DELEGATION MEETS CABINET

A delegation of Mine Mill Union members and their wives presented a brief to the executive council in Victoria on Monday, December 1st, asking that the government take a long look into the situation at Britannia and suggested means whereby the mine could be reopened.

They reported a warm friendly reception and were fortunate that the full cabinet was present. Some very pertinent and interesting questions were asked of Harvey Murph, national vice-president, who presented the brief.

Hon. Leslie Peterson spoke to the press following the meeting and said the brief would receive immediate attention.

At Pemberton

Three elected by acclamation

C. J. Graham was elected to the Pemberton municipal council for a first term and Mrs. E. (Norma) Rivett for a second term by acclamation. School trustee T. B. M. Fougberg was also returned without opposition.

Mrs. Graham, who has lived in Pemberton for the past 12 years, is retired. He formerly owned a store at Mt. Currie and has been prominent in many local organizations. He is a past president of the Board of Trade and also president of the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

Mr. Graham is also the judge of the family court. He is married with a grown up family.

As a new commissioner Mr. Graham brings a keen interest in town planning to the council. "Pemberton is on the verge of great growth," he said, "and we must be prepared for it."

Mrs. E. Rivett, the former Norma Shore, is a long time resident of the Pemberton Valley. Married, with three children, she will serve her second term on the village council.

T. B. M. Fougberg, who will be serving his third term as school trustee, was also re-elected by acclamation.

Who is 1964's "good citizen"

Somewhere in the Squamish area is a person or couple, who will be named "Citizen of the Year." They will be chosen from the names submitted by residents in this area.

It could be anyone, man or woman, or a couple, who, in the opinion of the person or organization making the nomination and in that of the panel doing the judging, is best qualified to be the outstanding citizen for 1964.

A nomination form is found in the inside pages of this week's Times. Anyone may fill in the name of the person he considers most deserving of the award and mail the form or drop it in at the Times office.

All forms will be passed on to the judging panel who will select the "good citizen" on the basis of reasons given.

The one stipulation is that the candidate nominated must have done something which has made Squamish a better place in which to live. It doesn't have to be something spectacular. Perhaps it is only in many quiet scarcely noticed ways that your candidate has made life better

UCWO chooses new officers

At a meeting held on November 30, the ladies of the United Church, WO reviewed the year's work and appointed the officers for the coming year.

The year 1964 has been the most successful ever for the ladies of this organization; numerous fund raising events enabled them to complete the kitchen in the new church and to undertake major renovations in the manse. The financial report showed that all financial obligations had been met. In keeping with the season of Christmas, a number of donations were made to a few charitable groups.

Officers chosen for the coming year are as follows: President, Mrs. J. M. Crowston; Vice-president, Mrs. Thor Halvorson; Secretary, Mrs. B. Wray; Treasurer, Mrs. D. D. Morrison; Programme, Mrs. A. L. Hankey; Flowers, Mrs. W. Reger; Nominations, Mrs. R. F. Woolley; Manse, Mrs. E. Knibb; Kitchen, Mrs. N. Barr; Social Mrs. I. Boscarol; Catering Mrs. R. Gordon; Devotional Mrs. I. Wants nine forests

Rayonier asks support for PHA application

by Rose Tatlow

The Rayonier Co., at a dinner meeting at Paradise Valley Resort on Thursday, Dec. 3rd, outlined to members of the local logging firms, Chamber of Commerce, village council and other business and professional people, the reasons for their application for a Pulp Harvesting Area in nine crown forests, located on or near the coast.

W. W. Breitenbach, president of Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd., said the company's decision in 1962 to modernize the plant by spending 24 million dollars to bring production up to an estimated 550,600 tons of pulp per day, was made at a time when they realized more wood was needed to sustain the plant.

Application has been made for a PHA in nine crown forests and work on the mill proceeded. Today the job is three quarters completed and should open by next summer.

EMPLOYEES LIVE IN SQUAMISH

"Fifty of our employees are now living in Squamish and we will be employing one-hundred more when the plant expansion is completed. They will probably live in Squamish too," he added. He mentioned his company's co-operation with the municipal authorities regarding Valleycliffe and added that "someday a road will be built to Woodfibre and then most of our employees will live in the Squamish area."

FMC's decision to build in Squamish was influenced by his company, Mr. Breitenbach said. "If it had not been for Rayonier's expanded production at Woodfibre there would be no chemical plant building here. We insisted that the business of the plant must be built in Squamish.

"If someone talks about expansion they ask the government for the timber and then build... We've already performed," he said. "I hope we're not going to lose out because we've gone at it backwards."

He asked that his firm be given support in their application for the PHA in the Broughton, Redonda, Sechelt, Soo, Yale and Chilliwack S.Y.U.s.

FAMILIAR WITH SALVAGE OPERATION

Ross Douglas, vice-president in charge of forest operations, then explained that his company was familiar with salvage operations and this is what a PHA primarily is. It is designed to get people to use wood which has been overlooked or wasted. Since 1949 a salvage operation has been working at Port McNeil to supply their Port Alice plant. This will be expanded in the next few months from five sides to sixteen.

Woodfibre, which now buys 100 million feet per year on the open market, with the expansion will need an additional $15 million feet.

He stressed that a PHA only gives the company first refusal on pulp wood and this only applies to timber sales. It does not give the licence holder any control over the operation.

"We can't make a timber owner do it for us; we can't use his roads without agreement nor can we put anyone else in to log the salvage without his consent," he added.

Mr. Douglas stressed that in the interior, where there is little sawlog timber but mostly pulpwood, his firm would intend to have the logging done by local operators.

"A Pulp Harvesting Area means an improvement in forest utilization," he said. "If you think PHAs are good, we would like your support. It would amount to 70 million board feet per year with a value of some $12 million dollars per year; a direct flow of money in wages, supplies, transportation, etc. It would eventually mean quite an increase."

