

Squamish Days to celebrate 25th anniversary

Plans for the silver anniversary of the Loggers' Sports which later became Squamish Days are in their final stages and by all accounts it's going to be the best ever.

To mark the event, the prize draw will be for a silver Chevette and the prize winning ticket will be drawn at the Truck Rodeo on Aug. 2.

And also in keeping with the 25th anniversary all past chairmen of the event and most of the former Timber Queens will be in attendance during the ceremonies.

From the time the doors open on the Timber Queen Pageant on Thursday night till the last competitor in the Truck Rodeo goes home, there will be something doing for everyone, from young to old.

The whole thing started when a group of Squamish loggers decided to get together and stage some competitions to mark the opening of the highway from North Vancouver to Squamish. From that small beginning, with only local loggers competing, it has grown into the biggest and best show of its kind in Canada, if not in the world.

The heart of the entire weekend is the competitions and on Saturday, July 31 you will see the novices and intermediate sports when those who have never won a contest in a big show have their chance.

It's not as polished as the Sunday show with the professional touch and all the top competitors, but it has the community feeling of the people you know trying to beat their friends at something they do every day.

On Sunday the professionals take over and this is where you will see the world's top climbers scampering to the top of the tall climbing trees for the Labatt Class 'A' world championship climb. The power saw falling, which originated in Squamish and which is the only event of its kind in the world, is an exciting one and you watch in awe as the power saw bite through those huge logs trying to beat the clock and hit the peg at the same time.

Here you watch the men, carrying heavy cables, race across the slender logs poised over the birling pool, waiting for them to fall in; see them leaping over the logs, fixing the shackle around the log and then race back to the starting point, cheered on by the crowds.

If some of them fall in and get thoroughly wet, that's an unexpected bonus and the crowd loves it.

In the background and at half time as they clean up the grounds, are huge pieces of machinery which are used in the woods every day while the men are working.

This year Squamish will also have the Canadian championship in speed bucking, where the men will try to see who can saw or

"buck" a round off a log in record time.

But loggers' sports, although the theme around which the show is built, is not the entire weekend. There is the Timber Queen Pageant, scheduled for Thursday night, where nine lovely young ladies will be seeking the coveted honour of representing Squamish at the PNE and reigning over the five-day festivities.

This year the pageant will be held in the arena instead of the civic centre and there should be lots more room for everyone. Tickets are available at the Squamish Times, Hair Motion, the Pair Tree, and Squamish Office Supply, and the pageant starts at 8 p.m.

On Friday evening you can don your pajamas and go shopping, looking for bargains in the local stores which offer some special sales during the evening, and then you can head for Cleveland

Avenue to watch the bed races.

You'll never believe the costumes some of the bed racers wear and the decorated beds are outlandish and unique. There are prizes for several events and one for the best bed.

Something new has been added this year and the Timber Beast Contest will be held in the arena following the bed races. This should be a real gas and already there are at least a dozen contestants with more expected. Be sure to wear your Squamish Days button and you'll get in free. If not, it will cost you a dollar at the door.

On Saturday the fun starts in the morning with the Kiwanis children's games at the school grounds near the sports grounds. You can watch the kids and their decorated bicycles or their races and then walk a few feet to see the eliminations for the novice and intermediate games. Children's sports start at 9:30 and following this, Pacific GMC will serve them refreshments.

Something new this year will be the dog races, also on the school grounds and starting at 11:45 where the B.C. Whippet Racing Club will stage a few races for those who love this kind of sport.

In the evening there's the giant Loggers' Stomp in the arena. Wear your blue jeans and plaid shirt if you wish, let your hair down and enjoy the music.

On Sunday morning you have to get up early to take part in the famous Elks Breakfast which starts at 7 a.m. and last till 11. There are pancakes, sausages, eggs and lots of coffee so be sure to come out and get a hearty breakfast to start off the day.

The giant parade, which starts at 11 a.m., will wind up the main street, led by the Gizeh Shrine Motor Corps, scarlet clad RCMP and pretty girls, bands, floats, huge loaded logging trucks, horses, clowns, kids and still more floats, all winding past the judges' stand which will be set up in front of the Shell service station where Jonathan Brett will give a commentary on the parade.

By the time the events at the grounds are over in the late afternoon and everyone had watched the sports, stuffed themselves with barbecued beef and (hopefully) basked in the sun, it will be time for a rest and a recouping of energies for the Truck Rodeo on Monday.

The rodeo will be held on the parking lot in front of Super Valu and the Highlander Hotel in the Highlands with eliminations starting at 10 a.m. and the finals at 1 p.m. Come and watch the truckers go through their paces and see the halftime show put on by the Gizeh Shrine Motor Corps.

There's lots of other attractions. The famous beef barbecue will be available on both Saturday and Sunday and there will also be a beer garden on both days. The Winnebago's will be holding their 4th annual rally in Squamish and Bryan Couture insists there will be more than ever before as the owners of these motorhomes gather to attend the week's festivities and their own special events.

A special loggers' fastball tournament will be held from July 31 to Aug. 2 at Brennan Park with 16 teams taking part in this three day annual event. Campsites are available.

Don't forget to buy your Loggers' Day button which entitles you to admission to the Timber Beast competition and to the Truck Rodeo.

And don't forget the ticket on that silver Chevette. Who knows, you may be the lucky somebody who drives it home on Monday!

But be sure to follow the signs to the Squamish Days celebrations and help Squamish mark the silver anniversary of its annual festival.

DISTRICT DISCOVERS $232,500 TAX ERROR

Non-residential properties have received an unexpected tax break after the district's treasurer uncovered a $232,520.46 error in the provincial education levy.

Charlie Schilberg said the error was discovered about two weeks ago when a taxpayer in Vancouver questioned his tax bill. Discussion with various provincial authorities and repeated checks by Schilberg did not reveal the mistake which resulted from wording in the new public school education finance policy from Victoria dated March 16, 1982. The basic levy on non-residential property was to have been "the lesser of 55 mills or the 1981 school rate".

However, the district levied 55 mills, instead of the 1981 school rate of 51.197 mills. That amounted to the district calculating $3,362,759.21 as the provincial education tax. It should have been $3,130,238.75 based on the 1981 education mill rate.

The district collects the tax for the province. Schilberg said the error would have shown up when the first payment to the province, due in mid August, was remitted because the district's and provincial figures "wouldn't have reconciled."

Of the total error in levy $221,036.66 represents refunds to taxpayers who have already paid their taxes and $11,483.80 is credit adjustments to properties whose taxes are not paid. Refund cheques were mailed Friday to those who have paid taxes.

Refunds range from 14 cents to about $99,000 to Western Forest Products.

EBAP project underway at Evans Lake forest

By ROSE TATLOW

A six-man crew, the beginning of a planned 20-member group, is working at the Evans Lake forestry camp in the first of the government's Employment Building Assistance Program for forests.

At present the crew is working on a trail program but this will be extended to some spacing of the trees in the forested areas as well as some weeding and brushing which has to be done. The crew will be expanded to 18 and there is a supervisor, Doug Ballantyne, who is presently on the job, along with the bookkeeper.

Pete Keay was in charge of the project when we visited the camp on Tuesday of last week along with some of the Canadian Forestry Association's board of directors who were viewing the project and getting an understanding of what was to be done.

Don Kinnear, of the local forestry office, who handles silviculture among other duties, said the project, which is sponsored by the federal and provincial governments, is to assist forest workers who are presently on unemployment insurance, to earn money and at the same time perform some necessary work which has to be done in local forests.

The program involves working on the network of trails around the camp, which is used as a camp for junior forest wardens and is also leased to private groups when not needed by the CFA.

To qualify for the assistance the project must be concerned with forestry, must engage skilled but currently unemployed recipients of UIC benefits, must negotiate a satisfactory work program to enhance forest improvement with local ministry of forests district manager, must be incremental to the forest resources program and must be finished by March 31 of 1983.

It was early on a grey morning when Don Kinnear picked me up and we headed for Evans Lake and breakfast with the Canadian Forestry Association directors who were coming for a meeting and to view the project. Dave Campbell, manager for the coast region of the Canadian Forestry Association which operates the Evans Lake camp, joined us for a breakfast of hotcakes and sausage, expertly cooked by Eleanor MacDonald and her aides who were looking after a group of girls who were using the camp.

After breakfast, we walked down to the edge of the lake where a bridge had been built over a small creek to replace one which had been washed out. It looked sturdy and promised to last for a long time. From the bridge a trail led along the lakeshore and another climbed the hill. There's an outdoor classroom area along the trail and here the young people who attend the camp study the life in the swamp and learn about the forest.

The crew was working on another trail which led to a high point where there was a small pond which could be used for study purposes. This trail was part of a loop trail which threads the second growth forest and leads to the areas which will later be thinned and improved.

Kinnear pointed out that thinning has to be carefully done on dry areas because too much thinning can result in the development of a rich growth of salal which takes the moisture and nutrients from the soil to the detriment of the trees.

The trail, which was quite steep, in parts, was being built on the base of an old logging grade and the terrain was quite rocky, requiring soil to be brought in to level the trail. It also has to be carefully designed to keep it from being washed out when the heavy fall rains come.

Kinnear said the trail work was going well and the key is to get the technical work done to start the thinning project and get the referrals from the UIC.

The Evans Lake forest consists of 268 hectares, second-growth timber, which was logged almost 40 years ago and is now coming on quite well but with areas which need to be thinned out, as well as some which require brushing and clearing.

Some road work will also need to be done on the road to Leavitt

Lake, a road which had not been properly maintained for a number of years.

A technician will be coming in to join the project to work on the juvenile stands which have to be thinned out. In addition to the juvenile stand, which is about 20 years old, there is also a fairly large 40-year-old stand of trees closer to the lake.

The project, according to Campbell, will provide 500 man weeks of work and will cost $233,721. It is one of the first projects to have been approved by the EBAP.

In addition to this project, Campbell said there is a group of three students working on reshaping the roofs of some of the buildings at the camp. Nancy Dhelly, Alfonso Williams and Dale Harry were busy cutting the shakes from cedar blocks which had been supplied by Weldwood. They were hired under the student employment program.

