The Squamish Times

TUESDAY, MAY 7, 1985

Work continues on the Squamish Junction pavilion, the centre of controversy in the community. The pavilion is scheduled to be substantially completed by May 17 in readiness for the Inaugural Run of the Royal Hudson on May 19.

Verner won't budge Legere withdraws from battlefront

After a week-long effort to have himself reinstated as Project Manager of the Squamish Junction Pavilion, Peter Legere has decided to discontinue his fight against council.

The decision to pull out of the battle came after Mayor Egon Tobus presented Legere on May 3, with a written proposal to reinstate him as "designer" instead of Project Manager as the original contract called for.

Included in the proposal were the following stipulations:
-That Legere not have any control over employees, tools or funding.

-That Legere not attend on site when employees are on site.

-That employees now in place remain in place at the position presently held.

-That Legere report directly to Alderman Chuck Harvey when suggesting any changes of design or making a request for alternate materials.

-That it be understood that the final decision on the design or acquisition of materials remain with Alderman Verner who retains the overall authority and supervision over the entire project and employees.

-That Legere give the municipality a letter of acceptance of this understanding.

Legere said the proposal was not something he could live with. "I'm getting out," he said.

Legere said the proposal would not sufficiently allow him to carry out his original design and concept of the structure. He said work on the site since he was fired has resulted in deviation from his original plan and drastic mistakes have been made such as the installation of rotten beams. "They're ruining it," Legere said.

Legere's decision to refuse Tobus' offer followed a week-long effort on the part of a community delegation led by local resident Brian Giles to have Legere reinstated as Project Manager.

Giles appeared before council on Apr. 30 with a petition containing 128 signatures in support of Legere. Giles said it took only six hours to collect the signatures and since presenting the petition to council, many people have contacted him who wished to sign the petition.

"I think you can take it as being representative of a significant concern in the community about Peter Legere's forced resignation," Giles said.

Giles delivered a brief presentation to council in which he stated that he had been told that on Apr. 10, nine days prior to the confrontation between Alderman Norm Verner and Legere "statements were made by Mr. Verner in front of witnesses which implied his distaste for Peter's actions and, specifically, his intent to 'get Peter.'"

Giles added that Verner "exceeded his authority" when on Apr. 14 he told Legere he was fired.

Giles called the subsequent in-camera meeting between Legere and council on Apr. 19 a "kangaroo court," in which allegations were made verbally and not written down.

"We're here to find out whether these allegations have any substance or were invented by Mr. Verner to discredit Mr. Legere in the eyes of the other aldermen and ultimately the public. Not only must justice be done, it must be seen to be done," Giles said.

Giles suggested to council that if the allegations were substantially untrue then this would justify Verner's removal from the Tourism Committee. Giles also criticized Tobus' use of an "in-camera" meeting in dealing with the incident.

"What was there to hide from the eyes of the public?" Giles asked council. "Why was it done behind closed doors?"

Giles ended his presentation by suggesting there be a redefinition of roles or a system which would see Legere reporting directly to council.

Tobus told Giles he was unwilling to discuss the matter since it was now in the hands of lawyers. Both Legere and council have sought legal counsel.

Said Giles: "It's a cop-out for council not to be willing to discuss this questionable situation. A letter from a lawyer is not written by the hand of God."

Tobus also defended his use of an in-camera meeting on Apr. 19 saying, "though I publicly stated that I despise in-camera meetings, there are occasions when it is necessary." Tobus cited three occasions when in-camera meetings are necessary: legal matters, negotiating with employees, and "when someone's reputation may come to harm."

"I, in my wisdom, called a special meeting for the very reasons which I expressed," Tobus said.

Alderman Will Dowd suggested that the delegation be allowed to make their presentation.

Council was approached by delegation member Bill Jackson who said it would be a "travesty of justice," if Legere was not allowed to complete the building which he conceived and designed.

Jackson, who had been volunteering his services to the construction of the pavilion, and had been on the site daily, said he had had no indication that Legere had done anything wrong.

"It's beyond me to understand how he (Legere) can be removed on the basis of one person," Jackson said.

Another delegation member, contractor Thor Ervik, told council that they had gotten a bargain when Legere agreed to build the pavilion for $19,000 and added that had the project gone to tender, it would have cost around $80,000 to build.

"I would urge council to reconsider," Ervik said.
Vic Hurford, a local contractor for 37 years, questioned the recent CBC interview with Alderman Verner and Corinne Lonsdale which aired on Pacific Report on Apr. 28.

"I saw the project on T.V. but I didn't hear his (Legere's) name mentioned as designer," Hurford said.

Lonsdale told Hurford that the interview had been severely edited and that she had had no control over what was aired.

Council was also approached by Vancouver resident Josyf Stanishkevsky who said he became aware of the recent controversy from reading the Times.

"There's something amiss. Please be your own judges in your own heads," Stanishkevsky told council.

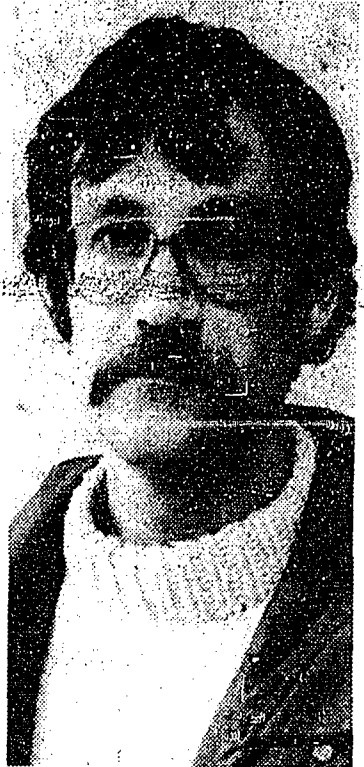

Council was reluctant to respond to the delegation.
Said Alderman Ron Barr: "I stated the points. I made my decision accordingly. To have any other discussion on it is a little out of place."

Added Lonsdale: "I don't feel I would like to talk about it right now."

Alderman Chuck Harvey asked Legere, who was present in the audience, whether he would be willing to write a letter stating that he was no longer employing legal counsel in an effort to divert the matter from a legal forum.

Norm Verner

Peter Legere

"I would certainly rather that lawyers wouldn't have anything to do with this thing," Legere responded.

Alderman Verner remained mute through the delegation's presentation and refused to comment on the matter when asked to do so by Giles.

At one point in the meeting, Tobus said, "All that has to take place is an apology. It takes two people to make a war and it takes two people to make peace."

Legere responded, "Norm, I apologize."

Verner did not respond to Legere's apology.

Tobus thanked the delegation for its presentation. At the end of the council meeting, Tobus addressed the matter and suggested council think about it.

Following the meeting, Giles was optimistic about the delegation's efforts to have Legere reinstated. "I think that Peter is closer to being reunited with the project," Giles said. "He'll stick with it."

Tobus held another in-camera meeting on Thursday, May 2, on the request of two aldermen. The meeting led to the formulation of the written proposal offered to Legere on May 3.

Director resigns from Expo Society over Legere's firing

The recent firing of Peter Legere as Project Manager of The Squamish Junction Pavilion was "the last straw" for Squamish Valley EXPO Society director Jane Iverson.

Iverson submitted her resignation to the Society effective May 1.

In her written resignation to the Society, Iverson, a Britannia Beach resident, wrote: "The recent decision by the Squamish Town Council to terminate Peter Legere's work on the Pavilion is an outrage. I am proud to say I was one of the members of the society who supported the Pavilion project. Norm Verner was appointed by our society to oversee the development of Squamish Junction. Because of his present position, I do not wish to be associated with such an underhanded scheme. It is indeed unfortunate that Peter cannot be allowed to complete the concept he is so dedicated to because of some vague petty issues and personality differences."

Iverson said she felt she was the only one in the EXPO Society who was supportive of Legere and therefore could not continue to work with the others.

"They were having little private meetings amongst them," Iverson said.

"In my opinion, the most important thing was Peter completing his design," she added.

Iverson said the Society's unwillingness to support Legere was the turning point in a series of contributing factors leading to her resignation. She said she disagreed with a number of things the society was doing, including the construction of the Gary Baldy mascot suit at a cost of $2,000.

