Three killed Friday

Three men in their 20s were believed to have died instantly Friday when the truck in which they were riding left the highway seven kilometres south of Whistler.

Marco Angelo Mameli, 21, and Cameron Dean Baker, 22, both of Squamish and Giovanni Anthony Barone, 25, of New Westminster, were victims of the accident. They were travelling south from Pemberton in a 1971 Ford pickup when the vehicle left the road.

The accident is believed to have occurred early Friday morning, but Whistler police are appealing to the public for assistance. Anyone who may have seen the truck travelling south on Highway 99 from Pemberton after 2 a.m. Friday is asked to contact Cst. Fortin or Cst. Grab at the Whistler RCMP detachment, 932-3044.

Details are scarce to date, but more information will be released following autopsies in North Vancouver Monday.

Woodfibre mill back to normal

Pickets went up at Darrell Bay Nov. 1 when the BCGEU went out on strike, but that is not affecting Western Forest Products' mill at Woodfibre.

Workers are being ferried from a private dock at Britannia Beach and though pickets went up there on Nov. 2 they did not stay. Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada had been locked out until Oct. 28 and the plant was to be back in operation Nov. 1 when the government employees union went off the job. The ferry at Darrell Bay carries workers back and forth from Woodfibre and is operated by the ministry of highways.

When pickets went up at Britannia Beach, WFP went to the Labour Relations Board requesting an informal hearing as it believed the BCGEU pickets were illegal in Britannia. However, before it got to that stage, BCGEU admitted its mistake and removed pickets.

Everything is back to normal at the mill now with employees back on regular shifts as of Nov. 4.

Jury commended the wrong group

Following the coroner's inquest on the Alberta Creek disaster in February of this year a report commended the North Vancouver Search and Rescue team for the part it played in the tragedy.

Cst. C. Daugherty contacted Coroner Doug Jacks and advised him that the commendation was in error.

The North Vancouver group was not instrumental in finding the bodies of the two young men trapped in the trailer by the flash flood. It was the Squamish Search and Rescue group which had played a leading part in the disaster.

It was the Squamish Search and Rescue group which should have been commended for its action.

Estuary management plan implemented

Future use of the Squamish estuary will be managed to protect the environment, fish and fish habitat, according to a joint statement issued last week by federal Minister of Fisheries and Oceans Pierre de Bane and B.C. Environment Minister Tony Brummett.

B.C.'s long term trade, development and energy requirements will also be taken into consideration.

The two governments have agreed to implement a Squamish estuary management plan which was the product of a two-year study on the use of the estuary.

The plan calls for a review of all development proposals by a coordinating committee made up of local, provincial and federal government representatives and the B.C. Railway.

The plan also proposes that tracts of land be designated for specific uses such as industrial, commercial and conservation. Policy guidelines are proposed for the entire estuary management area and specific guidelines will be provided for each land classification.

All developments will be subject to an environmental impact review.

The plan also provides for the appointment of an implementation co-ordinator who will act as a contact between the various government agencies, industry and the public.

Both ministers agreed that the management plan provides substantial areas of conservation reserve and overall environmental protection for the entire estuary while recognizing the immediate needs related to industrial development.

Frank Collard, president of Squamish Terminals, a company which would like to develop a second berth in the estuary, told the Times on Thursday he was pleased to see some decision had been made.

"At least we now know what route we have to follow to get any development on the estuary."

Picketing teachers found a way to keep warm (above) on the second day of their strike last week. They huddled around the fire pit outside Howe Sound Secondary in an attempt to fend off some of the wind and rain evident throughout the week. And others, like the B.C. government employees outside the liquor store (top right), found another way to fight off the chill.

Truce called: Everyone back to work

By JANICE LEVY

The escalating strike which began in B.C. Nov. 1 when government employees set up picket lines was halted late Sunday night, shortly before civic workers, B.C. ferry workers, B.C. Rail employees and ICBC were set to walk.

IWA president Jack Munro and Premier Bill Bennett met Sunday night and emerged to tell the province that a means of consultation had been found and the strike would be called off.

Other Sunday developments included an announced agreement with ferry workers and BCGEU exemption from controversial Bill Squamish were promised as part of their strike at 12:01 a.m. Monday and the municipality had arrived at some understanding with CUPE local 2269 for emergency response to major flooding.

However, services provided to the public would have been severely curtailed with only five department heads and one secretary manning municipal hall.

In addition, CUPE had set up office space in the Moloughney building at Third and Victoria in the event the strike could not be averted.

All those plans have now gone by the wayside with no stoppage of work by civic employees.

The school board had also started action Thursday on an injunction to restrain teachers from picketing and to prohibit the withdrawal of services. A Labour Relations Board ruling to prevent picketing by members of the non-teaching staff was proceeding too and the school board had scheduled a meeting Monday morning for further discussion.

Last week, board chairman Jim MacDonald explained the injunction by saying, "Frankly I don't see any other way of handling it."

He went on to say the strike by teachers was tantamount to anarchy with feelings running high. It is an "emotional issue that should be directed at the club being held for the government," MacDonald commented.

The board did not seek an injunction immediately because, according to MacDonald, "It may have created a hell of a lot more hard feelings in the future."

The cooling off period was considered the best way to go at a board meeting last Tuesday, but by Thursday the decision was made to start action on an injunction.

The board also let its principals, who are members of the B.C. Teachers' Federation, know it expected them to stay on the job, but the chairman said the board had "done our best not to threaten anyone, but we do want the schools open."

The Howe Sound Teachers

School board chairman Jim MacDonald.

Association, the local BCTF organization, provided a list to the Times entitled "This is what we're fighting for..."

1. Fair treatment and due process for teachers if layoffs are necessary.
2. School services to be maintained at least at their present levels over the next three years;
3. Restoration of collective bargaining rights for all teachers, including principals;
4. A halt to centralization of educational decision-making in Victoria;
5. Access to post secondary for all qualified students;
6. Restoration of social, democratic and human rights for all British Columbians;
7. No punitive action against anyone on strike or opposed to it.

President of the HSTA, Audrey Rhodes, talked to the Times Thursday about the political protest its members were staging.

"We don't not believe in restraint," she said, "but the government doesn't have its priorities straight."

"We've gone through everything else we could think of — letters, telegrams, marching in protests, trying to negotiate with the government. Nothing has worked."

"We're watching the education system being destroyed and no one's listening."

She said no one is attempting to prevent anyone from crossing picket lines set up, but the president also feels the public does not understand the teachers' fight.

Rhodes explained that the education system has gone through two years of cutbacks already and the time was ripe now to strike because "as an organization we don't really have the clout and we haven't been able to make people aware."

She says the "so-called frills are gone" from education and pointed out that by 1986 school boards will be facing a 25 per cent reduction in real money. Teachers are protesting now to make the future for students better.

The teachers' association is "not in full agreement, but we respect their demand" in teachers crossing picket lines.

Principals stayed in schools in the district Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday; the last two days they were picketing before and after school in support of the strike.

Rhodes wanted to make it clear that the protest was against the entire legislative package, all 28 bills, and no one specific issue.

"Education must continue to improve, not go backwards," said Rhodes, adding that teachers are trying to make sure the level of education does not decline further.

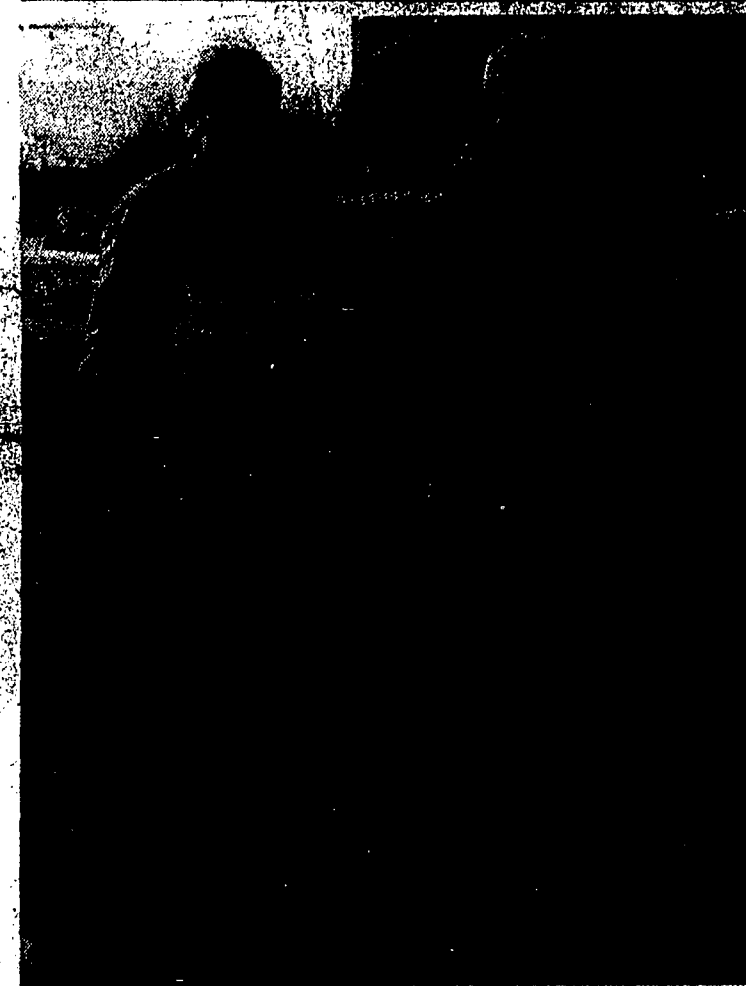

The association president said she has two daughters who are teachers and grandchildren in the system before stating, "I want there to be an education system left for them."