Directors of the Canadian Forestry Association who attended the viewing of the project were Ivan Pretty of Pretty Timber, Bob Howard of B.C. Forest Products, Doug Rickson of Canadian Forest Products and Ray Wilson of MacMillan Bloedel.

One of the projects in the program at Evans Lake is some trail work and here Dave Campbell and Ivan Pretty of Pretty Timber are looking at a bridge, built to replace the one washed out in last fall's flood.

BUY YOUR BUTTON FOR TIMBER BEAST SHOW

Be sure to buy your Squamish Days button if you want to enter the Timber Beast show, which will be held at the Civic Centre instead of the Chieftain Hotel as originally planned.

Entry will be by a Squamish Days button and if you don't have one it will cost you a dollar to enter the show and watch the fun.

Corinne Lonsdale says there are at least ten firm candidates for the position and she hopes to have another five before the closing date.

The Timber Beast competition will be held on Friday night in the Civic Centre following the bed races.

TWO MEN DIE IN FIERY CAR CRASH

Two males, believed to be from the Squamish area, were killed in a fiery car crash on the Paradise Valley Road just north of the North Vancouver Outdoor School early Sunday morning.

Police say that about 2 a.m. on Sunday morning a vehicle left the road just past the outdoor school, collided with a tree and caught fire.

The remains of two bodies were found inside the vehicle. Police said both were male, and are believed to have been local. Names have not been released pending positive identification by next of kin.

NEW APPOINTMENT FOR MOUNTAIN FM RADIO

Carol Potvin, vice president of Mountain FM Radio Ltd., announces the appointment of Nancy Treiber as the station's Whistler representative.

Treiber will be broadcasting daily from Whistler reporting news and events in keeping with Mountain FM's continuing plan for coverage of the Squamish, Whistler and Pemberton communities. Special equipment is being provided which will enable live, "on the spot" broadcasting from the area.

This is the first phase in the planned Whistler broadcast studios which will be operating later this year.

She will also act as the station's advertising sales representative in Whistler and can be reached at 932-3759.

Carleton says land worth more than debts

Mayor Pat Carleton of Whistler said last week the land owned by the Resort Municipality of Whistler and handled by the municipality's land company, is worth more than the loans outstanding to the Royal Bank of Canada and the Yorkshire Trust.

The mayor, who was also a director of the land company, said the land is worth $16 million and this is ample security for the loan.

The company had not sold any lots in the past year and closed down two weeks ago. Carleton said the money had been used to service the town centre and for other developmental costs.

The land company, which was a wholly-owned subsidiary of the resort municipality, employed seven people. The board of directors consisted of the mayor, two aldermen and two other people.

Carleton said last week that he was optimistic that enough land sales would be made in the next three months to cover the outstanding debts and put the municipality in the clear.

But he stressed that in the meantime he did not believe the land company's debt could be placed upon the municipality and said this would be a matter for Victoria to resolve.

Meanwhile, construction on the sports and convention centre has been halted. Already $6.3 million has been spent on the facility and the remainder of the $11 million it was estimated to cost had been expected to come from further land sales.

Despite the halt to construction in the area, the new Delta Hotel's Mountain Inn opened officially last Friday and reports say there are lots of bookings for the next few months.

In the same week, Al Raine, former Canadian national ski team coach and a former alderman of the municipality, resigned as executive director of the Whistler resort organization. All businesses in the municipality were contributors to the association which helped to market the resort.

Raine said his departure had nothing to do with the problems concerning the land company but the decision to move had been made earlier.

Trustee election may be necessary

An election may be necessary to fill the unexpired portion of the school trustee term left vacant by the death of Doug Rudy, who was in the first year of a two-year term.

Don Ross, secretary-treasurer of the school board, says that the board must notify the municipality of the vacancy. If the municipality does not order a by-election within 30 days, then the remaining trustees, with the approval of the minister of education, may appoint a suitable person to serve as a trustee for the remainder of the term; that is till the end of 1984.

Another vacancy may occur on the board if Nancy Raine, trustee for the Whistler area, moves to Switzerland as they are reported to be planning to do, before her term expires at the end of this year.

Mayor Carleton also said he had been aware of Raine's plans to leave for Europe for "some time" and it was unfortunate the two incidents occurred at the same time.

Raine said he and his wife, the former ski champion Nancy Greene, wish to have their children learn French and another culture. They plan to go to Switzerland.

Mrs. Raine is a school trustee with the Howe Sound school district and represents the Whistler area.

Fan out system planned

An emergency telephone fan out system is being formulated for residents in the Upper Cheakamus.

The system would be used in times of fire and flood primarily and is being looked into by the emergency planning committee with the aid of John Payne and the provincial emergency agency headed in the district by Alderman Al Bird.

In effect it is a warning system whereby one person phones two people and those two phone two more until everyone has been notified of impending danger. While a method has been worked out an official listing of residents and their phone numbers, is holding up further progress.

Charged with possession

David George Negrave appeared in court last week on a charge of possession of stolen property.

As a result of an investigation carried out on July 13, police found the property in his home on Thunderbird Ridge.

The value of the stolen property is estimated to be $20,000.

Council inconsistent property owner charges

An angry letter has been written to district council regarding a piece of property that lost its non-conforming status because it was vacant for more than 30 days.

Bill McEnery, owner of the property on the southwest corner of Highway 99 and Garibaldi Way, wrote the letter and complained the municipality has not been consistent in enforcing its zoning bylaw.

The property is zoned Commercial V, but was being used as a retail outlet prior to passage of bylaw 751, 1981. Therefore, it was treated as a non-conforming use and the owner was allowed to retain use for retail purposes.

However, the Municipal Act states, "A lawful use of premises existing at the time of the adoption of a zoning bylaw, although such use does not conform to the provisions of the bylaw, may be continued; but if such non-conforming use is discontinued for a period of 30 days, any future use of those premises shall, subject to the provisions of this section (of the Municipal Act), be in conformity with the provisions of the zoning bylaw."

Red Heather Recreation leased the property over the winter and cancelled its business license May 7. Application for another business license for the purpose of selling fishing bait was received by the district June 30, but it was refused because the 30-day period had expired.

"Had I known of this bylaw (with the 30-day criteria) I would have seen to it that a license was secured prior to June 7, 1982 for the premises," McEnery wrote.

"I feel you have not been consistent in this case and it has put me in a situation where I cannot obtain the revenue which I require in order to pay you the largest damn tax bill I have been faced with in the 14 years I have been in Squamish," he went on to say.

McEnery can no longer lease the property for retail use and will receive a letter from the municipality explaining the situation as set out in the Municipal Act.

Use of land and buildings in a Commercial V zone is restricted to:

- Motor vehicle garages repairing private, commercial and logging and industrial vehicles;
- Businesses selling motor vehicles, trucks, farm and logging equipment, automatic parts and equipment;
- Building supply yards;
- Building contractors and tradesmen storing and processing building materials;
- Wholesale and storage warehouses and businesses; and
- Accessory one-family residential and other buildings associated with specific parts of the bylaw.

Illegal strike settled quickly

Employees at Squamish Hotel began an illegal strike Wednesday about 10 p.m. Everything was sorted out by Thursday and members of the Beverage Dispensers, Bartenders and Culinary Workers Union were back on the job.

The illegal strike by employees of the Squamish Hotel was settled within hours of union representatives arriving from Vancouver Thursday.

The strike began Wednesday about 10 p.m. when 16 people in Local 40 of the Beverage Dispensers, Bartenders and Culinary Workers Union walked off the job and picketed the hotel. District steward Gertie Brown said the union had a list of grievances with owners of the hotel and four meetings within the last two weeks had failed to solve the dispute.

However, the Teppers, owners of the hotel, said there were a couple of meetings with union representatives and all the grievances listed had been settled previously. No strike notice was given to owners.

By late Thursday all employees were back on the job.

Picketers stayed outside the hotel Wednesday night and all day Thursday until a union representative from Vancouver arrived to listen to both sides. They claimed harassment and unfair labour practices.

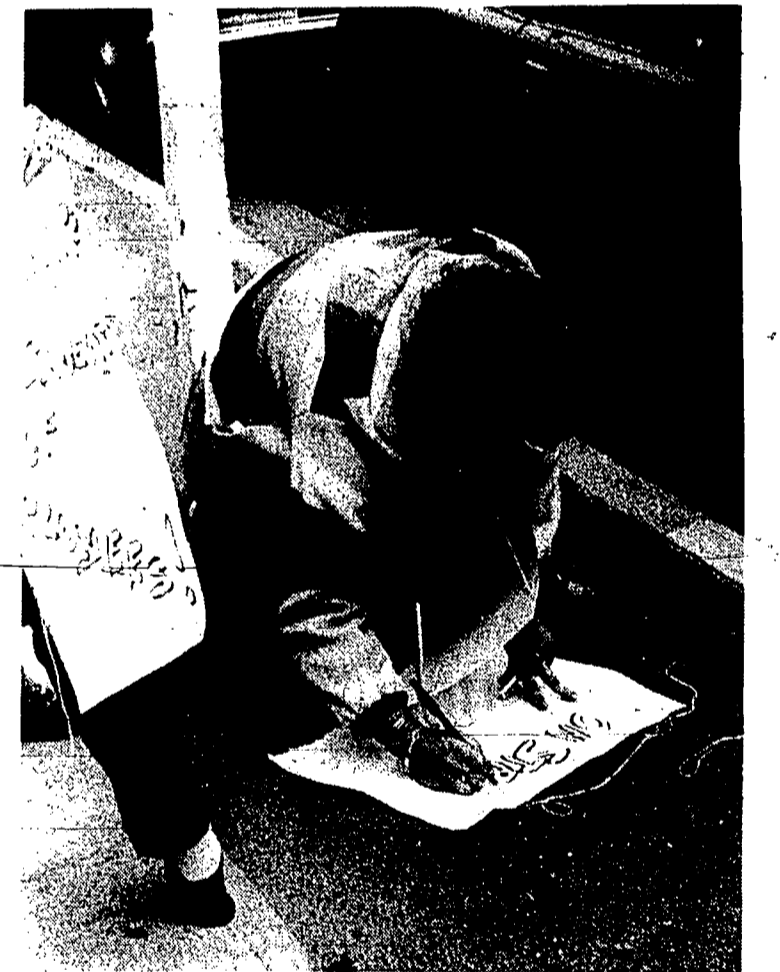

Brown charged waitresses were being insulted in front of customers of the hotel, but management did not concede the point. In addition, union members said the Tepper family was taking union jobs.