"I think it's a mockery," Iverson said.

Iverson said she was also angry because some of the EXPO Society members were unwilling to spend the 34 cent long distance charge to inform her of the time and place of the next meeting.

In addition, Iverson said the society had decided it could not accommodate any artists selling or wishing to exhibit their work at the May Day festivities.

Iverson wrote in her letter of resignation: "It saddens me to see so little encouragement being offered to artists."

Iverson said the society was not acting as a uniform body to represent the community.

"There is a complete lack of organization," she said.

Crew member quits over Squamish Junction

As soon as he heard that Peter Legere had been fired as Project Manager from the construction of the Squamish Junction pavilion, crew member Darryl McKinnon decided to quit.

"I just didn't bother coming back to the site," McKinnon said. Although McKinnon has since found alternative employment at the airport, quitting the pavilion meant losing out on the additional income provided under the Canada Works Grant for individuals collecting unemployment insurance.

McKinnon said there is no justification to Alderman Norm

Verner's allegations regarding Legere's performance as Project Manager.

"Peter was doing great," McKinnon said. "He did a lot of scrounging to get materials for the job as cheaply as he could to save the town money." Mc-Kinnon added that Legere used most of his own tools for the job and worked long hours and weekends.

McKinnon denied the suggestion that Legere had been stealing materials from the site. "There was nothing stolen from the job site," McKinnon said.

McKinnon also said that he was witness to the confrontation between Legere and Verner which took place on April 19. McKinnon said he heard Verner

Faculty cuts at Capilano College

Over 112 members of the teaching faculty at Capilano College have received layoff notices as a result of the one million dollar cut to the college's operating budget.

"We were faced with the $1 million deficit and there was no place to make any cuts except in the faculty," college board chairman Hilda Rizun told the Times.

"We knew there would have to be cut-backs," she added, "and this was the only place where we could make them."

Most of the employees who received notice of the layoffs were part-time employees. Only fourteen of them were full time employees.

A spokesman for the Capilano College Faculty Association said the staff reduction would result in the loss of anywhere up to 300 classes.

The executive condemned the layoffs stating that it was a total failure of the ministry to maintain status quo services.

The association was also critical of the college board, stating they were all government employees and failed or were unwilling to speak out on behalf of the institution.

Bus problems solved for Junior Forest Wardens

The Mounties may always get their man, but the Junior Forest Wardens got their bus.

Council agreed at the April 30 meeting to enter into an agreement with the School Board which would allow the Junior Forest Wardens to use the School Board bus for their scheduled trip to Kananaskas, Alberta to attend the Junior Forest Wardens National Camp-out this summer.

The agreement comes under Section 157 of the School Act which states that a School Board can use a school bus if they enter into an agreement with the municipality or other recreation bodies. The costs of any use agreement are to be borne by the applicant, who, in this case, is the Junior Forest Wardens.

Philippa Wigglesworth, a member of the parent council for the Junior Forest Wardens, appeared before council requesting the use of a School Board bus.

According to Wigglesworth, the cost of a privately hired bus would be $3,000 to $6,000 to transport the 35 Junior Forest Wardens to the Campout.

"If we have to pay that, we're going to be waving goodbye to a lot of kids whose fathers are out of jobs," Wigglesworth told council.

Wigglesworth said the club had been working hard with fund raising and planning to be able to attend the Campout. She expressed concern that the club would have to use the cheapest bus service if it couldn't use the School Board bus, and that it might not be safe.

"To take the kids that far... I'm really worried about us looking for a cheap bus," Wigglesworth said.

Grant Dickey, Recreation Director, advised council in a memo that in his view, the Junior Forest Wardens was a worthwhile organization with whom he had dealt before and recommended that council consider their application. He added that he understood the School Board would in all probability enter into an agreement for the rental of the bus if council authorized the use of the school buses.

Under the proposed agreement, the Junior Forest Wardens would be required to provide their own driver. Wigglesworth said their leader, Andy Savory, is a licensed bus driver and added that all Junior Forest Wardens are specially insured for such trips.

Wigglesworth said the Squamish Division of the Junior Forest Wardens is the largest club in B.C. with 45 members, aged 10 to 16. Wigglesworth added that this was "an important age group for boys and girls to be involved in a group or club rather than 'hanging around' with no projects to work towards."

"It is really important to have these children looking forward to things like this to keep them in a club which is so good for them now, and in their future," Wigglesworth said.

The Junior Forest Wardens are scheduled to attend the Campout during the period July 3 to 16.

HONDA FOUR-STROKE OUTBOARDS.
NO OIL IN THE GAS.
NO OIL IN THE WATER.

When you think about it, no other outboard seems to make as much sense. Our rivers and lakes have enough problems. Why add to those problems with bleeding oil from an outboard motor? With a Honda 25 or 90 hp four-stroke, you don't have to mix oil with the gas. Bleeding oil from the exhaust is eliminated so your engine runs a lot cleaner on the environment.

Honda BF-75 and BF-100 outboards also have a throttle lock to control trolling speeds. A throttle stop to prevent over-revving in neutral and reverse. And the safety-kill switch is tiller-mounted, so it's easy to reach.

Both models are available with two different transom shaft lengths. There's a regular, 422 mm (16.6 in) transom shaft for power boats. Or, a longer 572 mm (22.5 in) transom shaft for sailboats.

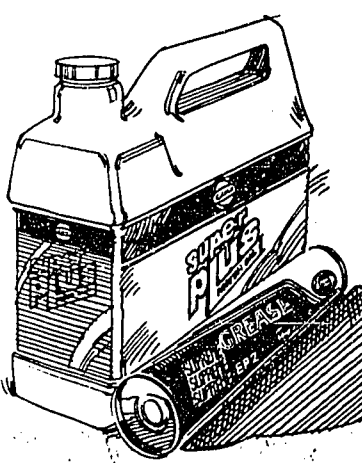

Looking for a smooth, clean running outboard motor for your boat? Then come in for a closer look at the Honda 25 and 90 hp outboards today.

Students appeal for peace

Two Squamish sisters, Corrina and Kristen Haywood, recently received signed letters from Prime Minister Brian Mulroney in response to letters they had written to him expressing their concern over nuclear disarmament.

The sisters, Corrina, 11 and Kristen, 14, decided to write to the Prime Minister after watching news programs on television on the topic of nuclear war. The girls' mother, Marie Haywood, says her daughters became very angry after watching the news.

"Corrina came to me and said she wanted to do something about it," Haywood says. "I suggested she write a letter."

Haywood says at first she regarded the idea of her daughters writing to the Prime Minister as "sweet and cute."

"Then I started thinking about the possibility of nuclear war too," she says.

Corrina and Kristen mailed their letters just over a month ago.

"In the letter, I said, 'us children should have a chance to live a longer life,'" says Corrina.

"The adults are messing things up for us. It's not fair."

The Haywoods are pleased to have received a response from the Prime Minister, even though the two letters are identical.

"We were really impressed," says Mrs. Haywood. "We didn't think he would write back."

Corrina, a grade six student at Squamish Elementary School, says her teachers are also impressed and agree with what she wrote. Mrs. Haywood says the family often discusses the topic of nuclear war.

"The girls are always asking, 'why, why, why?', and I haven't got the answers," she says.

Editors Note: The following letter was written to Corrina and Kristen Haywood by Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

Dear Corrina,

Thank you for your correspondence in which you discuss the important issue of nuclear disarmament. I have received similar letters from many students across Canada and am pleased that I have this opportunity to respond to you.

I share the profound concern felt by Canadians of all ages over the threat of nuclear war and believe that we, as a middle and non-nuclear power, can be influential in the search for a lasting peace. During my recent meeting with President Reagan, I addressed the issue of nuclear disarmament. I told the President that, while we are encouraged by the resumption of talks between his administration the beginning of a long and arduous process. Nevertheless, we remain hopeful that mutual, balanced, and verifiable arms control agreements can be reached. Only through a reduction in the dangerously high levels of nuclear weapons will we create a more stable world. Our greatest obligation is to leave our young a world in which they can live harmoniously, secure in the knowledge that there will be a promising future for succeeding generations.