And we may never know what HSTA would have done if an injunction had been served.

Rhodes knew Thursday that the school board was seeking an injunction; that could have taken up to five days to get, but did not want to comment on the association's move had that happened.

"At present I don't know what we'll do," she said Thursday. "There could be a resolution over the weekend." And that is what happened.

The truce, though stated to be temporary depending upon progress of the consultation scheduled, has been called.

Board investigating election methods

The board of school trustees will appoint a committee to investigate alternate methods of electing trustees from the outlying area and bring a report to the January meeting.

Chairman T.J. MacDonald made this decision following discussion on a letter from Mayor W.J. Elliott regarding the election of representatives. Elliott suggested representation should be by population; he wondered why Squamish with 10,272 population has only three trustees, Pemberton with 287 has one trustee, Whistler with 1,370 has one trustee and the area north of Pemberton has one trustee for 1,682 population. Britannia and Upper Squamish have one trustee for 464 people.

He suggested Britannia and Upper Squamish be placed on the Squamish voters' list and four trustees be allocated to the Squamish area.

He suggested that Garibaldi and Whistler be joined for the purpose of electing a trustee and that Pemberton and outlying areas could also elect one trustee. He suggested this would leave one more trustee at large for Squamish thus bringing the representation closer to the population.

Trustees were quick to disagree with the mayor's suggestion. Trustee Betty Shore said she is as concerned about what happens in Squamish as what happens in Pemberton or elsewhere.

"We need people from every area when it comes to making decisions," she added.

Trustee Bob Mallet pointed out that if four or more of the seven-member board came from Squamish there would be a possibility for Squamish to control the board.

Chairman MacDonald said it was far less likely for the people in the four other areas to gang up on the three from Squamish.

Trustee Don Wilson said he felt the method of electing representatives at school meetings who selected the trustee from their group was too cumbersome and it would be better to have the trustee elected from the area at the regional district elections.

Other trustees agreed this might be a better way and the possibility should be investigated.

Students cross line to 'respect the law'

By JANICE LEFFLER

Seven teachers, some students and parents crossed the picket lines set up by the Howe Sound Teachers' Association and support staff Nov. 8.

Marsha Drake and her three sons were amongst those who made the move in the belief that education is the right of students. "We're trying to get our education," said Mike, Matthew and Bill Drake.

They attend Howe Sound Secondary School and when the Times spoke to them last Tuesday, they said they intended to continue going to school as long as it was open.

The three boys, in grades nine, ten and 12, do not think it is fair that a strike should affect them. The law dictates that they go to school and the law should be respected, they said.

"Everything is interrupted. It puts a big kink in everything and everyone is going to be behind," the students said. It did not bother them to cross the picket line, but they were a little afraid at first because they were not sure what to expect from those on the picket line.

"No one seems to want to look us in the eye so I sort of wonder if they believe in what they're doing," one of the youngsters expressed.

Though they said they understood the strike, they do not agree with it.

"This is a way of expressing themselves, but I think it should be done differently."

The boys were accompanied to and from school by their mother who was a full time teacher at one time.

"I respect people with the courage of their convictions, but I'm having problems with peer pressure," said Marsha. "A lot of people are succumbing to peer pressure."

However, she views obeying the government as important and intends to teach her children that as she is convinced "democracy begins in the home."

"Teachers have a responsibility to those they're teaching and I have a responsibility to teach my children responsibly."

While Marsha does not agree with the government's methods, she does agree with the government's "right to govern."

"I'd like to see democracy work. If our children behaved this way we'd send them to their respective rooms, but because we're adults we make excuses."

She feels her children belong in school, "even though 'we're hurting ourselves with this', and if there is a teacher who has the courage to attend school while the pickets are up that is where her sons will be."

There was one teacher in the classroom at Howe Sound Secondary all last week while his colleagues walked the picket line. Deulf Rudolph "thought very long and hard about this. It was a personal decision... a matter of conscience."

He told the Times Nov. 8, the first day of the strike, that he respects people on the picket line and what they are doing. He told the other teachers in the school what his decision was ahead of time.

"I wasn't sure when the decision would come for me," he replied when asked whether it was a matter that could be decided much ahead of time or whether it came at the last moment.

"I felt this is where I should be. I just felt it was an action I couldn't participate in."

However, he does object to the government's method and is letting Premier Bill Bennett know that. He refers to it as an ideological change that is being tagged as restraint.

Rudolph sent a letter to the premier with copies to everyone, denouncing the government actions that led to the present situation. Another letter went to the B.C. Teachers' Federation, locally the Howe Sound Teachers' Association, "deploring the work stoppage" in the district.

"The most regrettable thing here," in Rudolph's opinion, "is that it has split people apart. That should never have happened."

Bed and breakfast a possibility here

Bed and breakfast in Squamish anyone? It is not possible now, but is a likely bet in the future with the approach of Expo 86.

Municipal council has approved the concept in principle and directed its bylaw committee to pursue provisions in the zoning bylaw to make such operations allowable.

It is municipal affairs' recognition of expansion in the tourism industry that sparked council's action at its Tuesday meeting.

The senior planner, development services branch of municipal affairs, advised the district it is producing a set of guidelines for local government on the issue of bed and breakfast accommodation which is "particularly relevant to our expectation of the influx of visitors for Transpo '86."

"We would like to know how your board or council views the development of the industry, in what way it should be regulated and where in the community you feel it most appropriate for such accommodations," Robyn Addison wrote.

In a press release issued earlier this year, tourism minister Claude Richmond urged B.C. communities to actively participate in Expo 86.

He anticipates $3 billion will be generated in the province by the fair and more than $260 million of that will be derived through tourism.

Richmond suggests outlying communities offer accommodation to tourists while they are visiting Expo 86 and says housing will be a major challenge as downtown Vancouver cannot provide enough.

Also, communities can provide a "unique holiday experience" before or after Expo visits by tourists.

Tourism is B.C.'s third largest industry. It brings in over $2 billion in revenue to 10,000 businesses and more than 70,000 B.C. residents are employed directly in the industry.

Richmond, tourism and Expo 86 minister, says communities marketing for tourism the year before Expo 86 should highlight any special festival or events they host which have natural ties to the transportation theme of the fair, such as Victoria's classic boat show and Nanaimo's bathtub race, as well as emphasizing year round attractions.

Few cross lines at district schools

The Times contacted each school in the Squamish area last Tuesday, the first day of the teachers' strike, to determine if any students or teachers has reported for regular classes.

B.C. Teachers' Federation, locally Howe Sound Teachers' Association, recorded that of 190 teachers in the Howe Sound district there were seven on the job with a full complement at Myrtle Philip Elementary in Whistler and one at Signal Hill in Pemberton.

There was also one teacher at Howe Sound Secondary and about 15 students arrived the first morning. A class in computer science and a loosely supervised study in the library took place.

Transportation was one of the problems for students in getting to Howe Sound Secondary and principal Norm Rutherford commented, "We all have to be really concerned about antagonisms" because once the strike is over the schools must run smoothly.

"It's certainly going to hurt students," he added. "It's just hard to tell how much."

At Brackendale Elementary there were no teachers.

Some parents and about a dozen students arrived in the morning and left the school.

No teachers were inside Brackendale Secondary and there was only one student in the school who read in the library.

Some students arrived with parents at Garibaldi Highlands in the morning, but when they saw there was no supervision they left. Principal Jim Spencer said some parents told him of their displeasure with the situation.

At Mamquam Elementary three students worked on assignments they had been given the previous day.

There were no teachers or students at Squamish Elementary and Stawamus Elementary could not be contacted for a report.

No teachers, some parents and about four students in for a short time in the morning was the word from Valleycliffe Elementary.

Teachers and CUPE support staff sporting signs were close mouthed when we asked them for comment Tuesday. They referred the Times to spokesmen at strike headquarters in the Masonic Hall in Squamish.

Forest fires down in 1983

Forest fires in B.C. in 1983 totalled 1,687, well below the annual average of 2,200.

