex pictures and get wealthy overnight and could also go broke.

"Our pictures will be the kind that anyone can look at and the kind that children can look at," McGowan said.

McGowan and his brother Dorrell are shooting this series in B.C. under the Canamac label, a company set up here for that purpose, and under contract to Storer Programs Inc. of Miami to do the series.

Eight films have already been shot, and McGowan says there is not a location in the script he cannot find in B.C. Some scenes have been shot at Horseshoe Bay; some at Park Royal, others in Hope for desert scenes, a few at Squamish.

When the series starts over Channel 8 this fall, the background will be a composite of B.C. scenery.

What was their biggest difficulty?

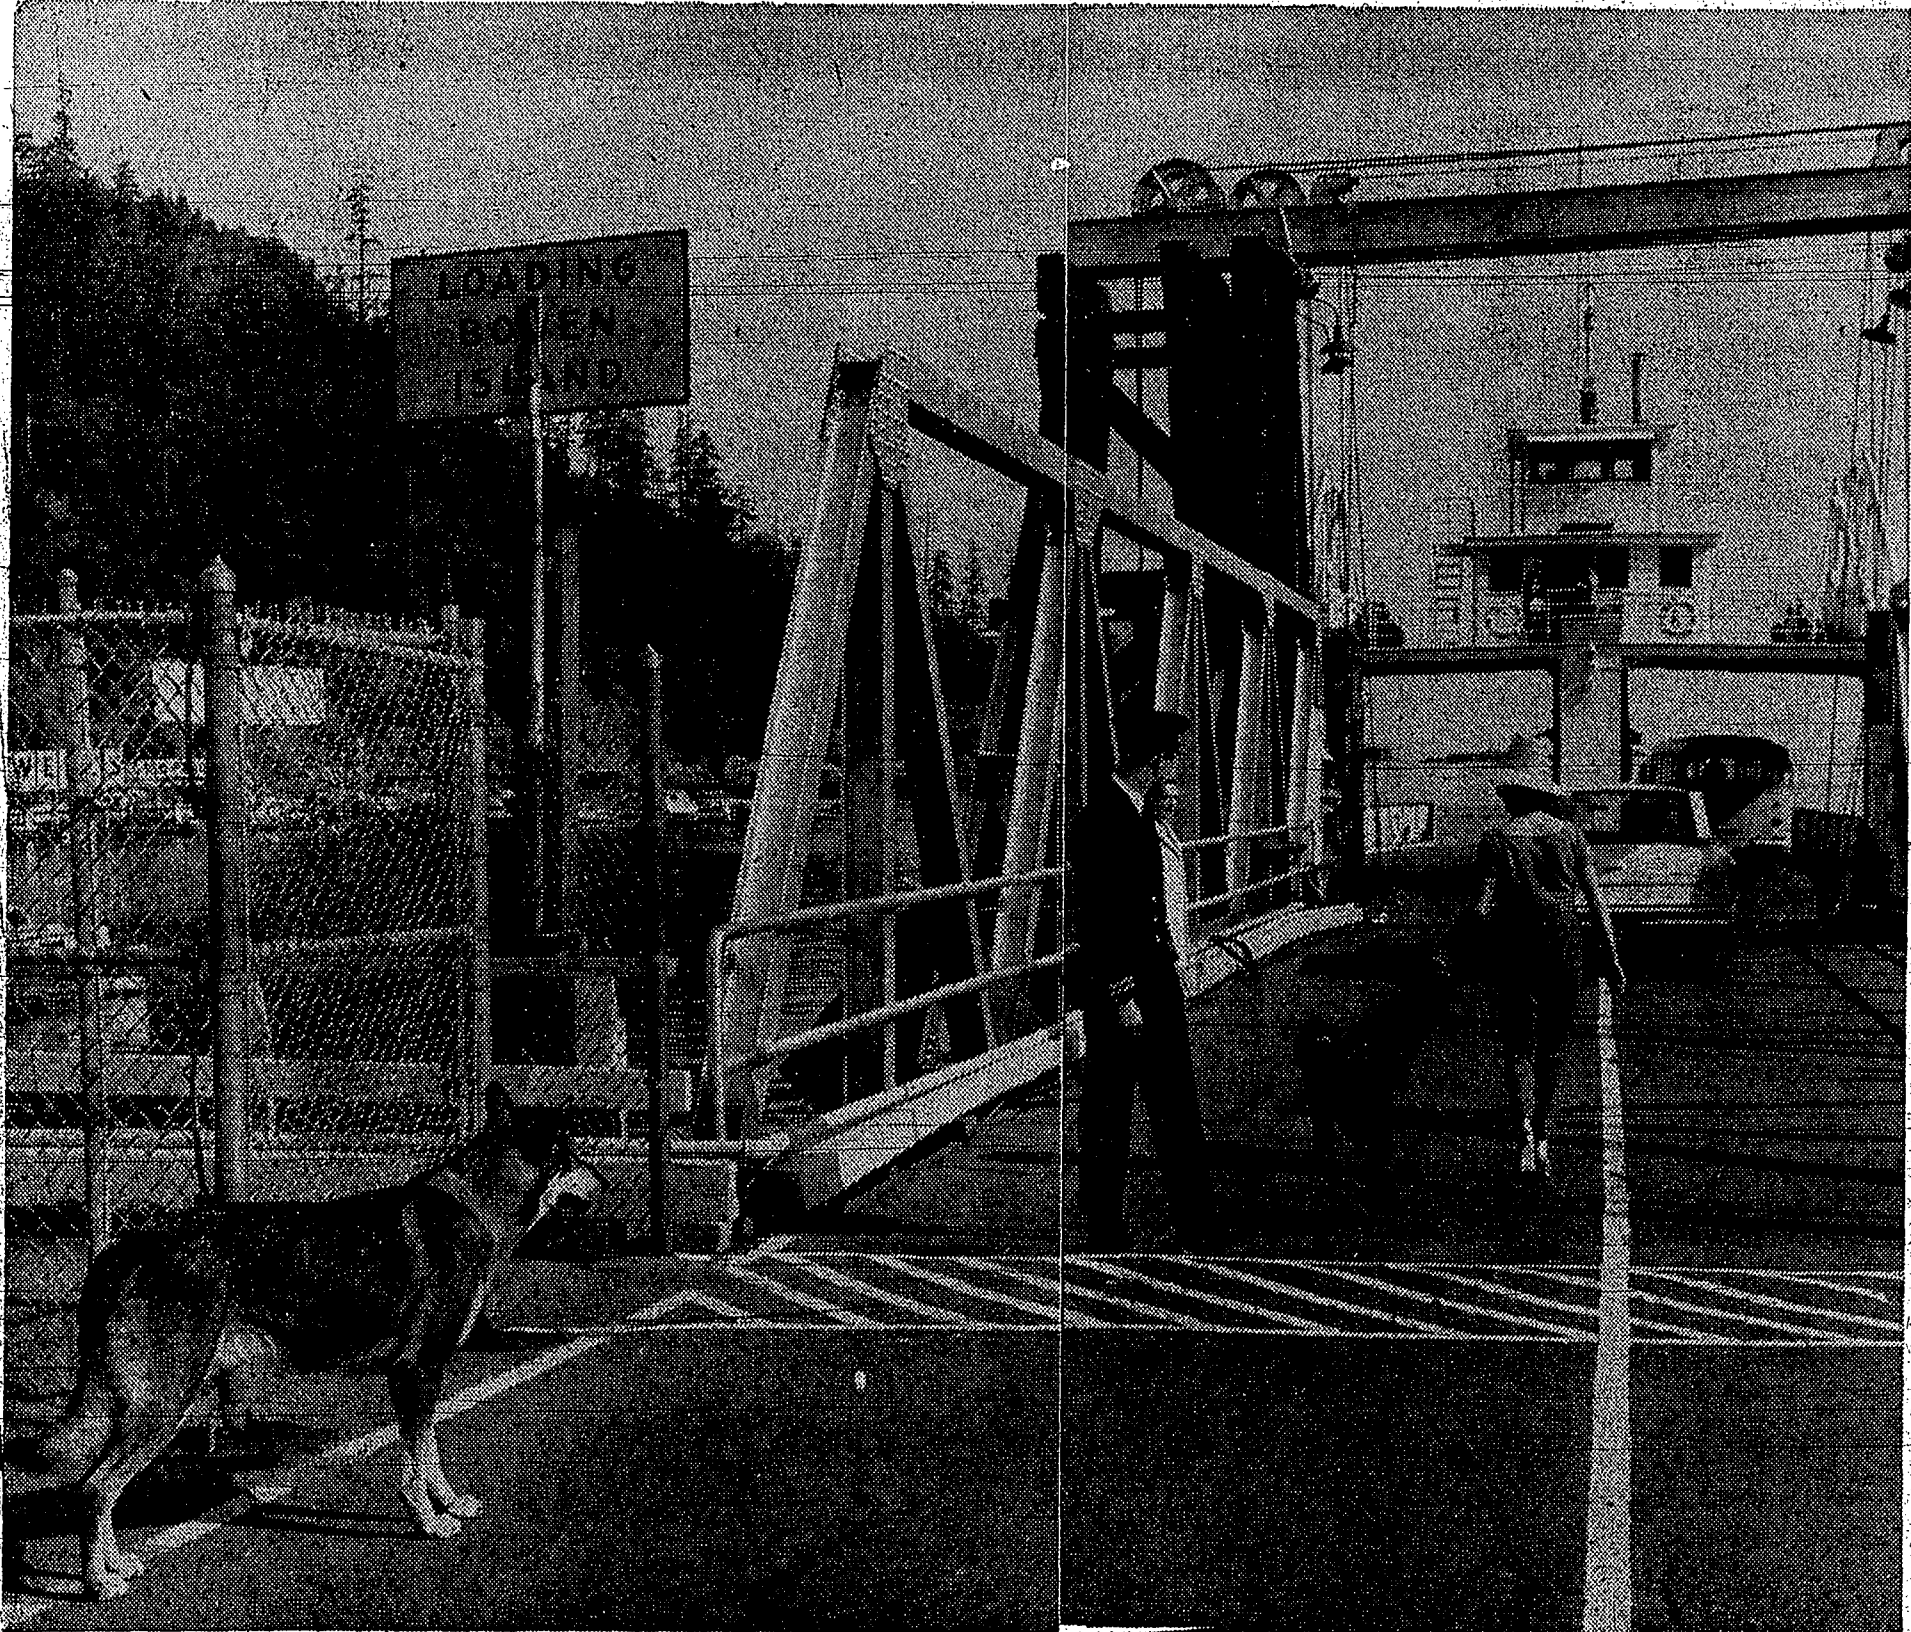

