Whistler to become resort municipality

By JOY DAWE

There will be a new start for Whistler in August when the Alta Lake area becomes a municipality with $10 million available from the provincial government for the development of sewer and water services.

Government legislation to set up the Whistler resort municipality was introduced in the legislature last week by Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer and is expected to be passed and proclaimed within a month.

Details of the legislation will be discussed this Saturday, June 21, at a meeting of the Alta Lake Ratepayers Association when Gary Harkness, chief planner for the department of municipal affairs, will attend to answer questions about the bill and its implications. We have a baby and here is where the merchants in this town really stick it to you. When I saw Zincofax in North Vancouver for $1.97 a tube, here regularly $2.39, you can believe I stocked up; consider also Johnson diaper liners, in North 36 for $1.25 (just to mention a couple of examples).

Another area in which we have found a great discrepancy is the price of gas. After shopping around Vancouver we found a service station which offers premium gas at 61.9 cents a gallon, compared to 76.9 cents a gallon out here. In this day of rising costs and inflation, it is rather nice to shop where every item is at least a few cents cheaper (capitalizing on specials saves much more), form a car pool of two or three, buy your groceries, get your gas cheaper, and have a pleasant outing as

The merchants may well wonder why patronage in Squamish is not what it should be.

TRUSTEE Margaret Marchant speaking for the school board.

Mrs. Carol Lapointe, representing parents of graduates, commented that To teachers, Mom and Dad although she has been amongst us in this district for a mere three years, it would appear to be much longer judging by the amount of telephone calls received in her home. She told the students that each one of them possesses something very special indeed; they share the same common factor of loyalty and she has no qualms whatsoever regarding their ability as future leaders. She thanked the teachers most profusely for giving her son's fellow graduates much more than anyone expected from them. Mrs. Lapointe concluded simply "To the 1975 graduating class thanks - you'll always be number one with us!"

Roy Akune, former principal of Howe Sound secondary school, three years ago, must have left a dynamic impression on the students during his one year stay, for he was invited by the graduating class to give the keynote address.

He musingly criticized his secretary who had mistakenly applied his initials to correspondence as IRA instead of RIA. His wife proved to be little help to him upon being approached as to the type of personality he should project on stage during his keynote speech. Her reply was "Simple — like you!"

Akune congratulated the students on this pinnacle of achievement stating that greater satisfaction is experienced always when your parents are behind you. "Thank you -mothers and fathers!"

His inspiring address is contained in its entirety elsewhere in this week's publication and it is well worth digesting fully.

Class historian Brian Butterworth presented a composed image for his young years as he reminisced along the way. His account of the lighter side of school is also contained in its entirety amongst these pages and it too, is highly recommended for perusal.

The students' official farewell address to Howe Sound secondary school was orated by valedictorian Susan Acorn who expressed the feelings of her classmates with perfection . , .

"Having been given this opportunity to speak as valedictorian this year, I must say that I am deeply honored. A chance to thank all my fellow grads for letting me be their friend.

"It is a big step we grads are taking this evening and also one of the most important steps forward in our lives.

"All of our yesterdays are gathered together making this night what it is.

"A night which we_will remember — for tomorrow we will enter into a new world.

"All that we have become through the years will determine our place in tomorrow's world,

"Though many of us may not realize it, we have learned the secrets of friendship of sharing and of self-achievement.

"Having known friendship -We will have friends

"Having shared with others -We have learned to give

Dailly said development of the program was predicated on close consultation with parents. "The whole thrust of any developments in this field was intended to ensure that parents were kept informed and were allowed frequent and regular opportunities to examine and suction action of water specific aspects of the program."

"When I hear cases where this has not been done, i can only conclude that there have been errors in judgement. I recognize that in this field there are very strong and often divided opinions."

Dailly said her departmental officials, in checking complaints about some of the textbooks that had been used in family life education programs, had found that none of the books complained about had been prescribed by the department.

She said that anyone who looked over the list prescribed by the department "will see that these text contain information on health, drugs, human reproduction and family relationships."

Dailly said much of the concern about the program seemed to have arisen over the aspect of the family life program dealing with the physiology of sex and human reproduction.

"This aspect is not, nor, should it be, a major element of the program in my opinion," the minister said. She added that there are other components of family life and family relationships — such as privileges and of equal importance.

The minister said that the criticism of the family life programs was confined to a small number of districts. "There are many school districts in the province which have been operating family life programs of building materials. for some years with the full support of the community," she

P. J. Brennan appeared before the works and services committee to express concern with the dumping of effluent from the storm sewers into Judd Slough as the increased volume of water would require extra pumps during high water to drain the slough.

