Fire damages Chatterbox Cafe at Britannia Beach

A fire on the day before New Year damaged the interior panelling and caused some loss of foodstuffs at the Chatterbox Cafe in Britannia Beach.

The fire, was caused by the failure of a thermostat on a new french fryer which had been recently installed in the cafe and Walter Horrobin, owner of the mining town restaurant said the fat became overheated and caught fire, damaging the walls and causing a loss in stored food.

The fire took place at 2 p.m. on December 31 and prompt action by the local fire department and bystanders helped prevent a more serious loss.

Mr. Horrobin said the building was closed for a few days but he hoped to have the cafe back in operation by the beginning of the week.

He specially wished to thank the Britannia Beach Volunteer Fire Department for their assistance and the people who assisted in quelling the blaze, especially the teen-agers of the community who had turned out to help.

December rain below average

Weather in December was damp but the rainfall was well below average for the month with a total of 10.03 inches recorded. This brought the year's total to 72.70 inches, well below average for this part of British Columbia.

December ended on a green note, a far cry from 1968 when four feet of snow fell during the month, most of it between Christmas and the New Year and temperatures dropped to a low of 4 degrees above zero.

In contrast last month's low temperature was 25 degrees, recorded on December 27, while the high of 52 degrees was recorded on the 13th of the month. There was no snow during the last two months of the year and hopes are high that 1969-70 will be a winter with a minimum snowfall to compensate for the record fall last year.

Weatherwise 1969 was an average year with a high of 89 degrees recorded on May 23, slightly early in the summer. Summer months were moderately warm with very little rain and the low temperature of 5 degrees was recorded in January with February coming very close with a low of 9 degrees.

Of course the year started off with a tremendous snowfall with 104.4 inches recorded in January and February.

With the ten inches of snow equating an inch of rain this brought the total precipitation for 1969 to 83.14 inches, still far less than average.

Municipal works superintendent Frank Wilson said last Friday he is keeping his fingers crossed hoping there won't be a repetition of last winter when he had crews working around the clock to keep the roads and streets in the district open.

"If it stays green we'll save a lot of money and get a lot more sleep," Wilson said. "We don't want another winter like the last one!"

Christmas Pageant at St. John's Church

Pupils of the St. John's Anglican Church Sunday School presented a Christmas pageant in the church on the Sunday morning before Christmas. The pageant was directed by Mrs. Ken Ramus, assisted by Mrs. D. Fenton.

The pageant depicted the age old story of the Nativity and throughout the play were woven some of the well known Christmas carols.

Katie Applin-Flouch was the narrator and Leslie Aldridge the mother of the Christ Child and Bruce Ramus as Joseph. Judy Bell portrayed the angel Gabriel.

Others in the cast of the play were shepherds, Jamie Bell, Jay Aldridge, Michael Johannes and Edwin Visona; angels, Barbara Bell, Lori Foote, Pamela Hurren and Sara Ramus while David Guilbride, Andrea Guilbride, Dean Aldridge, Tom Rimmer and Michael Hammerstrom were the wise men.

Members of the choir who sang throughout the pageant were Christine McBride, Eleanor Applin-Flouch, Beverley Fenton, Janet Carson, Helen Ramus, Isabelle Rimmer and Karen Hinds, while Mrs. J. Visona played the organ for the program.

Ladies prizes were won by Mrs. Flora Cherney who held a high score of 173, in a tie and had to draw with her competitor for the biggest turkey with Mrs. Lobdell winning the second one. Mrs. Loran Poulsen was the third prize winner.

Prizes for the men went to Bill Olynik with 180, Mrs. Edwards with 176 and Alex Poole with 170.

Barbara Teichman won the booby prize of a Christmas pudding.

Former resident dies in city

Frank Field, a resident of Squamish for almost ten years, passed away suddenly on Jan. 2, in Lions Gate Hospital. Mr. Field was 65 years of age.

He came to Squamish almost ten years ago as manager of Paradise Valley Resort when it first opened. A short time later he and his wife, Thea, operated Cheekye Lodge and the Cheekye Doghouse for a number of years, later opening a restaurant in the bowling alley before taking over the Little Chief Drive-In which they operated until last summer.

Since that time they had been living in Burnaby.

Mr. Field was a veteran of the Second World War and was a member of the Squamish Lions Club, having served a term as president.

He is survived by his loving wife, Thea; one son Keith in Vancouver and a daughter Gerty in Holland; one grandson, and two brothers and a sister in England.

Funeral services were held in The Chapel of Chimes in Vancouver on Tuesday, Jan. 6, at 1 p.m. with Rev. Father G. Dunlap officiating.

In lieu of flowers donations could be made to the Squamish Lions Club.

Christmas tree pickup

Firehall No. 2 (Brackendale) will pick-up your old Christmas trees in the area from Leski's Crossing north on Sunday, Jan. 11 from 10:00 a.m. till finished. Please have your trees out at the road for the firemen.

First new year baby gets a number of lovely gifts

The six pound one and one-half ounce son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Davis of Squamish, the first baby born in the New Year, who made his appearance at 3:27 a.m. on January 3, was the lucky recipient of a number of lovely gifts donated by the local merchants in the annual "Powder Puff Derby."

A real good Joe award

Mrs. J. Laktn and Mrs. L. Conniff think that a special "Good Joe" award should be given to Joe Laventure of the Chieftain Hotel, who replaced the new fur coats taken from the hotel on the evening of the New Year's Eve dance.

The two young women were most appreciative of his kind gesture after their coats were discovered to be missing when they were ready to leave the dance.

Donations to House of Hope

Pupils at the Mamquam Elementary School decided not to exchange gifts at Christmas but to donate the money which they would have spent to the House of Hope instead.

The children raised $239.40 and this was augmented by a sum of $11.40 collected by Debbie Carroll and Cathy Harrison who carolled from door to door and received donations which they added to the sum.

A total of $250.80 was raised for the House of Hope.

Karen Halvorson honored

The CE Centre was the setting on December 23 for a surprise bridal shower honouring Karen Halvorson whose marriage to John Siggers took place on December 27.

The tables were attractively decorated with silver holders of holly surrounded by pine cones. At the head table a lovely bridal doll formed a pretty centerpiece.

Seated at the head table with the bride-elect were her mother Mrs. M. Halvorson, her aunt and godmother, Mrs. Ted Halvorson, and her cousin, Mrs. H. T. Nichols.

Following a few games the gifts were presented to Miss Halvorson by her second cousins Laura Nichols and Gail and Tina Halvorson while Rena Nichols fashioned an attractive pie plate bonnet from the gay bows on the parcels.

Those convening the enjoyable affair were Mrs. Richard Munro, Mrs. Don Sanford, Mrs. Tom Rivett and Mrs. Don Behner.

District Governor visits Lions Club

District Governor Gordon Byrnell and Mrs. Byrnell visited the Squamish Lions Club on Dec. 19 and the ladies were invited to attend the dinner meeting at the Chieftain Hotel and the dance which followed.

Bob Blomster was inducted as a new member of the Lions Club with Zone Chairman Bob Labron officiating at the ceremony.

The district governor complimented the group which had won an efficiency award and told the tale of the huge stuffed lion which adorned the head table.

Each district governor has a lion which he takes to each club he visits. The lion will be presented to the club which shows the greatest increase and the least number of dropouts.

He suggested that new members be kept interested by being put on committees in which they are interested and that they be given a great deal of work to do to keep their interest in the club at a peak.

Mr. Byrnell also spoke of the world wide aspects of Lionism, stressing the interest in youth and the work being done in this field. He said the youth exchange program which saw young people from different countries come to visit our country is one of the most important aspects of the club's work.