Again, thank you for writing. I hope you will continue to take an active interest in the many complex questions facing our country today.

With every good wish,

Yours sincerely,
Brian Mulroney

One-way tickets offered on Royal Hudson

Royal Hudson travellers will be able to purchase one-way tickets - but only from Squamish to Vancouver.

Dave Smith, Royal Hudson Society member, said the Society decided to allow the sale of one-way tickets from Squamish to Vancouver after receiving a number of requests from people desiring the tickets.

"It's just a trial basis," Smith warned, however. "It was a difficult procedure convincing the Society to offer one-way tickets."

Smith said the Society was concerned that people would see the Royal Hudson as a means of transportation rather than the tourist attraction it is meant to be. He said the Royal Hudson does not pay for itself and in fact costs $800,000 annually to operate.

Smith said the society was also concerned that passengers boarding the train in Squamish on a one-way ticket will want the choicest seats. He said passengers taking a round trip are asked to change their seats on the return trip in an effort to establish fairness.

"I can foresee a problem of everyone wanting the window seats," Smith said. "People leaving from Squamish are going to be asked not to be adamant."

To eliminate the possibility of overbooking, one-way tickets will be sold on a stand-by basis, with round-trip ticket holders having first priority.

The cost of the one-way Squamish to Vancouver tickets will be $8. Round trip tickets are $14.

Council briefs

Council passed a motion to authorize the District of Squamish to petition the Minister of Municipal Affairs to close two roads in the Squamish Industrial park.

Council passed a motion to allow the Squamish Valley Golf and Country Club to be exempt from the District of Squamish Sewer Connection Regulations in order to allow the club to construct a bathroom facility on the sixth tee on the Golf Course. The sewer connection bylaw stipulates that all facilities must be connected to the sewer if the property line is within 30 metres of the sewer line. Because the Golf Course is large and the proposed bathroom facilities a distance of three quarters of a mile away, the cost of supplying a sewer connection would have been expensive.

Council endorsed the sale of the U-shaped lot surrounding the Diamond Head Medical Clinic to Nephron Holdings, represented by Dr. Richard H. Cudmore of the Diamond Head Medical Clinic, for the sum of $35,000. Council also approved the amalgamation of the U-shaped lot with the existing Diamond Head Medical Clinic property.

Council authorized the granting of a business licence to Dickie Dee Ice Cream to permit the sale of ice cream from municipal streets.

Council agreed to a B.C. Rail request to lease part of the site of the former Squamish Shake and Shingle Mill on Galbraith Ave. to Weldwood of Canada for log storage.

Council gave approval for the construction of a free standing cover of the bleachers at Diamond No. 5 in Brennan Park by the Howe Sound Mens Ball League, provided that the cover is built in accordance to the Municipal Building Code.

Alderman Chuck Harvey expressed some concern that the plans for the cover are incomplete and may not be aesthetic to the area.

Alderman Ron Barr stressed his concern that a more permanent cover built to replace existing tarps presently hanging over the bleachers.

Council agreed that further discussion was necessary before it could approve the League's request to be allowed to remove standing trees from the Municipal Sanitary Landfill site to be used in the construction of the cover as well as poles for the purpose of mounting lights at the field.

"We had somebody to build the Squamish Pavilion and we nailed him down to 10 trees and here we are all set to write a blank cheque for trees," Alderman Chuck Harvey said.

"We should treat people all the same."

Council agreed to table the motion to give trees to the League until an actual number of trees needed is determined.

Council agreed to do a study of downtown drainage before commencing any roadwork in the downtown area. D. Webber of Web Engineering Ltd. will meet with Mayor Tobus and John Payne, Works Superintendent, to discuss the matter.

Alderman Wilf Doward reported that two bids have been received for proposed renovations to the Squamish Public Library.

Expo passports now available

The Squamish branch of the Royal Bank is selling three-day passports to Expo 86. The passports, which sell for $29.95 until October 14 when the price goes up to $34.95, are non-transferable and can be used for any three days during EXPO. The passports do not have to be used on three consecutive days. After January 7, 1986, the passports will sell for $39.95 and after May 2, 1986 until the official end of EXPO on October 13, 1986, the passports will cost $45. The passports are currently available only in B.C. at branches of the Royal Bank. After October 14, they will be sold across Canada.

There are reduced rates on the passports for children, senior citizens, and groups of 20 or more. Individuals desiring season's passes to EXPO can purchase them at Woodward's stores.

Royal Bank, the official bank for Expo 86, is also sponsoring a World Festival for EXPO 86, which will include ballet, opera, folk and symphony performances.

In addition, memberships to the Squamish Valley EXPO Society can be purchased at the Royal Bank for $5. Members receive a Gary Baldy pin designed by local resident Michael Tickner.

Money from the sale of memberships will go towards the construction of the Gary Baldy mascot costume. Work is presently underway on the costume by Creations Unlimited in Richmond.

Ric Raynor, treasurer of the Squamish Valley EXPO Society says though the costume is being made for one-third the normal cost, it will still cost $2,000.

The Gary Baldy mascot will attend civic functions and travel around the province promoting Squamish. Raynor says the Society so far does not have anyone to wear the costume and hopes for volunteers.

"Anyone who can fit into the shoes... size 11," Raynor says. The Society has already begun fundraising to help defray the costs of the mascot. They will be sponsoring a beer garden at the upcoming Trade Fair and a number of events at the May Day celebration.

"We're not trying to make a lot of money," Raynor says. "We're just trying to get Squamish in a festive spirit. It's a long time coming."

Tony Tonkinson, President of the Chamber of Commerce, buys the first three-day pass to EXPO 86 from Royal Bank Branch Manager Graham Friberg. The passports, sold exclusively by the Royal Bank, cost $29.95 for adults. Children, seniors, and groups receive reduced rates.

All roads lead to Trade Fair this weekend

All roads will be leading to the second annual Sea to Sky Country Trade Fair at the Civic Centre this weekend. From the time the doors open on Friday to the time the fair closes late on Sunday afternoon, it is expected that a record crowd will pack the buildings to view the many exhibits presented by the business people of the community.

There's everything from food to buildings, from machinery to artifacts and some special services which you may have never heard of before or dreamed existed in your community.

From the time the fair is officially opened by MLA John Reynolds, till it closes after the drawing of the special lottery prizes on Sunday afternoon, the hall is expected to be packed with people viewing the one hundred booths and exhibits.

There are fashion shows each day with the special Sunday show featuring a Mother's Day theme, with local models and clothes from local stores. There's music and entertainment, fun for the kids with a fish pond and face painting, and a lot of things to see and do.

There will be a chance at the daily door prize, which is a pass to Expo, and if you buy a lottery ticket, a chance to win the cash prizes which are being offered.

Come to the fair. Join the crowds who will be heading for the Civic Centre and see what your community has to offer. We guarantee that you'll be surprised and delighted at what you see.

Squamish residents walk for peace

At least 44 Squamish residents took part in the annual Walk for Peace in Vancouver on Saturday, April 27.

The Squamish residents filled a bus hired by the Squamish Citizens For Peace. Cost for bus transportation to Vancouver was $5 (return), $2.50 for students and seniors.

Bev Cochrane, member of Squamish Citizens For Peace, said the bus load of people ranged from senior citizens to four-year-olds. The bus was delayed because it broke down on its way to Squamish but Cochrane said they arrived in time to catch the tail end of the peace march.

Cochrane said the Squamish residents who joined the walk were pleased to see the number of participants in the walk. Cochrane said the Walk for Peace Society estimated 80,000 people took part in the walk while police estimates put the number at a more conservative 62,000.

Though disappointed in the overall turnout at the walk, Cochrane was pleased with the participation of Squamish residents.

"We had to stand up and let ourselves be counted," she said. The group stayed until 4 p.m. when the day's activities officially ended at Sunset Beach.

Cochrane said the Squamish Citizens For Peace plan to make the bus ride to the Peace Walk an annual event. She said the group used to be very active in organizing events and speakers but was unable to recruit new members.

"You get slightly burnt-out when it's the same people coming out to all the activities," she said.

The group hopes to become a little more active than in recent months, however.

Anyone interested in becoming involved in Squamish Citizens For Peace is invited to phone Bev Cochrane at 898-9832 for further information.