To our surprise, Terry Lee, vice-president of Storer Programs Inc. up on a flying trip from Miami said "accents".

Apparently we have one, and in a world-wide distribution package, it cannot be included in the deal!

Actors have to do a "how now brown cow" routine and if your Canadian accent is showing, you don't get the part!

Pioneer recalls the early days

by Rose Tatlow

"I missed seeing quite a few old friends yesterday," Mrs. Olive Webster mused as she discussed the Old Timers' Picnic. "Guess it was too wet for them. But if they lived in Squamish as long as I have they wouldn't mind a bit of rain."

Few people have lived in the Valley longer than Mrs. Webster. Her mother, Mrs. H. Judd, and Mrs. Minnie Armstrong, are perhaps the only two who have.

She was born in Brackendale, the eldest of the ten children born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Judd, pioneer settlers of the Valley. She grew up there and recalls starting school in the old Brackendale hall in 1902. This was a combined church, school and dance hall, a regular community centre.

Helping on the farm and assisting in bringing up her sisters and brothers took most of her time until her marriage to the late Bill Webster after he came home from First World War.

They planted and raised a small orchard on the property she still occupies and her husband assisted Mr. Judd with his milk router.

ACTIVE IN INSTITUTES

They were active members of the Farmers' and Women's Institutes and for many years exhibited in the Fall Fair, which was held by the Institutes prior to the Second World War. She still has the prize cards from those early days.