QUESTIONS ASKED

Gray Mitchell asked if Woodfibre was interested in incorporating with Squamish and what was the company's attitude?

Gordon Draeske, secretary of the company, said they would not be averse to joining if "this did not leave them worse off than by remaining outside. If the company is not penalized we may be able to work out something."

Dr. Kindree asked if this meant the company wanted its assessment to remain the same and Mr. Draeske said "Yes, the company's taxes are $26,500 with an assessment rate of ten mills." Dr. Kindree then asked if the company did not feel that "as many of its employees live in Squamish and we are in effect, the bedroom of the industrial area, did it not feel the company should help support the residential area here?"

Mr. Draeske replied that the company would prefer to see the tax money come here rather than go to Victoria but that they would like to keep taxation at the same level. To a question of "Should your company have a preferential mill rate?" he replied that "All I would like to see is that it remains the same."

AIR POLLUTION

Fred Bennett asked about air pollution and its control, and Mr. Breitenbach replied that "All kraft mills smell, and that Robert Kilmartin, who with Dr. L. C. Kindree, was elected to the village council by acclamation on Nov. 30th. Mr. Kilmartin is personnel manager at Canadian Colliers Empire Lumber mill.

Winners in the recent Grey Cup contest sponsored by the Retarded Children's Association was determined by Ken Tremblay of Squamish the winner of the big prize.

Winner of the correct score for the first quarter was J. Dirksen of Squamish with Mrs. A. Fraser having the correct score at half time. There was no third quarter winner as the ticket was not sold.

Norman MacDonald won the hidden tie score prize.

Juvenile Action Committee asks local support

The Squamish Recreation Commission at its December meeting, held last week, discussed young people and their needs, desires and activities.

Several committees were formed to act with a Juvenile Action Committee to investigate the various phases of the problems concerning young people today and how to deal with them.

Mrs. B. Eden, assisted by Mrs. A. Shemko and with the anticipated help of the Squamish PTA will attempt to arouse the interest of the students by either essays, round table talks or debates and present their findings to the next meeting.

They will ask the students for suggestions on what is the main cause of much of the lack of interest, and what their recreation needs are. They will also be asked how they could work with the group towards the goal of solving these recreational needs.

C. C. Marchant, assisted by A. Hendrickson and G. Mitchell, will head the committee to contact the young married group and the young adults and bring them to the next meeting. H. M. Stilson, assisted by Mrs. A. Bird, will contact all clubs and organizations and ask them for their suggestions and recommendations.

G. Mitchell will contact the local ministers and ask them for their assistance.

Sgt. Tooley and H. M. Stilson will contact or visit some of the community centres in the lower mainland, see how they are operated and gather as much material as possible concerning their construction, cost and maintenance.

The various committees will bring their findings to the next meeting and after these have been co-related, plans will be made for a public meeting at which time these will be outlined to the community as a whole.

The committee could have representatives attend such a public meeting who could speak on matters concerning everyone and bring them to the next

Warn children about molesters

All school children, even those in the beginner grades, should be warned about child molesters and what they should do in case a stranger tries to pick them up. Parents in this area are urged to make sure their children realize the importance of being extremely careful.

A recent case of child molesting in this area, which is being investigated by the local police detachment, occurred when a six year old was picked up by a man in a motor vehicle and taken to an isolated area and molested.

The child was not physically harmed and was later dropped off near her home.

Upon hearing of the incident, the school board immediately sent instructions to the teachers requesting them to warn the children about these matters. The RCMP also spoke to the children about school evenings, arrange to pick him up yourself or to have him come home with other children.

If any parent wishes any advice regarding these matters, he should contact the local detachment of the RCMP.

High school basketball

Howe Sound Secondary High School will play against Seniors Senior Secondary school tomorrow in the high school gymnasium.

SQUAMISH, B.C. — THURSDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1964

Planning For Progress...

An orderly community is a well planned one. We all want the new district municipality of Squamish to be an orderly one, and we're all for planning it properly.

The UBC students, early this year, drew up one which while it is visionary in some respects, is still an excellent base for a planned development of our valley.

We're going to grow. Talk of a pulp mill, other industries, maybe deep sea docks, possible expansion of PGE yard areas; all these are just the beginning of the development we can anticipate in the next few years.

These industries will bring other industries, and they will also bring people. Homes must be planned for these people. Shopping centres and stores will have to be built, schools will be enlarged and new ones constructed, and a host of other changes will follow.

Areas for each of these different uses will have to be planned and zoned. There will be light and heavy industry, residential and commercial zones, and who knows, some additional ones may be created to identify a different land use.

Buy That Christmas Tree...

Christmas is coming and soon the annual trek to bring home the tree will start. Many years ago bringing home the Christmas tree was an annual event which everyone enjoyed. In the past few years it has become harder and harder to find a spot to get that tree.

They cannot be cut on crown land. Of course you could get permission from a landowner to cut a tree on his property but you have to have that permission in writing. Unauthorized cutting could result in a heavy fine, certainly much more than the price of a tree.

The Boy Scouts will be selling trees

Let's Shop At Home...

Are you and your friends helping another town to pay its taxes?

It's a sobering thought isn't it? Yet every time you shop in the city you are helping that merchant and not the one at home who is ready to serve you at any time. Maybe that's why some of them look so prosperous compared to those in your own home town.

Many of the things we take for granted, our volunteer fire department, the Christmas tree lights along the street, even our sidewalks, parks and streets, the library and some of the costs of the swimming pool are paid for by the merchants in our town out of their taxes.

Sure the city shop might have a wider range of goods to choose from, but if you can get it at home, at a comparable price, why not try to? We don't mean to suggest that everything should be bought here, we know some things can't,

The Torch Is Falling...

There is further evidence of the incipient failure of democracy.

The House of Commons recently defeated government members who were present and added Remembrance Day to an official list of holidays for government servants and for workers who come under the jurisdiction of the federal government.