But the hotel is a family business and a written agreement allows the family to perform jobs. Squamish Hotel employees went union within days of the Teppers taking over the business in November and although staff is down to about 16 from 27, management says it could not afford to keep everyone on. People who have been laid off have not been replaced by new staff.

Apparently, some employees who did not want to get involved in the strike were told by the district steward the move was legal and they had to participate.

Union representatives were not available for comment.

Striking union members at the Squamish Hotel were handed signs right off the production line as they were being printed up outside the hotel.

Congratulations!

Last rites for Doug Rudy

Doug Rudy

Douglas Rudy, a long-time resident of Squamish who came here over 30 years ago to work as a bookkeeper at Mackenzies Store, passed away suddenly on July 18 after a brief illness.

Rudy, who was 56 years of age, was born in Tantallon, Saskatchewan on March 28, 1926 and grew up on the prairies. He taught school for a year and soon after came to Squamish where he worked for Mackenzies for a number of years before opening his own accounting business.

While working at Mackenzies, he met his wife, Illeana and they later worked together in their own business.

Doug Rudy was very active in the work of the United Church, serving as treasurer and a member of the church board; he served as secretary-treasurer of the Squamish Chamber of Commerce for many years and was an honorary life member.

He was a school trustee, serving a second term with the Howe Sound School District.

Rudy was an active Rotarian and a member of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No. 277.

He is survived by his loving wife, Illeana; two daughters, Suzanne Holley and Michelle; a brother, Jack, of Brandon; and three sisters, Judy, of Calgary, Joan of Yorkton, Saskatchewan and Patricia of Wynard, Saskatchewan.

Funeral services were held on Thursday, July 22 at 2 p.m. in the Squamish United Church, Rev. Jack Lindquist officiating, followed by cremation. In lieu of flowers, donations to the B.C. Heart Fund and the B.C. Cancer Fund would be appreciated.

Future uncertain for Knowledge Network

Squamish Hospital, school district, Capilano College and Squamish library are a few local agencies that have expressed an interest in Knowledge Network, but it remains to be seen if the service will be provided.

An ad hoc committee for Knowledge Network consisting of representatives from those groups was formed earlier this year. The committee has reached a standstill until fall when it expects to pursue the subject again.

Some of the questions to be resolved are who will provide the service — the community as a whole or Reliance-Distributors — and where the money will come from.

The committee agreed the cable system would be the easiest way to bring Knowledge Network to Squamish and although the Canadian Radio-Television Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) says Reliance Distributors, the local cable company, is going to apply for Knowledge Network, Lloyd Ingraham would not confirm that.

Ingraham told The Times he "did not want to speculate on what may or may not happen" regarding Knowledge Network. He said he provided some information to the committee to follow up on and "the ball is in their court."

Beyond that he would make no comment.

The ministry of universities, science and communications does have a PEETS grant program which helps communities obtain Knowledge Network, but it is directed towards those with populations up to 2,500.

"Large communities such as Squamish are encouraged to obtain the Knowledge Network through their own resources," minister Pat McGeer said in a letter to the school board.

Bob Brant, chairman of the ad hoc committee, said the community could put in a receiver dish and if the entire community went for the idea the network could be provided to everyone in the valley. Application would have to be made to the CRTC.

Knowledge Network is a centralized source of information. The satellite communications network is a government agency that operates out of the University of British Columbia and offers a variety of information and credit courses.

Knowledge Network is similar to a correspondence course by television with the exception being that study guides and textbooks play a supplementary role to the televised course.

Some courses are taped live in the classroom. These include basic broadcast introduction, basic fire suppression, conception to age six, crisis intervention, and critical care nursing.

Other courses provided through Knowledge Network range from the sciences to psychology, mathematics, business, sociology and the arts.

Headwalls for gates on a channel off the Squamish River are being constructed. This one is just west of the BCR bridge near the municipal works yard on Government Road. A culvert six feet in diameter will run under the headwall. The gates will close to prevent flooding in Spiral Trailer Court.

Man injured in fiery accident

Vladimir Borojevic, of Burnaby, was injured early on Friday morning when his vehicle was involved in an accident in the Stoney Creek area. When police and the rescue unit arrived, the vehicle was about 40 feet down the bank and on fire. Ambulance personnel were treating the single occupant of the vehicle who was taken to Squamish General Hospital and later to Lions Gate. Firemen extinguished the blaze but the vehicle was a total loss.

On July 16, on Driveshaft Hill on Highway 99, a vehicle driven by Roy Armstrong of Lions Bay, travelling south, went off the road to the right causing $700 damage.

On July 17, on Highway 99 near Brohm Lake, Bruce Smith of Vancouver, travelling north, went off the road to the right. He received minor injuries but the damage to the vehicle amounted to $6,000.

On July 18, Rosalia Rozamann, of Squamish, was distracted by a young child in the car while driving on Plateau Drive and went off the roadway onto a lawn, striking a building and causing $1,500 damage to her vehicle.

Stawamus walkway best where it is

The walkway up to Stawamus Elementary has not been forgotten by district council; it has come up with a possible solution.

Council and members of the school board will meet soon to discuss maintenance and construction of the walkway.

Each winter, parents of children who attend the school on the hill complain the narrow winding road up to the school is not properly maintained. It becomes slippery and dangerous for vehicles and children who take that route.

However, students found a better way to get to school. They made their own trail from Valley Drive up to Stawamus, but parents complain it is not maintained and also gets slippery in the winter.

During the last week of February, council met with the school board and some parents from Valleycliffe whose children attend the school.

At that time it was agreed to find out who owned the property the trail students use is on and to prepare a plan outlining the area an access could be constructed.

John Payne, public works superintendent, reported to council on those two items at its July 13 meeting.

The walkway is on hospital and B.C. Rail property. Easements will have to be obtained from both if the path continues to be used.

Near the top of the path is a hydro tower and Payne suggests, instead of allowing the children to head east at the tower, the path continue south and come out at the south end of the parking lot. Also a chain link fence should be put up to stop students going east at the tower.

"Both my technicians and myself have examined all possible ways to relocate this walkway, however, it appears as if a short-cut route is necessary and that the existing path is the best," Payne wrote in a report to council.

An extension south, of about 70 feet, is required to change the route of the path near the top and that is estimated to cost $8,000. The cost includes labour, machinery, chain link fence, legal survey and registration of the easement.

Aldermen said they did not think the municipality should have to acquire easements. Referring by memory to the February meeting with the school board, it was determined that was to be the responsibility of the school district since it is its building requiring access.

Ongoing maintenance of the path was identified as one of the most important things to settle with the board.

While you're at it, why not nail down next winter's energy costs?

Fixing up the place this summer? There'll never be a better time to plug those costly energy leaks. Some of these suggestions take little effort—others a bit more. But they'll all pay big dividends (in energy and money) next winter.

Insulation for conservation

What, you still haven't insulated? Here's something that may change your mind. At today's energy costs, in an average home, proper insulation to recommended standards can pay for itself in less than five years. Start where the work is easiest and shows the best return for your time and money—in the attic. Then move on to areas like unfinished walls. If you live in a colder area of the province, investigate the installation of double- or triple-glazed windows.

To make it easy for you to act now, the Canadian Home Insulation Program (CHIP) will provide a grant of up to $500 and has been extended to cover homes built before 1971. And, for qualifying Hydro customers, our Energy Savings and Finance Plan may provide short-term funding up to $500 at 10% interest.

Sealing the energy leaks

Even if you can't go for total insulation right now, by sealing all the gaps and cracks in your home against air leaks you can cut your heating energy bill by 20 to 30%. Be sure you seal off holes in walls from the inside to prevent damage from trapped moisture.

Inexpensive gaskets, available from building supply, hardware or department stores, will seal drafts through electric outlets.

To seal all openings—doors, windows, letter slots (and don't forget the pet doors)—you'll find an appropriate grade of weatherstripping.

Energy efficient lighting

While you're renovating, cast a cost-critical eye on your lighting. Today's fluorescent lamps come in a range of "warmer" colours and use just 1/3 the energy of comparable wattage incandescents—which they outlast by 25 to 1! They're ideal for utility areas like kitchen counters, laundry, workshop, basement and garage.

Decorating with a light touch

Decorating? Paint yourself a lower light bill. Light-reflectant colours, such as off-white or ivory, not only "open up" small rooms or rooms without windows—they also require far less wattage for correct, comfortable illumination.

The ceiling is the most important reflective area and should take the lightest shade. Then the walls: if you're using a dark or panelled feature wall, offset it with light colours on the other walls—or on cabinets and counter tops.

Finally the floors. The lighter your tiles or carpets in the kitchen, bathroom, utility and play areas—the lighter your lighting bill.

Tips for stopping drips

These days, hot water costs you about a cent a gallon. So get set for a sobering statistic. If a hot water tap is dripping at the rate of one plump a second, in a year that's $20.00 down the drain. Find those drips and fix them. Fast.

COOL WEATHER EASES FIRE SITUATION

"Cooler weather with the occasional shower has continued to keep the fire incidence to a minimum," fire protection officer Frank Vicen said last week.

"Lightning activity has been indicated in several portions of the Squamish Forest District but there have been no fires thus far."

On Thursday of last week, he indicated that low level moisture was forecast for the next few days.

Salute to Loggers' Sports

It scarcely seems possible that the highly successful Squamish Loggers' Sports festival can actually be 25 years old. Yet this event, which started in the 1950's, is celebrating its 25th year commencing on Thursday night.

