district's appointee to oversee the construction of the arena and civic centre, brought in a number of recommendations which could improve the heating and operation of the building.

In conjunction with Fire Chief Doug Orser, Building Inspector Bill Allen and arena operations manager Bryce Cunday, a number of suggestions were made which would aid in retaining heat in the building and involve very little cost compared to the improvements.

They suggested that insulation be placed in the section above the front door where there are gaps in the insulation and the same be done at the rear door. Spaces should be sealed. They recommend insulation on the wall of the mezzanine floor and the portion of the auditorium sections where meet which must also be sealed with insulation.

'It was also suggested that the two fire doors and the loadingdoor in the auditorium should be weather stripped.

Regarding the heating problem Dowad said consultations with a heating engineer brought forth a suggestion that another heating duct be provided into the Senior Lounge by extending an existing duct which may double the heat flow into the room.

Dowad reported that there are problems with the return of cool air and circulation of air in the lounge. Air gets up into the top of the room but does not move back. A similar situation exists in the Junior Lounge which will also be

A further check will be made next year to determine whether something can be done about the ventilation in the auditorium.

Council approved the expenditure of $2,000 for the suggested minor improvements.

Mayor thanks aldermen

Ald. Nick Candy, Ald. Rose Tatlow and Ald. Bill Manson stepped down from their positions on council at the last meeting November 20.

After Mayor Izzy Boscariol thanked the aldermen, Ald. Tatlow presented council, deputy clerk Bill Bloxham and administrator Chuck Schattenkirk with a rose.

The mayor's statement follows: It is a regretable moment for me as mayor. We have, by the people's choice, come to a parting of the ways for some of the aldermen who for the past several years have worked on various programs and projects in the district, all for the good of our community.

You have given your time willingly because you have the community as a whole in your hearts. I know that many hours were put in by you beyond the call of your position as aldermen at a great personal expense. Only those in your position know the major frustrations that one must overcome in order to make things happen for the good of our community.

For this as your mayor I would like to say thank you.

Alderman Candy, thank you. As a memento of your term as alderman, please take your name plate as you leave. Maybe you will be asked by the people to return.

New plant proposed near mill

A new plant to prepare bark for use as a bonding agent in the manufacture of plywood, will be built across the tracks from the Weldwood Empire Lumber plant. The new plant, which will employ sixteen men, will be built on property acquired from B.J. Keeley between the railway tracks and

George Legg, project manager for the company, said the raw material will be coming by from the Weldwood plant, and the process will consist of removing water from the bark using rotary dryers. Some of the bark will be used in the burner but he stressed that the process is a low temperature one and all that would come out of the stacks would be low temperature steam.

The material, once dried, will be bagged and trucked to the plywood plant in another part of the province. Legg said there

Few Christmas trees available in Squamish

As a follow up to last week's article on Christmas tree cutting in the Squamish area, the B.C. forest Service advises that tree cutting is not prohibited on B.C. Hydro rights-of-way. There just aren't any trees there to cut.

It does want it made clear that these rights-of-way have just recently been cleared by the B.C. Hydro and there are perhaps only a few trees available and these in difficult or almost inaccesible places.

Other alternatives for Christmas trees would be to obtain them from private lands with the owner's consent or from licensed Christmas tree farms.

Williams named as Attorney-General

In the recent cabinet shuffle in Victoria, the Hon. L. Allan Williams, MLA for West Vancouver-Howe Sound, was transferred from the position of minister of labour to the Attorney-General.

Williams, a lawyer, has long eyed the A-G's post and will welcome the challenges in his new position. His term as minister of labour was outstanding and he has been credited as being one of the ablest ministers in the cabinet. His constituents will expect him to do as outstanding a job in his new office as he did in the last.

A single vehicle accident at about 10 a.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 21 claimed the life of the driver when the vehicle left the roadway and hit the rock face at speeds estimated at 65 miles an hour.

similar plants at Eugene, Ore., and at Centralia, Wash. Ald. N.R. Barr asked that the administration fully examine the project and get the advice on the method of operation and the acceptance by other communities of the similar projects.

Ald. Tatlow said she could remember when Weldwood saidthere would be "just a puff of white smoke on Monday morning" and several years later people discovered there was a lot more to a burner than just white smoke.

The question of the plant being built on the north side of the tracks and the access road to it had led to a suggestion that the property being purchased from B.J. Keeley by A J Forest Products might be served by the road leading to the plant site but Legg said a road along the railway adjacent to their site would interfere with the movement of equipment. around their plant.

Council had earlier discovered that an access road to the property could not be built on the south side of the tracks as Weldwood planned further expansion in that

However under the terms of the agreement with the property owner at the time the original agreement regarding subdivision was made, the new owners will be responsible for the road and it will not be a public road but only for their own use.

By ROSE TATLOW

Whistler Village is a new concept in ski destination areas; one which is taking the best from facets to create something different which will be a destination area for tourists both summer and

"The Whistler area was known as a summer resort long before it became a ski area," Mayor Pat Carleton said as we discussed the sheathed pillars in the pub new concept in his office at the resort municipality, whose windows look out on the activity concentrated on construction of the town core.

While we are better known as a ski area," Carleton added, "we are hoping that we can make people realize that we have a great deal to offer in the summer as million dollar development by well. We'll have to have a year Nello Budson, with Neil Roberts round appeal in order to make the village viable."

cannot have a successful business on only four months out of a year. However, he pointed out that last summer the business community had enjoyed a very successful season with many visitors.

"We must have a year round appeal,' Carleton said, "and some of the factors which will make it appealing to the summer trade are the fact that Whistler will have the only international ice surface where skating can be done to international standards; will have the only arena which will seat 2500 people, swimming pools attached to every development area, only destination resort area with between fifty and sixty tennis courts and the only one with an 18 hole course."

Carleton added that Whistler is noping to become the athletic training centre for Canada.