For government servants, this would make still another statutory holiday. In addition government servants get three weeks' vacation after a brief period in employment and enough sick leave for recuperation from all ills known to man or woman.

We do not mean to say that all civil Seasonal Note...

Remember November when father took a big yellow bowl and went down to the earth-floored cellar and came up with handsome juicy Northern Spies, Rhode Island Greenings, Russets, crackling Gravenstein or MacIntosh Reds?

Remember how he peeled the apples with his jack knife and passed around the quarters on the point of the blade?

It is a new world today particularly in our municipality with automatic heat, moving pictures in the living room and the magic of electric lights. But there are still those about who remember the parlor heater with its isinglass door, the wood box and kerosene lamps.

Those were the flavorful days of yesteryear, after chores were done and

We know zoning is a bad word to some people. But all it means is that certain businesses or industries cannot exist in certain areas. This is sound reasoning. No one wants an industry or an unsuitable business located next door to his brand new home.

We'd like to suggest that the new municipality immediately secure the services of someone who could plan the zoning sensibly and efficiently. And do it quickly. Until this is done, we feel anything planned which would fall in a doubtful category should be held in abeyance until such a zoning plan is prepared.

Zoning isn't hard and fast. If it is unfair, the zoning board of appeal can take it into consideration and alter the regulations. This has been done in the village and could certainly occur in the new district. Times change, and an area suitable for one purpose now may be suited for another in a year or two.

We'd like to see orderly planning and zoning started before any business or industry starts to build in a district which may not be the correct site once the municipality has been zoned.

again this year as they have in the past. We're not sure if the price remains the same or if it is higher but last year you could obtain one for a dollar.

It's a small price to pay and when you compare it to the time and money spent in tramping over the country trying to find one which could be cut, getting it and then travelling all the way home, you'll find that tree has cost a great deal more than the modest dollar the Boy Scouts charge.

Why don't you buy the tree, save all that trouble and worry and help a worthy cause at the same time. You'll be glad you did.

but at least the effort should be made. A local business man, who ought to know, says it costs at least eight dollars to drive to Vancouver and back. And then you have to add the money spent on parking meters, treats for the kids, gadgets you never intended to buy but saw and fell for, maybe a traffic ticket or so. And don't forget the short temper when you had to wait for the family to finish shopping, the tired feet and total exhaustion.

When that has all been totalled just what have you saved? Perhaps you could have obtained it in Squamish for the same price or a little more. We're not trying to say that you shouldn't buy something if you can't get it here. We're merely suggesting that you give your home town merchants a chance to supply your needs FIRST.

Remember your local merchants need you, but you also need them.

servants are lazy and refuse to do any more work than they must.

It is assumed that if all these holidays become a fact, and it is highly probable that they will become just that, more overtime will have to be paid to those who serve the public at border points and perhaps in the post office. Or does it mean that post offices across the land will be closed on still another statutory holiday.

There was a time when there was a postal delivery on Christmas Day.

There needs to be education of government employees to show them that they have their jobs because they are supposed to serve the public.

the kitchen redded up, the family gathered in the living room.

Young folks had their homework to do—just as today—and a lad, if lucky, could conceal a small, more interesting book behind the dog-eared geography. Mother helped with the hard words while working at the sewing or darning. And then, when it grew late, about eight thirty, father went for the apples.

Not very exciting, perhaps, in terms of an era of speed, tension and television, but there are those who look back through the decades and think that perhaps people were happier in the days before so many gadgets were invented to complicate living.

"Smashing idea of Fotheringay's to start an 'On to Victoria drive'... except for the beastly fact that we're already here!"

Finance company nightmare to bank manager

Sometimes it makes you wonder whether it wouldn't be a good idea to go back to the good old days—the days when if the political party in power didn't balance the budget nearly each year, every opposing politician leapt to the hustings with warning cries of immediate disaster, accusations of drunken sailor spending, etc., etc.

Those were the days, too, when if you had the temerity to try to borrow money, you had to face two alternatives. The first was a sackcloth-and-ashes approach to your banker, whose inquisition and demand for guarantees of repayment were only a shade less terrifying than the last interviews given prisoners in Belsen. The other alternative was to take the family jewels or silver to a pawnshop.

Nowadays, bank managers practically twinkle roguishly at you when you grow vague about security for a loan. It seems almost to be a slight matter at the best, waived if the size of loan request is cut. Behind that jolly face is the thought of the Finance Company down the street.

The Finance Company will generally offer in addition, a rather more restrained jollity, plus the general ebullience of the New Wave morticians, with hushed intimate voices, and very deep carpets. They simply want to HELP. Money, interest, and other gross facts-of-life are side-issues.

The pawnshop of course is old hat, except for that heart-rending segment of our society that is in permanent, unending need.

The bald facts of the lending business are these. The bank manager will charge you about 6% on secured loans, and preferred unsecured risks. He will finance cars at about 10%. But he is barred from accepting "chattel" or a pawnshop.

The finance companies will loan on household goods and cars as security, but will charge anywhere from 10% to 25%. They will rarely accept an unsecured loan.

If the banks were allowed not necessarily to intrude on the chattel mortgage loan business, but to adjust their rates of interest according to the quality of the surety offered, it would mean a tremendous boost in their earnings.

This change is under consideration now.

There are only eight banks in operation in Canada at the present time, and of these, one, The Mercantile Bank, has no shares in the hands of the public, being owned outright by foreign banks.

Of the remaining seven banks, two are French-Canadian banks which operate principally in the province of Quebec.

Only the remaining five could be classified as "national" banks, in having branches from coast to coast.

To investors, bank shares have always been considered in the super-blue-chip class, and consequently, sell in the price-earnings ratio range of from about 23 to 1 to 26 to 1, and pay a skimpy 3% to 3½% yield. This does not represent quite all the earnings-payment picture, however.