From a small one-day celebration with local loggers competing against each other it has become a highly polished performance with two days of logging shows, one for the novices, including the local young people; the other for the experts, and some of them are locals as well. Now it stretches for five days — from a highly entertaining and polished Timber Queen contest on Thursday night to the equally entertaining but complicated truck rodeo on the August holiday.

And many other things have been added. There's dances, bed races, kiddies sports, a parade, a breakfast, a ball tournament, a draw for a silver car and lots of visitors and guests during an event-filled celebration.

We have to salute the loggers, who originally started the festival; the people who carried on or the lean years while they built up the event to become a truly Squamish festival which features loggers' sports but has many other activities all crowded into a busy, fun-packed weekend. People like Al Hendrickson, the late Pat Brennan, Terry Burt, Bruce Carson, Owen Carney and Al McIntosh, to name only a few of those who have worked on the show for many years, deserve a great deal of credit for their unflinching support.

There are also the others; the ones who worked behind the scenes for years like George Behrner, Dennis DeBeck, Ivor Hurst, Manuel Seymour and John Lowe; and the contestants in those earlier years, Thor and Harold Halvorson, Dick Munro and Chris Arnet.

Since the days of the early logging shows, it has evolved into a community affair with the Timber Queen and the selection of Miss Squamish becoming the event which opens the five-day celebration. Service clubs and community groups have become members of the parent committee, spreading the work throughout the community and making it truly a Squamish Days celebration.

Now we can see groups like the Elks, the Kinsmen, the Kiwanis, the Rotary, the Lions, the Canadian Daughters, the firemen, the curling club, the Chamber of Commerce and others all participating, pooling their efforts to make it truly a Squamish Days festival.

But in the euphoria of Squamish Days we must not forget that it all started with the loggers' sports and it is the loggers' sports which are still the highlight on Saturday and Sunday.

So, if the gods are good and the weather permits, we'll have a few glorious days from Thursday on and will properly celebrate Squamish Days and all its events.

Come out and help us make our silver anniversary a memorable one.

Perhaps one of the surest signs of the recession we are in is the number of suggestions which are coming forth on how to get through the coming months when money is hard to come by and jobs, particularly in the extractive industries, just aren't there.

Noticed recently that you can send for a book with recipes, remedies or memories of the Great Depression, telling us how to get through our own. There's also another mail order book you can get to help you tide yourself over the coming months called the Bad Times Primer — A Complete Guide to Survival on a Budget.

Doesn't that grab you? Makes one think of the days when the cooks would vie with each other to see who could make a cake without using eggs or sugar. In fact, I can remember a chocolate cake which didn't even use butter or shortening. And it didn't taste too bad either.

Eggless and meatless dishes were very popular in those days as well and you used a lot of beans and macaroni. Not quite as much rice though except in desserts. I can remember when our meals varied from soup to stew to beans to macaroni and then back to soup again. I swore after the lean years were over that I would never eat beans again and to this day they are not one of my favourite foods. Green beans also fit in that category because they were so easy to grow that everyone had masses of them. No one ever grew a few beans. You either had none at all, or so many you didn't know what to do with them.

Noticed a copy of a recent newspaper with food prices of cross rib roasts at $1.79 on sale and hamburger at $1.15 per pound. Cantaloupe were 79 cents each.

Carl Malm brought me in a daily Province dated July 26, 1940 and these were some of the prices in it compared to some sale prices today. Cantaloupe were two for 21 cents; bananas, three pounds for 25 cents; today they are on sale at three pounds for 89 cents; watermelon was three cents a pound, today it's more than ten times that. Apples were six pounds for 25 cents and today you wouldn't even get half a pound for that price.

Grapes were two pounds for 17 cents and the last sale price I saw them for was $1.09 per pound. Grapefruit were five for 19 cents, today we're lucky to get five for a dollar and plums were 89 cents a case, today you pay twice that for a pound.

Lettuce, large local heads, were four cents each.

Cucumbers were three for ten cents and potatoes sold for 25 cents for ten pounds.

In the canned goods department, corn was two for 17 cents, today's price is 65 cents a tin; peas were ten cents a tin while today they are on sale at 55 cents. Sardines were 15 cents a tin for the King Oscars, today they are over a dollar and pineapple sold for two tins for 23 cents while fruit cocktail was eleven cents a tin.

Jam was 43 cents for a four-pound tin, today, on sale, about a pound jar costs $1.75; butter was three pounds for '72 cents compared to well over $2 a pound now and it's never on sale. Coffee went for 73 cents for three pounds, today you can sometimes get it on sale for $2.99 a pound.

Beef prices would shock you. Pot roasts were seven cents a pound; sirloin tip roasts 17 cents a pound and a round bone roast, nine cents a pound. Compare that with today's cross rib roast at $1.79 per pound and chuck steaks at $1.35 a pound. A few more prices were salmon at 17 cents a pound, cottage cheese at ten cents a pound; bacon at eleven cents per half pound and back bacon at 17 cents a pound while sliced ham for sandwiches was 17 cents a half pound.

But, of course, it must be remembered that wages in those days were much less than they are today. A wage of $5 a day was average and if you earned more than $200 a month you were really in clover. So, even if the prices sound very low, compared to the wages earned they were, in some cases, higher than they are today. The possible exception could be in the case of meats and some of the fresh fruits and vegetables.

But to get back to the business of advertising in the survival magazines now on the racks. Apparently, they believe the world is perched on the edge of some form of catastrophe, whether it be a nuclear war or a depression to rival any we have ever experienced before, there are books that include everything from articles on how to kill (possibly a looter), food processing and storage, the effects of nuclear radiation including protective clothing and how to act in case of an atomic attack; how to protect yourself in case the protective system of the country breaks down and how to survive in a desert or in the wilderness.

There are those who seem to be planning for means of protecting themselves against the neighbours in case of a breakdown of North American living. They advocate building up arsenals of weapons, "learning how to use them and how to arm themselves against any intruders."

A recent CBC broadcast interviewed people who were attending a conference of mercenaries who believed in using weapons against people for a price. They were proud to be attending the conference, to be able to practice shooting at targets, some of them shaped as people, to practice shooting around corners and into hidden areas and to be able to hold their own against anything.

They spoke of the thrill(!) of killing a person and of the need to do so for self-protection and how to be able to handle yourself in this world where the socialist and communist hordes are taking over.

It was frightening. This conference was taking place in Scottsdale, Arizona and they were deadly serious. They practiced in the desert outside the city and met in the evenings.

There's a whole school of literature which has been built up around the threat of a possible nuclear holocaust, or a war to end the world which has survivors fleeing to the wilderness, living in caves, fighting off enemies and former friends and, in general, reverting to a primitive state. That's the type of people who would delight in huge stores of weapons and arms, who would build up quantities of food and water to enable them to withstand the years when civilization went down in flames.

Certainly there's not much to cheer about when one looks at the world today, but times could be worse and we have weathered recessions and depressions before. It's a case of watching one's dollars, living as economically as possible and helping the other guy if you can.

We're not going to hell in a handbasket. Things are tough, they may even get tougher this winter, but they will improve, even if the improvement is slow and perhaps people will be stronger and better for having to endure this adversity.

But running out and storing huge quantities of food isn't the answer. Reminds me of the lady who bought a great deal of flour and sugar at the beginning of the Second World War when she heard prices were going up and hid them under her bed. Squamish had one of its periodic high waters, or "floods" and she had water on the main floor of her house and guess what happened to her store of hoarded groceries?

We are all to blame

It is so easy to stand and point the finger at big business, at government and at everyone else for the sorry mess that Canada is in today. But it isn't so easy to sit down and look at the facts squarely and admit that we are really all to blame for it.

We should be prepared to realize that we are all responsible for this mess because we have all been wildly extravagant, we've all tried to live too high off the hog and we've all tried to get more and more for ourselves at the expense of everyone else.

We're only too ready to point the finger at MacEachen and his $20 billion deficit, but how many of us were living way over our heads long before the economy went to pot? We all criticize the unions for trying to squeeze as much as they can out of employers but what about the employers and their corporate profits?

We talk about governments wasting money but we have spectacles of the get-rich-quick entrepreneurs ostentatiously wasting their quick and easy profits, often made at the expense of others.

We are really all to blame for expecting too much. When did you hear of someone getting a job and being interested in producing a full day's work for his or her employer? No, it's how much coffee time is there, what are the pension plans and how much paid holidays do I get? And how often have we seen people loaf on a job so they would be able to qualify for overtime at the additional wages?

If we keep on trying to get more, even at the expense of others, then our children and grandchildren will pay the price. We should be prepared to hold the line and, if necessary, to spread the work around so that there is something for everyone instead of a few getting it all and some getting nothing.

We need to realize that governments can only do so much. We complain about the over-spending but we are the first to object when they want to cut back on that spending. We are unwilling to have our standards reduced even if it may be impossible to maintain them.

We are demanding the utmost in social services, in medicare, in unemployment assistance, even if the burden of paying for it is falling on fewer and fewer people and the time will come when it can no longer be maintained and we will all go under. Then who will we blame? Why the government, of course, not our demands for more and more services.

Canada is a rich country, rich in natural resources, rich in its people and rich in the promises for the future. But we have to be prepared to make that work. And it won't work just by asking it to. Or by sitting on our hands and expecting it to happen. We have to be prepared to come up with some ideas, to make some suggestions and to be willing to give up some things for the benefit of all of us.

Maybe we can go back to the old-fashioned ideas of having work bees where we all help each other; maybe the person with a special skill or craft can offer his or her work in exchange for someone else's goods or skills; maybe we can go back to a swap or barter system for many things and pool our efforts to benefit our communities.

Whatever we do, it will be a move in the right direction and the only people who can help us are ourselves. And we can't start too soon.

summer in the parks

By SHERRY KIRK VOLD

A special guest speaker is featured at Alice Lake Park on Friday at 9 p.m. David McCashin will be presenting a program on rock climbing that promises to be both exciting and informative. This will include a slide show and an equipment demonstration.

David is a trained geologist which means he knows a lot about the rock as well as how to climb it! He has been climbing for many years in Western Canada and has four years' experience as an instructor.