President Ken Ramus said pupils from the Stawamus school had given the club a cheque to be used for hampers for the needy. This was in lieu of giving Christmas gifts to each other. He also said the sons of club members were going to help pack these hampers.

MIKE GOODE IN CALIFORNIA GAME

Mike Goode was the only Squamish representative on the North Shore Chargers who played against Hawaii in Fontana California on Saturday, December 27.

Mike, who had been selected to try out for the team, had been practicing with them in North Vancouver prior to the trip south.

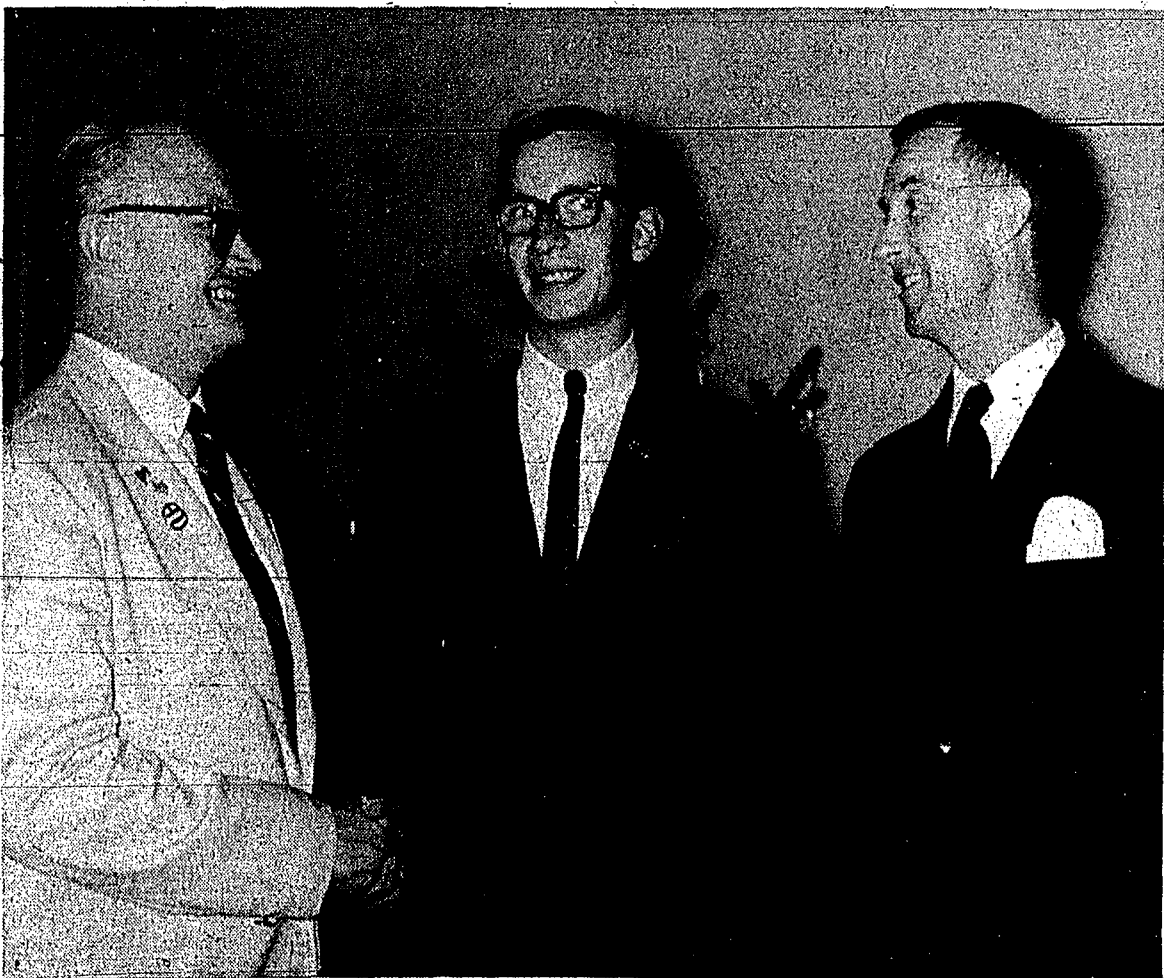

The Canadian team defeated Hawaii 13-6, the first time they had ever succeeded in doing so.

Mike reports that he had a wonderful time. The trip was terrific and the people he stayed with went out of their way to make his visit a memorable one.

Mike is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Goode of Garibaldi Highlands.

THE WISE MEN in the Christmas pageant at St. John's Church on Dec. 21 were David and Andre Guilbride, Dean Aldridge, Tom Rimmer and Michael Hammerstrom.

BOB BLOMISTER being welcomed as a new member of the Squamish Lions Club by president Ken Ramus while Bob Labron, installing officer, looks on.

Problems of the seventies

With a new decade dawning problems which began during the past one will have to be solved, or well on their way to solution during the coming ten years.

Foremost of these problems is pollution, one which could mean the end of the way of life we have become accustomed to. Clean air must be preserved or man will only be able to move in his cities with gas masks or in bubble cars in which this can be maintained. Perhaps we may even have to resort to roofed cities in which all ground vehicles will have to be banned.

Clean water must be preserved or the waters of the earth will become a cesspool in which mankind will slowly drown. Already some rivers and lakes are polluted beyond redemption and unless measures, costly and unpopular, are taken to preserve the rest of the fresh water in the world this could accelerate at a frightening pace.

Mankind must also find new ways of utilizing waste materials, or of disposing of them. Already the amount of junk and garbage produced by a modern large city is appalling. Much of it could be reprocessed and used again, and this will have to be done or we will eventually use up all the raw materials available to the world today.

Over population presents another problem, closely rivalling pollution as the greatest one. With the ever-increasing numbers of people in the world, the rapid improvements in medicine which prolong life, and the elimination of diseases which used to keep populations down, soon the peoples of the world will outstrip their food supply.

Other sources of food will have to be found. Harvests will have to be reaped from the sea, and chemicals or algae will have to make up much of the food we eat. And even this may not be enough. Already the backward nations of the world are reproducing at an alarming rate while the advanced ones are using the medical developments of the past decade to limit their populations.

Man must find a way to end war and to bring peace to the world. But this dream will probably elude us for many years to come. It would almost require a complete change in man's basic beliefs, because although we all subscribe to the dream of universal peace, few of us really practice it even in our daily life.

The tremendous feeling of protest, engendered by the young people and the have nots must be channelled into fields where they will benefit us all. Perhaps one of the brightest hopes for the seventies lies in this activity by the young people who want to create a better world. As long as this force is used creatively and not destructively, man may solve some of his most pressing problems.

But a start will have to be made in the seventies, particularly with overpopulation and pollution, or we may be too late to save the world.

Bridling the press

Headlines this week have a retiring newspaper publisher, Mark Farrell, coming to the forefront in his definition of the expression "freedom of the press". We enthusiastically endorse his statement that the expression has been mis-used down through the years.

Freedom of the Press is a basic right of mankind. And we can only repeat the Edmund Burke statement made 200 years ago in the British House of Commons: "In this parliament there are three estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons. But in the reporters' gallery yonder, there sits the fourth estate more important far than all."

We believe, that to perform its duty, a serious newspaper (or radio and TV station) must do considerably more than inform and entertain, in addition to providing an outlet for advertising. It must present an informed opinion on all matters of public interest, thereby stimulating a public exchange of views which help to clarify the issues involved.

This is a highly important function of your newspaper, The Lions Gate Times, and unless we perform it effectively, we are neglecting our duty.