First of all, banks have what they call a "Rest Account," which is made up principally of accumulated retained earnings, and is an important part of their capital. In comparing positions of the five banks, the amount and proportion of Rest Account funds to common shares is a major concern.

Banks as well have cloak-and-dagger accounts which are not really at all melodramatic, sometimes called "Hidden Reserves."

The size and use of these is a matter privy to the federal bank examiner, and is never published for individual banks, but for the industry has run recently from a low of $11 million to a high of $32 million.

The point here is not that one bank can be proven easily to be better than another, but simply that the Canadian banking industry as a whole is handsomely financed and adequately managed under federal law.

Figures prove however that the "big five" Canadian banks have in the past five years shown an average per annum increase in earnings of from 10% to 13%, a record any industry would be glad to boast of.

The upcoming revision of the Bank Act, which is expected to raise the ceiling on permissible bank charges, and at the same time, may make it possible for the banks to split their shares on, say, a 10 for 1 basis to bring them within range of the "street" investor, make these bank shares at the present time a conservative investment and in a unique way, an interesting speculation, at the same time.

If there is any cloud at all in the azure Canadian banking picture, it is not of direct interest at the moment to the investor, but might well be borne in mind.

That is the fact that if banking loan restrictions are eased, it will not only give a major boost to the banks, but will probably force the loan companies into assuming slightly more hazardous risks, and the accumulated effect of the whole process may be definitely inflationary in an overall increase in credit. This side-effect should bear watching.

A more difficult problem is that of the minimum wage itself. A dollar and twenty-five cents an hour may be low in B.C., but it is good money in other parts of Canada. Many people now work for less than $1.00 an hour in Eastern Quebec and the Maritimes. Our Eastern industries will be under considerable pressure. So will the provincial governments involved.

Working conditions in many sectors of our Canadian economy are bound to be improved. This is something in which we can all rejoice. All parties of the House of Commons are agreed. Witness the fact that they adopted the principles underlying the new National Labour Code by a vote of 183-0.

This Act will probably be passed in all its stages before Christmas. Then Canada will be able to boast of the fact that it is one of the most progressive nations of the world insofar as labour standards are concerned.

Howe Soundings

Sorry, I just can't see how one gets excited about football. Even the excitement engendered by Vancouver winning the Grey Cup left me wondering just what it was all about. Not that I wasn't happy to see Vancouver win. I was. Delighted. I'm a B.C. supporter, even in something I don't understand.

But after watching the excitement and avid interest of those who viewed it on television I'm just wondering if I'm a bit odd. Cries of "Go Lions, go," wild yells and screams of delight when they scored or made a good play and limp exhaustion devices were agreed on by the officials present. The same thing was done at each crossing down to the red bridge. There were different recommendations at various crossings, but it might be of interest to know that at Buckley's, signals and two sets of Full Stop Signs erected.

These men drove to the Cheekye crossing first, where observations were made and suggestions for suitable warning devices were agreed on by the officials present. The same thing was done at each crossing July 16th, 1957. This is a lengthy report, and I will not take up space to report it in full, but the last paragraph states — "In summary, I would recommend four automatic signals and two sets of Full Stop Signs erected.

If anyone is interested to see any of the correspondence or reports on this matter that we have on file, I can assure them that the snow was dry, but it never stays like that here on the coast.

It's too bad we have to lose all that wonder and delight. Guess it's just part of growing up but sometimes I wonder if it is really necessary that we grow to dislike some of the things that mean so much to our kids. Sure, I'll go out and have a snowball fight with them but I only last a few minutes.

Instead we sit and swear at the stuff, imagining all the shoveling to be done, the way the car will skid in it and the time it will take to go away plus the messiness before it.

Guess we could all do with a bit of that childish wonder and delight.

Then there was the meeting at which one of the members said "Everything will be done by smoke signals" and Hal Stinson countered "From the mill?"

Did you hear about the youngster who addressed his letter to Santa Claus, care of his grandparents in Squamish. Honest!!!

Of Canada's total area of 3,851,809 square miles, nearly 90 per cent is still publicly-owned Crown land.

Shipments of wheat by the world's four principal exporters in the 1963-64 Canadian crop year (August-July) were in millions: United States 849.5 bushels; Canada 594.1 bushels; Australia 274.0 bushels; Argentina 104.7 bushels.

Trustees will be elected in Squamish and Pemberton.

Ottawa Diary

Parliament is in the process of establishing a National Labour Code. It will set up minimum standards in industries which fall under Federal jurisdiction. These include shipping, the railways, air transportation, inter-provincial trucking, communications and the banks. Federal Crown companies like the Polymer Corporation and Eldorado Smelting and Refining Ltd. also come under this heading.

Nearly half a million workers will be affected. Within 18 months, their minimum wage will have to be at least $1.25 an hour. They will work a standard eight hour day and a 40-hour week. Forty-eight hours is the maximum with time and a half for overtime. There is provision for eight general holidays and for two weeks vacation each year.

Costs will, of course, tend to go up. But management knows that long hours rarely help the performance of a worker. Sometimes they cause accidents.

Regular hours and a reasonable income also contribute to industrial efficiency. This is the case in other industries whose working conditions are already regulated in provinces like B.C.

Some companies will be more affected than others. Take trucking for instance. Drivers on long hauls are sometimes called upon to work as much as 60 hours a week. This is in peak periods. Then they are laid off for days on end.

The towboat industry is another case in point. It also works irregular hours. Like the trucking industry, it could therefore have difficulty in conforming with the basic hourly and weekly patterns which are part of Ottawa's new National Labour Code.

Some flexibility has therefore been built into the Act. Industries which operate in surges will be permitted to use averages worked out over a period of weeks or months.

As long as their average week is no more than 40 hours and time and a half is paid up to an average of 48 hours a week, they will be able to conform with the regulations.