That's a pretty ambitious pro- spot gram but the start they have made on implementing it is equally ambitious. Sparked with funding from the private sector, an estimated $30 million worth of building is under way this year, skating area will convert into four with sixty million anticipated in 1980 and a further $30 million the golf clubhouse will convert into a following year.

"We were supposed to get under way at the beginning of April," Carleton said, "but the actual building didn't start till North American and European Aug. 1. The parking garage, ski villages and adapting these which lies under the main plaza, and will hold 350 cars, has been held up and won't be ready for occupancy in December.'

Buildings now under construction in the first phase are the 72 room Blackcomb Lodge, a $5 million building whose copperreflected the sun as we passed by; the $1.3 million professional building which will house a drug store, dentist offices, condominiums and a cabaret being built by Dave Stewart, Albert Gerry, and Doctors L.J. In fact, Edgar Bissett, a walking advertisement for gray power, did not even commence employment with Rayonier till after the customary retirement age for workers.

Bissett came to Woodfibre as mill physician in 1962. "I came to relieve the regular doctor who went on a 30 day vacation," he said, "and at this point I don't think he's coming back."

At the time Doc Bissett went to Woodfibre there were almost 2,000 residents. He is proud of the ability he had to serve them as a "retired" doctor already past 70.

Following the closing of the Woodfibre townsite in the early seventies and the subsequent relocation of residents to nearby Squamish, Bissett remained at the mill and diversified his services.

"I now look after emergencies and do the biology," he said pointing toward two microscopes near the front windows of his house.

"I had studied aquatic biology in my public health courses, but I was trained in fresh water biology," Bissett said. "When I came here I became interested in marine biology.'

During his first years as Woodfibre's full-time physician, he studied books on marine biology and learned to identify salt water life forms. Eventually he was asked to help identify and enumerate marine organisms as part of the mill's program to maintain water quality in Howe Sound.

Bissett's current energy at 90 years of age represents a lifelong enthusiasm which started during

It will be built in two phases, with the first phase of 150 rooms ready by the end of next year. It will also contain full recreation and convention facilities. The se-

Carleton said there are eight major packages in the second phase and he hoped the response to these will be as great as those to the first phase where 103 responses were received for twelve packages. Returns for the second phase should be in by Dec. 7th.

In response to a question about the effect of the increased interest rates, he said he did not think the effect of these would be felt yet.

Another query about the 45 days occupancy for those who own the buildings and have a condominium unit in it was discussed and he said he did not think it would affect the selling of packages in the second phase.

Carleton added that employee housing is a problem, and one that will have to be faced.

"We hope to have some employee housing in place by this time next year," he said, "and we "But the main problem in providing employee housing is land values," he pointed out. "Land here is too costly to use for employee housing so we will have to try to find some cheaper land close by.' He said he didn't want Whistler to experience the same problems Vail and Aspen did where 'help wanted' signs are everywhere because there isn't enough housing for employees. "But we're lucky," he said

"We're facing it now, not ten years down the line like they did." In a conducted tour Carleton showed me most of the developments now under way and drove up the highway to Lorimer Road where he pointed out the new B.C. Tel building which is concealed in the trees alongside the road. "I'm really pleased with this," he said, "because we asked them to design something that would fit in with our community and this is what they came up with. It will be the most modern telephone exchange in Canada.

While recreation will be the main thrust for development at Whistler with its hotels and associated amenities, the recreation vehicle owner has now been forgotten and an RV park is being planned for the area near the entrance to Whistler, in the vicinity of Function Junction.

This is also near the location of Whistler's proposed industrial park, not for the area west of the railway tracks in the vicinity of Malloch and Moseley logging

But when I was there last week, industrial parks and recreation vehicles were not the main things Carleton was concerned with.

He was worrying about getting the construction done as soon as possible and being ready to open on time. And, like everyone else at Whistler, he was looking for snow but also happy that it had held off as long as it had.

"We would have liked to have the roofs on the buildings before it snowed," Carleton said. "But we need the snow for the winter season. We were scheduled to open this weekend but decided not tq. Hopefully it will come soon.'

There have been many comments made by Many public bodies hold "in camera" matters of personnel, wages for specific individuals and matters pertaining to some proposed development whose future might be ple who were so your ferous regarding meetings. of council stand on the matter of the hospitale

There was a time when the press was invited to the hospital board meetings and they were duly recorded. However this lapsed during the years and when Ralph Ross and Applin-Flouch were board chairman and secretary the presence of the press was discouraged. Then, if meetings were attended, after a protest by one of the board members, any reference was to be vetoed, thus negating any opportunity of having an independent report.

If reports are to be scrutinized and only what the board wants to see in the press permitted to be published, then there is very little use going to a meeting as an independent report cannot be made, but the press only parrots the official line.

In the past few weeks criticism has been aimed at the hospital board because of the belief that a decision has been made to put the hospital at the former RCMP site. The fact the public believes this is not the fault of anyone but the board, which until this week, in a letter to the editor, has never seen fit to make any statement concerning the selected

Reports have been made to council, but contrary to the letter, they have been very sketchy, and have indicated that the RCMP site was the chosen one. At least it was the one which was actively investigated and in the absence of any reference to any other site, how could anyone realize that others were being considered or would be considered.

We regret the lack of information about the site selection; we regret the misinformation the hospital board claims is being bandied about, but we feel the onus rests on the board which could have alleviated the entire problem if it had been more open about it.

The decision of former Prime Minister by reporters and the opposition, but always Canadians have a tendency to be rather gray and dull, but in Pierre Trudeau, the swinging and skiing prime minister, the devoted father, the brilliant wordsmith, the man whose greatness was evident in his retirement speech, and the man who seemingly so unemotional, showed his emotions when he bid farewell to his caucus, we will have lost some of the color from our politics.