However, 67 per cent of this number was caused by people, which is above average.

The highest number of fire reports came from the public through the Zenith 5555 telephone number.

H.G. Doerksen, director of protection branch of the B.C. Forest Service, gave much of the credit for making the fire reporting system work to community newspapers.

sawdust & shavings

Did you notice the picture of Popcorn the cat who was looking for a good home in last week's paper? He found a niche in someone's heart and home. Charlotte Clarke says he found a Triple-A home and she is delighted with the response to the picture.

Signs of the times: Last Tuesday the traffic lights at the intersection leading to Squamish were not working. They kept blinking red and yellow and with the highway workers out, there was no one to fix them.

However, by mid-morning on Wednesday someone had come around to put them back in working order again.

A tip of the Tatlow hat to the local motorists for showing courtesy at a hazardous corner.

Building permits up

In the first ten months of 1983 building permits continue to show an increase over 1982 figures, but the October statistics declined.

The total value of 14 permits in October 1983 was $72,400 compared to 17 permits valued at $74,610 in 1982. Fees collected in October last year were $456 and in 1983, $419.

However, when the ten months ending October 31 are analyzed, the building value is much greater in 1983 with a total of $3,676,718, more than $2 million above the first ten months in 1982.

The number of permits issued this year is 173; last year it was 118. Building figures in 1983 show the only decline throughout the year in the value of commercial permits — from six for $457,216 in 1982 to seven for $136,100 in 1983.

Hospital construction accounts for the majority of the increase in this year's statistics. Five permits issued, with a permit value of $1,809,200, resulted in collection of $3,748 in fees by the district.

Prizes offered for naming building

Can you think of a suitable name for the new building rising beside Squamish General Hospital? If you can and the three-member committee chooses it, you could win $25 and dinner for two at the Logger's Inn.

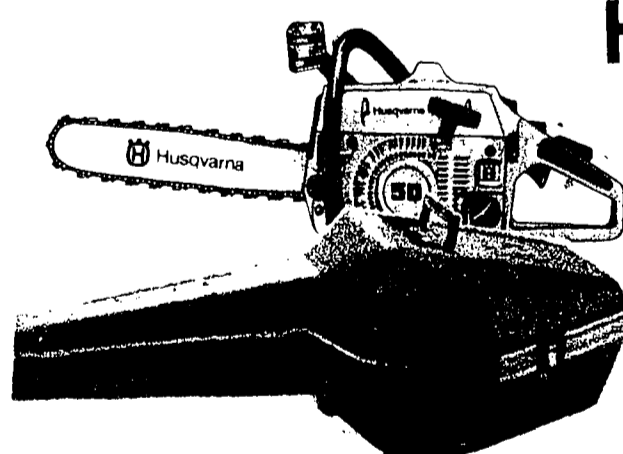

Squamish Intermediate Care Facility sounds too cold and it's too long and while the intermediate and long term care will be part of the new hospital complex to be the local health care centre, that's too much of a mouthful as well. So a new name is being sought.

Surely someone should be able to come up with a winning combination for a name for the building.

Names can be dropped off at the Times in a sealed envelope marked "Name Contest". The contest closes on Nov. 26 and the winner will be announced at the next meeting of the board on Dec. 5.

Candidates address subdued crowd

The all candidates meeting Wednesday as a prologue to the Saturday municipal election was relatively quiet despite unrest in the community and the province; about 160 people turned out to see what these running for office had to say.

Those vying for the two-year term as school trustee — Shirley Brown, Terrill Patterson and Don Wilson, — making opening statements, answering questions and summarizing their platforms.

Shirley Brown, speaking first, emphasized the importance of receiving value for dollars spent and added, in response to a question, that she favours collective bargaining for teachers.

How do you have influence on the government in light of restraint in all sectors, including teachers and others being held to no increase?

Brown said the question is difficult to answer because the amount of money given out is clouded.

"The school board has to lobby and cover every means of getting money from the government, then [the board] has to spend it wisely," she said.

None of the school board candidates felt centralization of power in Victoria is a good idea.

"The power has to stay in the community because that is where the needs are known," was Brown's reply.

Terrill Patterson simply answered that Victoria has the power now and "they don't want to use it".

"I completely disagree with centralization. [The government] doesn't seem to run anything very well and I think the board will do everything it can to oppose that," said Don Wilson.

Wilson, who is ending his one-year term as trustee, said he did not run for school board to do battle with the provincial government, but "it has turned out to be almost a constant battle."

He said he is on the school board to help teach students.

"I do not believe teachers are right to be striking. They should be teaching," he told the audience and received a spontaneous round of applause.

He does not agree with anyone who prevents children from being in school where they belong.

He explained the school board has been meeting daily in an attempt to figure out a solution and get schools operating again.

"I cannot personally go out and drag teachers back in, although it may come to that," he said, while adding that the five days taken off by teachers last year was because of a lack of money. "We have the money now."

Future cutbacks will have to be to the tune of about $100,000 because that is what the deficit for next year is, but "hopefully we can do it without curtailing teachers," said Wilson.

How will you help stop erosion of the education system? Wilson says the board is trying to act through the B.C. School Trustees' Association, but he thinks there will be "some lean years" ahead.

"Unless the provincial government gets more money in, it can't pay it out."

Patterson commented that now that teachers are off the job, trustees "could try to set an example" and said teachers think they already have "collective bargaining."

Aldermanic

Three people are looking toward filling the one-year council seat left vacant by the resignation of Joanne Dheilly. Keith Koch, Corinne Lonsdale and Lorraine McKillop would like the position.

Koch has run before, but stated he is not a quitter. He says more jobs for residents, especially young people, are needed in the district and sales in the industrial park and more tourist dollars must be pursued.

Koch has been in business for himself for 15 years and is now semi-retired. He says to fill the industrial park and have young people stay in the district are important future goals.

Lonsdale is most concerned with marketing the industrial park. Also, she believes to be able to expand, businesses need more parking in the downtown area.

She says a woman's point of view is important on council because men and women have a different way of looking at things.

Lonsdale has been treasurer for minor baseball and has been in banking for 20 years. She cites developing the industrial park and tourism, letting businesses downtown expand and keeping children in Squamish as priorities in the future.

Sales in the industrial park and increasing the tourist dollar were cited by McKillop as primary concerns. She is a fitness and weight training instructor and considers a covered swimming pool and attracting business to the industrial park among her future goals.

Ron Barr, Wilf Dowad, Lawrence Minchin, Terrill Patterson and Egon Tobus are vying for the three two-year terms coming open on council. Barr, Minchin and Tobus are incumbents.

Remembrance Day ceremony takes on air of new battle

Rain and the CUPE strike combined for a change of venue for this year's annual Remembrance Day ceremonies which were held in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall instead of in the high school as in the past.

The annual march, scheduled to have been held from the Highlands Mall to the Legion, was cancelled due to heavy rain and the marchers lined up in the hallway, to proceed into the main room led by the Squamish Kinsmen Pipe Band and the color party, along with two scarlet coated RCMP, the president of the Legion and the Auxiliary and ministers who took part in the ceremony.

Cst. Mike Aubrey and Cst. Perry Penney led the parade, followed by Legion president Dave Watt and Auxiliary president Rosa Smith. The 1983 pastors, Rev. J. Purdie, Rev. F. Paine, Rev. J. Lindquist and Rev. C.R. Walters, were followed by the color party consisting of Helen Lehman, Colin Nicholson, Bill Curran and Pam Smith and the cadet color party consisting of Cpl. Jennifer Jackson, LAC Curtis Persics and LAC John Gully.

Pipe Maor Ian Walker played the Lament which was followed by the two minute silence and the roll call of the fallen.

Prayers were offered by Rev. C.R. Walters and Rev. F. Paine issued the call to worship with Rev. J. Purdie giving the Scripture reading.

In his message, Rev. J. Lindquist said this is the first time Remembrance Day observances have not been held in our schools.

"Are we not in danger of selling out our birthright?" he asked. "Battle lines have been drawn and both sides are entrenched."

"There will be casualties. After the battle scars have healed we may find that what has been lost will far outweigh the gains."

"Have we lost our birthright? Have we lost what we have fought so hard for in the bloody battles of this century? The scars will remain long after the guns have been silenced and the dust of battle has settled."

"When the screams and guns are silent can we ever be friends again? Can there ever be any hope of communication?"

"People are given all sorts of solutions but who is giving a spiritual message?"

Referring to his fellow ministers, he added, "We represent the Christian community of Squamish and we see the hope of the future in Christ. We can be soldiers of peace. Seek first the Kingdom of God and his righteousness and then we will have all."

Branch bugler O.C.D.T. S. Dawson played the Last Post and Reveille and the Last Post. Ethel Jean Gray played music for the service.

Wreaths were laid at the cenotaph at the Legion Hall and downtown.