Since her husband's death, she has lived quietly on in the home they built. One daughter, Mrs. Ward Langstaff and four grandchildren live at Dunster, B.C. and visited her recently.

Mrs. Webster brought out her box of mementos and talked about the early days when her parents first came here. "Father arrived in 1888 and the following year he moved to the Valley. In 1890 he brought his parents and his brother and sister to live with him."

"Four years later he married my mother, who had come here with a Mr. and Mrs. Rose who managed the hop ranch. She was the former Barbara Annie Edwards. My daughter is named after her grandmother, Mrs. Webster."

LIFE WAS INTERESTING

"Life was interesting in those days," she said. "Father farmed, and had a herd of purebred Holsteins. He also operated the first stage in the Squamish Valley, between Squamish and Cheakamus. Then in 1911 he brought the first truck into the valley to use as a stage."

"I really enjoy these Old Timers' gatherings," she added. "We get a chance to talk about things that happened a long time ago and we have forgotten about till someone mentions them. We really had a lot of fun too, even if life wasn't as easy as it is now."

Social Notes

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Reeve have as their guest his mother, Mrs. E. Reeve of Mission City. Also at the Reeves, Heather Smith of Coquitlam is visiting Gwen.

Last rites for former resident

Funeral services for Ernest Sidney Reeve, a former resident of Squamish, were held in the chapel of the Mission Funeral Home at Mission City on Thursday, July 18th at 1:30 p.m.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Winnifred, a son, Owen, of Squamish, four daughters, Mrs. Gladys Plumridge, Mission; Mrs. Arnie Chadwick, Mission; Mrs. Nell MacDonald, North Surrey, and Mrs. Beryl Stephen, Port Coquitlam; two sisters, Mrs. P. Powell, California, and Mrs. M. Pelkey, Victoria; 17 grandchildren and 27 great grandchildren.

Mr. Reeve, who was 88 years of age, came to Squamish in 1914 to open the telegraph office here, a position he held until his retirement in 1942, when he moved to Mission City. He came out of retirement during the Second World War to resume his work as a telegrapher at Alert Bay.

New dump now in use

The first loads of logs went over the new railway dump, built for Western Plywoods and replacing the old one at the same site, on Tuesday, July 23.

This will be a 12-car spur and the cars will enter at one end and go right through, coming back to the line at the other end.

Final touches were being made to the new dump on Friday afternoon when Extra Gang No. 18 laid the rails and filled in around the track.

The new railroad dump can also be used by trucks.

Greenlees Pikedriving are working on the new public truck dump being built just north of the railway one for Point Grey Towing.

This will dump the logs in bundles and any number of logging companies can be accommodated as the towing company plans to use different colored paint to mark the logs belonging to the different companies.

If you have the patience, there are lots of blackberries to be picked around Squamish. One young lady who knows where to find them is Daria, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Shaw, of North Ridge.

Pitcher wins game

Squamish hosted the Lynn Valley ball team on Thursday, July 18. The ball game, from a spectator's point of view was very exciting.

Tom Rivett of Squamish pitched eight strike-outs but this was not enough to win the game as Lynn Valley's pitcher, Joe Wilson, came through with the crucial hit, a single with a man on third.

Final score: Lynn Valley 3, Squamish 2.

Squamish hits were: Gary Hendrickson, two singles; and Keith Hendrickson, Ed Holt and Dale Mennier each with a single.

A COMBINATION of the will to live and a tough constitution was likely the biggest factor in saving the lives of a novelist and a prospector who became lost last weekend in Garibaldi Park. Above shows (left to right) George A. Leuvre, 57, author, and Joe Champaine, prospector, enjoying their first meal in three days at the Chieftain Hotel restaurant. According to Mr. Leuvre, they had been in for ten days and were running short of food. His 66-year-old partner was too weak to hike out, so he hiked out for help. The trip took him two days and a night. An helicopter from the RCAF air-sea-rescue division brought the weakened prospector out. The men, who live in Vancouver, were unanimous on two points: they couldn't find any gold and the Mamquam Lake is full of trout.