The essence of democracy is a free debate of all public issues. The more thorough and wide-spread the debate becomes, the better are the chances of a correct solution being endorsed by the majority of the people. There is nothing more dangerous than a half-informed public.

To form and express an opinion on any given issue, people need to be presented not only with all the available facts, but also with a wide range of explanations and arguments. There is hardly a single instance in human relations in West and North Vancouver which can be fairly presented in a black-and-white contrast of "good" and "bad", "just" and "unjust".

Unfortunately, few people have enough interest and patience to develop the process of objective analytical thinking necessary for an impartial evaluation of events which seemingly do not concern them personally. But in events close to their skins, these same people tend to jump to hasty conclusions based on their personal interests and prejudices.

This partiality (or bias) is just as dangerous as apathy. Prejudiced or apathetic people are a menace to democracy, for they are an easy prey for demagogues.

An essential duty of the information media in a free society is to fight both prejudice and apathy. A strong newspaper does it (or should do it) through its editorial page. Not by avoiding all controversial and "hot" issues, but by plunging headlong into all such issues, stating clearly and firmly an opinion which it honestly believes to serve the public good.

Having stated our opinion, The Times cannot and does not expect everybody to agree with it.

What this newspaper does expect is that our stand will stimulate private and public discussion of the particular issue, that it will prod people into serious thinking about it.

A disgusting show of citizenship...

The greatest danger to democracy is the belief that there is virtue in error when multiplied by ballots. But there is even greater danger when people are not even interested in having the privilege of the ballot.

Look at you creatures in West Vancouver, so up-tight with keeping up with the neighbors, that you put the serious matter of municipal elections away down the priority list. Television programs, Christmas shopping, sleeping in, talking with the neighbor, washing the car — you name it — runs you out of time to vote.

Look at North Vancouver district, it's even worse. Thousands of them haven't even bothered to register on the voters' list. Hiw is that for callous indifference?

But who are the first to scream blue murder when their taxes go up, the drain gets plugged, the zoning is wrong, to sign a petition? The same indifferent jerk who didn't have time to vote.

If there are any service clubs on the North Shore looking for a project to get their teeth into, here is one. Divide the club into teams and have each team get out and get people to register to vote. Make it a competition, just like selling light bulbs or peanuts. No you won't be making any money for some worth while project, but the members will be doing a lot of good for the community and the democratic system under which we have the privilege of living.

Any poor fool who didn't have the gumption to get out to vote hasn't much of a leg to stand on to complain on municipal matters. If they weren't interested do what they wanted, then they deserve what they get.

A PERFECT GOLDEN SKY lit by high clouds and with the spruce trees etched against it was a beautiful sunset scene at Prince George. In the foreground the line of snow laden trees edged the corral fence.

A cutback imposed in a government office had reduced a typing pool from eight girls to four. When the disgruntled supervisor was asked whether he could arrange to have a report typed, he replied, "I'll send it to the typing puddle."

You're wrong if you think plywood is something relatively new. This particular wood product dates back to early Egyptian times, and was used by Pharaoh's artisans as early as 1500 B.C. for decorative purposes.

By all accounts everyone here enjoyed a green Christmas. And after last year I don't think many of them were complaining. But I went to Prince George to spend Christmas with my eldest daughter and her family and there we had the whole bit.

There was snow on the ground and the walking was good. Crisp and clear with snow decorating the evergreens and covering the ground with a white mantle. Even the dog and the horses seemed to like the crispness of the air and the soft fleecy snow.

Kelly, her jet black coat silhouetted against the snow was a whirlwind as she followed the youngsters around the yard in the Hus-ski, trying hard to keep up to them. The horses pawed through the snow looking for grass and as Cyndy fed them their oats each day they would cluster around her eagerly looking for their handouts.

The clear cold weather had thickened the coats of all the animals in preparation for winter. Tippy cat was as sleek and glossy as a seal and even Tab, the colt, had a coat thickened by the approaching winter.

The weather had been cool, in the twenties, but only a few shallow ponds were frozen enough for the youngsters to skate on. One thing I noticed was that each school has a skating rink. Boards are placed around an area and this is flooded so that succeeding layers of ice are formed and the children can skate on them.

Lakes along the railway from Squamish north, were still open. In fact when we went up on Christmas Eve, it was more like a spring day than midwinter. Gates Lake and One-Mile Lake at Pemberton and even Lac La Hache and Williams Lake had not frozen yet.

The first snow was north of Lillooet at Pavilion and from there north there was a skiff of snow on the ground, just enough to make it look and feel like Christmas.

On the way home the trees in the Cariboo were beautiful. Each clump of needles on the Ponderosa pines were just like globes of silvered needles, each one coated with frost to make them thick and fluffy.

Each branch and twig was also outlined in frost until it was the thickness of your finger and as the sun touched them they glittered like jewels.

Much as I hate to admit it snow for Christmas does help! It makes everything look so much lovelier.

Did you ever see a cat with a catnip mouse? It's the funniest thing going! Tippy cat got one for Christmas and there he lay licking it, cuddling it, between his paws and flicking out a claw at everyone who even approached it. But his antics later in the week when father proceeded to cook up a mess of bait for Bob's trapline were really something to see. The basic ingredients were kippered herring and if you could have seen that animal sniffing the air to find the source of the odor you'd have known why it was good for catching animals.

Of course watching the kids on Christmas morning was fun but the payoff came the next morning. Greg got a number of puzzles, some wooden ones you put together as well as some others. His mother spent most of Christmas night trying to get them put together and finally gave up with two pieces still not in place.

Next morning I noticed the pieces were in place and commented on it. Greg had been playing with his truck and looked up and said, "I finished it", and went back to his truck. Imagine his mother's chagrin the yard when the darn thing but as he blandly said, "I just stuck them together and they slid in place!"

You never learn department. I should know better but when the family suggested I try snowmobiling I thought it looked like lots of fun. Cyndy had taken dad out on the Hus-ski and they had roared up and down the road and around and around the yard. So I climbed into my woolies and tried it too.

Well, there I was, clinging tightly to Del and racing around the yard when the darn thing zipped and I zipped. You can guess the results. Have you ever pulled that big back muscle between your hip and your back? Then you know just how I felt — and still feel.

But it was still worth it. And I'd try it again. But it would have helped if the doctor hadn't suggested that I act like a grandmother!!

And in the kid's corny joke department: Do you know why the little boy put some ice cubes in his dad's bed? He wanted some cold pop!

Don't let anyone tell you we don't live in the banana belt! On the day before New Year Cathy Babuin told me she still had petunias blooming outdoors. And more than one family had roses from the garden gracing their homes during the holiday, along with winter blooming heather.

But I found the payoff on New Year's day when I discovered some snowdrops blooming under the big mock orange bush in my front yard!

Recipe for Tragedy

Take one reckless natural born fool.
Add two or three drinks of hard liquor.
Add a fast hip powered car.
Soak fool well in liquor.
Place in the car and let him go.
After due time, remove from the wreckage.
Place in a large satin lined box.
And garnish with flowers.

Whistler was abuzzing place over the holidays and a recent visitor (just after the New Year) was Al Raina, head coach of the national ski team.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Squamish Times:

Congratulations and more power to you, Alice, I'm glad you made it.

Had I been in Squamish to cast a ballot you would have had my vote. During more than 20 years of active participation in Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce work, I never encountered anyone on committee more dependable when it came to getting a job done. Often at meetings when other committee chairman would offer reasons for failure or procrastination, you would have a report ready to show how you accomplished what you set out to do.

On council you will find many problems. You certainly won't be able to please every one. You'll make mistakes, and occasionally I'll disagree with your policies. When I do disagree with you I will still know you're following the course you believe is best for the community. I'm most happy to see a woman on the council. Men are such ghastly imbeciles a woman's influence is needed to guide them. I'm sure you won't be pushed around.