No one wins

Win and lose are not words that should be used to describe settlement of labour unrest in British Columbia.

After 13 days of BCGEU and teachers' strikes, it is good to see an end to the battle before further escalation. The word literally came at the eleventh hour — 11 p.m. Sunday. Civic workers, ICBC, B.C. ferry workers and B.C. Rail were set to go at 12:01 Monday. The only point that was agreed upon is that consultation should take place. That, with the BCGEU settlement, was enough to avert escalation.

However, deputy minister Norman Spector said a fair agreement had been reached though few details were being made public. Also the government's plan to reduce the public sector by 25 per cent will still occur.

For his part Cliff Andstein, BCGEU negotiator, immediately began talking of winning. He was "proud to report a no-concessions agreement" had been reached in settlement of the government employees' collective agreement. His implication that the union won is reprehensible. It does not set a desirable tone leading into what is hoped will be a productive consultation period.

The nature of the animal does not allow for a winner. The escalating protest by Operation Solidarity makes the province and the strikers losers.

The province loses in the sense that labour unrest such as B.C. is known for throughout North America, possibly the world, can only serve to present a well earned skepticism and lack of confidence from investors brought about by the unstable atmosphere. Is government or union in control in the province?

Strikers, legal or illegal, whether in support of other unions or federations or for their own gains, lose credibility and respect in the eye of the public and that is the very sector unions should attempt to satisfy in order to get a sympathetic ear.

Government is elected to govern. When that principle is abandoned in favour of special interest groups that attempt to prevent the government from fulfilling its duty to the general populace chaos — as we have seen — results.

Union strength in this province is out of hand. Membership, not union leaders, suffer. They let themselves be led by those who dream of greater things such as political confrontation and visions of personal grandeur.

Unions must realize they cannot dictate to the elected government.

Consultation is the method that should have been used in the first place. A lot of hard feelings could have been avoided if it had. Government restraint should have been staged over a period of time. Instead the Socreds chose to be heavy-handed.

We agree with government restraint. When one in four B.C. workers is employed by provincial coffers something is drastically wrong.

But winners and losers? We believe time will provide that answer and it is likely to be no more than a draw.

The best we can hope for is that the Socreds do not abandon their restraint program and that the psychological games of the past months, and indeed years, are over.

howe soundings

It's surprising the things you find when you start to clean out some cupboards and drawers. I've been on a great big cleaning spree for the last few months and you wouldn't believe the stuff I've hoarded over the years. One of them was a clipping by Jean Howarth, a Province columnist in the 40's, in which she talked about a recent visit to Squamish.

When we reactivated the Squamish Fall Fair just after the war years, we asked Mrs. Howarth to come up and open the fair. It was the first time she had visited Squamish and she seemed pleased with her trip. She went back to the city and wrote two glowing columns about Squamish and then a few weeks later had another column which I'm going to print.

The Hugh Morrison she mentions was the brother of Johnny Morrison who was the manager of Mackenzie's Department Store in Squamish. He was also a teacher and taught me the first year I attended school in Squamish. He later went on to work for the provincial and federal governments.

Jean Howarth's column reads:

The little story of my visit to Squamish touched off a string of recollections in the head of H.M. Morrison, chairman of the Civil Service Commission in Victoria. Mr. Morrison knows a great deal more about Squamish than I do, and is therefore, a great deal fonder of the spot than I have yet learned to be.

But let him say it: "I read with nostalgic interest your article on Squamish, wherein you expressed my own feelings about that jewel snugly fitted at the head of Howe Sound."

"Back in the mid-twenties I was the school principal there. We were the architects of our own social planning and intercourse. I have always thought that one of these community sociologists could pick no better spot than Squamish to make a study of a small Canadian community."

He Liked Squamish, Too

"I remember the first May Queen celebration, sponsored by the local lodge of Elks; the baseball games which gave the best amateur teams from Vancouver worthwhile competition on sunny Sunday afternoons; holiday sport days and the special balls such as the PGE employees' annual ball, where each succeeding year was declared 'the best ever'."

"Woe betide any citizen who slipped up and did not support each event; he or she was considered for a time as a virtual outcast."

"Many interesting and great characters have lived and are still living in the Squamish Valley. There was the grand old man, Bill Mashiter, after whom the school was named. There are Dave Galbraith and Harry Judd, also pioneers and still living in their beloved valley."

"The last time I was privileged to visit Squamish I saw Alex Munro, who, through the years, has probably built more than half the buildings in the community. Roderick Mackenzie, now the 'laird of Williams Lake' laid the foundation of his progressive PGE mercantile business in Squamish."

"Les Dixon, now the brain behind educational training in the sawmill industry, toiled in an early Squamish sawmill. He was also the greatest third baseman ever developed in a series of great Squamish teams."

And the Children Stay Lovely

"There are many others too numerous to mention, such as Charlie Knox, now proprietor of the Elk Hotel at Comox. Jack Castle, chief clerk in the PGE Squamish office, Dr. N.J. Paul, who would not forsake Squamish despite beckonings from more lucrative fields, and Ernie Reeves, the Dominion telegraph operator who used to tell us when the Union boat had left Britannia in order to lesson our wait at the end of the dock."

"Yes, Squamish has character, but I fear, as you do, that it may be submerged when the road is built. Let us hope that its traditions will help it to survive to a good degree the approaching contact with the big city. Time will tell. Are our fears justified, or are you and I just growing old?"

"P.S. — I thoroughly agree with you about the lovely children. That is another characteristic of Squamish, and the female children do not lose their loveliness with age."

Now there, Squamish, is a handsome bouquet if I ever saw one.

Since the time that was written in September of 1947 the changes Mr. Morrison foresaw have come to pass. Squamish did grow with the advent of the road and many of us feel that in that growth we have lost something of the self-sufficiency and the closeness of the past.

But Squamish is still a community which believes in doing things for itself and you simply have to look around the community to see the proof.

There is the swimming pool, built with community effort and labour, the golf course, mute witness to the efforts of a dedicated group of people who brought this million dollar asset to Squamish; the soccer fields, started as a Centennial project with help from the community; the airport, the Squamish Yacht Club and many others.

Local people and dedicated workers have built the loggers sports ground, the RV park alongside it, and they laid the foundation for the present park at Alice Lake.

Perhaps we should think of the efforts made by these groups in this day of expecting everything to be done for us. A return to the days when we went out and built something if we want it may be long overdue.

Board answers parents' questions on the strike

The board of school trustees listened to concerned parent Elizabeth Cook, who expressed her worries about the withdrawal of services by the local branch of the BCTF, at last Wednesday's meeting.

Cook asked the board what steps it was planning to take the deal with the problem and chairman F.J. MacDonald said the board is "in the process of asking for an injunction and hopes to have schools open on Tuesday."

Cook asked if teachers had indicated any willingness to come back before that date.

District superintendent of schools Trevor Harris said the board met on Tuesday with the local BCTF group and they had not expressed any willingness to do so.

Another member of the public said she thought there were "an awful lot of teachers who want to go back."

Cook also asked what the teachers and board had been discussing and MacDonald said teachers had been asked what they wanted.

Cook said her children had been in school, but she had to cross a picket line.

Another parent, Moira Biggin-Pound, asked if the board was going to make a statement about what is upsetting the teachers.

MacDonald said they had not addressed themselves to those problems.

"On or about Nov. 15," he said, "the board will be making some hard decisions. They can be reviewed and discussed at that time. We want to stay as open as possible but don't want to get people's hopes up. But we do want to keep the public aware of what is going on."

The following letter was sent to Dave Currie, regional engineer of CBC, by the Squamish Valley Music Society. It is accompanied by a response from the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Music society requests action

Editor, The Times:

The Squamish Valley Music Society represents in part that segment of the community interested in serious music.

The board of directors has on several past occasions discussed the scarcity of radio programs in Squamish which cater to this audience. This issue has now come up again, so it seemed time to contact you.

On behalf of the community we are asking you to consider the installation of a transmitter carrying CBC Stereo FM for the Howe Sound area. At present, the Mount Seymour signal is almost totally lost along the highway north of Horseshoe Bay.

In Squamish there is no way to pick up a listenable signal. Thus your programs which are enjoyed by people in Vancouver as well as other small communities are unavailable here.

Does the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation have any plans for providing CBC Stereo service to this area?

There is a local FM station broadcasting pop-rock, whose 2500 Watt transmitter covers the mountainous area between Horseshoe Bay and the Cheakamus Canyon very well. This broadcast is available to residents in the area as well as to the thousands of travellers who use the highway as far as Whistler.

If a transmitter with similar power were installed for CBC FM, your programs would provide an alternative for people wanting more serious music. The calibre of CBC programming is very high, which makes it very desirable. I might emphasize that we are not asking for the CBC-AM broadcast to be moved to the FM band, but for a separate stereo service.