This is not a new idea. It is an integral part of the resolution at

Some favorite Christmas recipes

Every cook has a favorite recipe which her family insists on having each Christmas. For some it's a pudding, or a cookie. Or maybe a cake which has been a tradition in their family.

Some of our newer cooks haven't had time to build traditions but their families also have favorite holiday goodies. In these December issues a few of them will be featured for your holiday entertaining.

Children long ago used to join in giving the family pudding a stir, and even the smallest can help in preparing the fruit for the cakes. But they enjoy helping to decorate cookies the most of all and a few plain sugar cookies which can be iced and decorated in a number of ways are a must.

Even if they make a mess and some of the icing and decorations reach their tummies instead of the cookies, they enjoy doing it and it gives them a sense of helping to prepare for the holiday ahead.

A treasured pudding recipe, one of the best white fruit cakes I've ever tasted and several cookie recipes are featured this week. Others will follow later.

Cook books on the way

The ladies of the Jean Neil Circle hope to have their cook books on sale this weekend. This book will feature recipes from the files of the local experts as well as numerous household hints and humorous findings.

The group held their final meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Norman Halvorson last week; at that time they elected their officers for 1965.

Chosen were Mrs. Robert Brock president, Mrs. N. Halvorson vice-president, Mrs. R. Woolley secretary and Mrs. Richard Munro treasurer.

Canada's population at June 1, 1964, was estimated at 19,237,000, of whom 6,469,100 were children under 15 years of age and 1,468,400 were persons of 65 years and over.

Mr. Neville Myers, head of the Seed Inspection Branch, Department of Agriculture, was in Pemberton this week to inspect seeds being graded on Pemberton farms for shipment to California. The market for seed potatoes is good this year and the price better than most years.

Moose hunters this year had to work hard for their meat. Two parties made a trip lasting almost three days to the upper reaches of the Lillooet River and back, to bring in both moose and deer. Among the successful hunters were: Jim Currie, Jim Decker, Tyber Molner, Ed Ronayne, Brian and Lex Ross, Pete and Garry Shore. The spoils packed out on horseback were divided with each averaging a half of moose.

BEFORE

This was the Walker's new home — nicely designed, beautifully landscaped. Until the sun went down. Then? Nothing. The house, the garden, the hospitality — all were lost in the night. A closer look would reveal a dent in the fender of the Walker's car. And some paint missing from one of the carport posts. The boss and his wife were invited for dinner, but they couldn't find the house in the darkness. Oh, well. They probably would have tripped on the roller skate (which you also can't see) on the path.

AFTER

Enter the warmth and hospitality of Outdoor Lighting. A few lights, tastefully placed and chosen, and the house takes on a special charm when evening comes. Outdoor Lighting says "This is our place, and we're home." You can see where to walk (and where not to walk). Roller skates are easy to distinguish. The lights placed about the garden transform a dreary evening into a dramatic still life. And prowlers are notoriously allergic to light.

MORE CURFEWS SAYS MAGISTRATE

In a recent police court case Magistrate C. I. Walker stated that in future he would "make greater use of curfews and driver's licence suspensions in cases where minors are convicted of drinking and driving infractions."

In past years there has been an increase in these types of problems and it was noted by Walker that very often there has been a lack of adequate parental supervision.

"Many parents seem to feel" he said "that once a child is no longer economically dependent on his parents that their responsibilities with respect to supervision and discipline are no more. It cannot be stressed too strongly that parents accept their responsibilities and one only has to examine the general pattern of delinquencies to see that in most cases where there is a delinquent child there is a disinterested parent."

Four fined for drinking

Four young men, Jim Cameron, Harvey Halvorson, Robert Magee and D. I. R. K. Burge, appeared before Magistrate W. J. Elliott last Friday, charged with possession of liquor while under 21 years of age. Magee was also charged with unlawfully entering licenced premises.

The charge arose out of an incident at Fergie's on November 21st when the police were called out to investigate a report that a group of youths in a cabin at the resort were shooting out the lights and being unruly.

Constable J. Ehler, who investigated the case, found several full cases of beer on the premises as well as some empty cases. A rifle was also found hidden in the bedsheet in the cabin.

NO ONE KNEW SUPPLIER

In their testimony the youths said the beer was obtained from a man whom none of them knew. Burge, who had rented the cabin, said he did not know one had to be 21 before being allowed to drink, as in England, which he had left a short time ago, one could obtain liquor at 18.

Sgt. Tooley told the young man that actions such as these were causing considerable concern among the residents in the valley. Several juvenile girls were also in the cabin and the youths were warned that they could have been placed in a position where they could have been charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Magistrate W. J. Elliott said that the court was reluctant to make examples of them. He fined Burge ten dollars and costs as it was his first appearance and he could have been unaware of laws prohibiting drinking until 21.

SECOND OFFENCE

Jim Cameron was fined forty dollars and costs and the magistrate warned him that this was his second appearance within a few months and that he need not expect a third fine. Harvey Halvorson was fined twenty-five dollars and costs.

Bob Magee's case was remanded till the afternoon as the crown wished to bring in a juvenile witness on the charge of unlawfully entering a licensed premise.

WITNESS DENIES STATEMENT

At the later hearing, the girl, who had given the constable her statement at the time of the incident, and signed it, claimed that she had been confused at the time and had not seen him enter the door to the beer parlor. "I got all mixed up when Const. Ehler was talking to me," she said.

The magistrate warned her that she should not give information unless she was prepared to stand behind it. The case against Magee was dismissed, but he was fined twenty-five dollars and costs on the charge of possession of liquor.

Wayne Drenka, who had appeared on a charge of possession of liquor while a minor, pleaded not guilty, and the case against him was also dismissed.

J. S. Broadbent, Vice-President and General Manager of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, reports that carloadings were up in November this year from the corresponding month in the previous year. Cars loaded on line and received from connections totalled 5,776, compared with 5,619 in November last year.