I wish you many interesting and rewarding years in public service. I'm sure Squamish is going to be a better place to live as a result of your efforts.

George Behrner.

Editor, Squamish Times:

May I take this opportunity to thank the residents of Squamish for their support of the Annual Campaign for funds for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. The 1969 campaign was a great success and we were able to forward a cheque in the amount of $1,109.17 to the Vancouver headquarters of this organization.

My thanks to Mrs. K. Misurka and Mrs. L. Cloutier for their help in organizing the campaign and a very special thank you to all the wonderful ladies who gave their time to canvass for this worthy cause.

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) O. J. Runzer,
President,
Catholic Womens League.

Squamish welcomes in the New Year

Squamish welcomed in the New Year in the traditional style with dances at the Chieftain Hotel, Legion Hall and Bowls Room as well as numerous house parties.

The largest dance, at the hotel, saw over two hundred people greet the new year with noise makers, hats and favours and the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

The crowd danced to the music of Bill Whiteside and "The Country Touch." Following the marking of the New Year the guests enjoyed a delicious smorgasbord prepared by chef Tony Destrafi.

New Year's Eve, one of the biggest nights of the year, always brings out the attractive formal dresses which make such a gathering so interesting for the ladies and this year was no exception. Short and long forms were equally popular.

Among the attractive short ones noticed at the Chieftain was the silver dress worn by Mrs. Dave Stewart, a striking blue velvet top over a white chiffon pleated skirt worn by Mrs. Frank Causton and a beautiful red dress with a white ruffle at the throat and down the front made and worn by Glenda Price.

Among the full length formal dresses were the beautiful cerise gown with brocade top and matching full length coat worn by Mrs. K. Bellehumeur, an attractive green and white printed gown worn by Mrs. K. Petersen and the beautiful gold and silver metallic on hot pink chosen by Mrs. B. Hanna.

Mrs. C. Marchant wore a turquoise gown, the long tunic edged in silver beaded flowers at the throat and hem and worn over a matching slim skirt.

Unusual and outstanding was the midnight blue and silver sari worn by Mrs. P. N. Goode, the softly draped dark gown a foil for the shimmering silver embroidery.

The ever popular pant dress was in evidence with the mauve metallic one worn by Mrs. S. Rizun one of the more attractive ones there.

Guests who attended the dance voted it one of the best which had ever been held in Squamish.

Britannia Beach news...

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Stan Ward on the birth of their baby daughter Cindy Lorraine, born on Christmas day in the Langley Memorial Hospital, weight 6 lbs. 6 oz.; a sister for Rickey and a surprise birthday present for Mrs. Ward.

Among the visitors from out of town to the various parties at the Beach and Minaty Bay during the holiday festivities were Mrs. Olive Sherwood, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Manson from Fraser Lake; Mr. and Mrs. G. Hall and children, Abbotsford; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Goss and Mr. and Mrs. Eloy Manson, Garibaldi Highlands; and many more who were enjoying the warm hospitality at Britannia.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moore of Surrey drove to Britannia on New Years Day and called on many of their friends to wish them a happy New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Oresti Verdesio had their daughter Betty and her husband Sam with their three children, also son Ken with his wife, Elizabeth and their two children as well as Mr. Sylvia Pistono for Christmas.

Congratulations to "Red" Verdesio on his retirement from Anaconda Company. Red worked at Britannia for many years and built his home in Minaty Bay in 1936 where he and his wife Flo have since resided. Red's work mates honoured him with a farewell party at the end of his last shift when he received some lovely gifts. A beautiful reclining chair, some books and samples of ore from the mine.

Sorry to hear that Miss Elsa Eliassen, who came home to enjoy the holidays took ill and was confined in the hospital.

Mr. Bruce Graney left the Beach on Sunday, Jan. 4, for Kingston, where he will resume his studies in mining engineering.

The Britannia Beach W.A. turkey raffle was won by Mrs. Arne Fors of Minaty Bay and the winner of the doll and cushion was Mrs. Tom Pullen of the Beach. Mrs. Hugh Chisholm drew the winning tickets.

The Christmas trees at the entrance of the Anaconda Co. and the entrance to Minaty Bay were especially beautiful this year with all their gaily twinkling lights, also the lighted stars, one facing the Beach and the other to Minaty Bay from the mill, gave an added touch to the Christmas season. From my kitchen window I could look out during my nightly chore of doing the dishes and the sight of that beautiful tree twinkling down at me made an otherwise tedious job a much lighter and pleasanter one.

Mrs. W. H. Nichols of North Vancouver was the holiday guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Nichols.

Our sympathy is extended to Leo and Harold Davis on the death of their father in Haney.

LESLIE ALDRIDGE made a beautiful Mary in the Christmas pageant at St. John's Church.

East-West winners were Bill Wood and Pat Wright, J. Hughes and T. Grimmett and Mrs. Hansen and G. Wood.

Christmas concert at Woodfibre

An old fashioned Christmas concert was held at Woodfibre in December and the entire community appreciated the efforts of the school staff, headed by Mr. Spencer the principal. He was assisted by Mrs. Stetch, Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. McCutcheon; and Mrs. Poulsen, convener of the community club entertainment committee.

A Christmas pageant by the kindergarten opened the program with the children dressed like the symbols of Christmas. This was followed by several musical selections by the Thomas brothers with the drums and two piano accordions.

A play titled "The Earth Children Rescue Santa Claus" was the main offering on the program and most of the elementary children took part. The play, in a modern theme consisted of a family of earth people on a space ship searching for Santa Claus. They landed on a strange planet and found that a huge eye had captured Santa. The family called on the fairies, the seven dwarfs, the Hallowe'en witch, the scarecrow from the Wizard of Oz and Frosty the Snowman to help. They used their magic to overpower the Ugliers and the children and their parents took Santa back to earth in time for Christmas. The play was interwoven with songs and speeches to tell the story. Costumes added to the performance.

The program concluded with the choir of high school girls singing a number of songs suitable for Christmas.

Santa Claus then arrived on the stage and gave all the children under ten years of age, canes, candy and oranges.

The evening closed with a children's dance to music supplied by the young local orchestra with Joe Rhodes on the drums, Greg Wirachowsky, Michael Lynch and James Beattie with their guitars and amplifiers.

Mrs. Poulsen wishes to thank the following people who helped in so many ways; the teachers and staff; Mrs. Waldron, Mrs. Teichman; Mrs. Wirachowsky, Mrs. Beattie, Mrs. Huether, Mrs. Sinclair, Mrs. Lea (who was unable to attend), Mrs. Tinklin, Mrs. Peterson, Mrs. Mavroudis, Mrs. Monk, Santa Claus, Mr. Van Horlick for getting the tree, all the boys and girls who helped decorate the tree and helped behind the stage and a special thanks to Mrs. Jones for managing and helping to make the costumes of so many of the groups. She hopes she hasn't missed anyone.

Holiday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Carson included her grandmother Mrs. M. Edwards and great-uncle Arthur Theobald, both of Vancouver, and her brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Jim Buchanan and their children of North Vancouver.

CHRISTMAS PARTY AT TOTEM HALL

Santa Claus came to Totem Hall the Tuesday before Christmas leaving a toy and a bag of goodies for each of the children.

The early part of the evening featured a program in which many of the young people took part and this was followed by the gift giving.

During the evening Mrs. B. Harris, secretary of the Indian Education committee was presented with a beautiful wall clock in appreciation for all she had done for the young people.