Prime Minister Joe Clark is a solemn, serious, young man; he will undoubtedly do an excellent job as the leader of our country, but in the last few months Canada has lost two of the figures who made its parliament

We shall be sorry to see him step down and become a private member. But even there he may still bring the odd flash of

We shall not see his like again. There are

Also if you were a business. reopardized it information was made person planning to rome here perhaps you ivaliable too soon, we wonder where the peo- ... would like to test the feelings of council towards your project before it became public knowledge if council gave a tentative approval then you could explore it further. If it didn't, why bother? --

School hoards and regional districts also use these meetings for the same reasons. So do hospital boards. But any general meeting of a an elected public body should be open to the public and the public should be welcome.

Perhaps if the hospital board had realized this it would not have to be making explanations today.

The public is concerned about the siting of the hospital. After all, it will be using it. And contrary to comments, the public does know the facility will include acute care, and does know the intermediate care hospital with another 30 beds proposed, will be built alongside of it, if possible, so they can share some of the same facilities.

No one objects to this. What they object to is the possible siting of it in an area which may prove to be a costly one in which to build it, and they question the feasibility of intermediate care patients walking to the downtown area . . . or to quote the letter the

We still think there are more suitable places for a hospital. Possibly the present site, if fully explored might have enough property with parking under the power line. Or the site in Brackendale, which speaking to people in general, seems to be the site most favored by the general public. Incidentally that's the one we prefer.

But we feel all this controversy could have been prevented if the board had been more open and if people had been made aware of what was going on. A misinformed or uninformed public is an angry one and if the Hospital Society really wants to know what is going on, members can call for a special meeting.

The end of an era

Trudeau to resign as leader of the Liberal Party means the end of an era in Canadian politics. Whether one agreed with him or not, it was impossible to be neutral concern-

Many young people cannot remember any other prime minister and to those of us who can, he was different. Not the solemn, dignified Mike Pearson; the oratorical John Diefenbaker and certainly not the father figure of Louis St. Laurent. And a far cry from that other unusual Liberal prime minister, the introverted Mackenzie King.

There was a flamboyance about Trudeau that couldn't fail to attract you even if you didn't like the man; you could appreciate his fine style in speaking; his grace under pressure as shown in the estrangement between himself and his wife; his courage in the face of the FLQ crisis and his abiding belief in the unity of Canada.

Sometimes we wondered if he was going about it in the right way; sometimes we deplored his testiness when he was badgered very few Pierre Trudeaus in Canada.

Thanks to students

Students at Howe Sound Secondary School should be thanked for the work they did in rebulbing and preparing the street decorations before they were put in place last week

These were the decorations which were made at the Brackendale Junior Secondary School last year and students at that school wound the strings of bulbs around the fixtures to create the attractive street decorations.

This year the students at Howe Sound Secondary are making some fixtures for the small shopping areas at Brackendale, Eagle Lights have been provided for the Highlands Mall and they will create their own display with the strings they have received.

It is gratifying to see the students take part in this community activity. It will add to the decorations during the Christmas season and is a valuable contribution to the community.

We are sure that we speak for everyone when we thank the teachers and the students for taking part in this activity which will add color and gaiety to the main street and some of the shopping areas.

Run and Valleycliffe and these will hopefully be installed in the near future.

A visit to Whistler has to be mind boggling to one who remembers going up to Alta Lake as it was called then, about 30 years ago. Those were the days when Hillorest Lodge and Rainbow-Lodge-were the "in" places and the area was only active in the summer time with just a dev people there in winter.

There was no road along the west side of the take in those dayer just a logging road that came up from the present site of the Malloch and Moseley logging camp and wound up towards Rambow Mountain. The east side of the lake was a maze of logging roads as well but hardly anyone ever used them. The only real access was by train and to get to the other side of the lake you walked the trail or used a boat.

Those were the days when guests at the resorts enjoyed quiet activities such as swimming and hiking, with perhaps the odd evening excitement of being towed around the lake on a raft behind a power boat and using it as your base for swimming. Sometimes a guest would bring along a harminica and there would be music and

It was a quiet time with games and dancing in the evenings or just a quiet chat in front of the fireplace. Of course there was a lot of visiting to and from the cabins but there was no frenzied activity like there is today.

Those were the days when Jordan's Lodge was just a small log house in the field at Alpha Lake and everything behind it was logged off country rising up to the peak of Whistler Mountain, or London Mountain as it was called in earlier times.

Last week I went uip to see the changes being wrought as Whistler is being developed into an international destination resort, with ski lifts and many runs on two mountains; hotels, stores, a shopping condominiums, recreational or sports, centre, golf coorse, swimming pools and tennis courts with every hotel and just about everything you could imagine to find in any ultra-modern ski ot summer respire

Mayor Pat Carleton was quick to point out that Whistler is now recognized as any international calling ski resort and will be one of the linest it not the linest in North-America. At originally was a summer resort and this is the image they are going aften again.

He said the area has matchless scenery, places to go and things to do and they plan to make a serious bid for miniconventions or conferences. With lots of sports activities and with many amenities for both those who attend the conferences in a business capacity and the wives who accompany them, he is sure there will be lots for people to do. He suggested that Squamish could receive some of the spin-off from these summer activities as shopping tours could be arranged to the Squamish-area so the ladies would have something to do while the men were busy at the business ses-

But to get back to the changes. There are condominiums and houses rising in all sorts of places where one would never expect them and the site of the former parking lot and garbage dump are now being developed as the village centre.

The concept of runs funnelling into the village centre with covered walks, malls and interconnected buildings so visitors can stay out of the rain is an attractive one. From the main road leading into the centre, from the plaza and from almost any portion of the village the magnificent mountains which will provide the ski runs can be seen.

When I was there last week a light. prinkling of snow on the runs on Blackcomb Mountaiun and on the Olympic Run presaged the weather to come and he ski conditions which would be bringing up to 20,000 people here on a busy weekend when both mountains are ready for the skiers.