He has taught at Strathcona Park Lodge on Vancouver Island, at Mountain training centres in Wales, and has instructed for two years at the Outward Bound School near Keremeos.

This special program is sure to be of interest to anyone thinking about, or already attempting to climb, but also of what it is like from the safety of their "armchairs"! Meet at the central beach area.

Saturday at 40 a.m. there is a children's event "The Un-Natural Nature Trail". Meet at the north beach information board.

If you've missed "Alice's Wonderland" then come along to the park at 9 p.m. Sunday. The movie "Bog" will be included. Meet at the central beach area.

The Stump Lake Stroll is a good chance to meet some of the more unusual inhabitants of the park. Meet at the Stump Lake parking lot at 10 a.m.

A double movie feature "Behind the Masks" and "This Was the Time" will be shown at Porteau Cove provincial park at 9 p.m. on Saturday. Meet at the picnic area south of the parking lot.

That big 50 foot seine net will be pulled in again at Porteau at 10 a.m. Sunday. Meet at the information house.

"Something Fishy" goes again at 9 p.m. Monday night at Porteau. If you like fish stories then come along. Meet at the picnic area south of the parking lot.

Evening programs may be cancelled due to rain.

comment from parliament hill

By LORNE GREENAWAY, MP

As I sit here in my Ottawa office, reflecting on the budget that was presented to the country on June 28, many thoughts cross my mind. It would be so easy to be negative about what the budget does and what it doesn't do, but on reviewing the last six or eight of my weekly columns and also in consideration of some public statements I have recently made, it is evident that I have fallen into the pitfall that entraps so many of us in opposition, I have become too negative.

Obviously, as an opposition member, my role is to criticize, but what I must learn to master is the art of criticizing in a positive way; a difficult but not impossible task. When you look at this country, and forget all about politics, it remains the best in the world. I had this brought home to me in an unforgettable way on an occasion some weeks ago. I happened to be driving down the highway from Williams Lake to Cache Creek early one morning enjoying the countryside, that over my short life I have learned to love with a deep passion. It was the sight of newborn calves stretching in the first heat of the sun that really made me feel so thankful to be alive and in a part of this wonderful country in which we have the privilege of living. The new grass greening the meadows and hills, the trees and the lakes reflecting the blue skies has always revitalized me with a feeling of new strength and hope. I couldn't help, but contrast all of this with the crowded, smoke-filled polluted country in Europe that I had visited recently. With a country like ours, there is no doubt whatsoever that sooner or later, we will overcome the difficulties under which we presently labour.

So, having said that, let me move on to the budget and very briefly outline one of the measures contained therein, that gives us some hope. Small businessmen, farmers, ranchers and fishermen will be granted up to $400 million in interest rate subsidies over the next two years on loans to finance the new construction of facilities as well as machinery and equipment. Under the plan, qualifying lenders will have their interest rates reduced by up to four per cent. Loans must be used to finance investment made between June 29, 1982 and March 31, 1983, for new depreciable property to be used in active business.

The minimum size for a loan will be $10,000 and the maximum, $500,000 and the size of the subsidy would be reduced if it brought the interest rates on the loan below 12 per cent. Loans cannot be used to finance purchases of land, automobiles or property for lease. There is no change in the present small business development bond program.

I am always happy to receive your comments on this column and look forward to your positive criticism.

the Times

Editor, The Times:

In a previous letter I stated that it was my intention to make World Hunger an issue in our community. I presented some facts and gave some comments that were meant to get attention. In this letter I want to present some information that will be helpful to anyone who is interested in ending World Hunger.

Of the 15-20 million of us who die each year from hunger and starvation, only 10% or fewer die as a result of famine, that is, an acute food crisis. Most are the victims of chronic undernutrition; persistently getting less food than is needed by the body day after day, month after month.

Chronic undernutrition can kill eventually but more commonly the person is weakened and unable to resist disease. The effects are particularly severe in children and infants. They often die of diseases that would be thrown off quickly by a healthy, well-nourished baby.

Children are so vulnerable that the most acceptable standard for determining the extent of hunger throughout an entire country is the Infant Mortality Rate (IMR).

The Infant Mortality Rate is the number of deaths of infants under one year of age per 1,000 live births in a given year. The average IMR of countries where hunger has ended is 37. Of the countries where widespread hunger still persists, the average IMR is 125.

There are very few countries that have an Infant Mortality Rate between 50 and 90. This indicates that a country has either handled the basic needs of its people or it hasn't; there is not much in between.

Three United Nations organizations, the Hunger Project and a number of other groups agree that when a country reaches the level of the mid-50s in IMR, then it is meeting the basic needs of its people, including adequate nutrition. They also agree that every country in the world can reach the level of 50 or less by the year 2000.

Since World War II, 32 countries have ended hunger and achieved an IMR in the mid-50s or less.

No country that has gone below 50 in IMR has then gone back above 50.

With very few exceptions, countries will not reach the mid-50s without achieving self-sufficiency in the ability to produce food or buy it, and without having achieved fairness in distribution of the food produced or bought.

Achieving self-sufficiency is obviously what each country must do. To get them to do that seems to be an enormous task. Luckily we have help. The people who are suffering from chronic undernutrition are real people. They are as real as you and I expect that they can do things that you and I can't.

Somewhere around 500 million people are surviving on less than $50 per year. They are survival artists and we must not think of them as poor little souls, and luckily we have come along to save them. They actually require very little assistance.

Their circumstances are lethal right now, alleviate their conditions just a little and they will take the project over and declare themselves self-sufficient. They are so much a part of the solution that we probably won't even get any credit for the part we played in it.

In my first letter I wanted to show how significant the problem of World Hunger is. In this letter I wanted to show how realistic the idea of ending it is.

What is at issue here is not the elimination of hunger in every belly in this world. It is the elimination of widespread, persistent hunger as a major problem in each and every country.

What must be done does not have to involve great sacrifice and effort. We only have to do what feels appropriate. To choose what is appropriate we must be willing to look at the problem consciously and sincerely.

These letters are part of my contribution to the project of ending World Hunger by the year 2000.

Editor, The Times:
The road to Whistler North Estates was not built in the wrong place (contrary to the ombudsman). It now stands exactly where it has for the past half century, connecting the D'Arcy road to the old McCullough and Ivey settlement grants and beyond to Pemberton. All that happened to give the ombudsman that fanciful notion was a typographical error on a gazetted plan, whereby two reference figures were transposed.

The road benefits not just the developer, but the people who will build along it. It has also provided access for two current timber harvests and is a major step in the restoration of the old Mt. Currie bypass, making that community a safer place from traffic flow.

Contrary to the ombudsman, there were no practical (moderate cost) alternative access routes. One suggested route is the two miles required to complete the old Mt. Currie bypass. That would have required my client to build two miles of road through Crown land. Another suggested route would have required buying ten acres to build a road up a rock bluff under a powerline. Why even consider such alternatives when there is an existing right-of-way giving legal access to the property under the Soldier Settlement Act which brought these properties into being in the first place?

The ombudsman should take a look at sections 13(c) and 14(1) of his act. It is not proper for him to ignore the interests of various parties, just in order to pursue a vendetta against the highway ministry.

A propo Taxes:
Despite as the saying goes the one who pays the fiddler, can also call the tune, the general public disqualifies itself from the process by apathy and absence.

In the past Squamish council used to determine taxes and what to do with it, behind closed doors. Today, budget discussions take place open to the public.

The municipal tax levy is derived at by consensus, not necessarily unanimously; however, once carried, the chips lay where they fall. Any municipal government is really also a collection agency for several provincial bodies, which actually levy the tax load.

It collects taxes for the province (school rates on non residential property). It collects taxes for the school board (school rates on residential property).

It collects taxes for hospital, regional district, Municipal Finance Authorities, Assessment Authorities and turns them over to those authorities.

Finally, council also levies and collects taxes plus other direct charges for its own needs.

Here as elsewhere a keen interest from the public can do no harm. Often when left only to the 'City Fathers' who base judgement upon requests from department heads, essentially self interest can be mistaken for general welfare.

I have just received a newsletter from 'Save The Children' office in Vancouver and I would like to pass this information on to you.

Lebanon "Quote"

At present we have no information about any of the sponsored children and it may well be some time before we can provide news. Undoubtedly the schools will have closed, and we think many of the people may have fled to Northern Lebanon.

The S.T.C. is sending two senior officials to Lebanon to assess the needs of children affected by the fighting during the Israeli invasion. This advance team hopes to establish a base in Sidon, scene of some of the heaviest casualties, from where they will attempt to identify an area for a S.T.C. operation. In London a disaster relief team including medical and technical personnel is being assembled in readiness for a possible programme.

The S.T.C. has launched an appeal to raise $56,250 to help pay for the cost of this operation. Even in our depressed economy we are so very fortunate.

Any donation, regardless how small, will help alleviate the suffering and hunger of these children who are the victims of war.

Locals win hoseball contest

The Squamish Firefighters won the fourth annual Hoseball Tournament held during their annual picnic at the loggers sports grounds on Sunday, July 11.

They competed with five other teams in this annual event which is always a crowd pleaser and despite the wetness never seems to dampen the enthusiasm of the competitors.

Squamish placed first in the competitions, followed by the Coquitlam team and the one from Britannia. Winning the challenge cup and a keeper trophy were Chris French, Steve Virgin, Sean Sweeney, Steve Barone, Bill Mackintosh and Ray Kinschela.

North Vancouver placed fourth in the competition, followed by Gibsons and Lions Bay.

The exciting games took place in the tennis courts, one half of which was blocked off for the performance. As the teams chased a water filled basketball around the courts to score a goal they got thoroughly soaked by the sprays of water from the heavy hoses they were carrying and spectators who got too close were also doused.

Timber Queen contestants and the firefighters' wives took part in a game won by the wives with a score of 5-4. The girls competed with hoses the same size as those used by the men but as a concession the water pressure was cut down for their game. They claim the score of 5-4 will be turned around next year when the present queen candidates plan to enter a team again.

It wasn't all water though, there were games for the young people, and some of the older ones as well; the swimming pool was open for the children to use to cool off and enjoy and there was lots to eat and drink as the day wore on.