The event was also a birthday celebration for Dominic Charlie who received a great many gifts from his friends and neighbors.

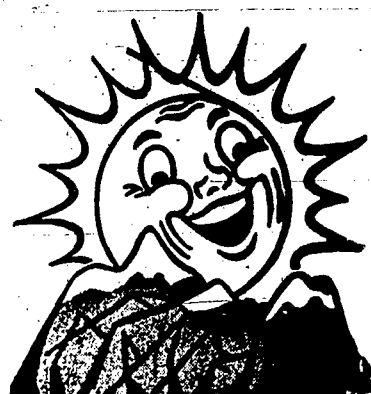

CHILDREN CLUSTERED around Santa Claus at the Totem Hall Christmas party just before the holiday. They had opened their presents and were delightedly clutching their gifts.

Preview of next summer's tour into B.C.'s Interior

By POPPY MCKENZIE

Except for enthusiastic skiers, not many coast dwellers travel our interior roads for pleasure during the winter months.

But if you plan a tour in British Columbia next summer, the Yellowhead Pass route to Jasper, the Jasper - Banff highway, and the Rogers Pass route will take you on a circular trip through some of the world's most majestic mountain scenery. And contrary to comments on the Yellowhead route made in a recent article in a national publication, accommodations and services for the tourist are plentiful now with lots more abuilding.

Mind, we were there during the off - season this autumn, though there were still a good many tourists on the road. However, if you want to make reservations ahead, you can get all information by writing to Yellowhead Map, Central North Thompson Chamber of Commerce, Clearwater, B.C.

We had planned to play it safe and make our first night's stop in Kamloops, but it was only about four in the afternoon when we got there and the city was shrouded in pulp mill effluent. So, on the advice of a Fish and Game Department officer, we settled for another couple of hours driving and turned north for Clearwater and Dutch Lake Resort (not to be confused with Dutch Lake Motel which is new).

CHARMING PLACE

We found this a charming place with log cabins, modern A-frame cottages and cement brick motel - style. A bit of a mixture, and we preferred the log cabins. But we had no fault to find with the smorgasbord dinner.

We were interested to learn that the resort was started years ago by two Vancouver newspaperwomen, Grace McGraw and Dorothy Bell, who now lives in West Van. It passed through a number of hands before being bought by the present owners, Howie and June Mjolsness. (Incidentally, our hosts for the first three nights of our trip were Scandinavians. We broke the pattern on the fourth night in Kelowna, there they came from Austria.)

We were impressed by the varieties of lovely waterlilies in bloom at the edge of the lake. It seems that when Butchart's Garden were being renewed after the war, the gardener in charge of importing these waterlilies sent some roots to a relative in Clearwater who, in turn, planted them in Dutch Lake.

Beyond Clearwater, there were a goodly number of short detours where new bridges are under construction. These should be completed by next summer. The road follows the North Thompson (good fishing. We chatted with one camper who had caught as pretty a pan-sized dolly as you'd wish, on his first cast!) then turns east to provide a fine view of Mt. Robson, highest peak in the Rockies, before you go through the pass and arrive as Jasper.

JASPER DISAPPOINTS

Jasper was a bit of a disappointment, as I hadn't seen it since 1926. It's all much bigger and less wild than in those days and the beaver dam seems to be gone from the lake. To be expected, I suppose.

We spent our second night at the Columbia Icefield Chalet near the Athabasca Glacier. This is not exactly a beauty spot; the view was as stark and uninviting as a photo of the moon's surface, relieved only by the autumnal red, gold and brown of the alpine meadows. But it's fascinating to realize that the waters of the three glaciers here flow to the Arctic Ocean, Hudson Bay and the Pacific. Gives you that top-of-the-world feeling.

En route to Banff, we paused at the rustic Num-Ti-Jah Lodge on Bow Lake, J. Simpson prop. We would have preferred to spend our second night there, had we known of it, for the Icefield Chalet was over - heated and expensive and the food only fair. J. Simpson's establishment was charming and the lake lovely. And it must be a healthy spot because we were informed that J. Simpson is now somewhere between 95 and 100 years old and is still taking out hunting and fishing parties.

Lake Louise Chalet was due to close for the winter the day after we got there, in spite of the crowds of people and the banks of Iceland poppies still blooming in the sunshine. The view of the lake is still picture postcard beautiful, and the whole place is as I remembered it, one of the loveliest in the world.

ON TO RADIUM

From Banff, we took route 93 down through Kootenay National Park to Radium Hot Springs. I regret to report that the hot pool has lost its rugged, natural charm as a result of rebuilding and enlarging, but the road is good. All through the interior new roads are being built and old ones improved, we found. This was the case again between Radium and Golden.

The Rogers Pass should be familiar enough territory - by now for us to skip a description of its beauties, but we decided to prolong our trip by cutting south from Revelstoke for a look at Upper Arrow Lake. We rattled along a new, unpaved road to the free ferry that crosses to Galena. The valley was filled with smoke haze from slash burning and nowhere did we see floating or drowned debris from the flooding of the lake.

The new lake ferries (at Galena and Needles) were built in North Van by Allied Shipbuilders Ltd. and have no propellers. What they have is a kind of egg - beater arrangement called the Voss - Schneider propulsion system which combines steering and propulsion. They also have a 100 per cent sewage treatment apparatus, the captain of the Galena told us.

SALMON SPAWN

Between Galena and Nakusp, there is some new roadbed, as much of the old is underwater, but we endured, one stretch that is the kind of backwoods road most of us have forgotten about these days.

Still, there are advantages to not tearing through the landscape as we learned at a stream called Halfway River. Here we met a Highways Dept. lad who was carrying a brilliant red fish with a dark head that he'd just caught in his bare hands. So we took time out to watch the spectacle of the kokanee, the landlocked salmon, swarming upstream to spawn. Red as Nelson Eddy's dress tunic, they were.