Squamish shines on Pacific Report

Squamish, and the project now under construction at Squamish Junction was one of the three communities highlighted on Pacific Report on Monday, April 29.

The new building rising at Squamish Junction, was the subject of a portion of the program and Aldermen Lonsdale and Verner spoke to the interviewer about the project which is hoped to be ready by the end of the month.

The communities were picked because of projects which are being developed to tie in with Expo 86 and how communities are planning to attract tourists.

The project, with its beautiful poles, etched against the sky, made Squamish look attractive. It was the only, upbeat thing about Squamish which we have seen on TV for a long time.

Unfortunately the name of the designer and constructor, was never mentioned.

New Mormon church to open in June

In order to accommodate local growth, a local leader of the Church of Latter-Day Saints Stephen Johnston said new Church facilities are being constructed in our area to meet the expanded local needs.

Due to be completed at the end of May is the first stage of a three stage 14,760 square foot building. The Chapel located on Ross Road in Brackendale will feature chapel seating of 184 and have 31 teaching stations. The official opening will be held sometime in June.

Johnston, leader of the Squamish Branch of the Church said there are some 5.5 million members of the Church in nearly 15,000 congregations around the world.

This has gone far enough

The on-going altercation between an alderman and Peter Legere has gone on long enough. It is beginning to damage the credibility of the Expo Committee and some members of council and discrediting council in the eyes of the voters.

Granted there may be justification for disagreement on both sides, the longer the situation goes on the more problems it creates. Perhaps there should have been more control on the designer and builder. Perhaps someone else should have been in charge of the project. But whatever the original trouble was, it should now be resolved before any further erosion of public confidence occurs.

One of the first things a fledgling alderman should learn is that the position should not be abused. No one takes action on his or her own which could be construed as being the action of council. No one takes an independent stand on a public issue but should be prepared to do what is best for everyone concerned.

The building now under construction at Squamish Junction will be an asset to Squamish. It is unique and we are sure that it will be admired and appreciated by many people in the years to come. But it is unfortunate that its beginning should be marked with confrontation and controversy.

It is time to forget who was the cause of the problem; time to work together for the community and to be big enough to realize that one's personal opinions should not stand in the way of seeing something finished which will be a credit to the community.

Legere has apologized. It is now time for Alderman Verner to accept the apology and for Legere to be allowed to finish the project under the supervision of someone else.

Perhaps it is not too late to correct, the almost irreparable damage which has occurred.

Pavilion is Peter's dream

I want to tell you a bit about my friend Peter - he came to Squamish in 1972 - he thought that this was the most beautiful spot on the face of the earth - HE HAD A DREAM! A concept of an open air pavilion, an expression of our heritage, the work that most of us do, or totally rely on - logging and things related to logging and railroading. Across the street from Peter's Dream, proud by stands one of the first steam locomotives used on the Pacific Great Eastern Railroad now known as B.C. Rail.

You know, a long time ago there was a man whose dream it was to paint pictures on a great big ceiling. Now that was really wild! His name was Michaelangelo and I'll just bet poor old Mike has his hands full of bureaucratic Cardinals and I wouldn't be a bit surprised if one or two of them didn't try to explain to Mike how the brush strokes should go, how the eye should focus. I would like to point out in closing that 1) the project is on schedule, 2) the project is on budget and 3) the project is not designed to make money. (Suggested reading: Steven Leacock's "Sunshine Sketches of a Small Town") Thank you Ian McCartney

Expo Society member quits in protest

Editor's note: The following is a copy of a letter sent by Britannia resident Jane Iverson to Mayor Egton Tobus.

Dear Mr. Tobus, Attached please find my letter of resignation from the Squamish Valley Expo Society. I was the director for Arts and Cultural Development. The latter portion of the letter is pertinent to the recent decision by Squamish Town Council to terminate Mr. Peter Legere's position as project manager for the construction of the Pavilion on Squamish Junction.

devoted to the enhancement of Squamish. I feel Peter Legere deserves more respect and support than Council has shown him to date. Peter is a wealth of ideas and his creative urge to beautify Squamish should not be spurned.

Sincerely Jane Iverson

I attended the April 30/85 Town Council meeting and was dismayed to find so little response from Council members and Norm Verner, in particular, to attempt to resolve this conflict in a reasonable and considerate manner.

Dear Editor: In the industry, when a supervisor causes unnecessary dissension, sometimes he is sent to a charm school for supervisors or promoted to the sideline where he can't do any harm. But a council which is elected by the people should realize that, when one of their own causes unnecessary dissension that could hurt them and the community, they should do something about it before it causes too much damage.

My main concern, as I have stated in the attachment is to get the Pavilion completed by the man who has been so deeply and then experiencing the incredible joy of starting the work - and then the shock of being bodily removed from that work cannot be expressed! Anybody can be replaced. The job will be completed - but will it be the original? The Squamish Pavilion is for Squamish! Can we please set politics aside? Can we please let the designer/builder complete his work? Sincerely Squamish Weavers and Spinners Guild

When taxpayers have to wait until the next election to rectify the damage, it is too late. Why doesn't the Mayor and some of the aldermen get off their high horses and start riding ponies?

Also, some aldermen should never be allowed to run because of their personal gain interest. What good is it when they don't vote because of conflict of interest? What do you think in camera meetings are for? I scratch your back, you scratch mine. That's the reason why lots of organizations are very selective in who they let become a member and who not. I know it's useless. You only bash your head against the wall when you try to expose or straighten out this mess. Yours truly H. Scherer

Weavers and Spinners protest

As a group of weavers, we must protest the current action regarding the Pavilion. For us to plan, design, start and be within sight of completion of a major work - then be forced from our loom, and someone else told to finish our work is unthinkable! The final finishing is as important as the original plans and the collecting of materials! To spend the long, agonizing hours planning and designing a project; working out all the many details; collecting the materials

howe soundings

I have never been to the interior of the province in spring and it was a delightful trip we made recently to attend the silver anniversary of my nephew and his wife at the 108 Mile development.

We listened to the weather forecasts with fear and trembling. Snow, rain, showers, low temperatures, in the preceding week with snow and cold weather predicted for some areas on the weekend.

They weren't kidding! It was raining so hard along the freeway between Vancouver and Chilliwack, and as far east as Hope that the rain bounced over a foot off the pavement. I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen it. In the areas where construction was taking place, muddy water was pouring over the road and there were dozens of streams and waterfalls on the hillsides. As we passed the Minter Gardens we decided we would stop in there on the way home if it wasn't raining. It was... we didn't stop.

We stopped for an early lunch just this side of Hope and lots of other people must have had the same idea because the cafe was filled. Their hamburgers were super.

The weather started to clear as we drove into the Fraser Canyon and by Boston Bar the sun started to show and there was lots of blue sky. Along the highway there were lots of flowering red currants and as we neared the interior the Saskatoon berries were in full bloom. On the coast and along the highway the dogwoods were starting to show color. It's amazing how they look almost green as the blossoms start to form and then turn a beautiful white as they mature.

Of course what we call the flowers really are not flowers but are the bracts surrounding the real blossoms which are the bubsins in the centre of the 'bloom'. Later the real flowers turn to red berries and sometimes in the fall you will have both flowers and berries on the same branch.

On the cliffs along the Fraser Canyon you could see the low mats of pentstemon which would turn to brilliant blue cushions when the plants are in bloom. There is a beautiful display of them through the canyon as well as in some places along the highway north of Squamish.

Near Lytton we started to see clumps of sunflowers, the large greenish gray leaves accented by the brilliant yellow blooms. These flowers come so early in the spring when there is very little color and are a feature of the dry interior. They grow between Lytton and Spence's Bridge and also along the Hope-Princeton highway as you approach Princeton.

They are so bright and cheerful that they light up the dry hillsides bringing a spring-like note to an otherwise drab country.

It was delightfully warm as we passed through this southern interior country. Near Ashcroft they were already starting to irrigate the hay fields. Imagine! We had just passed through torrential downpours in the raincoast country and here they were suffering from early heat!