The crowd did justice to the delicious beef burgers, made from the roasts that had been turning on the spit all morning and filling the air with their aroma, and the salads.

"Next year will be different," the visiting teams vowed as they left the grounds late in the day, tired but happy after a wet and busy day.

Registrations for the third set of swimming lessons began on Saturday, July 24. There are still openings in some classes so if you were not able to register then you may do so at the pool up until Sunday, Aug. 1.

The second set of lessons will finish this Friday, and the third set will start on Monday, Aug. 2. The swimming pool will be opened for lessons only on the holiday. Public swimming, Swim Club, adult lessons, and ladies' keep fit will all be cancelled on Monday, Aug. 2.

If anyone who is 15 years or older and has a Bronze Medallion is interested in taking either the Bronze Cross, Red Cross Leaders or Royal Life Instructors (16 years old) please give us a call at the pool. If enough candidates are interested we will run any of the above mentioned courses.

Congratulations go to Michael Rutherford, Missy Rayfield,

David Dotten, Duane Lecky and Allen Rempel who all successfully completed their Bronze Medallion award on Sunday. They are now all on their way to becoming prospective lifeguards. Keep up the good work!

Some of the specialty classes being offered this year include: dive levels one and two which are classes designed to teach competitive diving skills, there are Adult lessons that run from Monday to Thursday from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. for any level, then there's a keep-fit class which runs Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7:30 to 8 p.m.

This is an exercise class in which you spend a half hour on land and a half hour in the water doing a variety of exercises to music. You can register for all these classes at the pool on Saturday.

Don't forget about Public Swimming every day from 2 to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday and 12-5 p.m. Saturday and Sundays. The pool needs to have more swimmers!

Phare family to be fair game

The Phare family from Birken will be contesting many of the competitions in the Squamish Loggers' Days celebrations this week and they'll be fair game for any of the contestants vying with them for the top prizes.

Steve Phare was the sportsman of the day at the Pemberton Logging Show held during Canada Week and also took the single hand bucking competition while son Stephen won the underhand chop.

The youngest son, Garth, who just graduated from Pemberton Secondary, won the chokerman's race at the Pemberton show so he'll be looking for another prize in Squamish.

The Phares, who have lived in Birken for many years where they have a home on the shores of Gates Lake, operate Thuro Logging Ltd., very much a family affair. Father Steve and son Stephen, aged 25, work in the woods, while daughter Debbie does their road engineering for them.

This will be the second year they have entered the Squamish competitions and Steve has entered the intermediate obstacle pole bucking and well as the novice axe throw and chokerman's race while son Garth has entered the intermediate obstacle pole bucking and the novice axe throw and chokerman's race.

Son Stephen would be competing as well but he's committed to attend a friend's wedding.

But the Phares are also going to enter the team relay and Mike Killens will be joining them for this event.

Another family team which will be entering the Squamish Loggers' Sports competitions are Ron Hartill and his son Dale. Hartill, a perennial winner at events in Squamish, was the all round logger at the All Sooke Days competitions recently.

Aquatic club places second in swim meet

The Squamish Steelheads Aquatic Club competed in an invitational 'B' meet held at the North Vancouver Recreation centre on Saturday, June 17.

There were seven clubs competing and the host club gathered the highest number of points, with Squamish Aquatic Club and the North Shore Winter Club tying for second place. This result was a very considerable one for Squamish, a relatively small club.

Four young swimmers who did exceptionally well in their divisions were Marcy Drenka in division 1, who won the aggregate trophy in her age group; Wendy DeVent, who was the runner up in division 1; and Debbie DeVent, who tied for the aggregate trophy in division 3. Darren Bell tied for runner-up in division 6.

Individual results are as follows:

Division 1: Marcy Drenka, first freestyle, first backstroke, first butterfly; Wendy DeVent, second freestyle, second 100 metre individual medley, third butterfly; Jennifer I'Hirondelle, first 100 metre individual medley, seventh breast stroke, second butterfly; Matthew Dudds, second breast stroke, seventh 100 metre individual medley; Monica Huber, fifth butterfly.

Division 2: Lindsay Weeks, first butterfly, first 100 metre individual medley; Karen Giese, fifth breast stroke; Andrea Hoff, third breast stroke, fifth backstroke; Trampas Swanson, second 100 metre individual medley.

Division 3: Debbie DeVent, second breast stroke, second butterfly, fourth backstroke, fifth 100 metre individual medley; Angela Station, second backstroke, third freestyle; Adain

Brown, third, freestyle; Jeff Schildhorn, fifth 100 metre individual medley.

Division 4: Wendy Harrison, seventh freestyle.

Division 5: Nicola Brown, second freestyle, second butterfly, third breast stroke, third 100 metre individual medley, fifth butterfly, fifth backstroke, sixth breast stroke; Kory Swanson, fifth freestyle, fifth 100 metre individual medley, fifth butterfly, fifth backstroke, sixth breast stroke; Andrew Gravkin, sixth freestyle, sixth 100 metre individual medley, seventh breast stroke.

Division 5: Darren Bell, first breast stroke, second freestyle, third backstroke, third individual medley, fourth butterfly.

A fair number of points were gained for the club in the relays which were swam by these and other members of the club.

The day turned out to be a most enjoyable one for parents and children alike.

The club's coaches are Rae Drenka, Alex Brown and Paul Lucas.

Our big 25th silver anniversary of Loggers' Sports gets underway this weekend and it promises to be the biggest and best yet. The first event is the popular Timber Queen Pageant and nine young ladies are in the contest. It will be held in the Civic Centre arena at 8 p.m. Thursday. Tickets are available in The Times office at $3 for adults and $2 for seniors and children 12 and under.

Retiring queen Carolyn Rayfield will crown Miss Timber Queen 1982 at the pageant. Carolyn has been a wonderful ambassador for Squamish while attending many pageants and other activities this past year. On July 9 and 10, accompanied by her mother, Betty Rayfield, she attended the Parksville pageant. The Delta pageant was held July 22 and Carolyn and chaperone Shirley Saugstad were guests.

Nancy Hutchison enjoyed a trip to Vernon and a visit with her sister, Mrs. Marian Barkley.

Last week Rory Odenbach was walking down Cleveland Avenue just as the 500 or so people from the Royal Hudson were making their way along the street. He overheard one lady say to the other, "I don't think I'd like to live in this town as too many people are shopping." Oh!

Stork Story — CIUK — John and Cheryl Ciuk are pleased to announce the birth of their first child, a son, Nicholas Earl, born in the Lions Gate Hospital on July 14, weighing 7 lbs. 3 oz. Proud grandparents are Mrs. Friedel Goode of Qualicum, Mr. Earl McMaster of Surrey and Mrs. Jeanette Ciuk of Squamish. Mrs. Evelyn McMaster of Dawson Creek is a happy great grandmother.

Many relatives were visited when Mary and Bill Bloxham flew to the Maritimes earlier this month. Mary's mother, Mrs. Mary Coleman, lives in Joggins, Nova Scotia and visits were also made to Amherst and Moncton, N.B.

Visitors at the home of Pearl and Bob Rayner last week were their niece and family, Pat and Herb Riel and daughters, Cathy and Kimberley of Edmonton.

It is always sad to say farewell to a friend but many people did at the memorial service held in Squamish United Church last Thursday for Doug Rudy. Sincerest sympathy is extended to his wife, Illaena, daughter Michelle and daughter and son-in-law, Suzanne and Michael Holley.

Sympathy is also expressed to Mrs. Louise Williams and sons, Frankie and Danny, on the death of her husband, Francis, on July 20.

The Vancouver Sea Festival drew a number of entries in the sand castle contest held on July 17 at Spanish Banks. The first prize went to Glen and Thor Andersen and Tom Anderson of Squamish and Arne and Bergie Lund of White Rock. The contest was sponsored by CJOR and the Sandman Inn. They were awarded with a trophy, a chest full of $500 worth of games and dinner for five. The talented winners made a surrealistic man with a monster pulling him into the swamp. The team is looking forward to entering the White Rock festival this weekend. Good luck, gang!

David Niblock was really pleased to get his lost puppy home again. He sends along a special thanks to all those involved in looking for her.

The Timber Beast contest scheduled for the Chieftain Hotel will now be held in the Civic Centre at 9 p.m. on Friday night (doors open at 8 p.m.). It has drawn 13 contestants to date. Don't plan on taking the family though — as it is an adults only show. Admission — wear a Squamish Days button — or pay a dollar at the door.

I don't know if Dean Aldridge is in the running for Timber Beast but he certainly is a winner at logging shows. Dean placed first in both the novice climb and axe throw at the Sooke logging show on July 17. Watch for Dean in the open competition this weekend.

Having birthdays this week are Cheryl McCarrison, Rena Matheos, Justin Moloughney, Stewart Robertson, Amanda Wick, Rory Fairchild, Denise Magee, Ross Wilkinson, Sandra Rivett, Brent Strelloff, Wade McBride, Beau Tavis, Hilda Tinajero, Kim Britton, Wayne Goodall, Kathy Baker, Ryan Chadwell, Ann Lonergan (Sr.), Jeff Elliott, Joe Tischler, Jennifer Jorgensen, Stephen Hughes, Ross Gilmour, Cheryl Bird, Peter McKay, Kathryn Bullen, Jodie Breckenridge, Gerald Griffin, Charlene Brodie, Daniel Flath, Bill Rempel, Jane Dudge, Carly Field, Jennifer Wilde and Rob Griffiths.

Our special little citizens celebrating first birthdays this week are: Amy Lynn Huska, Jodi Booth, Dominica Bortolotto and Stephen Herman.

Kids — don't forget the Kiwanis children's decorated bicycle parade and field sports at their high school grounds at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. It's Pacific GMC children's refreshments at 11:45 a.m. and at the same time the B.C. Whippet Racing Club will show their dogs.

Something Ed and Jane Bradish always wanted to do was to visit the Maritimes. They flew east, rented a car and spent three weeks touring in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. During that time they also managed a short trip to New Brunswick.

I like this definition: Junk is the stuff we throw away. Stuff is the junk we save.