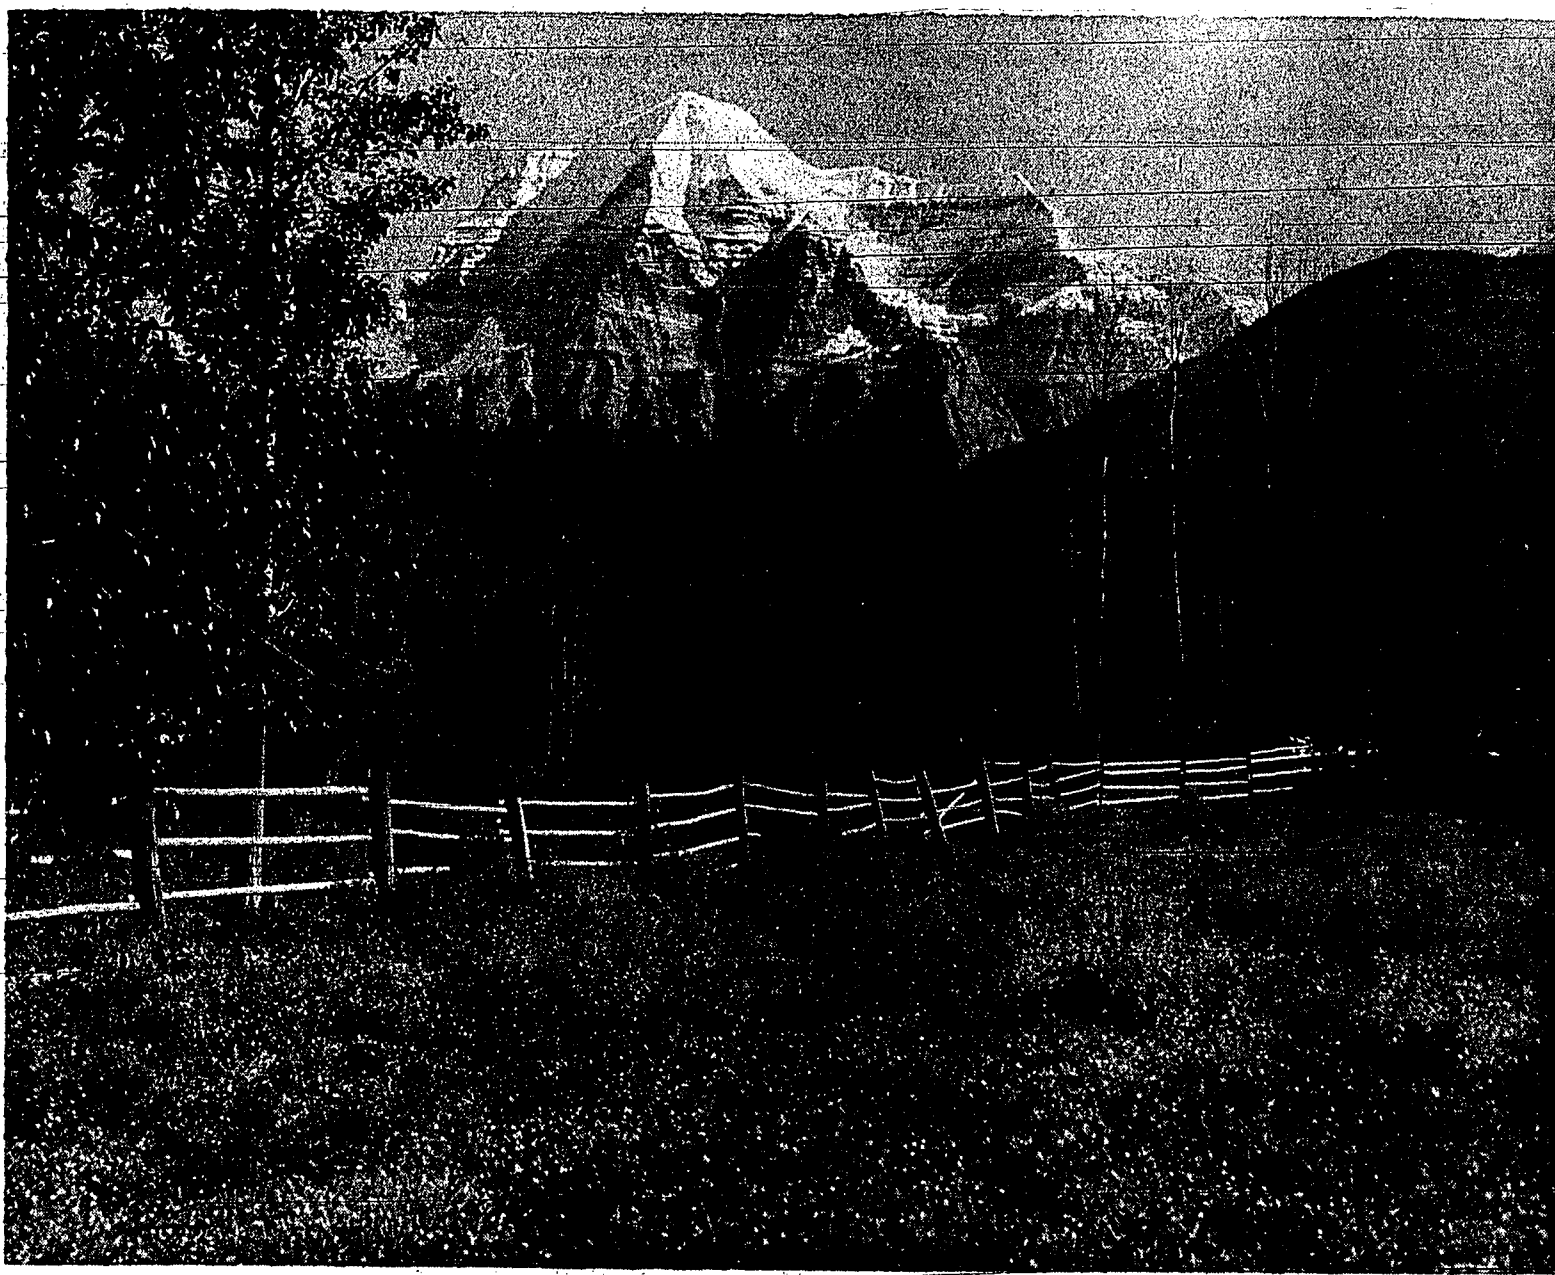

In Nakusp, we stopped for information and were invited to inspect the local museum, which was specially opened for us. This, by the way, is typical of the helpful friendliness you meet all along the less frequented ways. The museum had all sorts of pioneer relics and one end was devoted to a well - planned series of rooms, bedroom, parlor and kitchen, typical of the old days.

We crossed the lake again at Needles and spent the night in Kelowna, and next day dawdled on another road being readied for pavement from Rutland to Rock Creek down the valley of the West Kettle River.