On the road north of Cache Creek the cattle were browsing in the meadows, their little ones beside them on wobbly legs or else lying in the warm sunshine soaking up the heat. Clumps of virgin's bower, the wild clematis, grew along the fences and roadsides, young green shoots starting to show. Later they will wreath the fence rails and shrubs with garlands of creamy white flowers changing to feathery seed heads.

By the time we passed Clinton, you could see the patches of snow in the hollows. Most of the lakes were free of ice, but some of them, especially those at the 108 were still ice covered. By late afternoon the sun had disappeared and it looked like rain. It was cold, but not too cold and promised to be a fine night.

Our room at the 108 Lodge overlooked the tennis courts and golf course as well as one of the many lakes. It was warm and comfortable and we relaxed for a while before going to the silver wedding anniversary celebrations we had come up to attend.

It was a surprise and we spent an interesting evening meeting old friends and quasi-relatives. But on leaving the hall we were startled to see the cars windshield completely covered with a heavy frost. We shouldn't have been surprised because they told us it had snowed at 100 Mile the night before, although it went away early in the morning. But people who had come down from the interior said they had passed through a veritable blizzard on their way south.

On Sunday, we came back and ran through the same strange assortment of weather. It was clear and cool at 100 Mile, bright and sunny from Cache Creek to Boston Bar and then it started to cloud over. By the time we reached Hope it was looking like rain again and we ran through bands of rain as we came west on the freeway.

My cats were delighted to have us home again. They had been cooped up in the house all weekend with friends coming in to feed them and were so pleased to have their family back.

In fact, they were so possessive they wouldn't let us out of their sight but Magic, who is always the owly one, persisted in meowing and wanting to go outside. But we made him stay in till next morning and then they were both out of the house like a shot.

It's amusing to watch them. As long as we are home they delight in wandering in and out, making sure there is someone there to see them, but if we're away for a while they become positive little house cats and can't see enough of us. They are enjoying the longer days. They like being outside and usually come in when they are called but these longer evenings are a real temptation for them and they like staying out. They love helping (?) when you are doing garden chores and fortunately they don't like the weed eater. Seems it makes a noise which frightens them. Thank goodness it does. I can remember once when dad was clipping the edges and the little grey cat we had at the time who followed him everywhere got too close and he clipped one of his claws.

I don't know who was more upset, Dad or the cat. Gandalf couldn't believe that his master would do something like that to him and Dad was so cross with him for not keeping out of the way.

Going to the interior for the weekend was nice even if so much of the time was spent travelling.

Credit Union needs luck

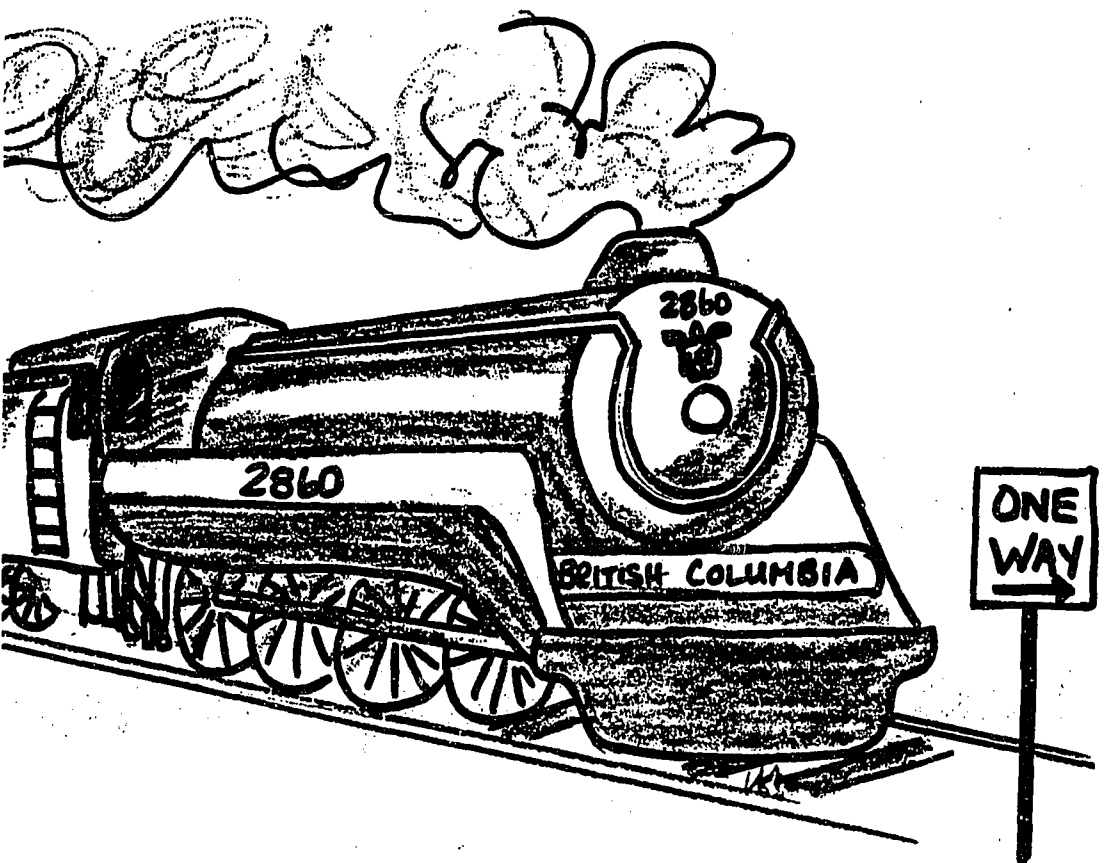

Dear Editor The old saying goes, if it's too hot in the kitchen, move out. I say, if you are disgusted, the same applies. I have been with the Credit Union for 18 years, never a problem. I had a couple of loans, never ever missed repayment, even finished the loan contract before needed. I never ever wrote a rubber cheque in my life, I may be called a few things, but at least I'm honest, I call a spade and let the chips fall where they may. I own my own house and acreage, don't believe in credit cards or owing money, however I was out of work and needed a few bucks, saw a big advert in the Times asking people if they wanted a line of credit, so off goes Alfie knowing very well problem solved. I asked for a loan of $1000 credit, put up by house and property as collateral if needed, do you know I was turned down and you the Board of Directors ask why I'm annoyed, forget the meeting and the B.S., after 18 years of loyal support I went back to the Royal Bank who if I had known, I would never have left. As for the Credit Union staff, I don't think you could find better anywhere, except the loans department. I am not the only one disgusted, there is one guy who knows an 18 year customer, has pulled out for different reasons. I hope he sends a letter in an anyone else who is interested, Lord knows what you need to qualify for credit, a job means nothing these days. I wish the Credit Union the best of luck, I believe you will need it.

Street talk

The Board of School Trustees last week approved the implementation of a CARE program in the Squamish Elementary School kindergarten. Do you think children should be taught in school about the potential of child abuse?

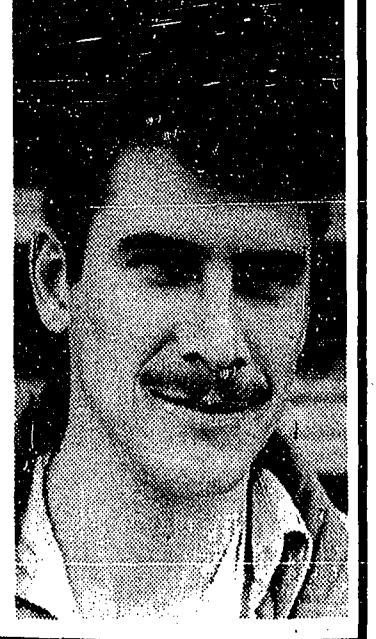

Maryann Anthony: "Yes. It would make them a little safer. I think there's a lot of perverts hanging around the schools."

Ivy Grasby: "I think so. It gives them a good understanding of what's going on."

Azeema deSouza: Sure they should so they know what's going on.

Bob Lyons: "Yes, I think it's a good idea. Parents are a little lax these days. They're too embarrassed to talk about it to their kids."

United Hotspurs lack finish in own tournies

It was not a good weekend to assert one's dominance in front of the home crowd.

The first division, Squamish United Pharmsave and the third division Squamish Hotspurs have long been noted for several things. One was providing a competitive brand of soccer and, two, was winning their own year end tournaments, or at least finishing in the top two teams.