 We have been familiar with the settle ment around the foot of the lift with its ski shop, restaurant and lift offices. But now the Whistler Creek Lodge is rising right beside the highway and additional building is going on beside the lake. Up near the site of the Whistler Village there are houses, chalets, condominiums and dozens of other buildings under conevery direction. I can remember walking along the logging roads on my way to Lost Lake, and picking high bush cranberries where the village centre is now being built. A dyke surrounds the area to prevent flooding by Fitzsimmons Creek and a road angling off struction with new roads heading off in

up the mountain to the higher benches. A day parking lot is being built near the village centre and across the road where the rock crushing plant is now a large parking lot with trees and a screen of trees will be built.

Underground parking beneath the village centre will provide parking for 350 cars and winding through it is like visiting the catacombs. Carleton said the workmen enjoyed the lot in the summer, it was a perfect place to eat lunch because it was so nice and cool!

When you come out from the parking there in front of you are the ski slopes and the mountains. Beauiful! Railway ties, weathered and brown, are being used to hold back the edges of terraces and these will be planted with evergreens and shrubs to add a softening effect to the scene. in Telemark Village there is an ambience not often found in a condominium development. Perhaps it is because it is small and not too large and sprawly but I' thought that if I had to dive in a condominium (and I don't think I would like to) I would prefer it to any other a

The new buildings are starting to take shape and while Carleton was sorry that they would not be tooled before the winter weather came, it was fascinating to see how massive some of them will be. The pub at the corner of the development which is part of the hotel in the Village Centre, will be beautiful with its copperpillars and open structure.

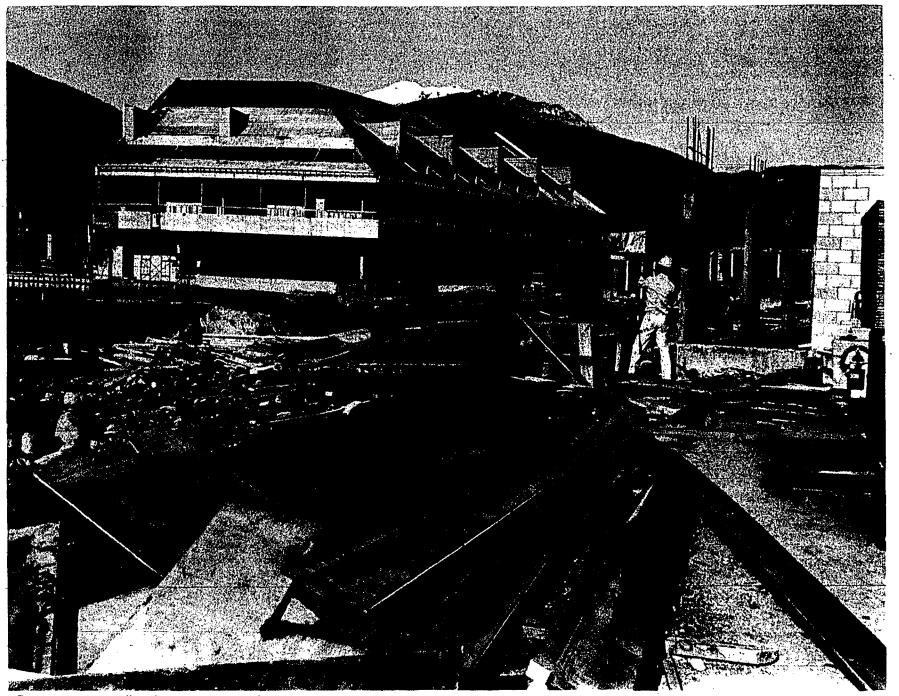

Carleton said there will be discos, but to prevent them from being an annoyance to those who do not patronize them, they will be underground and will not be noisy or distracting to quieter patrons.

Wonder what Myrtle Philip thinks of the development taking place there now. When she first saw the valley over 60 years ago it must have been magnificent in its pristine beauty, almost untouched by

Today there are many changes being made but as I drove home and left the sunshine at Whistler behind me, clouds were looming up from the south but the Tantalus Range was edged in jcy majesty against the leaden sky.

Things may change in the lowlands where man builds his puny edifices but the mountains remain the same, cold and austere, icy and beautiful.

Whistler's development will bring many more people to this area and may they all come to love and appreciate the mountains and the beauty of the country as much as many of those of us who live here

Construction was well under way on some of the buildings in the town core at Whistler when this picture was taken. The scene is changing every day with buildings rising at a rapid rate. The underground parking beneath these buildings is now in place and additional parking will be provided on the outskirts of the village centre where it can be concealed.

WONDERLEARNING

It will be a great day for education when specialty groups stop making surveys and reports and turn their attention to the re-introduction of basic education and discipline into schools.

The latest bit of inane lobbying is contained in what The Province describes as "Arts and Education in British Columbia, a report prepared by the B.C. Committee on Arts and Education for the National Inquiry into Arts and Education carried out by the Canadian Conference of the Arts"

The title itself foreshadows the silliness of the content which is, in effect, to urge that schools aim for 'esthetic fitness' in the 1980s. Except for the progressive quality of the spelling, one can scarcely quarrel with an aim so grandly stated and so devoid of meaning. The choice of the word 'fitness', however, hints at a campaign to give 'the arts' as much importance as physical education in the school curriculum. It could be the echo of sentiments expressed recently in an article in an international daily newspaper denouncing athletics as a waste of time and an encouragement of violence. It could also be paying the way for a Vancouver educator who wants to address parent groups on the necessity of inflicting musical and dramatic artists onto the schools of the province, with or without the invitation of those in charge of curricula and timetables. If the aim of the arts lobbyists is to encourage an appreciation of the arts, that is laudable enough. Certainly students who are not-introduced to music or drama in high school are not getting as full an education as might be desirable especially when leisure threatens to become something of a burden in the future. But if it is meant to suggest that sports are deliberately given greater attention than are the arts, then either the survey has been onesided or Howe Sound Secondary School is unique in the

In the local high school, there is every opportunity for students to study theatre, music; and art, and to take part in public performances or exhibitions in all three fields. Theatre and art are both electives which are accepted as graduation requirements. Band is offered as an optional subject in the lower grades and band practice and instruction are retained as extra curricular activities for those who want to continue with music in the higher

The drama class prepares and presents one major production and several smaller ones each year, and the band performs in school festivals throughout the lower mainland and occasionally on the island. Nobody is excluded from participation in any such performances even though he is taking a heavy academic load.