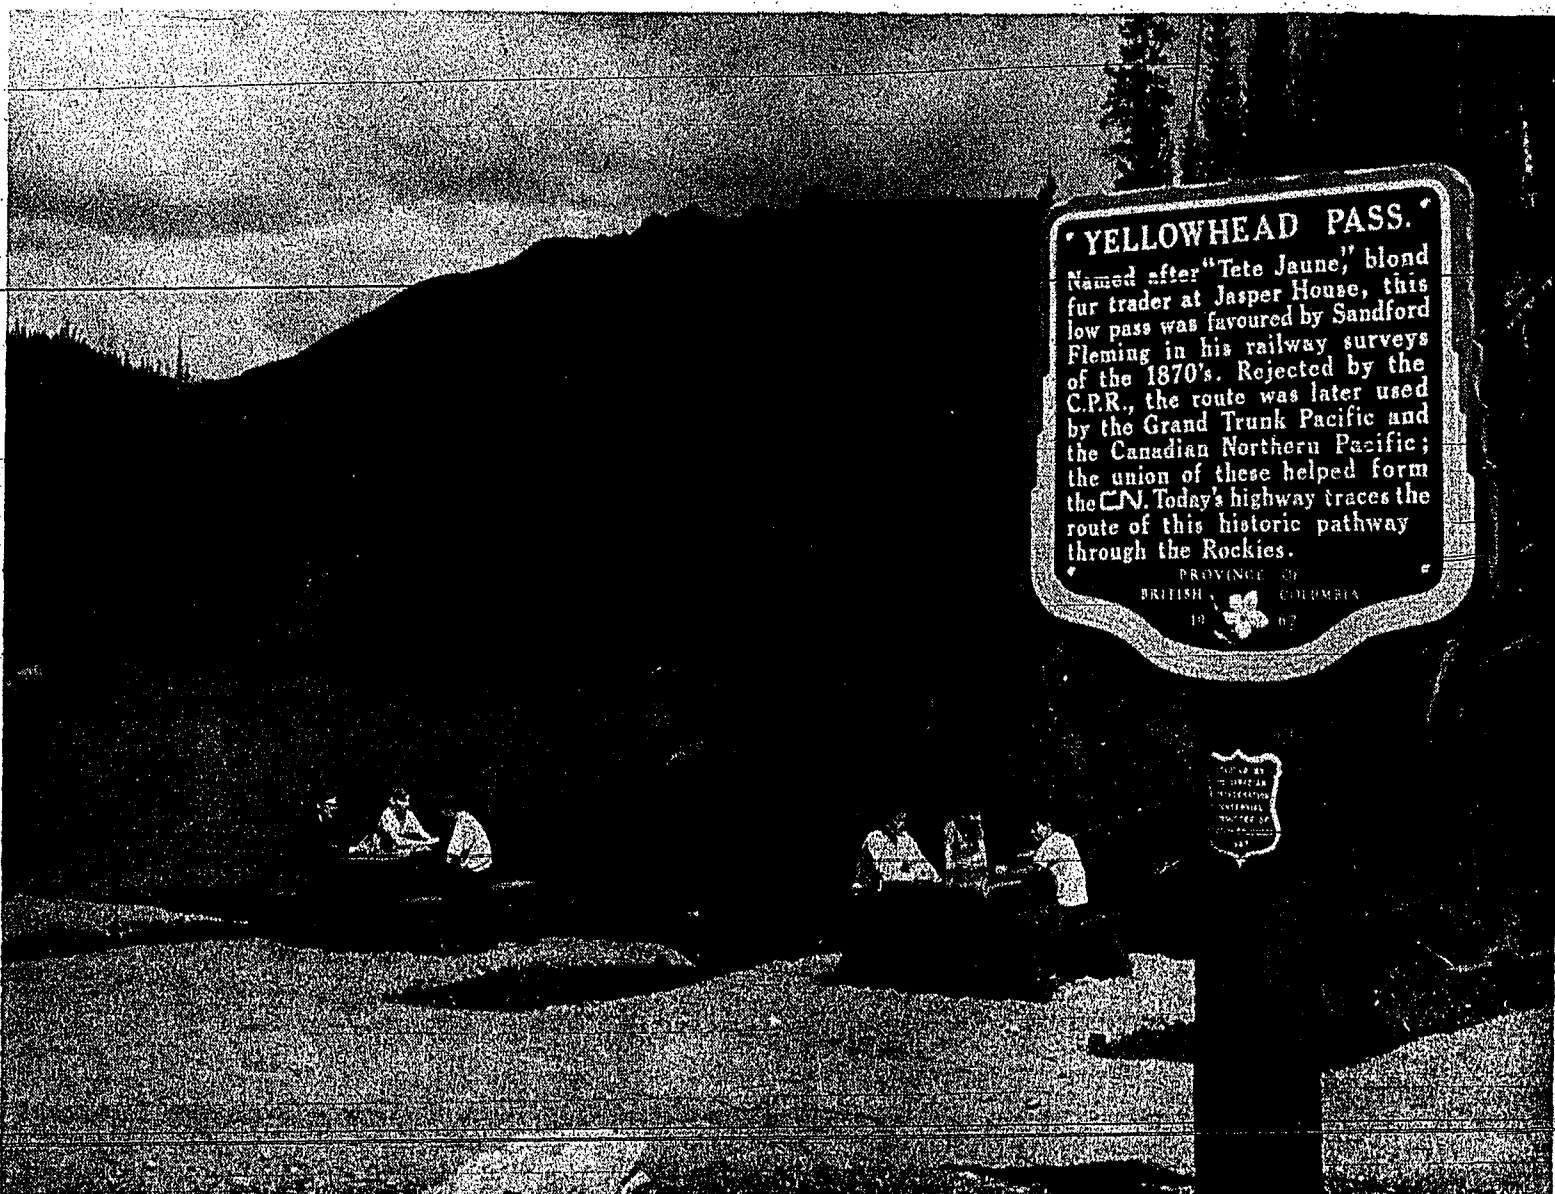

We traversed all this wild country teeming with game without seeing much, one cow moose far off in a pasture, a mountain goat with kid right beside the road, a beaver swimming in its ring of bright water far down in a valley, and those jolly little chipmunks that will eat out of your hand at the beaver dam in Manning Park. Not much of a bag, but there's always the next time. And when you have such magnificent country so accessible, you make sure there will be a next time, and a next.

LOG CABINS, many of them still in use, are a common sight in the Interior. The scene is on the Yellowhead Pass route north of Clearwater.