But on the weekend, Pharmsave and the Hotspurs were an unpredictable as the elements as both clubs finished out of the money in locally held, four team competitions.

On Saturday, United Pharmsave hosted sides from the premier and the first division of the Vancouver Metro League and were outworked and out-scored to finish third, behind Wise and the Trollers, with a record of one win, one loss and a tie.

Opening the three games round robin event with a 1-0 victory over the Nomads, which eventually settled for fourth spot, Squamish ran into heavy going against the top two squads and paid the price.

Against the Trollers in the second round the locals could count themselves lucky to salvage a 1-1 draw as a free kick by Doug Muir from just outside the penalty area, in the final minutes deflected off the defensive wall and looped into the back of the net.

Other than that the Vancouver club held the balance of play but like Squamish, lacked that much needed finishing touch around the net. Ultimately that spelled the difference in crowning the tournament champion for this year. Other than that the Vancouver club held the balance of play but like Squamish, lacked that much needed finishing touch around the net. Ultimately that spelled the difference in crowning the tournament champion for in the third and final round United took on Wise which in two previous contests, including a 0-0 draw against the Trollers, had failed to yield a goal.

Following on the footsteps of a 5-0 drubbing of the Nomads, Wise continued its iron curtain policy on defence to score a 3-0 triumph.

If scoring chances were sparse against the Trollers for Pharmsave then, against Wise they were almost non-existent. Though they got off on the right foot by keeping most of the action inside the opposition's half Squamish had little to show for it in their way of opportunities.

So when Wise curved a drive over the lunging Barry Galley late in the first half to break the scoreless draw it forced United to open up in the final thirty minutes. And that they did as Alex Ross introduced the second frame by drilling a shot off the post while later Reg Fogarty failed to convert on a set up that found him all alone against the keeper.

Wise however didn't have the same problems around the target and made the most out of their opportunities. Twenty minutes into the half a scramble in front resulted in the insurance marker and then seconds after Fogarty missed his attempt a quick counter-attack, a long cross and a header into the gaping net made it all history.

The victory gave Wise first place on goal differential at 8-0 compared to the second place Troller's which was at 3-1. Both teams were undefeated with records of two wins and a tie. Meanwhile, on Sunday, the Squamish Hotspurs simply couldn't buy a goal and could only look on as Kilmore United's 2-0 victory over Belfast earned the former the first place prize money.

After opening the tournament on a sour note with a 3-0 loss to Belfast, Squamish found themselves lacking in being shut out 2-0 by Kilmore.

Everything was there including hard work and scoring chances, though the defence at times had difficulty in clearing the ball, but somebody apparently burned the four leaf clover for lady luck was indeed an enemy.

Early in the contest, with the score still blank, Mark Johnson and Kevin Doherty each had glorious opportunities to hit the back of the net while fighting a crowd near the goal line. Somehow, inexplicably the ball remained on the wrong side of that line as Doherty's point blank drive was turned aside by the keeper.

Later, in the second frame another scramble on the Kilmore doorstep saw a horde of Hotsara and Mike Howard banging away with no sign of light in a sea of legs.

Eventually the ball popped loose into the open and Glen Rivett was there to greet it, only to sail a blast from six yards out over the cross bar.

The Hotspurs ill-fortune continued in much the same light in the final game as two quick goals in the first half put the Sons of Norway in front to stay in a hard fought 5-1 count.

It was only fitting that the only way Squamish managed to score in the entire game, and tournament for that matter, was on a penalty kick by John Cameron early in the final frame that made it 2-1.

Perhaps it was more out of fear of what his team mates might do if he failed to connect on that opportunity that sparked Cameron in squeaking the ball inside the post past the lunging goalie.

It would have been more fitting however if lady luck frowned again.

Western-style theme for Squamish proposed

David Smith, representative of Shelan Development Corporation and member of the Royal Hudson Society, appeared before council on April 30 with a proposal to build a Western-style saloon on Block 19 complete with hitching posts and horse-drawn wagons.

Smith proposed that the present Chamber of Commerce information building on Block 19 be moved north of the Squamish Junction pavilion and that the District of Squamish surrender to B.C. Rail the southern portion of Block 19. This area, along with the northern portion of Block 20, would be leased to Shelan Dev. Corp. for development of a commercial venture possibly on a Heritage Building pattern which he said would appeal to tourists arriving in Squamish on the Royal Hudson.

"I propose to make the destination of Squamish more appealing to tourism," Smith told council.

"There's very little for tourists to do in Squamish right now. I've talked to a number of retailers in Squamish and they're a little bit concerned about the winter months. I can make it interesting enough that it could operate 12 months a year and be profitable."

Included in the proposal is a lease for Cheekeye Stables to provide a wagon train and horses. Smith said he would like to see two horses tied up at the proposed saloon at all times.

"I think that would be a real asset," Smith said.

Council expressed some concern that the Chamber of Commerce had just recently been moved to Block 19 and it would be expensive to move it, provided the Chamber of Commerce was in agreement to the move.

"What if the Chamber of Commerce tells us they don't want to move?" said Alderman Ron Barr. "Then it's game over."

Mayor Egon Tobus was concerned that there was already construction going on at Block 19 and additional construction would be detrimental to the nearing commencement of the Royal Hudson season.

"You would now put the area in a turmoil," Tobus said. "It's already a construction site. It may not be as attractive to dignitaries riding the Royal Hudson."

Council also expressed concern over the proposed surrendering of the southern portion of Block 19.

"If it didn't fly would we get the lease back?" Alderman Lonsdale asked.

Added Alderman Ron Barr: "What are the guarantees that the Royal Hudson will continue to stop here?"

"There aren't any," answered Smith. "But I don't think there's anywhere else they would run it," he added.

Alderman Wilf Dowad expressed concern that the proposal does not address the problem of inadequate parking in the area.

"The bylaw says that you need 40 parking spaces on the site (for 20,000 sq. ft.). I, for one, wouldn't support parking on Logger's Lane," Dowad said.

"I don't think he's going to have a viable project," he added.

Added Alderman Barr: "I can't visualize how it affects the pavilion. I think there's too many unanswered questions."

Council was in general agreement that the concept of a Western-style theme was desirable.

"The concept I really do like," Alderman Harvey said.

"It's something that would be good for Squamish," said Alderman Lonsdale. "We'd no longer be a two-month tourist attraction."

"It's interesting," said Mayor Tobus. "It's obviously an opportunity in making money the way the municipality couldn't."

Added Alderman Harvey: "If there's a better solution now that will save people money, then I think we should look at it."

Alderman Lonsdale made a motion to give Smith approval in principle to the conceptual design provided it goes to the appropriate committees for further discussion.

Council failed to pass the motion and decided to table the matter until the next council meeting to allow further study of the proposal.

Theft at log dump

Police were called to the dry land sorting area where a small building belonging to Ogdan Lumber Co. was broken into and a number of tools as well as a chain saw were stolen.

House vandalized

Police were called to Lions Bay recently by a report of vandalism of a house belonging to Bob Moloughney of Squamish.

Apparently the house was entered and every room suffered some sort of damage. Light fixtures were broken, walls were kicked in, holes punched in the ceiling, mirrors damaged and the fridge and stove destroyed.

Damage is estimated to be over $10,000. Police have talked to a number of people but no one saw anyone in the house. The case is still under investigation.

OUTSTANDING INVESTMENT RESULTS

are produced by outstanding management. How would you like to have YOUR MONEY managed by some of the world's most successful money managers?
Here are comments from some of our Clients:

Mr. & Mrs. C., North Vancouver
We have had a very pleasant and rewarding relationship with Great Pacific for the past 9 years. We have been truly amazed at the fantastic investment results we have experienced. Retirement without financing worries? "We highly recommend it!"

Ms. P.G., Vancouver
In 1975 I started to save for my retirement. My objective was $100,000. Acting on advice from Great Pacific I switched my savings and term deposits to investments and for 5 years added as much as I could from my income each month. This year I retired. I can hardly believe that the total investment of $59,000 is now worth $280,000. Thanks Great Pacific!