Ten-year-old David Biggin-Pound threw a bottle into the water (with his name and address inside, of course) in the Gulf Islands and five days later it was found by a man in Anacortes, Washington. David was a thrilled young man when he received a letter from the bottle finder.

Heather and Gary Pattullo had her cousin and husband, Mary Ellen and Jeff Rayson, from Ottawa visiting them last week.

The Aquatic Club's fun meet will be held on Sunday, August 22. Registration days are August 3, 4 and 5 at the swimming pool from 5 to 6 p.m. Anyone interested in the celebrity relay is asked to phone 898-3123 or 898-4291.

A young lady, Gudbjorg Jensdottir from Reykjavik, Iceland, is spending the summer with her sister, Thoranna Sykes and family.

Al McIntosh I'm sure will be in fine voice to MC the novice and intermediate logging show at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. Competitors will be in great shape, too. The Loggers' Stamp gets underway at 9 p.m. Saturday in the Civic Centre.

Wedding anniversary wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Tim Cyr, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Moloughney, Mr. and Mrs. Kary Karton, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Billy, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Watt, Mr. and Mrs. A. Finger, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fairhurst and Mr. and Mrs. John Welder.

Lorraine and Marsh Hurren spent a few days at Christina Lake with former residents Dr. Giffo and Fran D'Applonia, the latter celebrating their 30th wedding anniversary.

Enroute home, the Hurrens planned to stop at Vasaux Lake (near Oliver) to pick up daughter Janet and grandson Ryan Shannon. They will be here for the Loggers' Sports weekend and Janet's husband, Larry, will join them on the weekend.

Our neighbour, Gwen Rivett, flew to Kitimat a couple of weeks ago to visit her sister, Trudy Boyle and family.

Stork Story — KEYES — It's a son, Kristopher Leon for Ray and Cheryl Keyes. This little fellow was born in the Squamish General Hospital on July 20, weighing 7 lbs. 5 oz. This is a brother for Kirsty, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Valleau and Mrs. Marj Keyes of Squamish are the proud grandparents.

Squamish is getting all decked-out for Loggers' Sports and many windows are displaying some neat-looking characters. Come along and have a look at our "Mr. Timber Beast." He was created by Rob Pedersen of Seascope Signs.

The Saugstads, Norman and Shirley, were pleased to have their son and daughter-in-law, Gerald and Joan Saugstad, visiting them from Bella Coola last week.

Kevin Conway, who has been working in Toronto for some time, is back in Squamish on holidays.

Timber Queen candidates feted at Legion tea

Timber Queen candidates were the guests of honour at the annual tea hosted by the Royal Canadian Legion and the Legion Auxiliary in the Legion Hall. Beautifully decorated tables with hard hats centred by evergreens formed the centrepieces with single long stemmed roses on either side.

Thoranna Sykes, who will be taking over the Timber Queen Pageant at the end of this year's event, welcomed all the guests, thanked the Legion and Auxiliary for hosting the event and introduced the head table which included chaperone Shirley Saugstad, Miss Squamish Carolyn Rayfield, her mother Betty Rayfield, and Squamish Days committee members Janet Granger, Roberta Zaharia, Corrine Lonsdale, Beth Palomeque and Rose Tatlow.

Each of the candidates introduced herself, along with her mother and her sponsor with Trina Gardner, Miss Royal Canadian Legion, and her mother Sharon McKee and sponsor Anne-Marie Ferby; Kristen Campbell, Miss Kinsmen, her mother Jess Campbell and sponsor Anna Burt; Christine Whitehouse, Miss Squamish Firefighters, her mother Irene Whitehouse and unfortunately her sponsor Barbara Rudkin was missing; Pat Martin, Miss Chieftain Hotel, her mother Anne Martin and sponsor Katrina Martin; Colleen Quinn, Miss Chamber of Commerce, her mother Doreen Quinn and sponsor Leanne Hemphill; Ruth Plunkett, Miss Rotary, her mother Mary Ann Plunkett and sponsor Kareh Ervik; Pam Hurren, Miss Retail Merchants, her mother Lorraine Hurren and sponsor Ellen Harness; Sofia Ciechanowski, Miss Lions, her mother Kathy Ciechanowski and sponsor Kristie Heidman; and Sandi Schildhorn, Miss International Festival; her mother Judy Schildhorn and sponsors Hedi Knudsen and Irma Jones.

Dave Watt, president of the Legion, welcomed all the guests on behalf of the Legion and the Auxiliary and Miss Squamish, Carolyn Rayfield spoke to the girls, telling them public speaking doesn't get any easier "it just gets scarier."

She said hosting Squamish Days during the celebration was a great thrill and then going to the PNE was just like being in a different world, but was so interesting and exciting.

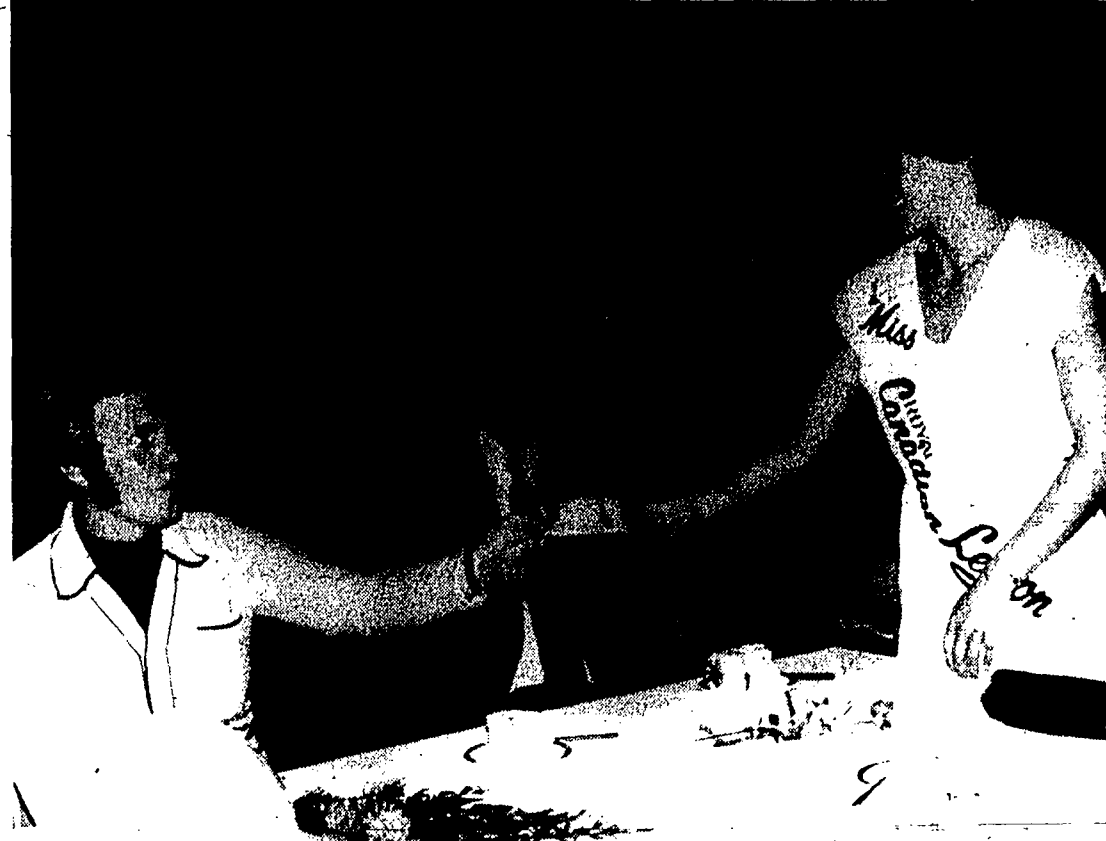

"I enjoyed going to pageants in the lower mainland and Vancouver Island and meeting lots of the girls I had met before. Enjoy yourself," she added. "You'll remember this month for the rest of your lives."

Phyllis Malm, who has raised Dalmatians, and loves them, showed her collection of these coach dogs, which originated in Dalmatia and have become famous throughout the world. She has many of them from the tiniest to some more than a foot high, some holding a fireman's hat in their mouth and some sitting in regal splendour looking out at you.

She gave a brief history of the dogs and invited people to come and look at them. Dalmatians are pure white when they are born and only start to develop spots, either black or brown, when they are about six weeks old. They are coach dogs and have always trotted beside the coaches in Europe where they seemed to be favoured by estate owners.

In North America they are better known as dogs which have been associated with firemen and fire halls. They grow to be 60 to 70 pounds and are home loving. Mait Carey sang three numbers accompanying himself on the guitar and the listeners thoroughly enjoyed his music.

A delicious cake was served along with coffee and fresh fruit and the guests enjoyed a visit with each other, exchanging notes and memories.

Trina Gardner serves a piece of cake to entertainer Mait Carey while Dave Watt, Legion president, and one of her sponsors, looks on.

Bev Fenton, who recently completed a jewelry repair course, solders a ring shank.

A jewelry repair course attended by Bev Fenton of Fenton Jewelers should provide faster repair service for local customers.

Fenton took the second of a two-part course recently at George Brown College in Toronto under the instruction of Christel Klocke who is the co-ordinator of the jewelry arts department at the college.

Klocke is a graduate of the Gemmological Association of Great Britain and the Gemmological Institute of America. She has a diploma in jewelry design and has won numerous awards for her designs.

Fenton said Klocke is a great instructor and she learned a tremendous amount in five days on the course.

"Gradually it's getting so we can do more here," she said, because not as many of the repairs have to be sent away to be done. That is one of the reasons she took the jewelry repair course.

Another of the benefits to local customers is that they can talk to the person who is going to be doing the work on their jewelry rather than information having to be relayed from one person to another.

The course provided Fenton with knowledge about retipping on claws and beads, replacing lost jewelry parts, melting of filings, repairing ring solders, replacing bezels, machine engraving, catch and pin repairs on brooches, chain and link repairs, repairing mounts and gold and silver testing.

Semi-precious stone setting was also part of the course and theory in basic gemmology was touched on.