The cumulative total this year is also up from last year. For the first eleven months of this year the total was 65,212, up from 63,648 in 1963.

Several thefts in past week

A tire wheel and brake drum were reported stolen last week from a car stored on the Shell service station lot.

Alvie Andrews also reported the theft or loss of his dugout canoe. He describes it as being 16 feet in length, sky blue in color with a white bottom.

Unauthorized persons have been tampering with Christmas trees cut by M. J. Sanford of Richmond, according to reports he made to the local branch of the RCMP. They are investigating the report which concerns trees cut and piled at the Cheeky River bridge on the highway to Pemberton and at the local PGE siding.

A tire and wheel, size 700x16, with a wheel rim was turned in to the local RCMP detachment by H. B. Webber of Brackendale. The owner, upon proof of ownership, may claim it at the RCMP office.

A hit and run driver damaged a car belonging to Hugh Fraser while it was parked at the Little Chief Drive-in last week. Damage was in excess of one hundred dollars and while, a witness notified Fraser of the incident, unfortunately he did not get the licence number of the car which hit it.

Travels in Europe

Paris, city of light and capital of Europe

By Freda Clarke

The gayest city in the world, city of light, the capital of Europe, city of charm, the breathtaking beauty of Paris; all these epithets have been used to describe this old city on the Seine so often that I approached it with an unreasonable amount of cynicism heightened by the unpleasant discovery that a ticket on a French train is no guarantee of a seat.

My feet and my temper were both suffering from having to stand in the aisle between Toulouse and Dijon and the first view of Paris from the dingy Gare de Lyon did nothing to improve my mood. "No place," thought I, "can live up to such lavish praise."

Wearily I checked into my hotel halfway up St. Genevieve's Mount on the left bank. Kicking off my shoes I went to the full-length windows, opened the shutters and stepped out on the balcony.

I looked up the narrow street to the top of the hill where the gray dome of the Pantheon dominated the scene; in the other direction, down to the river, the square turrets of Notre Dame were bathed in afternoon sunlight.

My weariness drained from me and a bubble of excitement took its place. The charm of Paris was at work and my complete subjugation was merely a matter of time.

THE ISLANDS IN THE SEINE

Where to go first? Down to the Seine, of course, and across the Pont Neuf to the Ile de la Cite, the "island" in the river which is the heart of Paris. Here the city had its beginnings for the Seine was a natural fortification.

Just behind this island is a smaller one, Ile St. Louis. Combined they give the appearance of a large barge towing a slightly smaller one.

Dominating the landscape is Notre Dame Cathedral, the Westminster Abbey of Paris.

Here the kings of France were crowned and royal weddings solemnized in imperial splendour. The famous gargoyles still gaze with ghoulish glee on the antics of the humans below.

CATHEDRAL'S QUIET GARDENS

Behind the cathedral are quiet gardens; just beyond, stairs lead downward to the memorial of those who perished in concentration camps. On either side of the white hallways are typical cells with rudely carved inscriptions on the walls; the words, however, are not those of prisoners, but quotations from the works of famous French literary figures extolling freedom and patriotism. I could not help but wonder whether this cavern would keep alive the memory of those who died in the infamous camps or whether it would serve to prolong the hatred for those responsible.

The tiny island from which the city grew houses much of the history of Paris; here is the immense Palace of Justice; in the centre is eight hundred year old Sainte Chapelle with its beautiful rose window, from its spire rang the bells which were the signal for the dreadful Bartholomew's Eve massacre in 1572; Marie Antoinette and countless other victims of the Revolution languished in the Conciergerie before being led to the guillotine; and within shouting distance of Notre Dame is the Hotel Dieu, a hospital which has served the Parisians for thirteen centuries. Truly this is the heart of the city.

And is the famous left bank really "way out"? Cross the river by any one of a number of bridges; I can assure you that you will not be disappointed. The cobbled street along the river is lined with bookstores; the goods displayed are often such as would have been discarded long ago by any self-respecting librarian, but the shoddiness of the wares does not deter the buyers.

Elderly gentlemen were perusing the shabby books in waiting for the doors to open at ten in the morning. My mind is still a kaleidoscope of Egyptian treasures, breathtakingly beautiful statues, glowing tapestries, and famous paintings.

A few, however, come to mind as single memories; at the top of a wide staircase is the Winged Victory of Samothrace, a partially destroyed statue of a winged creature. In spite of the weight of the stone, the immense figure is lightly poised for flight; to see it remain immobile is almost unbelievable.

MONA LISA IS STILL AN ENIGMA

And the Mona Lisa! The canvas is amazingly small, the colours are sombre and yet there is something! I looked upon her face and let her tiny smile envelop me; was she hinting at a secret or was she trying to teach me a lesson in utter contentment? Is this a deeply beloved woman or is she smiling against her will? Undoubtedly her fame lies in the enigma of her smile; you may turn away but you feel that her eyes are following you.

Of course there were other paintings; David's famous Madame Recamier, Madame Le Brun's portrait of herself and her child, Van Dyke's Charles I of England, Rigaud's painting of Louis XIV as well as a whole roomful of canvases by Rubens depicting the life of Marie Medici.

From the inner court of the Louvre the visitor can look through the Carousel Arch across the Gardens of the Tuilleries, past the Place de la Concorde and up the Champs Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe. Is there a lovelier avenue in all the world? Pass through the arch of the Carousel which commemorates Napoleon's victories, wander through the gardens and admire the lovely statuary and watch the children sailing their boats in the ponds; cross the Place de la Concorde where the guillotine once did away with so many of the powerful and wealthy of France and admire the obelisk which stands in its place.