Mrs. A.B., West Vancouver
In 1975, after many years of worry and disappointment due to poor investment results, I was fortunate to be introduced to Great Pacific. Now I have complete freedom from financial worries and my original capital has quadrupled in value. It's just wonderful to have someone like this to depend on. "I would heartily recommend Great Pacific to everyone."

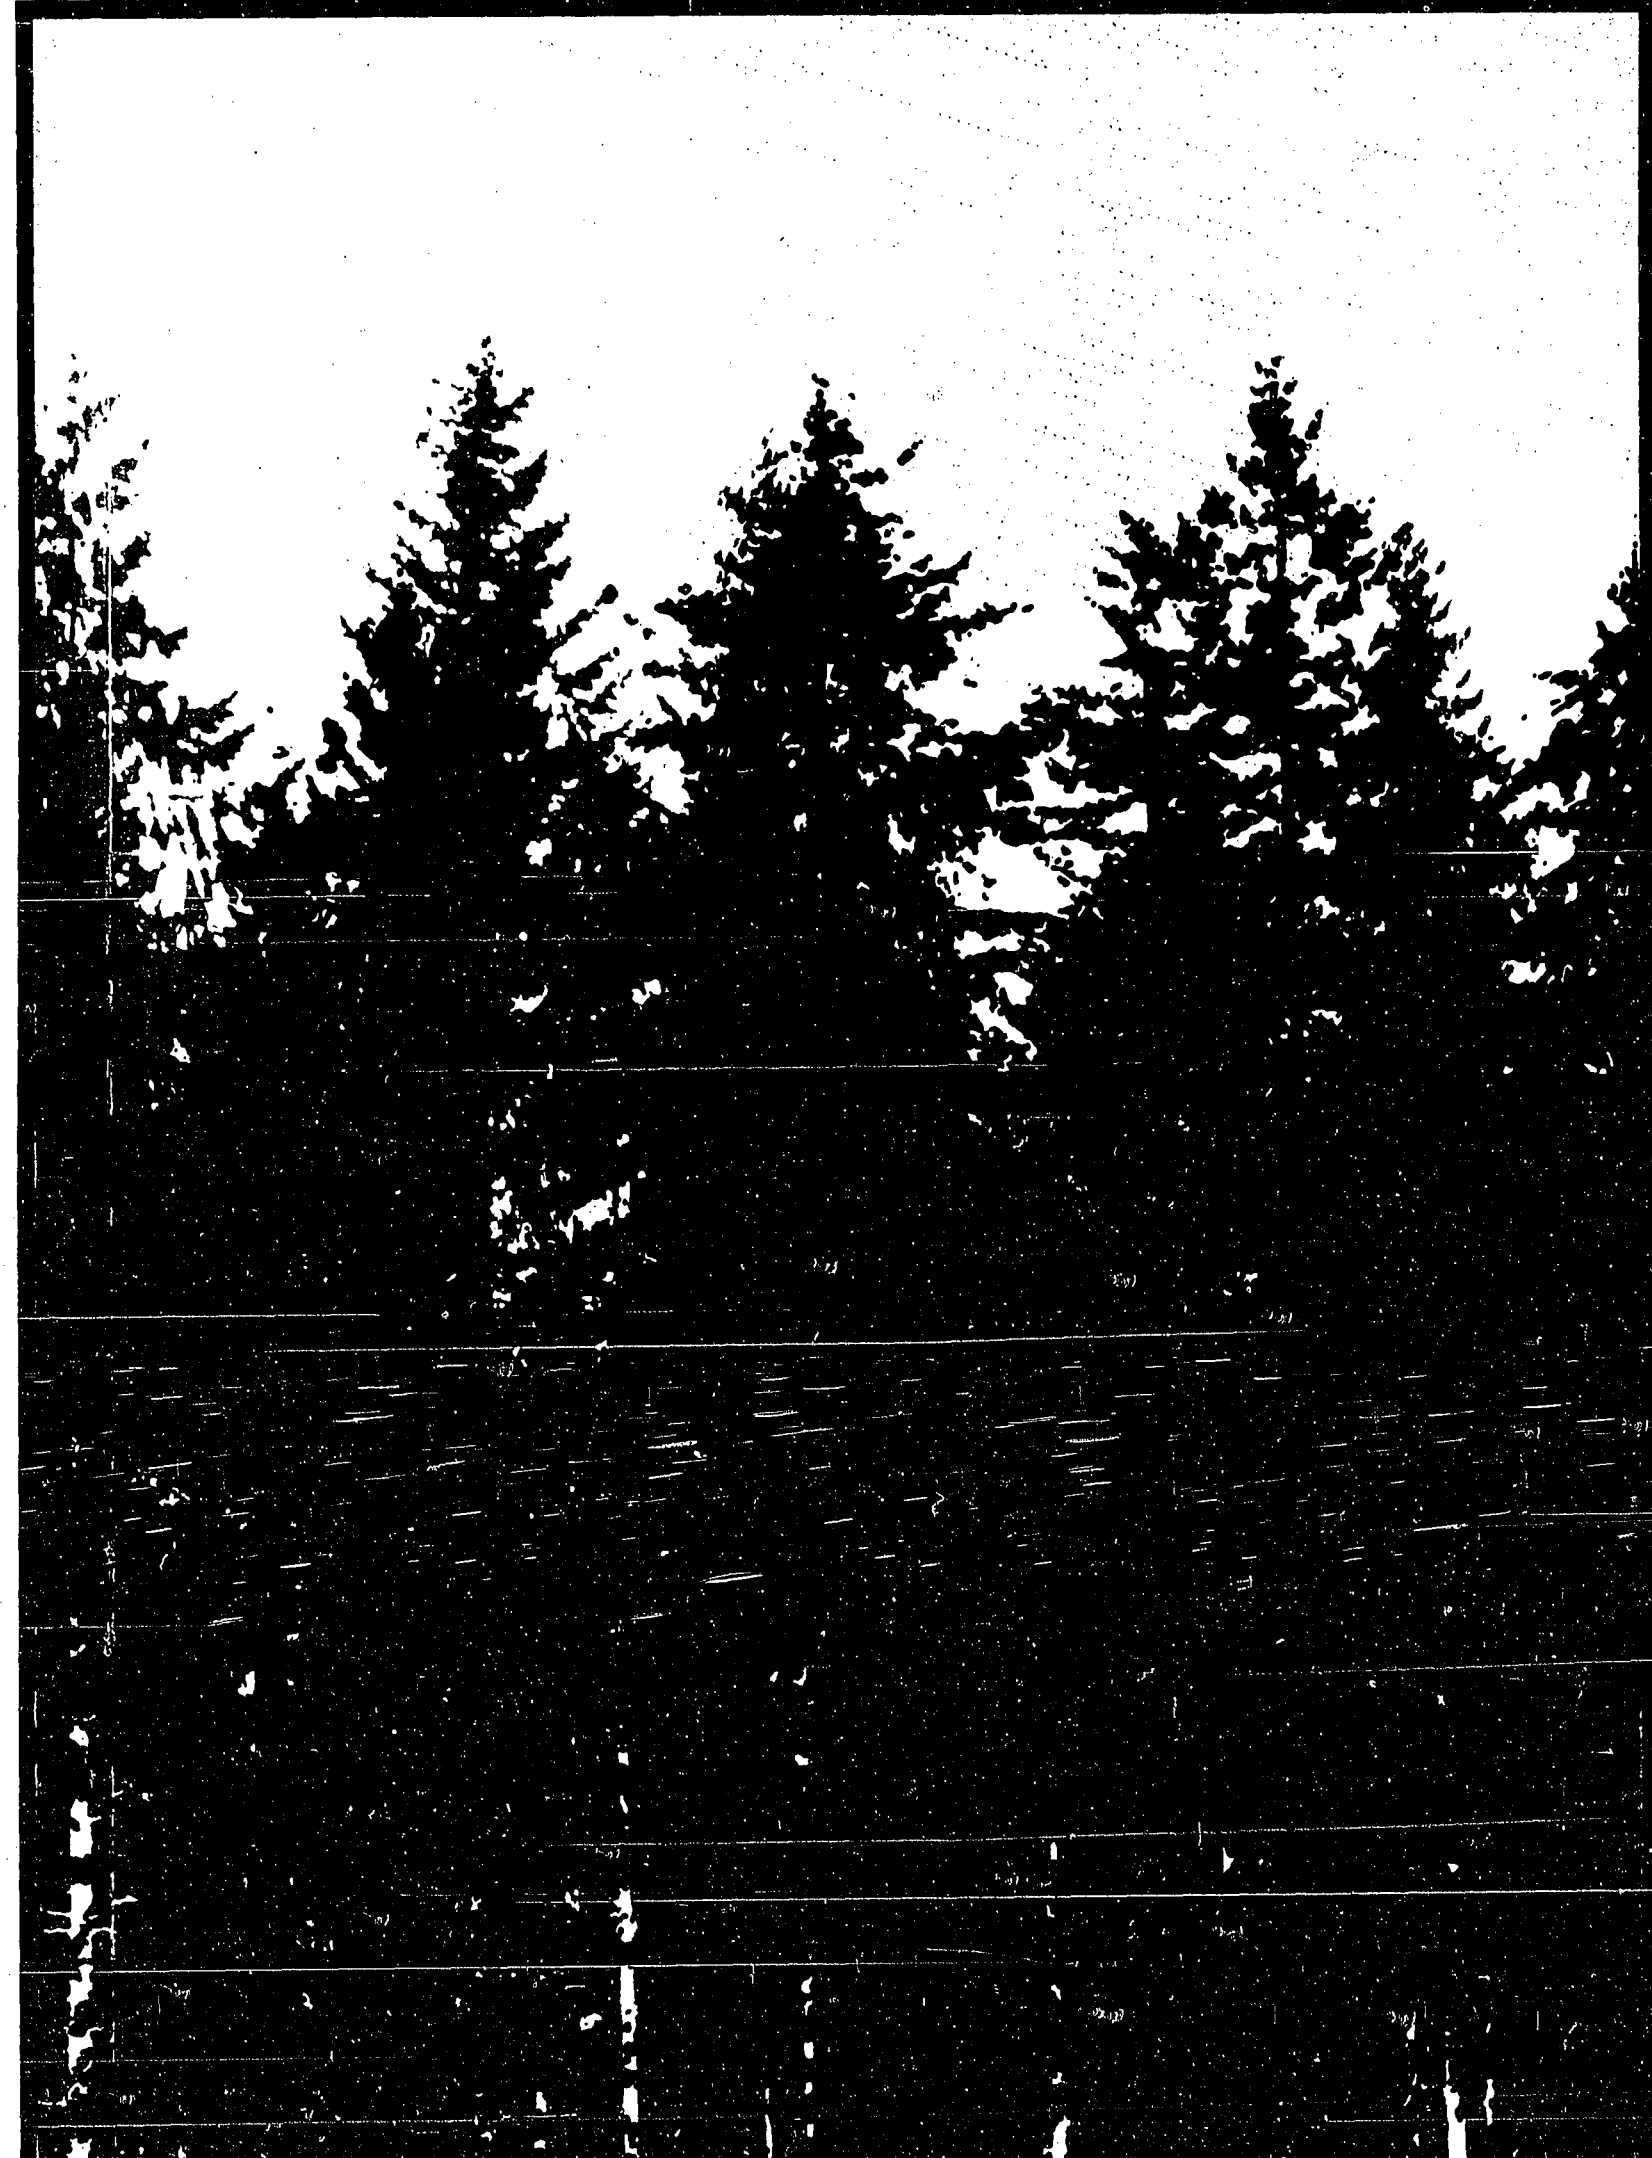

Ms. R.H., Vancouver
Great Pacific advised me to invest $200 from my pay cheque each month. At the end of 4 years the account was worth more than $30,000. As a result of another recommendation from Great Pacific I received a $4,600 income tax refund earlier this year. "If I can make my money work anyone can!"

'Too many' is exactly why most of us were killed - there are just 'too many' of us and not enough people who care. Although many of those killed were sick or injured, most were bright, healthy animals like us, whose only problem was being born. Educational programs emphasizing the importance of having us spayed or neutered can only be provided through your generous support of the Vancouver S.P.C.A. Students taught fire prevention

The Squamish Fire Department is conducting in-class sessions on fire prevention at local elementary schools in an effort to promote fire safety awareness and prevention.

The main emphasis of the program is preventing fire by preventing people from starting fires. Fire Raynor, Fire Prevention Officer for the Squamish Fire Department, says most fires happen in residential properties and most residential fires are caused by human carelessness or ignorance of hazards. The school fire prevention program will also address the escape from fires in residences. A separate program has been designed for three age groups of students. Students in kindergarten to grade two are taught Exit Skills in the Home (EDITH). This program deals with such topics as how to plan your home fire escape, importance of smoke detectors, playing with matches, hazards of smoking (parents) stop, drop and roll if your clothes catch fire and crawling low in smoke.

Students in grades three to five are taught basic fire prevention, basic fire suppression, and specific fires (i.e. kitchen fires). Students in grades six and seven review the items discussed in the first age group and relate the material to babysitting. They also discuss basic fire prevention at an advanced level, including the importance of fire extinguishers and false alarms.

WELCOME TO THE 1985 TRADE FAIR MAY 10, 11, 12th

SQUAMISH 2nd ANNUAL TRADE FAIR

Squamish Civic Centre

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

Trade Fair nearing countdown

The 1985 Trade Fair, the second annual one is nearing the final stages of preparation for the big weekend of May 10 to 12. Imagine if you can, 100 booths, all advertising and illustrating various firms and businesses in Squamish.

There will be representation from Whistler as well and this second annual fair appears to be bigger and better than ever.