Works report shows: Costs have risen in seventy years

Seventy years can make an enormous difference. Especially in construction costs. The following information is taken from the Public Works report of 1893 and deals with the Squamish, Howe Sound and Pemberton trail. The trail had been built two years previously and this was for maintenance.

A half mile of wagon road was opened from the Squamish Valley trunk road to Cheekye Creek, a bridge was built across the creek, trail cleared out, some boulders blasted and removed, logs were cut, holes and washouts filled, corduroy laid and one small bridge built at north end of the big slide along the Cheekamus River.

The trail was cleared out from the end of the slide to the foot of the first mountain range, logs cut, two small bridges built, four rock bluffs blasted and one-half mile of new trail built. Eighty-seven feet of trestle work was built between two bluffs.

Repairs were made to the bridge across Swift Creek (now Culliton Creek) and trails were cleared. From the Alder Flats to Stoney Creek (now Rubble Creek at Garibaldi) logs were cut and removed, and the stone-work and trestle work around the foot of Lookout Mountain improved.

From Stoney Creek to Daisy Lake, on the east side of the Cheekamus River, a passable track was cleared and posts erected to indicate the course travellers must follow to reach the bridge built near the mouth of the canyon. Two and one-half miles of new trail were constructed down the north side of Stoney Creek valley to Daisy Lake and one and one-half miles of new trail from Daisy Lake to Big Bluff.

FOREST CLEARED
Between Big Bluff and Cheekamus Falls the forest was cleared to a width of eight feet, side hills cut down and cribbed on the lower side, rocks blasted and removed, and two bluffs blasted.

Rock slides were cleared, trestles built and corduroy road laid. In all five miles of new work was done. A bridge was built across the Cheekamus River and logs cut out and removed from the bridge to Camp Creek, with the trail being widened to eight feet. A bridge was also built across Camp Creek.

From the north side of Camp Creek over the summit to Green Lake, logs were cut out, new trail constructed and bridges built.

From Green Lake to Pemberton Valley the trail was cleared out, logs were cut and removed. At Sixteen Mile Creek a log jam was cut out and the bed of the creek was cleared. The waters of the creek at the edge of Pemberton Meadows was confined to its proper channel.

The work took most of the summer and Alexander Beaton was the foreman.

But the cost of the whole project was amazing. Sixty-four miles of trail work for only $4232. Today even a few miles of hiking trail cost more than this. And the Pemberton Trail was suitable for pack horses.

Letters to the editor

Editor, Squamish Times:

The road from Britannia to Squamish is a disgrace, plus police traps. Have they nothing better to do?

Then we have the bridge-nuff said, is walking a forgotten art? Where must one walk on the Squamish Britannia road, or should we kill all pedestrians?

Is there a town in this continent that built only two homes in one year? Attention, Squamish Council. Are you listening, Pat?

"I'll be over—after I do my banking!"

Nowadays it's natural for the lady of the house to do much of the family banking, because it's so convenient to look after money matters at one place—the local chartered bank, an all-round banking service-centre.