In addition, the Squamish CBC-AM slave transmitter has such a weak signal that it can barely be picked up in Brackendale or other areas outside downtown. At night it virtually disappears as strong distant stations overpower it.

Are there any plans to improve the AM signal, and if not, may we ask that this be considered also? The present situation is quite poor.

We realize that some discussions have taken place on these matters before. We would like to add our separate plea, and hope you will receive these requests favourably.

The size of the community and the travelling populace justifies in our opinion a better broadcast service for our area.

Roseanna Rudolph, President
Squamish Valley Music Society

Editor, The Times:

We plan to operate an FM stereo transmitter from Saltspring Island to serve Victoria. Coverage from that site should provide a good signal into Squamish.

Our application is presently before the CRTC but a hearing date has not yet been set.

Your support is appreciated.
Dave W. Currie, P.Eng.
B.C. Regional Engineer

Chamber urges return to work

The following letter was issued by the B.C. Chamber of Commerce Nov. 8.

Editor, The Times:

We the citizens of British Columbia are being held to ransom by an illegal strike by the teachers and by a series of picketing by unions while negotiations are going on between the government and union representatives.

Our system of law and order must be protected at all costs and capitulation by the government is tantamount to accepting a state of anarchy to prevail. The government must stand firm in its resolution to bring the province back to a state of financial security that must not be influenced by the actions of those minority groups responsible for our current problems today.

By negotiating a new contract, the Ferry Union Workers reached a satisfactory settlement with the government, and this should set a pattern for BCGEU negotiations.

We, the B.C. Chamber of Commerce, representing the business community of British Columbia, as well as the silent majority of B.C., urge those participating in strike action to reconsider and return to work to allow the process of negotiation at the bargaining table to continue.

President
Chamber of Commerce

Chevron record shows fairness

Editor, The Times:

Chevron Canada Limited (successor to Standard Oil Company of British Columbia Limited) has established over the past forty-eight years an enviable record of excellent relationships with our dealers, among the best in the industry.

You can, therefore, perhaps understand our distress at reading your editorial in the November 1st edition entitled "Big company clout."

Your editorial stated that our company declined to comment publicly on the matter. It then went on to conclude that in the absence of a public explanation people tend to "fear and loathe" big companies.

I rather much doubt the correctness of your conclusion because our experience is that our customers and the general public, by and large, are aware of our excellent track record of fairness in all our business relationships.

They also know that there are usually two sides to every story. We regret that the particular dealer concerned chose to go public with his complaints.

The fact that he did so was not sufficient justification at that time, in our opinion, for us to air in public what is essentially a private dispute. We continue to hold that opinion today and it is further reinforced by the fact that the matter may very well end up before the courts.

In conclusion, let me assure you and your readers that our company's concern for dealer relations is not affected in any way by the size of the city or town in which our service stations are located. We have no "small cog" dealers.

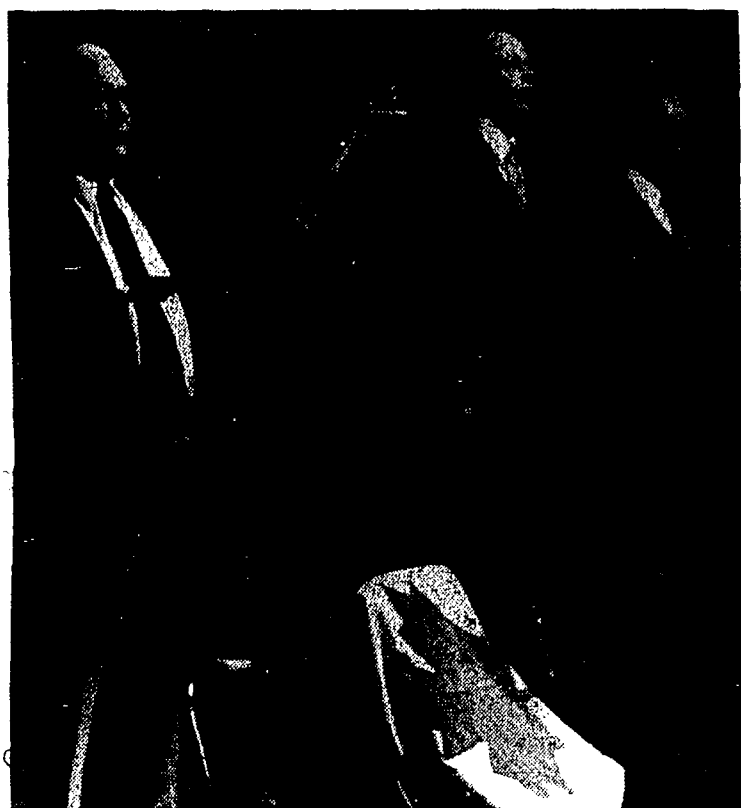

R.D. Jolly
Manager, Public Affairs
Division, Chevron Canada Limited

Times policy

Letters to the editor must be accompanied by an address and telephone number so they can be verified and may be edited for brevity and clarity.

Squamish Times will not print letters from organizations or individuals thanking others. We feel that is a function to be handled by our advertising department.

We welcome letters to the editor on current events and public opinion and would not like to see our readers stop expressing their views publicly. Our advertising staff will be happy to assist you with a small display ad to communicate your gratitude.

Tentative joint use agreement reached

A new joint use agreement between the municipality and school district is in the process of being drafted.

Tentative agreement has been reached, according to recreation director Grant Dickey, who says mutual planning for future facilities has been agreed upon so the district, by pooling resources of the two bodies, will have the best possible facilities.

Alderman Ron Barr said though there was a joint use agreement last year, municipal council felt it was too one-sided.

"I must admit it's [the one being drafted] a little better than previous ones. At least we're acknowledged as having facilities," he told council last week.

The proposed agreement will be examined by joint use committee members before going to municipal council and school board for final ratification. Both sides want the matter settled prior to finalization of their respective budgets.

In the past the municipality has paid the school district for use of recreational facilities in schools and the adult education coordinator; the feeling was that the municipality was not being credited for its recreational facilities.

Weldwood sales show 1983 increase

Weldwood of Canada reports a net income over the first nine months of 1983 compared with a net loss in the same period in 1982.

Income for the year to the end of September 1983 amounted to $10,359,000, or $2.11 per share, on sales of $446,078,000. A net loss of $12,770,000, or $2.61 per share, on sales of $308,891,000 to September 1982 was recorded.

Third quarter net income in 1983 was $2,237,000, up on a loss of $5,553,000 last year. Sales for the quarter were up as well reaching $151,863,000 in 1983 after 1982 sales of $100,109,000.

Wood products markets deteriorated during the third quarter after an upturn that lasted through the first half of the year, according to Tom Buell, company president and chief executive officer.

He added that sluggish world pulp markets prevented a much-needed pulp price increase; but there is reason to be more optimistic about improvement in market conditions throughout 1984.

Buell expressed hope that the current labour contract negotiations in the province are brought to a successful conclusion so the industry can continue participating in the fragile recovery without disruption as it develops.

Election 1983: The Candidates

Alderman 1 year One to be elected

Keith Koch

First of all, I would like to tell you about myself. I have lived in Squamish for 10 years.

I am married and have one son, three daughters and one grandson. I own and operate Spiral Mobile Home Park.

My work and business experience is quite varied. I have been a salesman, mill worker, truck driver, oil rig roughneck, railroader, sales clerk, firefighter, building contractor and finally settling here in Squamish in my own business.

I have been active with the Brackendale Ratepayers Association and marched with this group in protest because of the lack of dyking. I'll fight hard to get all the dykes in Brackendale, Mamquam and Valleycliffe completed.

I've been active with the Squamish Yacht Club for the past four years, becoming commodore in 1981-82. This club provides valuable facilities for our citizens. For example, the boat launching ramp was built for free public use by the members of this club.

I have always been interested in politics and feel sincerely that I can contribute to the growth and planning of our community. I know I have a lot of experience in various fields and also have plenty of management and financial experience.

There are many things to be done in Squamish. Dyking must be completed. Sales in the industrial park must be promoted vigorously. Downtown parking and other problems must be solved, and the big problem, keep taxes as low as possible.

Ladies and gentlemen, a vote for me is a vote for experience, fairness and action. On November 19 vote for Keith Koch.

Lorraine McKillop

As a resident of Squamish, I want to see our community develop in a manner that will benefit the entire community.

I have been chairman of the Squamish parks and recreation commission for approximately one and one half years, volunteering my time for the community.

I believe that the way to get things done is by getting directly involved in the decision-making process. By this reasoning, and my experience with municipal administration through the commission, I hope to contribute my energy and dedication to Council.

Among the projects I would like to become involved in are:

1. Industrial Park Promotion
2. A covered community swimming pool
3. Improved utilization of existing recreation facilities
4. A concentrated effort to expand the tourist industry

A vote for me will be a vote for a dedicated, concerned and optimistic representative of our community.