It's a long walk beneath the trees until the avenue begins its slow rise. The broad street is bordered with fascinating shops, and sidewalk cafes with their brightly coloured umbrellas urge you to sit and sip a cool drink as you watch the world go by. Refreshed you cross to the Arch of Triumph itself to see the eternal flame which marks the tomb of the unknown soldier. Often called the Place of the Star, twelve avenues meet at this point, the traffic enters the circle around the arch and somehow finds the right way out. The miracle of all lies in the fact that the arch still stands undented.

Napoleon's LAST WISHES

Descending to the lower level the visitor looks directly upon the coffin itself; on a plaque are carved the words of Napoleon's last wishes, "Je desire que mes cendres reposent sur les bords de la Seine au milieu de ce peuple français, que j'ai tant aimé." (It is my wish that my ashes be scattered on the banks of the Seine among the French people whom I have loved so much.)

All around the tomb are carvings in the wall depicting the peace-time achievements of Napoleon, those laws and edicts which brought order to the lives of a troubled people.

Nearby is the famous Eiffel Tower; this I left until dusk wishing to view the city as the lights came on. From the second stage the city was spread below but Zurich must have spoiled such views for me. Paris, in spite of St. Genevieve's Mount and the hill of Montmartre, is quite flat and the city lights do not show to advantage.

FOUNTAINS
ARE BEAUTIFUL

But directly across the river from the Eiffel Tower the Trocadero Fountains were suddenly turned on amid a blaze of lights; rising from the street level along the Seine there are three pools on different levels, each is fed by tremendous jets of water. Walking up the steps beside the pools speech is impossible as the roar of the fountains drowns out all other sounds and the bystander is drenched with spray.

Everyone who visits Paris, whether a lover of art or not, visits the Palace of the Louvre, France's treasure house of painting, sculpture, royal jewels, tapestries, furniture and china. To absorb all that it has to offer one would have to live in Paris and plan to see one section of the building every rainy weekend.

ART TREASURES
IN THE LOUVRE

Why on the weekend? Because, like most art galleries and museums in Europe these are free of charge on Saturdays and Sundays. With a limited amount of time at my disposal I was one of a large crowd

A FROSTED ORNAMENT

In direct contrast to the simplicity of the Invalides and the Pantheon (where France's illustrious are buried) is the church of Sacre Coeur on top of the hill of Montmartre. This resembles nothing quite so much as a huge frosted ornament on a wedding cake. Here is a fantastic combination of the Taj Mahal and a Turkish mosque; the result is so out of place among the Gothic buildings of the city. But turn your back on it and look out over the terraced hill to the city as the sun slowly sets and bathes the old buildings in a luminous glow that beautifies the dullness of the structure.

There's so much more. Paris subways are the simplest method of travel; be sure to go through the Bastille station for a part of the wall of the old prison is still there jutting out of the subway wall. Visit the Galeries Lafayette, one of the biggest department stores; it has a dome in the centre of the roof, from the main floor you can look upward through the centre of each floor to the dome, then from the top floor look down through the central wall to the ground floor; then if you are not too dizzy a snack at the outdoor cafe on the roof and look over the city.

PARIS WILL CHARM YOU

Should you visit Paris? Are you able to walk — and walk — and walk? Does the roar of traffic annoy you? Are you disgusted by conspicuous lovelmaking? Do indifferent shopkeepers anger you? Are you bothered when the pebbles from the crushed gravel walks enter your open-toed shoes? Then STAY HOME.

Just off the Champs Elysees is the Avenue King George V. I almost expected to be charged to walk along the street for here are the top hotels, the King George V, Prince de Galles and Pallas Athene. A plain white building bore the word Balenciaga — nothing more; across the street an equally simple structure bore the name (in small letters) Givenchy. No Madison Avenue touch here; it may pay to advertise but these are the houses that do not need to advertise their wares.

ANGLICANS FETE MR. & MRS. PROFILI

Mr. and Mrs. J. Profili were guests of honor at a farewell party given by members of the Anglican church at Squamish on November 22nd, in the Parish Hall.

Mrs. Profili was a Sunday School teacher and secretary of the W.A. to St. John's Anglican Church while her husband was on the church board.

The evening took the form of a social with whist and other games played, followed by refreshments.

The Profilis, who left last week for Powell River, were presented with a farewell gift by H. H. Bailey. The gift, a sign, made by Eric Axen, with their names on it, will be hung outside their new home in the up coast city. They were also given a subscription to the Times so they could keep up with the news of the Squamish area.

1st Squamish Brownie pack enrolment

Nine Tweenies were officially enrolled into Brownie Land by Madam Commissioner Mrs. A. Clubb. They entered one by one from the magic forest and up the stepping stones, where they repeated the Brownie promise and law.

Following this ceremony Madam Commissioner presented former Tawny Owl Mrs. M. Hurten with a Thank You pin for her work with the 1st Squamish Pack.

Mothers of the new Brownies were served refreshments by the sponsoring mothers group.

Tweenies enrolled were: Cherry Bliss, Maria Favaro, Debbie Carrow, Darlene Hurdal, Susan Liebich, Cathy Otto, Kim Thompson, Jane Watt, and Susan Wingfield.

Ken Munro, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Munro of Squamish, who is with the RCAF and was stationed at Clinton before being moved to Camp Borden, attended the Grey Cup game in Toronto and saw the Lions win the coveted award.

She announced that her group would add a second shelf to this file in the near future and Mrs. G. S. Clarke, librarian, added that this would be most welcome as there are already more books listed than one drawer can hold.

Mrs. Clarke showed the visitor the plaque which had been placed on the file acknowledging the donation.

Attending with Mrs. Flint were Mrs. A. Angell, Mrs. A. Gleam and Mrs. D. Thom. Village commissioners F. Leeworth and G. F. Mitchell were also present.

ROYAL BANK BUYS CORNER PROPERTY

The corner property on Winnipeg and Second Street has been sold to the Royal Bank according to former owner G. S. Clarke. Mr. Clarke said last week that the sale included the house he now occupies and the Tot to Teen Shop.