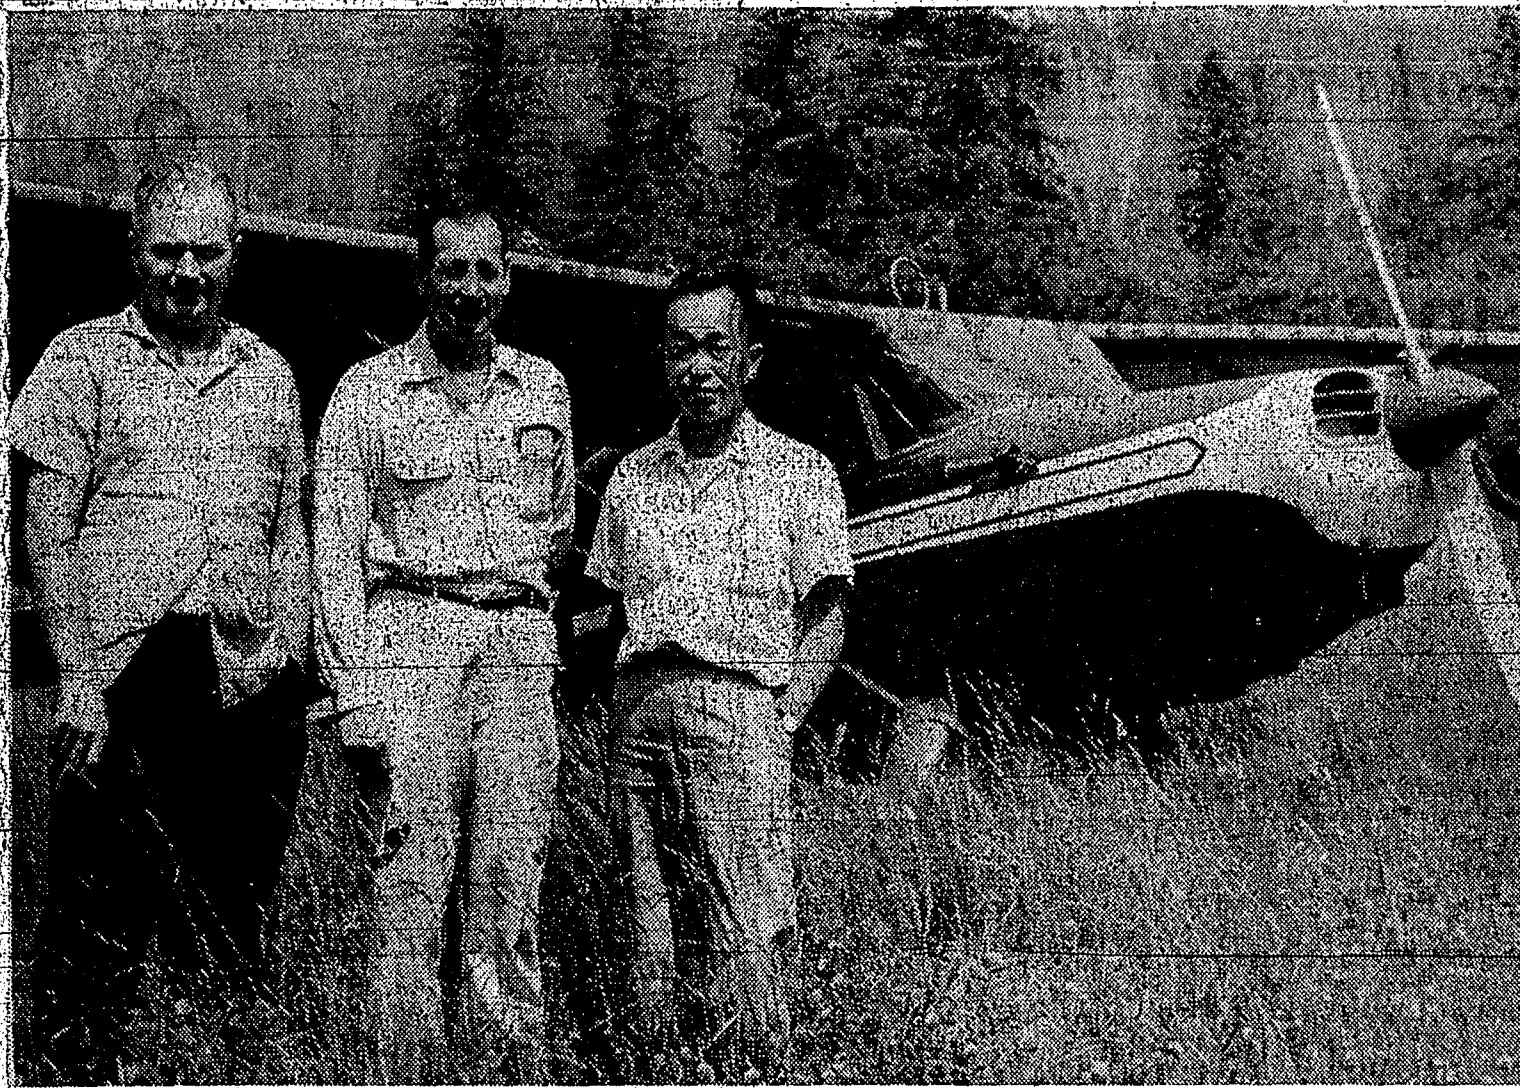

This busy homemaker is on her way to deposit part of her husband's salary in their savings account, cash a cheque on their joint chequing account, and pay the monthly instalment on a personal loan. All this taken care of under one roof—quickly, easily, simply.