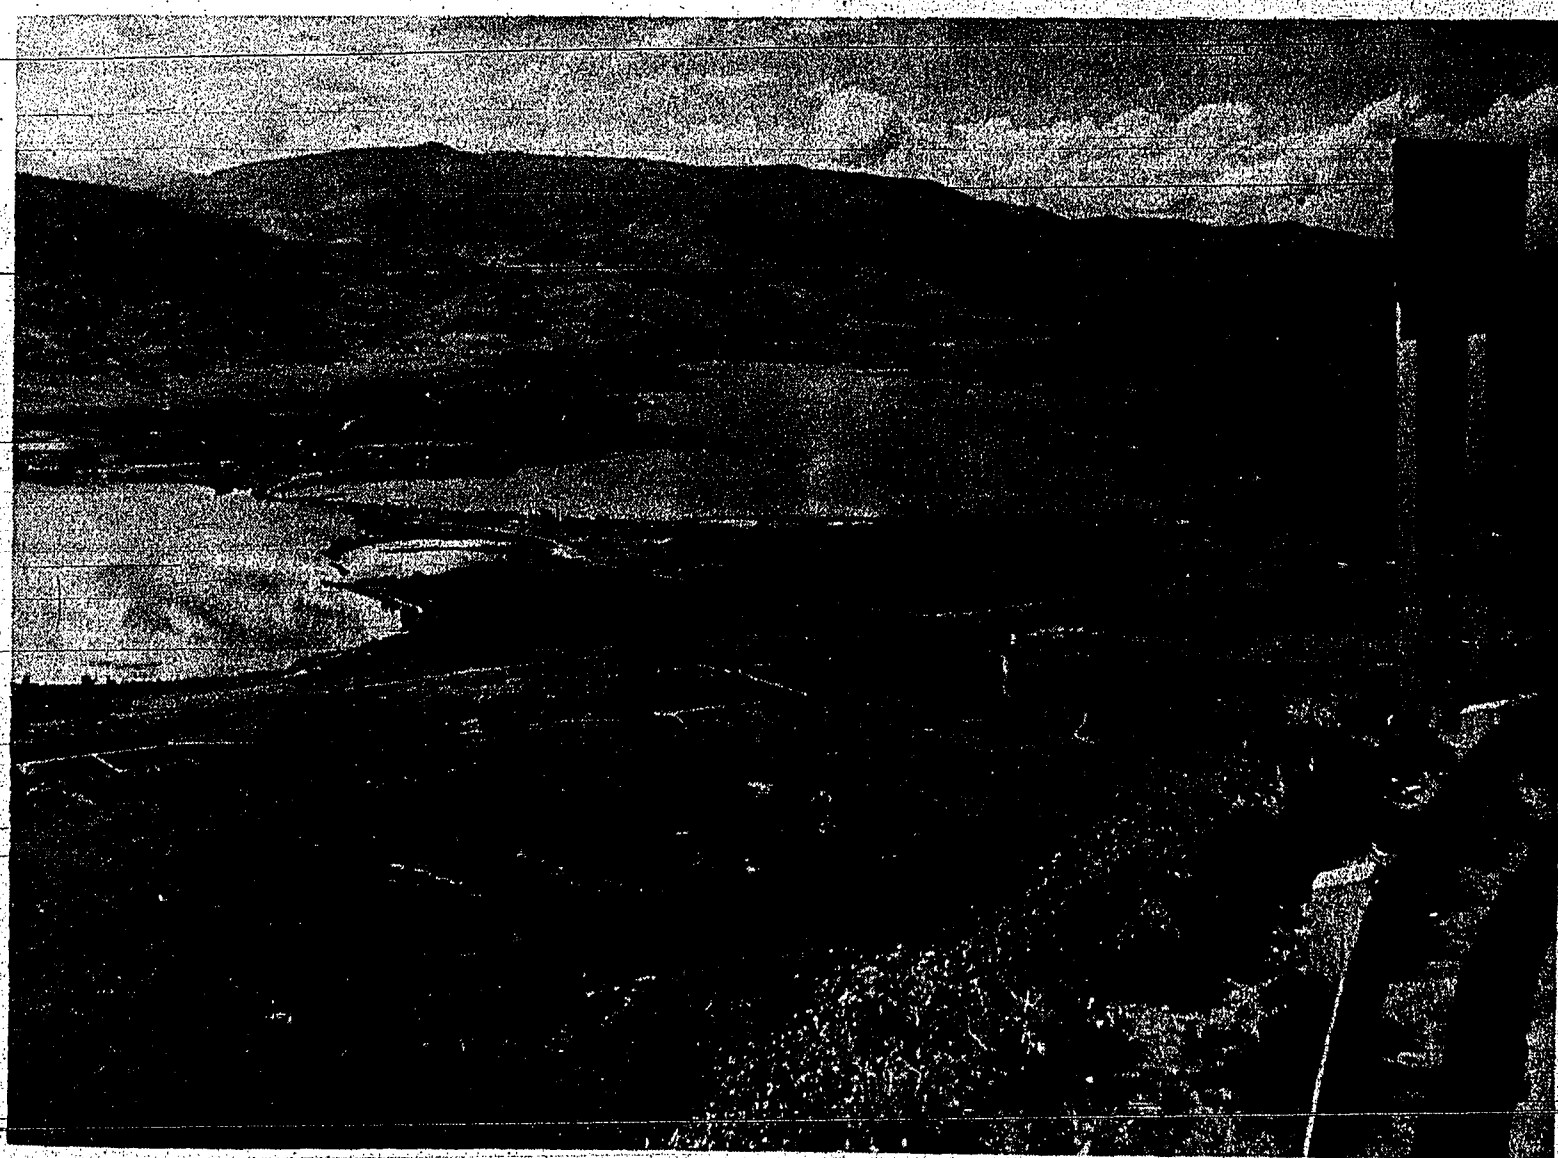

MOUNT ROBSON, tallest peak in the Canadian Rockies, towers over the Yellowhead Pass route.

WAYSIDE STOPPING PLACES are plentiful on the Yellowhead route. Above, a scene in the pass itself.

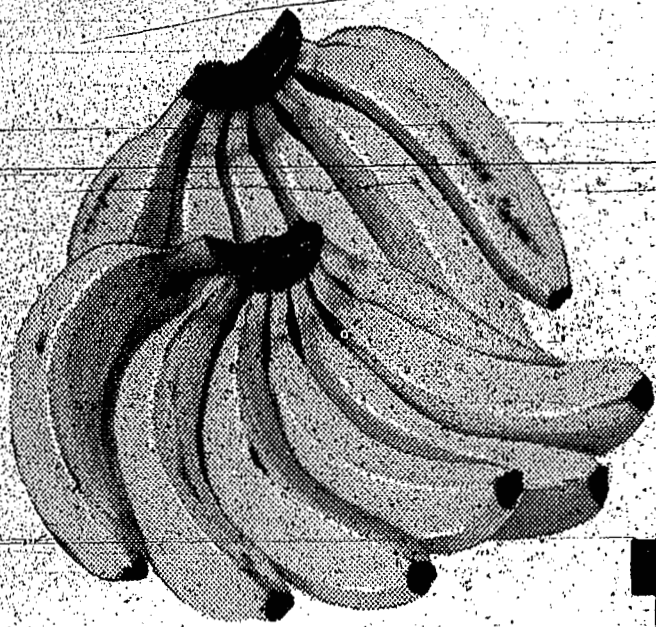

SCENIC ROUTE along the North Thompson takes the traveller to Yellowhead Pass and Jasper National Park. Photo was taken on Highway 5 at Blue River.

VIEWPOINT on Anarchist Mountain between Rock Creek and Osoyoos provides magnificent panorama of the Okanagan Valley.

Holiday nuptials for Karen Halvorson

The joys of family gatherings and the promise of a new decade gave an atmosphere of happiness and hope to the wedding of Karen Teoline Halvorson and John Trevor Siggers which was solemnized in the Squamish United Church at 7:30 in the evening on December 27 with Rev. Harold M. Wingfield officiating.

The bride (a graduate of VGH School of Nursing) is the only daughter of Mrs. M. Halvorson and the late Martin Halvorson while the groom, who is a teacher at Dawson Creek, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Siggers of London, England.

The church lights were dimmed for the occasion with only the glow of the Christmas tree lights and the candles on the communion table providing illumination during the exchange of the marriage vows. Bouquets of white mums and pine boughs flanked the altar steps.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother Harvey Halvorson, wore a floor-length gown of polished white crepe featuring an empire waist and elbow length sleeves. The divided train added a formal touch to the gown. A bouffant elbow length veil fell from a circular white band and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Aleen McPhee of Dawson Creek, was gowned in a floor-length dress of turquoise chiffon over satin. Like the bride's it featured an empire waist and long sleeves. Her bouquet was of white carnations.

Wendy and Nancy Halvorson, the tiny daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Halvorson, were the flower girls and they wore floor-length turquoise dresses of chiffon over satin styled after the bride's. Their little floral bouquets featured one huge white mum.

The groom was supported by Stewart Cunningham of Vancouver.

Ushers were the bride's cousins, Harold, Norman and Thor Halvorson.

During the signing of the register Mrs. L. Lefebvre sang "O Perfect Love" accompanied on the organ by Mrs. E. L. Kristianson who played the nuptial music.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Elks Hall where Dr. L. C. Kindree proposed the toast to the bride. Norman Barr acted as Master of Ceremonies.

For her brief honeymoon in Vancouver the bride donned a woollen ensemble in a lovely rose shade with navy accessories. On their return from Vancouver the young couple left for Dawson Creek where the bride is a nurse with the Public Health Department.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Collins of Golden, Corporal and Mrs. Al Dreger of Tsawwassen, Mr. and Mrs. Jon Helgason of Delta, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kilbride of Williams Lake, Mr. and Mrs. W. McNamara and their children of Bellingham, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bazley of Deep Cove, and Mrs. Raymond Rebagliatti of Chetwynd.

Combined Choirs stage Christmas Cantata

The combined choirs of the Squamish United Church and the Church of St. John the Divine held a Christmas cantata in the Christian Education Centre on the evening of December 22.

During the program the junior choir from the Squamish United Church also sang several numbers.

The highlight of the program was the cantata "The Celestial Visitor" by Noble Cain, and organist and choir director Mrs. E. L. Kristianson said it was the most ambitious undertaking the choirs had ever attempted.

Soloists during the cantata were Margaret Lefebvre, Syd Pudney and Rev. Aubrey Bell, while the trio who sang during the cantata were Connie Bell, Evelyn Dawson and Shirley McAllister.

During the early part of the program which featured Christmas carols Margaret Lefebvre sang the old carol "Star of the East" while the combined choirs sang "Lullay Thou Little Tiny Child" and the "Sleep of the Child Jesus" and the "Little Old Manger".

"O Holy Night", one of the most beautiful of the carols, was sung by Mrs. Lefebvre and the junior choir sang the "Huron Carol" while a trio composed of Lori Newson, Donna Lemcke and Jane Hutchinson sang "Lullaby Jesus", a Polish carol. The junior choir's quintet also sang "There's a Song in the Air" with Susan Wingfield, Brenda Newson, Margaret Lemcke, Norman McCulloch and Donald Lloyd taking part in this.