Cortane Lonsdale

My name is Corrine Lonsdale and I am a candidate seeking the position of alderman for one year.

I will begin by giving you some information about myself. I have lived in Squamish thirty-two years and have been employed at the Royal Bank of Canada for the past twenty years.

My husband John is a logger. We have three school age children.

You are probably wondering why I am vying for this seat on council. The answer is simple.

I care about the future of Squamish — our future. I have been extremely active in many organizations and enjoy doing something worthwhile for my community.

As a young person growing up I had every opportunity here. Our young people today are not so lucky.

Local employment opportunities are few and most of our teenagers upon leaving school are forced to leave Squamish to seek employment elsewhere.

We must encourage secondary industry to settle in our industrial park. In comparison to other industrial property in this province ours is certainly not overpriced.

We have all the facilities required for this type of industry — rail, highway and sea port access. The economy will recover and we must be more aggressive in our marketing methods.

Downtown parking is another problem we must address immediately. Not only is it a nuisance for you and I when we pick up the mail and are unable to find a parking space; it is a great stumbling block to our retail merchants.

Many would like to expand but they are unable to as a certain number of parking stalls are required for the square footage of the store. Larger premises would again, mean more jobs.

Tourism is our greatest untapped resource. We must encourage development in this area and carefully consider any suggestions put forward.

One very real concern and a priority with me is the safety of our children. Presently many of these young people are forced to walk to and from school "on roads" frequented by heavy traffic. In the upcoming budget I would like to see provision made for footpaths along the side of these roads.

Economically, times are tough and I do not favour raising taxes.

Finally, one half of our electorate are women. Men and women often look at a situation differently. Our priorities are not always the same. Therefore, it is important to have a woman's input on council. I would like to be that woman.

I will make your concerns heard. I know I have the time, energy and enthusiasm. To the best of my ability I will always act in the interest of the District of Squamish and you, its people. I ask that you support me at the polls November 19.

Aldermen 2 year Three to be elected

Ron Barr

Firstly, I would like to thank you for the privilege of serving as an alderman for the last four years, years which have had their share of frustrations, but also accomplishments.

The only remaining aspect of dyking is to complete and realign the Stawamus River, for which our provincial government has earmarked their share of funding.

The sale of our industrial park to date has been limited to two lots, however, one potential customer had approached our municipality and was considering the purchase of over 100 acres for building pipeline components. This project was estimated to employ 2,200 people and, as the pipeline transmission line arguments are nearly completion, perhaps a project of this magnitude could come about.

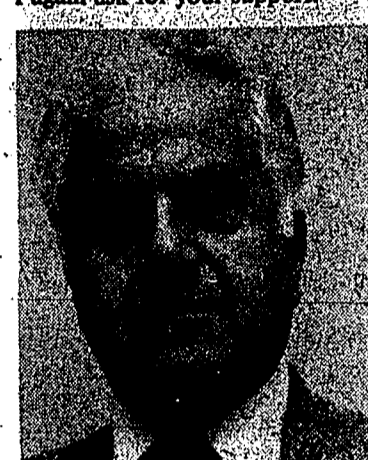

The economic times have been difficult and I still do not see the light at the end of the tunnel following the announcement on October 28 by Minister of Municipal Affairs that the provincial revenue sharing grants would be reduced by 10 per cent.

Speaking of economic times, your council did vote itself a 5 per cent reduction in annual indemnity for 1983. This didn't reach the headlines, however, I am sure any increase would have.

The assessment authority has created endless problems in the past to enable your council to levy rates on an equitable ratio. For example, my personal household taxes for general purposes were only $1.63 more last year than they were in 1977. That increase has had absolutely no equitable relation to our costs or inflation.

Because I am aware of all the services we supply, our dealings with the more senior levels of government, and, if not more importantly, the liaison accomplished with our municipal employees, I again ask for your support.

Wilf Dowd

I am a candidate for a two-year term as alderman. I was born in Winnipeg in 1925 and spent some time in the farming community of Langruth, Manitoba.

I served in the RCNVR in both the Pacific and Atlantic commands and subsequently studied architectural drafting under the DVA training program.

I have been active as a building contractor in residential and commercial construction for many years and since moving to Squamish in 1973 have progressively developed the Eagle Run subdivision.

Serving on the Jaycees, I was president for B.C. and the Yukon in 1959, national vice president in 1961 and international chairman of the awards commission in 1962. As a member of the Rotary Club I served as president in 1978/79.

I am presently serving my third term on the Squamish Hospital Society as treasurer and am also treasurer of the Squamish Intermediate Care Society building committee.

I believe an alderman should develop an intimate knowledge of all areas of Squamish, make myself accessible to as many citizens as possible and listen to their concerns, study the financial affairs of the district so sound decisions can be made and work with other members of council to formulate effective policies to govern the District of Squamish.

right to vote

budgeting, and watching every expenditure, has practised restraint without affecting the delivery of services to the community.

I entered the work force in 1934; a period familiarly known as the 'dirty thirties', so I am no stranger to the problem today.

Through a long and varied life I feel that I have achieved a measure of maturity and practical experience, and I am putting this maturity and experience at the disposal of the electorate.

If elected, I assure everyone that the thrust of my endeavours will be to continue to tailor municipal expenditures, not only to practise restraint through careful fiscal management, but to continue in the delivery of the best level of service possible within those parameters.

Vote Saturday

Egon Tobus

Since not enough people exercise a voice in decisions affecting them, I volunteer my service again as alderman.

While most politicians are continually busy running for office or cover, during my past term I felt no need to run for cover.

Although I may still have some difficulties in the art of politics, like expressing things in such a way that nobody exactly knows what is meant, when in doubt, I ask questions.

I am receptive to new ideas and give people my undivided attention.

I enjoy debating topics and refrain from merely approving positions taken by consultants or staff.

At times, in a desperate effort, I even try suggesting extreme ideas — like spending less in order to balance the budget.

To keep me going, I look at a stonecutter hammering away at his rock, perhaps a hundred times without as much as a crack showing. Yet, at the hundred and first blow it will split in two, who is to say the last blow did it, but all that had gone on before.

With genuine interest in the affairs of Squamish, and no special personal gains at stake, I am confident that my presence on Council benefits our community. I look forward to continuing to serve on your behalf as alderman, and trust you will support me again.

School board 2 year

One to be elected

Shirley Brown

I moved to the Squamish area from Vancouver seven years ago. Since moving here, I have been employed by Capilano College.

During my early life I lived in Pemberton Meadows and Squamish; all of my schooling was taken in this district.

I have always been interested in education and I am willing to spend time working toward an educationally-sound and economically-feasible system.

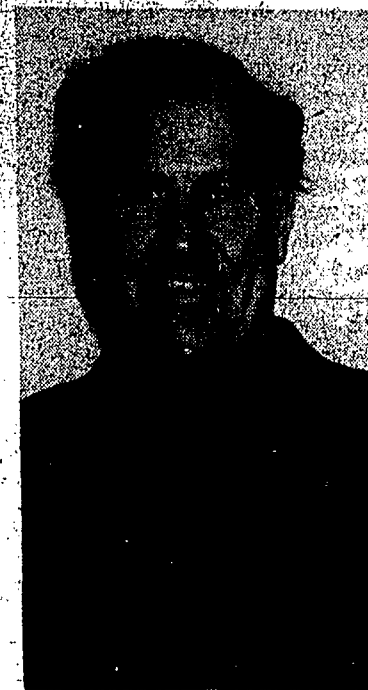

Now, more than ever, it is important to receive value for every dollar spent. If education is to remain "an equal educational opportunity" for all students, then care must be taken not to eradicate any essential programs.

Our children are the most valuable resource we have; they will be the leaders in the 21st century.

It is, therefore, vital that we give them the tools to function in the future job market.

If I am elected Nov. 19, I will be pleased to share in the education of the students who attend school in the Howe Sound school district.

Don Wilson, no statement available.

Canadian Red Cross campaign underway

The 1983 Canadian Red Cross Society's campaign for funds is now underway.

In Squamish a mail-in campaign will be ongoing during the month of November. Marian Mills is this year's chairman for this area.

A few years ago, Canada was said to have the highest rate of childhood accidents in the industrial world, according to a World Health Organization study.

To help change this trend the Red Cross introduced a basic first aid program in schools throughout the province. The implementation of this program was made possible by public support of United Way and Red Cross campaigns.

The emphasis of the program is not only with the treatment of accidents but also with their possible prevention.

"If we can make young people more aware of the dangers around them and provide them with some basic first aid knowledge, then our objective will be met," says Barry Grove, program coordinator for Red Cross Youth.

Two-thirds of the campaign revenue comes from United Way and the remaining one-third comes from Red Cross campaigns. These campaigns are so important to the health of these programs and, ultimately, of course, to the health of our children.