Brennan suggested an alternative route down Cottonwood Road through the Dowad property into the Squamish River. There would be no requirement for flood gates as the height of a drain would be well above water level.

Various alternatives were discussed including the possibility of a drain through the island to the river. Council is waiting for an approved plan before making a decision on the

A number of teams in the league have a Peewee line and Squamish, plays the first year girls or smaller against these. This line is doing very well, good performance from Jone Bernner, Francine Lewis, Kris Leiws, Marg Burns, Par-Wallace and Laurie Billy are playing better lacrosse.

The coaches John and Gail Willgress are very proud of the way these girls are playing this very hard-hitting close checking game. Their passing has improved and this is making them a very competitive team. These girls are now in the weekend.

LACROSSE Div. 9

On Saturday, June 14, the Squamish Hunters of Division 9 coached by Mike McPhillamey and Brian Valleau, travelled to Confederation Park in Burnaby to meet Norburn. The boys returned home winners by a 7-3 count with Jamie Raymond scoring four goals and George Jacobs three. Mike Breckenridge picked up two assists and Donald Sweeney one assist.

. Sunday, June 15, Van East visited Squamish and defeated the Hunters 9-6 in a penalty filled game. Squamish had 15 penalties in the game and Van East six. It was the penalties that caused most of the Squamish's problems as Van East scored four of their goals while Squamish was shor-

The intermediate "B" teamplayed to a 6-6 tie on June 3. A louble minor penalty and some oad timekeeping by the penalty timekeeper cost the game. Gary Halvorson scored two, with one each from Tom Johnstone, Don Halvorson, Guy Thompson, and midget player Paul Lewis. Assists went to Mike McPhillamey, Randy Lewis, Don Halvorson, Gary Halvorson and Thompson.

On June 10, McPhillamey earned his first shutout of the season when West Vancouver was defeated 10-0. Johnstone scored two, Larry Smith, Don Halvorson, Robin Drygas and Gary Halvorson one each, and Thompson scored four big ones. Smith and Don Halvorson had two assists apiece, with one each from Dennis"Lewis, Marvin Falmek, Rick Harry and

In Langley on June 12, a twogoal lead at the start of the third ended up a two-goal loss, as McPhillamey.

Centennial defeated the Firefighters 8-6. Lousy defençe and penalties cost the game. Larry Smith-scored a single, Don Halvorson one, Thompson two, Ray Mensinger one, and Larry Gagnon one. Assists went to McPhillamey, Drygas, Harry, Thompson, Gagnon and Geoff Edmonds. The three Midget players showed the Intermediates how to play this game, the intermediates played

By JENNY BUSDON

Oh, happy days! The government finally moved Wednesday June 11, to create a special municipality here. It was on this historical day that Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer introduced a bill in the legislature which would incorporate the valley as a municipality to be known as the Resort Municipality of Whistler" - but which residents will probably be allowed by vote to choose a final name (more debate?) at a later date.

The legislation legally has to have three readings in the house. but it is hoped that it will be passed and proclaimed within a monthand the first elections for mayor and four alderpersons will be held at the beginning of August. Once the municipality is incorporated, the current freeze on all development here will be lifted and the municipality can then take over planning and zoning functions.

Lorimer has estimated it will take $10 million to provide adequate sewers for the whole area, but these will be phased in so the costs will occur over several years. With only a permanent population of between 500-600 Lorimer stated to the press that he expects private developers and commercial interests will be the ones who will pay most for the sewer and water systems.

For those of us who wish to be fully briefed on the new Whistler Resort Act be sure to attend the annual spring meeting of the Alta Lake Ratepayers' Association to be held at II a.m. at the cafeteria. President Paul Burrows informs me that Gary Harkness, chief planning consultant in the government planning department and a senior civil servant in the municipal affairs department, will be attending this meeting. The meeting is purely non-political and these gentlemen have only agreed to attend to discuss with those present the mechanics of the future municipal status and how matters will all be worked out pertaining to this.

It should be a meeting well worth attending and with such an important issue at hand, which will be molding our future in this area, it is hoped all members and other residents who have not yet joined this organization will attend, to debate their various queries on the new municipal status. Don't forget — this Saturday, 11 a.m. at the cafeteria.

At the combined directors/general meeting of the Whistler Mountain Chamber of Commerce held last week at the Highland Lodge, president Pat Carleton gave details on the correspondence received to date.