Any bank service you use is an introduction to many others. And the chartered banks are always on the lookout for new ways to be helpful to more people. Good reason why the number of deposit accounts has doubled to 14 million in just 10 years, and 3,500 new accounts are being opened every banking day.

THE CHARTERED BANKS SERVING YOUR COMMUNITY

LUCKY TO BE ALIVE and knee deep in uncut hay are three Seattle engineers who will always have warm memories of Squamish citizens.

THESE BOYS will spend eight days in the Junior Forest Warden camp at Evans Lake. They came from Vancouver by Squamish Coach Lines and are seen waiting for the truck to take them to the camp. The lads come from Langley, Haney, Coquitlam, Hammond, White Rock and Merritt.

Wonnacott's hay field saves Seattle flyers

Once again Frank Wonnacott's hayfield in Brackendale provided an emergency landing field for an aircraft in distress.

This was the opinion of three Seattle engineers flying to Tsuniah Lake for a week-end of fishing when their 1947 four-seater Stinson developed engine trouble just west of Pemberton Valley.

The three men were Ray Utterstrom, a pilot for 25 years, Joe Sutter and Miz Sekyimi, engineers at Boelings in Seattle.

First sign of engine failure due to fuel contamination developed at 9000 feet, just north of Paradise Valley, above Meager Creek, when the engine began losing power. By the time they had decided to turn back, their aircraft had dropped to 1500 feet.

Then the second decision had to be made of whether to land on Mr. Wonnacott's hayfield or limp back to Vancouver on one engine and hoping it would not fail.

The hayfield, which was relatively smooth, was chosen.

FISHED IN CHEEKEYE

After they had eaten, the three men decided not to miss the good weather and left the aircraft for an afternoon of fishing on the Cheekeye River.

Pilot Utterstrom later returned to Vancouver for parts and repaired the aircraft the next day.

"The one thing that has impressed me in this whole adventure," Mr. Utterstrom said, "was the spontaneous generosity and kindness shown by the citizens of this beautiful valley."

"We all will be back with our families, in cars next time," he added with a smile.

All three men live in Seattle and have large families.

PGE "Frontier College" opens second year

A branch of Frontier College is in operation on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway for the second successive year.

Frontier College places university students in mining, forest, or railway camps and they carry out educational and recreational programs for the men in these camps.

Roy Clark, of Galt, Ontario, who is majoring in Modern History at the University of Toronto, is in charge of the unit on the PGE. He is working with an extra gang for the summer.

Mr. Clark reports that there are 50 men in the group and they are studying such subjects as Beginners' English, Advanced English, French and mathematics.

Library books are provided by the Public Library Commission and newspapers and magazines are sent to the group. National Film Board films will be sent to Mr. Clark from the Squamish film library.

Recreational equipment is also provided by the parent body. Mr. Clark states that the Frontier College program is supported by the federal government, private industry and servicemen's clubs, each paying an equal share of the cost.

It has been in operation since the 1890's.

"One of the interesting features of the work," Mr. Clark says, "is the keen interest the men show in the courses which are provided."

"It clearly demonstrates that although formal education ended early and a man may have been away from school for many years, the desire and ability to learn is more pronounced than in a younger student."

Pemberton "Barnwarming" draws happy crowd

Mrs. S. Ross held a "barnwarming" in her new barn on Sunday, June 30, in aid of St. David's United Church at Pemberton.

During the dance, which started at midnight, guests enjoyed both square dancing and the modern on the floor of the hay mow, 12 feet in the air.