This week in the mail you will receive the necessary information to enable you to mail a cheque or money order to the Red Cross. Your donation will be gratefully received.

Hydro warns of power line danger

Accidents involving overhead power lines in B.C. have killed six people and injured 12 this year.

These are the grim statistics which B.C. Hydro says can be reduced or eliminated if people use more caution around power lines.

"All these accidents could have been prevented if more care had been taken," says Tony Lytle of Hydro's safety engineering department.

In one incident a man tried to move a nine-metre aluminium ladder by himself, lost control of it and was electrocuted when it fell against an overhead line. In another, a tree-faller was killed when he tried to free a tree which had contacted a power line.

Hydro suggests that people doing home repair work stay clear of electrical service connections and take extreme care if they must work in the vicinity of these.

Tree fallers and trimmers should be aware of the potential hazard of nearby power lines and should call Hydro immediately if a tree or branch falls onto a line. Under no circumstances should the faller try to solve the problem himself.

Operators of construction equipment working near power lines should consult Workers' Compensation Board regulations on minimum clearance distances required. If clearance cannot be maintained because of work circumstances, Hydro must be notified before work starts so that crews can de-energize the line, re-route it or take steps to guard against contact.

ROBIN HOOD REMEMBERS... THE WHOLESOME GOODNESS OF WHOLE WHEAT.

HEARTY OATMEAL-RAISIN ROUNDS.

There's no warmer place in the world than a kitchen filled with the good, fresh aroma of your homemade bread. And you can always trust Robin Hood Whole Wheat Flour to make that bread the very best it can be.

- 2 cups (500 mL) milk
- 2 cups (500 mL) ROBIN HOOD Oats
- 1/4 cup (50 mL) brown sugar
- 1/4 cup (50 mL) shortening
- 1/4 cup (75 mL) molasses
- 4 tsp. (20 mL) salt
- 1 tsp. (5 mL) cinnamon
- 1/4 tsp. (1 mL) nutmeg
- 1 cup (250 mL) warm water (105°-115°/40°-46°C)
- 2 tsp. (30 mL) active dry yeast (2 pkgs.)
- 3 cups (750 mL) ROBIN HOOD WHOLE WHEAT FLOUR
- 1 1/2 cups (375 mL) raisins
- 3/4-4 cups (875-1000 mL) ROBIN HOOD ALL PURPOSE FLOUR

BAKING TIP

Egg white, beaten slightly with a little water and brushed on loaf before baking makes a shiny crust. You can add poppy or sesame seeds too — for a delicious taste twist!

Look for the Baking Festival symbol and help celebrate the joys of baking with recipe ideas, more helpful tips and some very special savings.

SCALD milk. In large bowl combine oats, brown sugar, shortening, molasses, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Add hot milk. Cool to lukewarm. DISSOLVE sugar in warm water. Sprinkle in yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. ADD yeast mixture to oats mixture. BEAT in 2 cups (500 mL) whole wheat flour beating vigorously until well mixed. Stir in raisins, remaining 1 cup (250 mL) whole wheat flour and enough all purpose flour to form a dough that leaves sides of bowl. Turn dough out onto lightly floured surface. KNEAD dough, adding more flour as necessary, until it becomes smooth, elastic and no longer sticky (about 10 minutes). PLACE in lightly greased bowl. Turn dough to grease top. Cover with greased waxed paper and tea towel. LET RISE in warm place (75°-85°F/24°-29°C) until doubled (1-1 1/2 hours). PUNCH DOWN. Turn out onto lightly floured board and divide into 2 equal portions. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. SHAPE each portion into a round flat loaf on greased baking sheet. COVER with tea towel and let rise in warm place until doubled (about 1 hour). BAKE at 375°F (190°C) for 15 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 350°F (180°C) and continue baking for 30-45 minutes, or until done. Cover tops of bread with foil during last 15 minutes if becoming too brown. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Makes 2 loaves.

REMEMBER ROBIN HOOD... AND ADD AN EXTRA OUNCE OF LOVE TO EVERY LOAF YOU BAKE.

THANK YOU

I appreciate the opportunity to have served as a school trustee in Howe Sound School District for the past ten years. It is an experience I would certainly recommend to anyone contemplating running for school board and I would encourage them to do so.

I have found nothing more rewarding than being involved with the education of our youth.

Betty Shore.

THANK YOU

Our sincere thanks to our many friends and relatives for their kindness and thoughtfulness during the recent loss of our dear husband and father, Gene Marcotte. We would like to extend special thanks to the Legion Ladies Auxiliary.

Four teams fighting for top spot

Ten weeks of roughly a fourteen-week schedule has gone by in the Howe Sound Men's Soccer League and it seems that right now the whole division might as well go back to day one.

After a wet, cold and windy day of action on Sunday the top five teams are separated by a mere two points with four of them deadlocked in a scuffle for first spot overall.

Khalisa United, Molsoms, Native Sons and McBride Trucking are currently trapped in the league's ceiling at 13 points apiece though the latter side has a game in hand over the rest after its weekend contest against Brackendale was cancelled.

Mt. Currie, meanwhile, is sitting two points back of the crowd and looking to sneak in.

The reason for the sudden massive log jam was not only McBride's "no game" but also the Native Sons 2-1 upset of Khalisa United and Molsoms 4-0 thrashing of Thorcon.

Mt. Currie, on the other hand, is slowly leaving the bottom three clubs — Brackendale, Thorcon and Local 170 — in its wake and helped this cause on Sunday courtesy of a come from behind 8-5 win versus 170.

Squamish United no match for former premier division side

One year ago the Nomads of Vancouver was a team of struggling within the rank and file of the Metro League's premier soccer division.

Times have changed since then as the Nomads, as a result of their troubles, were relegated to the first division. On Sunday however, they showed a lot of by-standers that some day they may just regain entry into one of B.C.'s most elite leagues.

Using their speed and ball control, which wasn't aided that much by slick field conditions, the Nomads controlled the first half and weathered some strong second half pressure by Squamish United Pharmsave to post a 1-0 victory.

In the opening 45 minutes of action, Squamish was constantly being beaten to the ball. That resulted in much of the play taking place in the Pharmsave end.

On only a few occasions did United muster enough control to venture down field and thus they had to rely on some sound defence and goal-tending by Barry Galley to keep the hungry Nomads off the score sheet.

But even then it was not substantial as 15 minutes into the contest the Nomads found the chance they had been waiting for. With perhaps one of his better saves of the day Galley came out to knock away a hard drive from 25 yards out.

The visitors were right there to collect the dividends, catching Galley and the Squamish defence in no position to stop the rebound from being banged in.

A little lucky not to be down by more than one heading into the second frame, especially after the Nomads had two clear cracks at the United net with Galley caught out, Squamish decided that enough was enough.

In response the locals simply grew stronger as the period progressed and seemed destined to at least tie the contest up. Such was not the case for time after time they either sent shots skimming wide or right into the waiting arms of the Vancouver keeper.

Only once did this goaltender have to make a difficult save as Tom Johnston struck in along the back line and set up Terry Herbert on the Nomad doorstep. Herbert released a solid shot that was labelled for the far side before the keeper took it away with a dividing hand save.

The action around the visitors' net was far from over for even in the final seconds Squamish refused to give up. This time it was Johnston's turn to have a crack as Jim Schutz fed him a perfect pass ten yards out from the target.

Johnston couldn't gain enough possession of the ball to send a good shot away — though and looked on as it bounced out of danger.

Men's hockey league finding its level

It has not been an easy start to a still young season for Howe Sound Men's Hockey League.

Plagued by the inability of some teams to find their skating legs and perhaps the large degree of talent that separates each side, the division is relatively boring to watch.

Thus few fans have been around to see any of the few interesting contests that have taken place. But if this week, the seventh of the year, is to be used as any example then perhaps the league is finally waking up.

To begin with, the division now has a new leader in the Terminal Exporters, which gave the Raiders only their second loss of the season on Wednesday by a 4-2 count. The other defeat the Raiders suffered also came at the hands of the Exporters earlier in the year.

For the Raiders, the former loss could have spelled disaster since both of their contests during the week came against clubs they were battling it out with for top position.

On Sunday they met the Whistler Winterhawks, a club noted for its strong skating and passing abilities. Sparked by a four goal outburst in the second frame though, with speedy Lori Vanzella collecting the hat trick, the Raiders beat the Winterhawks at their own game in claiming a 5-2 victory.

After Bob Versluis sandwiched a first period single for the Raiders between efforts from Neil Robinson and Mike Young, Vanzella shifted his club into high gear barely one minute into the second frame by accepting a pass from Ross Teichman as he monitored down the slot and fired a low shot in behind keeper Kevin Crowston on the short side.