As for art, the displays during each of the past two years at Howe Sound Secondary give a very definite lie to any suggestions that the subject is neglected.

Howe Sound has also established a very high reputation for its achievements in competitive sports. But surely directed athletics is an art, too, and need not be regarded as something which detracts from artistic appreciation.

Though, as with other arts, fundamental theory may be taught during regular class time, it is the after-hour and purely voluntary practice that brings the satisfaction, the accomplishment, and the appreciation.

From 7:30 in the morning until six o'clock at night, on almost any day of the week, enthusiastic artists, whether athletes, theatre artists, musicians, or painters, are working at Howe Sound with their teachers to perfect their achievements in their respective fields. They are, of their own accord and with teacher encouragement, developing and expressing their appreciation of what art is all about.

Physical education, as distinct from competitive sports, is on the other hand, a compulsory subject for graduation. Physical fitness as a fad has been with us for a long time and no doubt has its lobby in the department of education. But the enthusiasm of the athletes voluntarily training for competitive sports is matched and probably overshadowed by the reluctance of those students who take P.E. because they have to have it to graduate. Military discipline and a non-stop programme of calisthenics might keep a class attentive and impose some sort of physical fitness on the unwilling students. But even if such an obviously sensible programme were permitted in this age of student indolence, it is doubtful if it would do anything to develop in them any great appreciation for their physical state, no matter how fit.

Nor is anyone - arts lobbyists notwithstanding likely to have any more success in developing en masse an appreciation of music or drama by forcing it on students. An artist might be brought in to perform in the school. Attendance might be made voluntary. With regular class work as the alternative, an audience would be assured. There would then be coughing, cuddling, moving about, trips to the washroom, slamming of doors and the waving about of arms to show watchless friends how much longer the show would have to be endured.

But mass appreciation? Bernard Shaw's Eliza has the answer to that one: "Not bloody likely."

Interest in the arts will never be cultivated with a sledge-hammer. Interested teachers may, on occason, find a spark of interest and develop it in individual students. If, however, through interference from outside sources, teachers are forced to impose some sort of aestheticfitness on a completely unresponsive group of pupils, they will achieve nothing but disillusionment for themselves, for serious students, and for the unfortunate artists who play to captive audiences.

Basics, which the arts types have denounced as getting in the way of artistic appreciation, do lend themselves to group teaching, and their very nature demands that they be taught thoroughly, completely, and unequivocably if a student is to cope with the world outside his home and family. When these basics have been taught, or while they are being taught, the way is opened for the development, subtly and individually, of aesthetic appreciation. Lobbyists who appreciate the arts more than the ego should know that.

Editor, The Times:

With new members on our municipal council it is to be hoped that they will be able to carry duttheir aims to make Squamish a better place in which to live. Their greatest distillusionment will come from the bureaucracy of the senior gavernments whose procrastination can be extremely frustrating.

As the newcomers face two complishments of the past two years may be in order as proof of the dedication to the community of those in office. In that time what has been the result of the present council's efforts?

1. The Industrial Park is ready for businesses which should be moving in early in the new year. Access from Highway 99 to the Park has given residents of Dentville and Wilson Crescent the assurance that there will be no traffic disruption in their areas.

2. A new high pressure water main has been installed to serve the Industrial Park and the BCR. This line will bring income to the municipal coffers from the BCR.

. 3. The Tri-service building on Tantalus Way housing the Fire Department, RCMP and Ambulance Service is centrally located and has ready access to Highway 29. The Municipality receives income from both RCMP and the Provincial Ambulance Service.

4. The present council, in conjunction with industry, has been reviewing the waterfront facilities in the hope of making room for additional industry while still giving adequate protection to the fish runs.

5. A contract for the development of the new garbage dump in the Cheekye Fan has been awarded and work on this project should begin immediately.

6. Under plans for the further development of the tourist potential of the area studies of additional routes between Squamish and Vancouver's North Shore have been undertaken. It is hoped that some arrangement can be arrived at which will result in a road through the Capilano Watershed.

7. With the development of Britannia Beach and the possibility of employees looking for homes in Squamish, members of council have been studying the possibility of amalgamation with Britannia Beach.

This is a brief resume of the accomplishments and ongoing projects of the present council. We now look forward to equal efforts and results from the incoming Interested citizens should, by all means, make concerted efforts to attend the regular council meetings which are always open to the public. Certainly committee meetings and in camera meetings are not open to the general public. This is normal practice in the business world and many a municipality is big business.

The final words are an expression of gratitude to the outgoing members of council as well as to those aldermen whose terms have another year to run. They are to be commended for the work they have done on behalf of their fellow residents. Public servants toil long and hard and receive little thanks for their services.

And good luck to the incoming members; may they do as well! "Fair Play"

Sometimes I wonder when the past, present and future mayor and aldermen start to realize that they are elected and paid by the public and taxpayers and have to work and manage things for the "general" public and not looking for their own personal gain and favors for a small selected clique. The last few elections, specially the last one, showed that the general public is getting more and more aware what is going on and cannot be hoodwinked that easy any more. Only people which have something to hide like to keep the public uninformed or misinformed. This goes for, in camera meetings and for the press also. I hope now that the editors of our (big town paper) have more time since she is no more on council to give unmuzzled and unbiased reports of council meetings. H. Scherer

In order to redress this unfortunate situation, the Board of Trustees of the Squamish Hospital Society decided at a special meeting, held on Tuesday, Nov. 20, 1979, to issue the following statement of the facts pertaining at this time:

In doing so, the Board fully recognizes that they are in some degree responsible for the current misunderstandings and misinfor--mation inasmuch as the board should have kept the public better informed as to the facts.