She has not put to practice a lot of the techniques she learned, but Fenton says, as with any craft, experience and practice are necessary to become really good. It takes time to perfect the craft.

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD BOYS (Dusty-Rhodes photo)

Couple wed in United Church

Susan Christine Halvorson became the bride of Richard Dean Boys at a late afternoon wedding at Squamish United Church on Saturday, July 10.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson of Squamish and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Boys of Campbell River.

The 6 p.m. ceremony was officiated by Reverend Jack Lindquist.

Arrangements of white gladiolus and daisies graced the altar. Two candles on the altar were lit by Scott Barr.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a polyester gown with an overlay of net, the bodice featuring a deep ruffled V edged with lace daisies and high lace edged collar. The sheer long sleeves were caught in a lace daisy-edged cuff.

Similar daisies edged her finger tip veil which was held in place by a pearl trimmed headpiece. Susan carried a bouquet of Sonya roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

in blue printed chiffon. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, baby's breath and a single Sonya rose.

The bridesmaids, Karen Green and Darlene Bergstrom wore identical dresses as that of the maid of honour. Karen's dress was peach coloured and Darlene's in yellow. They carried bouquets of white carnations, baby's breath and single Sonya rose.

Miss Andria Halvorson, the bride's niece, was a sweet little flower girl. Her pink dress was identical to that of the other bridal attendants and she carried a carnation spray.

Gary Ingram was the best man and ushers were Scott Barr and Dave Smith.

Mrs. Halvorson, the bride's mother wore a rose coloured afternoon dress with a white gardenia corsage.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Boys wore a white print dress with jacket to match and a white gardenia corsage.

At a reception held in the Legion hall, Norm Barr acted as master of ceremonies. Susan's uncle, Norm Halvorson was pleased to give the traditional toast to the bride.

Before leaving the reception area, the bride donned a white print dress with blue jacket.

Out of town guests came from Campbell River, Houston, Kamloops, Cranbrook, Youbou, Victoria, Slokan, White Rock, Quesnel and Langley.

Mr. and Mrs. Boys are residing in Squamish.

SQUAMISH MAN TO WED AT GOLD RIVER

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mikal of Gold River wish to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter Wendy Carol to Phillip R. Bratiuk of Squamish.

The wedding will take place in St. Peter's-St. Paul's Church, Gold River, at 3 p.m. Saturday, August 7.

Artist moves from sketches to portraits

Ila Maria, a talented B.C. artist, who has just moved to Squamish recently, after living in the Fraser Valley for a number of years, is switching from animal studies to portraits.

Born in Vancouver, she left B.C. at the age of 18 and travelled in Hawaii and the southwestern United States. While studying at the University of Arizona she became interested in animals and the protection of wildlife. She had many pets including an iguana, ferrets, horses, cats, goats, snakes and fish.

When she returned to B.C. in 1977, her interest in wildlife continued and became an artist and later vice-president of the International Wildlife Protection Association. She began to find a market for her pen and ink drawings and her limited edition prints and art cards have become very popular.

One of the portraits in the collection of Ila Maria's paintings, showing her work in oils. It is titled 'Dawn's Light'.

"I've always loved animals," Ila Maria told The Times, "and wanted to help them. I hoped to make people see how beautiful they are."
She even found beauty in a wild tarantula and in snakes and lizards as well as the iguanas she found in the Arizona desert.

"I started with pen and ink drawings, often with water colours," she added, "and have moved to etchings and now to oil paints. I really enjoy portraits, trying to make people come alive through my brush."

Shortly before coming to Squamish she studied etching at the Sita Studios in Winnipeg and found the linear quality of the art form suitable to her style.

Prints of her pen and ink sketches of animals can be seen at Fergie's Lodge at Cheekye and if you are an animal lover you will be delighted with the delicate grace of her raccoons and opossums, of birds and other animals.

For many years she has enjoyed her animals, her ferrets and her pet raccoons and has used them as models for her sketches and paintings.

If you love animals and enjoy their freedom and their wild grace, drop by Fergie's Lodge and have a look at the paintings by this talented artist who is now making her home in Squamish.

Sawdust & Shavings

Loved the comment by a lady who was listening to Mait Carey's singing and loving every minute of it. Comparing it to modern music with its amplifiers and singers who can't really sing but shout, she said, "the singer seems to be trying to drown out the music and the music is definitely trying to drown out the singers!"

Isn't it a nice warm winter we're having this July? Wonder what is going to happen in January if it's this cold now and whether we are going to be able to afford to keep warm. Rumour says oil may go as high as $2 per gallon this winter and that's going to shoot my heating budget. Guess we'll just have to put on another layer of wool underwear and an extra pair of socks and curl up in bed to keep warm.

Maybe the old-fashioned idea of bundling did have something to say for it after all!

* * *

Guess what the reaction was when the local firemen referred to the ladies' softball team as the "hosebaggies!"

Timber Queens at Rotary luncheon

The Timber Queen candidates were guests of honour at the Rotary Club luncheon on Thursday, July 22 along with Miss Squamish Carolyn Rayfield, her chaperone Shirley Saugstad, and Thoranna Sykes who will be taking over the Timber Queen Pageant.

Each of the girls spoke briefly, introducing herself and the club or organization she represented and each Rotarian introduced his wife and guests. Special guests were Marianne Mountenay, who will be going to Mexico as an exchange student next month, and Alex Estrada, who will be returning to Mexico after spending a year in Squamish. Thoranna Sykes invited everyone to come to the Timber Queen Pageant, saying it would be in the arena and there should be lots of room for everyone and no need for anyone to be turned away.

Twelve past queens will be attending this year's celebrations and there will be eleven young ladies representing other communities. Carolyn Rayfield, Miss Squamish, told about her year as the representative of the community, the five days she presided over the Squamish celebrations with her princesses and her experiences at the PNE competition. She also spoke on the friendships made and enjoyed during the year and told the contestants that they would look back at the past month as one of the best times of their lives.

Luke Plunkett wears an Irish grin as he beams from the centre of this group of Timber Queen candidates at the annual luncheon hosted by the Squamish Rotary Club. Left right are Christine Whitehouse, Miss Squamish Firefighters; Pam Hurren, Miss Retail Merchants; Trina Gardner, Miss Royal Canadian Legion; Sofia Ciechanowski, Miss Squamish Lions; Kristin Campbell, Miss Squamish Kinsmen; Luke Plunkett, Rotary president; Colleen Quinn, Miss Chamber of Commerce; Pat Martin, Miss Chieftain; Ruth Plunkett, Miss Rotary; and the present Miss Squamish, Carolyn Rayfield.

Day Camp Highlights

Children are so amazingly creative! This was my lasting impression after assisting with the children who participated in the first session of day camp which took place last week at the Civic Centre.

Day camp theme for the week was Pioneers and Indians. Under the talented guidance of Heidi Wippich, the children excelled in producing unique projects which highlighted aspects of early Canadian lifestyles.

One group created a pioneer village, "building" cabins from cardboard, while the others designed teepees, painting fabric which they learned to lash to tripods of poles. They also built wooden tables and chairs for their village.

A hike to the Squamish estuary resulted in the children collecting berries from which they made ink and feathers which became quill pens!

Thursday, the village was assembled outdoors. The children learned how to make a campfire, bake bread and sampled "pioneer" foods cooked over an open fire.

Friday was the special events day and the sun shone brightly as the children played games, swam and picnicked at Alice Lake park. Thank you so much, Heidi Wippich and Lauren Zaharia, for your excellent leadership at day camp!

The success of this program prompts us to offer another day camp session — August 9-13, 9 a.m. to 12 noon and for six to 12-year-olds. The theme for this session will be outer space. Register now at the Civic Centre.

Cookie Monster Club

Our summer club for preschoolers has been well-attended with full sessions in July. The cookie monsters have been sighted bowling at the Garibaldi Lanes, making ice cream cones at the Dairy Queen, listening to stories at the library and baking cookies at the Civic Centre.

Many fun and exciting activities have been planned for our August sessions including special events like movies, puppet plays, baking cookies and printing t-shirts.

Children receive a membership card entitling them to attend a two-week session. Members meet Monday through Thursday, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Registrations are being taken for our next session which begins August 3. Call Carol at the Civic Centre for more information.

Notes on the estuary

If you were to go to the place where the Squamish River meets Howe Sound you would be at the estuary. As you look around you would notice that it's a very rich and important source of life in the Squamish Valley.

Perhaps the most prominent feature of the estuary is the hectares of sedge grass. This tall, reed-like grass produces about 86 per cent of the estuary's most important, primary food which is called detritus (Dee-try-tus). Basically, detritus is dead organic material which is consumed by many small animals and fish. Brackish water insects, tube worms, clams and larval fish are just some of the animals and fish that feed on this rich food.

These detritus feeders are usually consumed by the staghorn sculpin, surf smelt, starry flounder, steelhead, Dolly Varden char and other larger fish. Many birds depend on detritus feeders and fish as a major part of their diet. Because of this, the Squamish estuary is an ideal place for bird-watchers to observe ducks, herons, loons, grebes, geese and many others.

Also, in the Squamish estuary there are raptors or birds of prey. Eighteen species have been recorded in the Squamish estuary, the most well-known being the bald eagle which feeds on the salmon run in January and February.

This system of small animals being eaten by larger animals is called the food web. What begins with dead plant tissue ultimately feeds the largest creatures in the sea. That's why estuaries are sometimes called nurseries of the sea.

court news

The following cases appeared in provincial court in Squamish before Judge C. I. Walker on Tuesday, July 20.

Mark Cook, charged with taking a motor vehicle without the owner's consent, was given one year's unsupervised probation.

Noella Bourque, charged with impaired driving, was fined $500. On a further charge of having a blood alcohol reading of over .08, a stay of proceedings was issued.

Reichard Candy, charged with impaired driving, was fined $600.

David Newman, charged with failing to take a breathalyzer test, was fined $600.

Steve Darvill, charged with theft, was given one year's supervised probation with conditions.

Michael Simpson, charged with failing to provide a breath sample when requested to do so, was fined $700 and given one year's probation.