A letter from the department of human resources, in reply to the chamber's requesting further information on the rumour that social welfare recipients were receiving extra allowance if they were dog owners, was read to the members which enclosed a copy of a press cutting from the Oct. 9, 1974 issue of the Province newspaper. This stated that persons on welfare in B.C. do not receive extra money to feed their pets, and the article goes on to read as follows: "The government would not think of forbidding welfare recipients to keep pets, provided they can afford to feed them from their regular welfare cheques, said Human Resources Minister Norman Levi. The minnister was commenting on a statement by an alderman in the Victoria suburb of Central Saanich. The alderman said he knew of a case in which the owner of a dog was receiving an extra $25 a month for its keep."

With further regard to the area's dog problem, a letter was writen to the Squamish Council requesting details on the possibility of this district having a dog pound and catcher and if, in any way, we eould utilize this service in Alta Lake. The letter received stated that this is only in the planning stage and that a referendum would be held by the District of Squamish in late June when one of the topics to be voted on was a dog pound and if accepted the primary and immediate needs of Squamish would be met first. After this if any spare time or facilities were available they would be prepared to enter into discussions with the chamber or regional district to provide contract dog control services.

On the matter of the various studies being carried out on the supposedly unstable ground at Garibaldi, a letter by the chamber was written to John Lisman, highway safety engineer, requesting a full up-to-date report by him and suggesting that if, in any way, the chamber could offer its services in possibly expediting completion of these studies it would gladly do so. The answer stated the matter grose when planning permission was refused for a particular subc.vision which was considered to be in a location of some hazard from the Barrier at Rubble Creek. He pointed out that the first appreciation of this hazard from the Barrier did not indicate any imminent or short term probability of danger to the highway.

It was more the case that the immediate area was not appropriate for long-term human settlement. The consequence of this disapproval had been to affect the values of properties in the vicinity, and it was last summer representatives from the Garibaldi Ratepayers spoke with Premier Barrett and Highways Minister Graham Lea, and were promised that a scientific enquiry would be made into this whole question. After a public meeting last December which Lisman chaired, a number of geologists had been approached to investigate the hazard to settlement in the Rubble Creek area. This panel, he points out, would be starting its work very shortly and a first report is expected at the end of summer.

A letter from the Pemberton Chamber of Commerce expressed their concern on the Suicide Hill section of Highway 99 and advised a petition was being carried out to forward to the department of highways. A list of 200 names has so far been collected and should be finalized shortly. Enclosed was also a copy letter forwarded to Highways Minister Graham Lea on the same subject. On the Suicide Hill matter a letter was received from John Lisman, safety engineer, requesting president Pat Carleton to inform the residents of Alta Lake who appear, from the newspapers, his letter states, to be concerned about nothing being done, that in fact the matter is receiving

Letters from both Ben Wosk and John Taylor had been received advising they would co-operate in the chamber's request to clean up various sections of their properties.

With two directors' seats becoming vacant, three members were put forward by the nominating committee to fill these vacancies. The three names were Doug McDonald, John Howells and Barney Bensch. A vote by ballot was taken by members present. On the secretary counting the votes, results were 11 votes for Doug McDonald, 10 votes for Barney Bensch and 9 votes for John Howells. The president congratulated new directors Bensch and McDonald to carry directors' duties for the balance of the year.

Jack Bright, chairman of the Whistler Area Information Centre, reported that the members had had a meeting on Sunday, May 25, to fully discuss the season's operation. It had been very successful, Bright reported, giving approximate number of bookings to May 8 of 664, approximate number of people going through the service was 2,656 and approximate rental income brought to the valley amounted to $42,932. Operating expenses had amounted to $7,459.92, which include office and furniture rental, dictaphone for telephone answering service, wages for management services, office expenses and utilities.

Council briefs

Ald, Cunningham asked for a meeting between council and the firemen and Mayor Stewart said all problems should be handled by the fire chief. If he cannot resolve them then the administrator should look at them with council meeting the firemen only as a last resort.

Aldermen Bryant and Jerwa said there seemed to be some implication by aldermen Cunningham and Makowichuk that there is some serious dissension in the fire department.

Council voted to go the fire chief - administrator - council route in any questions involving the fire department, with Cunningham and Makowichuk dissenting.

Ald. McLennan wanted to know if, in view of the number of vacant houses in the community, we should be considering some sort of subdivision freeze instead of building new homes.

Council felt this was unwarranted interference and construction was a matter of supply and demand.

Ald. Makowichuk suggested that council see if some grants are available from the Urban Redevelopment Fund, perhaps for the upgrading of Second

Ald. Bryant said he thought this was only for large scale projects such as razing or rebuilding but the administrator would look into the matter.

Ald. Makowichuk also wanted the debris on the property occupied by the unoccupied duplexes on Judd Road removed.

She also asked about the progress on securing rural mail delivery and was told that negotiations are in progress but it is a slow process.