First of all, it is not a hospital that is being planned but, in keeping with changing needs, escalating costs, the very marked changes and projected changes to the age structure of the population, and the absolute necessity to extract the maximum value for every dollar spent, a joint health care facility.

This facility will provide three types of care: acute, extended and intermediate. Acute care is the basic hospital care for those sick or injured persons who require hospitalization. Extended care involves care over a longer period of time, for those who require rehabilitative treatment, such as physiotherapy. Intermediate care is a residential care for those who, by reason of age or condition require qualified medical supervi-

Twp. members were from the Board of the Intermediate Care Society and two from the Board of the Squamish Hospital Society. Ten possible sites were carefully examined, including the site of the current facility, and reported to the parent boards and to the Health Ministry. This process took-a great deal of time, travel and hard work by the steering committee. Time also generated by the mandatory involvement of the civil servants in the various sub-departments of the Health Ministry. Anyone who has been involved with any level of government bureaucracy will well appreciate that it takes time. For the record, the many reports made by this steering committee have been made public at both annual meetings of both societies, two or three open municipal council meetings, and of course, invariably to the boards of both societies.

Naturally, the medical, nursing and support staff have also produced a great deal of valuable input. However, it must be firmly understood, that the final responsibility rests with the boards of the hospital and Intermediate Care Societies, subject of course to ministerial approval.

This eliminating site selection exercise has now finally narrowed down to the site, called for convenience, the RCMP site. However, final studies such as site preparation costs, cost of servicing with

All interested persons, whether they are members of these societies or not, will be very welcome to attend and ask any questions they may wish.

It is also the firm intention of the Hospital Board to issue further statements as to the progression of the planning for this proposed-Joint-Health-Care facility. For and on behalf of the Squamish Hospital Board, Another is that staff and personnel are not willing to move to Charlottetown and it is difficult to recruit well qualified people who will go there.

The Legion wants the Canadian Pension Commission to remain in Ottawa, so it can function as a viable department on its own, even if the total move of the department is to the Prince Edward Island capital.

The Legion accepts the necesity to create jobs in P.E.I. but not by sacrificing the interests of disabled veterans and their dependents.

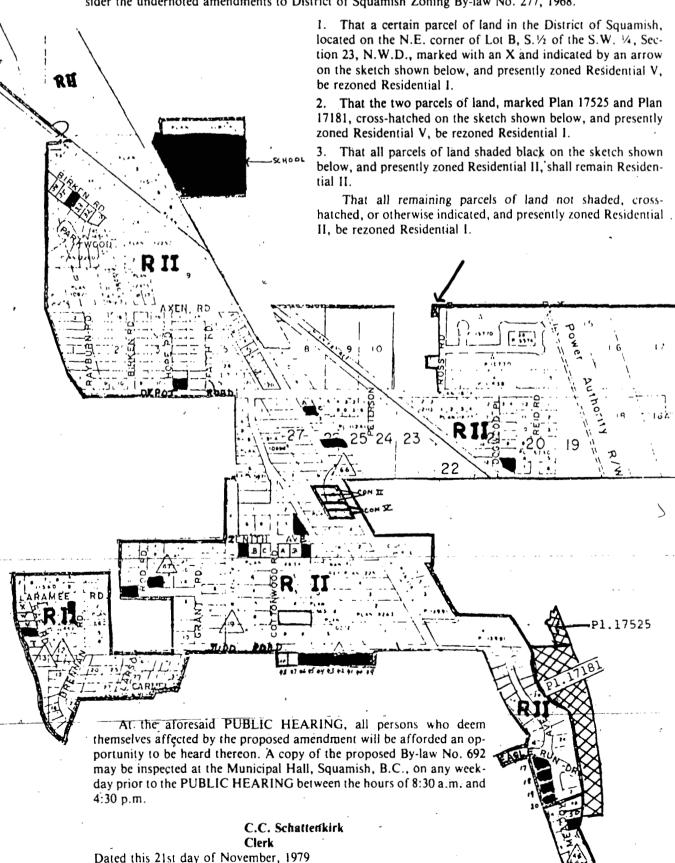

The Legion urges every member who feels the commission should remain in Ottawa to send a letter of protest to Prime Minister Joe clark, and local members are being urged to do so.

The master bantam, junior and senior tournament was held at the bowling alley Sunday. Nov. 18. This is the only tournament during the season where the instructors bowl with the children. Teams comprise one girl, one boy and an instructor.

It was enjoyed by the children, parents and instructors, although they were very tired by the end of the day. The instructors had to bowl nine games in a row to cover all three age groups.

Congratulations to Tess Brennan whose teams made a clean sweep of all three divisions.

Bantams: Julie Roberts, Mark Morris and Tess Brennan had + 230 pins over average. Juniors: Polly Knox, Duane

The Timbers gradually improved and struck back. Bobby Alexander chased a long free kick from Andy Dawson in the goal mouth and slid the ball under the advancing goalkeeper into the net for

In the second half, the Timbers creased the pressure and im proved the teamwork:

The wingers were more effective in moving the ball, down the sidelines but were unlucky on a number of pecasions with halfs crossing into the goal area.

Then Flavio Vergara overlapped with right winger Jim Dinwoodle. Dinwoodle cut into the centre and met. Vergara's kneehigh return cross at the edge of the penalty area to volley it first-time into the net. The hard curving shot rose into the top left corner, giving the goalkeeper no chance.

Steve Higham, making a gradual comeback from a forced layoff, was substituted late in the period. Several breaks by Higham, from the halfback positon, had caused some panic in the Burdetts' defence.

Finally, Vergara, who again combined with Dinwoodie on the right, passed the ball onto Higham who broke into the penal-

He shot on the run to score the third and winning goal for the Timbers.

The Timbers can be proud of their stamina for this win, to pull back from a 0-2 goal deficiency and end up 3-2 winners.

Against a top of the division team, this is no mean achievement. Well done, Timbers.