Tate Patton later put the Raiders in front for the first time before Vanzella made sure everything stayed that way by connecting twice, including an effort that snuck by Crowston with 50 seconds left on the clock.

Still, if it wasn't for Crowston, who faced 25 shots, matters might have been worse. Several times this young goaltender came up blank, stopping Pat Sweeney, Bob Versluis and Jim Schutz on break-aways.

At the other end Carl Teichman turned in a strong game of his own to backstop the Raiders to a win that puts them just two points out of first place.

Meanwhile on Wednesday three goals in a span of four minutes spelled the demise of the Cliffside Blues as Rick Thompson who collected a hat trick in the match, and Eric Swan gave the Home Hardware Hawks a 6-3 edge in what had been, up until that point, a see-saw battle.

Thompson, Swan, and Mike Lyons each found the back of the net in the first period in pacing the Hawks into a 3-0 lead but the Blues, still in search of that ever elusive second win, came storming back with Dave Gilmore and Gary Robertson leading the way.

But with 13:39 left to play the Cliffside hopes vanished as Thompson and Swan worked a give and go in the offensive zone before Al Knight set up Thompson at the side of the goal for a power play marker and a 4-3 advantage.

Not every game hit a high note, however, for despite the fact that Saturday's match up between Vince's Pizzeria and Triple C was exciting, it also had a purpose.

Pizzeria, as a tribute to Marco Mameli, who was killed Friday in a car accident, dedicated the game to him and thus went out to win 8-6. Need we say any more?

Titans one game away from title

On the field of sports: Cinderella stories — when a weak team goes all the way in beating the odds and heavier favoured opponents to take a championship — seem few and far between.

But after the Squamish Titans early season mishaps, perhaps nothing else would help describe the fact that at this moment the football team is one game away from stealing the Gordon Sturridge League title.

Sure, Titan coach Kym Kostuk claimed from day one that since every club of the four team division makes the playoffs his boys would take the cup. Let's face it, though, when you are talking with a 0-6 record over your head (which was their count after the year's first half dozen matches), you are not going to attract too many believers.

"We're really doing well now," Kostuk said on Sunday, just hours after Squamish had won its fourth straight game, a 42-0 drubbing of the Colts that earned the locals a berth in the final. "We picked up a couple of new players and things have turned around."

One of these new players is running back Murray Thrower who joined the club with two games remaining in the regular season and has been a standout since.

In Sunday's semi-final, Thrower scrambled for the match's first four touchdowns, pacing his side to a 21-0 half time advantage.

For Thrower, and Squamish, the biggest moment, however, was the first quarter; he struck twice on 20- and 15-yard jaunts to put them up 15-0.

Simon-Hughes, at the same time, added a 25-yard field goal and would later connect on a two point convert attempt on the first of two fourth frame majors by Mike Thrower.

Besides the antics of the two Throwers, Kostuk was quick to point out that the front offensive line, made up of Mike Wall, Doug Saarela, Simon Hughes, Joe Wright, Glenn Davis, Keri Verner and Garner Patton did a great job. "They made a lot of big holes for the running backs," he said. The defence also did well as the Colts barely gained any yardage during the whole match, except those earned by penalties.

Still, despite the high praise of his team, Kostuk also noted that "it was pretty wet out there. It was a slippery game especially for them [the Colts] and we converted on their mistakes such as bad snaps and blocked punts."

For two Titans the game was the second time in as many contests that they got on the honour role as Murray Thrower and Mike Wall earned MVP and most outstanding lineman awards respectively, a repeat of Friday's season finale against the Falcons.

This time Thrower hit the end zone three times to lead the Titans to a 20-0 victory and thus clinch third spot overall. And, by coincidence, it will be this same Falcon side that Squamish will meet in the cup showdown on Sunday at 10:30 in North Vancouver's Norgate Park.

The Falcons, which finished in dead last, knocked off first place favourites Patriots 6-0 setting up a battle among two Cinderella teams.

With the Titans holding a season record edge of two wins and a single loss against the Falcons, Squamish now finds itself as anything but the underdog.

Hank Greenlees new golf club president

Hank Greenlees has been elected president of the Squamish Valley Golf and Country Club for the coming year with Ed Scott as vice-president, John Hughes as secretary and Joe Gravkin, treasurer.

Jack Wulff and Owen Carney were elected to two-year directorships.

Retiring president Bill Galley gave a general report on the year's activities and thanked all those who helped during the year.

In the green and grounds report, improvements to the tees and fairways and paving were mentioned, and the proposal for the automatic sprinkling system was outlined. Both the match committee and the ladies division reported they had a good year.

New manager Leanne Hemphill and new catering manager Geoff Howes were introduced to the members.

Club members were told about tentative plans for the storage and board room.

Membership in the club amounts to 188 men, 89 women and 35 junior playing members. Ten new local members have joined the club along with two out of town members.

Members decided to purchase a TV dish for the clubhouse.

Hospital Auxiliary readies for raffle

At the October meeting of the Squamish Hospital Auxiliary, the main topic of discussion was the annual Christmas Raffle which will be held Nov. 26.

A doll, complete with an adorable wardrobe, a boy's tool kit filled with the same type of tools that dad uses and a beautiful hand-made wall hanging will be the prizes offered. The draw will take place in the Highlands Mall on the day of the raffle. There will also be a sale of novelties and a bake table.

The B.C. Lung representative gave out pamphlets on emphysema at the October meeting. The "fun" display of cigarette packets showed how a person's personality can be judged by the colour of their cigarette packet.

Marian Mills, in her report on the Red Cross loan cupboard, said there is still quite a demand for the items in stock.

The Canadian Red Cross will be having a fund raising campaign this month and Marian Mills is campaign chairman.

The auxiliary is to obtain more information on baby car seats with safety belts which would be rented to couples taking home their newborns from the hospital.

Sales in the booth at the hospital and hotel booths are doing well. Since the new display booth at the hospital has been completed, items are now displayed to a much better advantage.

School children's tours of the hospital will resume in January.

Bazaar Saturday

If you like to attend bazaars and teas, then prepare yourself as a real "bazaar" Saturday is shaping up on Nov. 19. If you want to attend them all then please read on.

The Ladies Auxiliary to Branch No. 277 Royal Canadian Legion is holding a Christmas bazaar and tea from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Convenor Bessie Stephens said home baking and hand made Christmas novelties will be on sale and there will also be a number of raffles including a grocery hamper draw.

Squamish Senior Citizens Branch No. 70 has been working hard in anticipation of its bazaar and raffle from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Elks hall. The beautiful raffle prizes include a lamp, hooked rug, tote picture, pillow and wall hanging. All raffle items were made by members. Proceeds will go to the Intermediate Care Unit.

The Masonic hall (Cleveland Avenue) is the location for the Order of the Eastern Star (OES), tea and bazaar from 1 to 3 p.m. A good selection of gift giving items is being readied for the bazaar along with lots of fresh homebaking. The raffle will include a $100 grocery hamper and a hanging wool swag lamp.

All being well, Mamquam Elementary School will hold a swap meet on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the gymnasium. Reserve tables before Nov. 14 by calling 898-3601. The cost is $10 per table.

OORP Lodge hosted honoured royal lady

An official visit by District Deputy Mary Davie of Courtenay was made to Squamish Lodge No. 127, Order of the Royal Purple on Oct. 18.

Members hosted a potluck supper prior to the meeting. Later a cake, celebrating the 33rd birthday of the lodge, was cut by Davie.

Led by Honoured Royal Lady Margaret Granger, lodge members have started a round of lodge activities. They have already paid for two interlude visits to Cloverdale and North Burnaby. Before the end of 1983, they will visit South Vancouver, New Westminster and Vancouver.

A special trip will be made to meet with the head of the order, Supreme Honoured Royal Lady Evelyn Northy. She will be in Vancouver for Grey Cup celebrations.

Several local members will be part of the Elks OORP contingent in the Grey Cup parade.

This is a special year in Elkdom, with all lodges in Canada making a determined effort to contribute $65 per month to their national objective, the Purple Cross Fund.

Called "65/84," the campaign hopes to raise $4 million to be handed over to the fund on Purple

Cross Day, July 21, 1984, at the convention in Thunder Bay, Ontario.

Squamish lodge began its fund raising efforts with a successful Harvest Lunch at the Elks hall on Oct. 25. They will hold two more hot lunches in December and April and will repeat their popular Ukrainian Night, to be held in the Elks hall on Jan. 13 — New Year's Eve.

Funds raised go to the local hospital nursery, 65/84, scholarship fund and other lodge charities.

Pemberton social news

Many friends of Eleanor Collier gathered at the Legion in Pemberton on Oct. 30 to wish her well on her move to Vancouver for the winter months.

Pemberton Women's Institute, United Church women and the ladies auxiliary to Legion Branch 201, as well as community members, joined in wishing Collier a happy time away from the snow! Hostess for the event was Helen Purdon.