Bernie Salter called the square dances and the musicians were Teresa Summerskill, Don Summerskill and Mauri Hjel.

More than 150 people turned out for the event, one of the best crowds in several years. In keeping with the site of the dance, a party of guests came up from Pemberton and Mount Currie in a hay wagon.

Christine Mader's Column

Our poor railway! Everyone is tearing it apart; with people like Norris making their living drawing nasty little pictures about it. All at the P.G.E.'s expense of course. But enough is enough, and a few pats on the back are in order.

They are in order because I have suddenly been reminded of some of the trips on that Please Go Easy. This came about last week-end, when a friend and I were swapping experiences on this subject. We were standing in the baggage car—rather I was standing. She was sitting on top of the baskets that house the candies, and we reached the conclusion that all that was needed to turn this into a January First, or May 24th, July 1st or Labor Day week-end party was a guitar and a few more people; preferably some of that special breed of humans who have cabins at Alta Lake. Either those kind of the type that goes skiing on Diamond Head.

The baggage car, of course, is the ideal solution to this problem of what-to-do-with-these-people. Usually it is also the only solution since by the time the train arrives 2 1/2 hrs. late, the folk singers are just getting warmed up to the tune of "I've been working on the railway." The conductor greets everyone with a cheerful: "Well, there were 20 seats before Rainbow, and about 50 people got on, so hop in."

Now perhaps you will agree with this Baggage Car idea, or perhaps might even suggest a cattle car. There one can sing and dance as much as the heart desires or until the train bounces into Squamish. But a problem sometimes arises when there are two guitars in the crowd which results in people migrating, or at least trying to, from one focal point at this end of the car to the other one at the opposite end.

But the nicest thing about this railway of ours, by far, are the conductors and engineers and candy boys (with the exception of two trainmen who almost didn't believe me when I showed them my pass which clearly identified me as Mr. and Mrs. A. Mader. One of them didn't think I looked like an electrician's wife and wanted me to get out; and the other guy thought that perhaps I shouldn't be using a pass that was 2 1/2 months overdue. He made me bring him a new one to the train the next night or else I'd have to pay.)

Once, I mentioned to the trainman that "it would be perfect if I could get out between stations. You know, somewhere between Rainbow and Parkhurst." The conductor suggested I talk to the engineer, and Mr. Cooper, after being brought up to date on the local gossip, let me off at the Y.

Another thing about the PGE is the fact that it can give us a few months of peace and quiet by merely employing one member of our family and making him fight mosquitoes 130 miles north of the sticks. My brother doesn't like being 50 miles west of the timber line—but that doesn't matter too much. It is quiet just the same.

However, a very important excuse for the whole outfit's being-is-by-no-means-a-small-one. For if it were not for the PGE, what would be the topic of conversation in the local beer parlours? As it stands, all that the men ever do in the pubs (besides drink beer, of course) is go logging and railroading.

Modern homes under construction in Squamish

Houses are interesting to everyone, and women in particular. Here are a few of the new homes being built in Garibaldi Estates, Highlands and on the V.L.A. subdivision. As you can see some are almost completed, and some are a long way from it. But they all will be among the more attractive of the new homes in the area.

SPLIT LEVEL home in the Highlands being built for Mr. and Mrs. N. Squires by Twiss Bros. This house is located on Ayr Drive.

HERE Dick Heinen who is an artist in stone puts the finishing touches on the massive stone chimney of the Bellis home.

THIS RANCH style home is being built for Mr. and Mrs. Alex Johnston on Hood Road in Garibaldi Estates by Cavin and Keay.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION in the V.L.A. subdivision is this home for Mr. and Mrs. C. Bellis of Woodfibre. John Fredrickson is the contractor.

COMPLETED outside, and painted but still needing work in the interior is the A. R. Mosher home in Garibaldi Highlands. Mr. Mosher is doing the building himself.

FRONT VIEW of the A. C. Finter home in Garibaldi Highlands. This shows the shake roof and Mrs. Finter says she had the blisters to prove they split the shakes themselves. The Finters are living in the house while they work at completing it. The rear windows overlook the small park and winding stream.