Ball tournament this weekend

Basketball at the elementary level is in full swing again with the girls' teams playing a noncompetitive league schedule and the boys' teams participating in the Tip-Off Tournament at Howe Sound Secondary Friday evening.

Four local teams, two from Mamquam and one each from Squamish and Stawamus, as well as last year's number two North Vancouver team, Ridgeway, will compete in the informal tournament. No trophies or pennants will be awarded — just hot dogs and juice to each team.

Mamquam Seniors Stawamus, finalists in last year's Little Chief Tournament, will open play at 3:30 p.m. Games will continue until about 8:30.

Last week, ten points in the second quarter by Neil Wippich helped spur Mamquam to a 38-16 victory over Ridgeway in North Mamquam is hoping their shooting this year will benefit the construction of the new hospital. Over Christmas, and in January, the players are going to be out in the community asking for pledges of "Pennies for Points". Squamish citizens will be asked to pledge from one cent and up for each point scored by Mamquam in the Powell River Invitational (Feb. 1-2) and the local Little Chief Invitational (Feb. 15-16) tournaments.

'We are hoping to raise a total of $10 per point," said coach Mike Williams. "It'd give the kids a kick to know they were raising $20 for the hospital each time they scored a basket."

Canadars Post Office, as ecently as 15 years ago, was proudly humbered among the best and most efficient of the world's postal services: A leading member of the Universal Postal Union (UPU). Canade hosted the UPUcongress a little over 20 years ago, in Ottawa. The government department behind our postal services worked hard to maintain the high standards we enjoyed in this

Then came trouble, and more trouble. By the mid-1960s we had gotten used to the almost annual strikes, usually at Christmastime. Since then the whole thing has gone steadily downhill in services while the price of a stamp climbed periodically from a nickel to three-and-a-half times that amount. About ten years ago, magazines, small newspapers and non-commercial periodicals were hit with a 1400 percent hike in postal rates. That's right: Fourteen Hundred Percent!!!

Inside the post offices across the nation, bitterness, distrust, friction and disagreements just short of violence got in the way of ordinary people's personal mail, friendly letters and cheques they depended upon receiving. Inside workers had their union, and carriers (mailmen or posties or mailpersons) had theirs. Management had the department and the government behind it.

You know the history, so we don't have to go into a lot of scowling details here. Just let it be said that a great many small businessmen were ruined and a fair number of parcels marked FRAGILE were kicked about like footballs. We also lost some good little magazines and, in fact, the postal workers' own newspaper buckled under the increased costs of mailing and the poor service given by workers who hit back at their big boss (the gov't) in the only way they could.

They would "work to rule" and that meant none of the longstanding shortcuts could be applied to speed up handling and delivery, particularly of business mail. One exception was the handling of old age pension cheques, family allowance cheques, unemployment insurance cheques and any other government-issued cheques.

People were saying things like, "They ought to mail those post office guys THEIR cheques!!!"

Even the counting of post office unionists' strike votes got fouled up more than once because the ballots had to be mailed in from all over Canada!

Most people tend to blame the Canadian Union of Postal Workers for all the problems in Canada Post. The journalists who jumped on this bandwagon rode it all the way down to the bottom line, hounding the CUPW but never blaming the governments of the day or the managers in the post offices from coast to coast, to coast. (We've three).

One of the real reasons for the postal problems in the mid-60s was the dramatic increase in the volume of mail handled in our post offices. So, to handle it, machines and computers and other forms of automation were brought onto the scene.

Traditionally, labor hates and/or fears any machine that does more than the work of one human and, back in the 1950s and on a small scale even earlier, automation loomed as the big threat of the future for labor unions. Machines replace manpower on so grand a scale that for each device installed, anywhere from ten to a hundred people's jobs went right down the old tubes.

We're still not rid of all our postal problems. But I know my good friend and colleague, the Hon. John Fraser, is doing his utmost as Postmaster General to reach down into and throughout the innards of the post office and get managers, inside workers and carriers thinking "pride" and 'service' and "value for money paid" by the customers, you and me and all Canadians who lick stamps and pop mail into red boxes on their street corners. Not forgetting, of course, to use the Postal Code — what our friends to the south call The Zip.

Some postal clerks here in Ottawa have told us nobody even looks at the postal codes. I can believe that, since a friend who lives in Nepean, Ont., had his mail come via Nippissing, Ont.; and the postal codes for these two communities aren't really similar

One thing I'd like to see is a cutback or a clamping down on "junk" mail. I get tons of it, as you can imagine, between Williams Lake (my home) and our Ottawa apartment, and even in the Hill offices. Everybody gets stuff in the mail they don't need or want.

We all knew Edmonton was going to win the Grey Cup now didn't we? I don't think we thought Montreal would give them such a run for their money but they did and it was an excellent game except in the fourth quarter when Edmonton decided to "keep it on the ground" and we weren't treated to any more-Warren Moon passes. Good game or not - it would be father nice if next year — any two other teams (like B.C. and Toronto!) could make it to the final.

The half time show was a good one too and I really liked the new 1 song written by Roger Doucette. He sang "For Rights and Liberty" to the large crowd and television audience.

If you didn't read the story of D'Arcy Ferguson of Pemberton in the Citizen last week, you should. It is a heartwarming story of how this young 12 year old nearly fatally wounded with a bullet in his head fought back against incredible odds to make the recovery he has. As he was left paralyzed on the right side he had to be retrained and that included learning to use his left hand. There's more to the story so please make sure you read it. Good luck D'Arcy in your future endeavours - with your determination you will reach high goals.

Mickie Leah Park and Ross Gilmour exchange rings and vows in front of the altar at Squamish United Church on Saturday, November 10, at 4:30 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clancy Park of Prince George while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gilmour of Squamish.

The church was decorated with white gladiolus and blue carnations and Mary McCulloch played the wedding music.

The petite bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, chose a gown of white satin with scoop neck and lace on the bodice and sleeves. A lace train fanned out behind her as she walked down the aisle and she wore a wide brimmed lacy white hat with floating satin streamers at the back. The bride carried a bouquet of red roses with tiny rosebuds on streamers and wore her mother's wedding ring and sister's wedding band.