"We will remain in the house until next summer," he said, "as we do not have to vacate until August." He added that Mrs. Wray's lease on the other building runs to 1966.

Almost ten inches of rain fell last month and 8 inches of snow arrived in the last week of November.

The total rainfall, according to H. H. Bailey's gauges, was 9.85 inches, bringing the year's total to 76.48 inches. Total snowfall including last month's eight inches amounted to 18.53 inches.

This would mean a total precipitation of 78.33 inches.

Ken was a member of the high school football team at Howe Sound Secondary which did so well in competition in previous years.

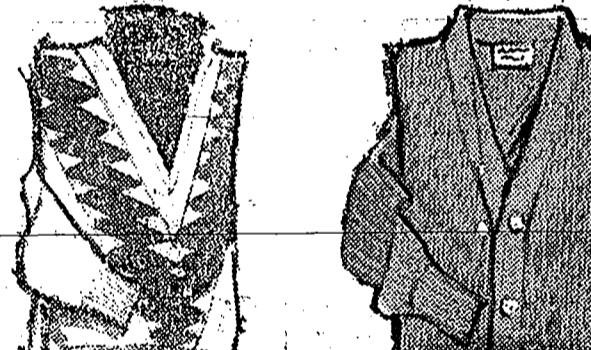

Excerpts from his letter state "Yea Lions! What a great game." He adds that "During the time in Toronto I met Dale Richards, Joe Kapp, Norm Fieldgate, Bud Grant, Jim Trimble, Miss Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Neil Beaumont, Willie Fleming, Mrs. Norm Fieldgate, Steve Shaver, Danny Veitch, Jim Champion and the Rt. Hon. Lester Pearson. By meeting them, I mean shaking hands."

Mrs. Clarke showed the visitor the plaque which had been placed on the file acknowledging the donation.

Attending with Mrs. Flint were Mrs. A. Angell, Mrs. A. Gleam and Mrs. D. Thom. Village commissioners F. Leeworth and G. F. Mitchell were also present.

What's your stand on registering life insurance policies to claim certain income tax deductions?

Mr. Campbell

If it's possible, I'm all for it!

Interviewer

You'll be pleased to know you may register any Mutual Life policy, except Term, under the Income Tax Act. Subject to certain limitations, the savings portion of your premium can then be deducted from your taxable income each year.

Mr. Campbell

It seems to me that everybody should know about this!

Interviewer

You're right! Particularly people who are building a pension for themselves. Even people now contributing to a company pension plan may qualify for further tax relief.

Mr. Campbell

Look, I'd like to check into this before I file my 1964 return. Where can I get complete information?

THAT XMAS TREE COULD BE COSTLY

Now is the time to remind everyone who is planning to cut a Christmas tree that doing this on crown land could be costly.

Unauthorized cutting of Christmas trees on crown land is prohibited. Trees can be cut on private property, but before doing so the written permission of the property owner must be obtained.

The Forest Service adds that any trees cut for commercial purposes must be scaled by the forestry department before they can be sold. A permit must be secured before these trees can be cut.

Don't take a chance. Get permission before cutting on private land. Or buy your tree. It could cost a great deal more if you don't!

Adjust to winter driving

Winter's wonderland can be a blunderland for motorists if they fail to adjust to changed driving conditions, says the B.C. Automobile Association.

Don't blunder into a hospital by driving in December as you do in May, the BCAA says in a message to motorists advising them how to prevent dangerous and costly winter driving mistakes:

New books at the library

by Freda Clarke

During the busy days ahead relax occasionally with a good book; it will give you renewed strength for the task ahead. Why not try one of the following?

CONVENTION—

Fletcher Knebel and

Charles Bailey.

Did you enjoy "Seven Days in May"? This is their new one dealing with the hanky-panky that often goes on at the party conventions in the United States. Two men desire the nomination for the presidency; one of them takes a stand against unnecessary defence production and thereby turns the popular tide against himself. This does not have the depth of the earlier novel but the picture of convention machinations is good and the outcome is surprising.

SIREN SONG—

by David Beatty.

Here is another book of the airways and the men who control them by this very popular author. An eternal triangle this; a young wife whose elderly husband is the head of an Empire Airways falls in love with one of the company's pilots. The plot is old, of course but David Beatty makes it enthralling reading.

CANADA—

Peter Varley and Kildare Dobbs.

From a viewpoint of photography this is the finest book on Canada yet turned out. B.C. residents will be pleased to note that our province gets more pictorial coverage than any other, a natural reward for being photogenic. The script by Kildare Dobbs is too slick but David Beatty makes it enthralling reading.

THE CHEECHAKOES—

by Wayne Short.

This is marvelous reading. It is the story of a man and woman with the intestinal fortitude to do what most of us dream of but are too soft to do—pack up and head for a new frontier. This family migrated to Alaska after World War II and made a new home in a barren wilderness. Their struggles, their triumphs and the land around them is described simply but with humor and power.

NO LONGER THAN A SIGH—

by Anne Phillips is a fitting mate for John Gunther's "Death Be Not Proud." The author knew that her husband had but a short time to live; she tells of their last days together with

DIAMOND HEAD SKI AREA OPEN

The day skiing area at Diamond Head is open with both rope tows in operation. Despite the blizzard on Nov. 29th almost a hundred skiers arrived to enjoy the sport.

The road to base camp is muddy but cleared. The melting snow has made the mud conditions worse than usual but otherwise, it is in better condition than usual. If snow falls all cars should be equipped with chains.

The coffee shop at the parking lot is now open and snowmobiles leave the parking area on the weekend commencing at 8 a.m.

Ottar Brandvold reports that he hopes to open the Chalet on December 12th. It is booked solidly for the holiday season from Christmas to New Year and it could have been filled five times over.

All indications point to an excellent winter ski season with almost four feet of snow in the ski areas at present.