Her attendants, her sister Kathy Roberts as matron of honor and Lori Perry of Prince George, as bridesmaid, were identically gowned in dresses of blue polyester silk with blue and dusky pink roses with white printed on it. They carried bouquets of blue and white forget-menots and white baby's breath.

Alan Woods was the best man and ushers were Randy and Kevin Gilmour, brothers of the groom, and the bride's brother, James Park of Prince George.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Park chose a pale blue polyester full length gown with fur stole and yellow carnation corsage while the groom's mother wore a pink formal with blue flowers and blue velvet blazer with matching handbag. Her corsage was of burgundy carnations.

A reception at the Chieftain Hotel followed the ceremony. The bride and groom met the guests as they came into the reception room. White gladiolus and blue carnations provided the floral decor and the bride's table was centred with the wedding cake, baked and iced by Mrs. Lillian Gatzke.

Bill Rosenburg, a cousin of the groom from Chilliwack, was master of ceremonies and Paul Lingstrom of Nanaimo, a long time friend of the bride's family, proposed the toast to the bride.

Before leaving the guests, the bride donned an off-white midcalf dress and three-quarter length leather coat.

Her half-length veil matched her gown and fell from a headpiece of baby yellow roses with white stephanotis. She carried a bouquet of baby yellow roses, white stephanotis and baby's breath with trailing ivy and her sole jewelry was a white gold necklace with a diamond.

Members of the Xi Beta Omieron Sorority held a Christmas bazaar and bake sale in the Highlands Mall-on Saturday and it was very well attended:

Among the wares for sale were crocheted carnations in many colours, small wicker baskets of artificial flowers, novelties, Christmas tree decorations including macrame stars, knitted and crocheted ornaments and others made of dough and looking like Christmas cookies.

The bake sale was very popular and the wares went very quickly with people snapping them up as fast as possible.

Often Christmas is over just as dars. So, if you haven't had an jobs, commuting and inolvements outside the home. stretching out the holiday season may be a good way to allow busy families a little breathing space and an opportunity to savor Christmas festivities to the fullest.

You might plan on keeping your tree up till Twelfth-night and invite friends over to help take down the tree - after a last toast to Christmas, of course!

You could even present your friends with small gifts at this time (As a matter of fact, in some countries gifts are not given until Twelfth-day). With all the holiday preparations over, you'll have plenty of time to bake some goodies before Twelfth-night or even shop the after-Christmas

Wrapping tips

Here ae some suggestions for achieving that personally gift wrapped look.

The children on your list will be delighted to find Santa Claus' smiling face on their presents. For this jolly portrait, cut out Santa's features from heavy paper in appropriate colors and paste them onto-a rectangular box. If you prefer, you can use self-adhesive paper. It comes in all colours and can be cut to resemble any form you like and attached to the top of your paper. Popular motifs for such cut-outs are little angels or animals. If you're not talented, simply trace your cut-outs.

A Yule Log

Decorate a yule log this Christmas for your own fireplace or for gifts for friends. It's easy and fun to do.

Use an oak, cedar or eucalyptus log, split lengthwise. Melt paraffin way in a double boiler and let it cool until it is pliable but not hot to the touch. Use holly leaves, berries, branches from evergreens and pine cones for decorations. The paraffin, placed to the centre of the log, will hold the decorations securely.

Environment Minister Rafe Mair, in a letter to council, said he would be prepared "to support an application for assistance with further dyking work" once a floodplain development plan

A zoning bylaw amendment, containing flood control requirements for Squamish, has been prepared and will be forwarded to the district.

"The need to complete flood protection for the Squamish and Brackendale areas is recognized. However, it has been a provincial concern, as discussed in previous correspondence, that a floodplain development plan be officially adopted prior to consideration of further dyking work," Mair said.

The minister said no "funding of sufficient magnitude" is currently available and any future funding will have to depend on provincial priorities at the time.

At the meeting, council reiterated its concern over the need for dykes between the two bridges on the Mamquam River.

Administration will answer the letter and request dyking be done in 1980.

WORKERS? COMPENSATION.

NOT USING IT COULD COST YOUR BUSINESS A BUNDLE.

With all the other problems of operating a small business, it's sometimes easy to put off or overlook the responsibility of ensuring that your business is protected by the Workers' Compensation Board.

And that could be one of the most expensive omissions you ever made.

Because, if one of your workers is involved in an onthe-job accident, you would be liable for the entire cost of his injuries and rehabilitation—a cost that could be many times that of compensation coverage.

Don't risk it. A simple phone call or visit to any W.C.B. office will give you all the information you need about compulsory or elective coverage. You'll find that, for a small cost, you can buy a big piece of "peace of mind".

Then to add to the problems I forgot to put a film in the camera and the pictures of the charter being presented to the SPCA, the club-company bonspiel and the pictures I took at Whistler just weren't on the film 'eause there wasn't any.

And to make things worse, those pictures were taken outdoors so when I put the film in (I remembered it this time) to take the pictures of the executive of the Ski and Outdoor Club I forgot to change the setting to flash.

That wouldn't happen again in a month of Saturdays. So, if the executive of the Ski and Outdoor Club want to try another shot at it and the SPCA executive would like to have their picture taken with the charter, we can try again, and this time I'll remember to do it properly.

> As reported earlier, the association had petitioned for and now has received a lease for the old Birken school from the Howe Sound school board No. 45. Built in 1923 with volunteer labour its construction was prompted by the influx of people employed by the Gates Lake mill owned by Albert Bossy who moved from Pemberton to Birken in 1931.

The school is built of logs and commands a magnificent view across Gates Lake. It was closed from 1944-50 and its enrolment was never very high but reached about 10-12 children in 1963-64. As in other country schools the grades ran from 1 to 8 with one teacher instructing. Since there was no teacherage she boarded either at Gunner and Marjory Gimse's or at Birken Lodge.