There will be something for everyone in the expanded fair which is almost double last year's in size and number of exhibitors.

The events will start at 6:30 p.m. with Mayor Egon Tobus, MLA John Reynolds and chamber president Tony Tonkinson, speaking to the guests and exhibitors. The local Kinsmen Pipe Band under Pipe Major Ian Walker will also present a short program.

There will be a daily door prize for an Expo 86 pass at the end of each day. The free admission ticket (for the draw) will give the committee an idea of how many people will attend the Trade Fair.

At 4:30 p.m., Sunday, May 12, the Sea to Sky Country Lottery draw for cash prizes of $1,000, $300 and two $100 will be made and there will be a number of exhibitor's draws at the same time.

There will be a best exhibitor's trophy, won last year by Howe Sound Equipment Ltd. Selecting the winner will be a difficult task for Mayor Tobus, Mayor Rodgers of Whistler and Mayor Henry of Pemberton.

Exhibitors will be able to sell their products, and in fact this is encouraged. The chamber wants the people of the community to use the Trade Fair as an outlet for their products.

Other attractions will be the daily Fashion Show with all the retail stores in Squamish taking part with the latest styles and fashions. Models will be local and these will be at 7:30 p.m. on Friday and Saturday with a special Mothers' Day Fashion Show at 2 p.m. on Sunday.

There will be musical entertainment by The Yesterdays, Special Guest, Holly Wood and Ron Marier, upstairs in the mezzanine area, with food and spirits available.

A slide-tape presentation by the B.C. Museum of Mining at Britannia Beach will be held on the auditorium stage on each of the three days.

There will be children's face painting and a fish pond for the youngsters.

Phil Turner, chairman of the Trade Fair Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, says there will be more food outlets this year. This was one of the requests following last year's event. These will be in various areas throughout the building and will offer a number of fast foods for the fair goers.

Plans are already underway for the next year's fair which will utilize the entire Civic Centre including the ice arena!

Be sure to mark the dates, May 10 to 12 on your calendar and attend the event. It's free and it is well worth visiting.

There'll be lots of things to do and see at the Trade Fair this weekend but one of the interesting things will be the different types of entertainment during the three day show.

The Kinsmen Pipe Band under the leadership of Pipe Major Ian Walker will play a predominant role in the event, taking part in the opening ceremonies when the stirring music of the pipes will fill the hall.

The colorful tartans and the precision marching of the local band is always a treat and this group adds so much to any local event.

For music, the Yesterdays, Special Guest and Holly Wood will be performing in the mezzanine upstairs in the arena.

Ron Marier will also be on hand to provide entertainment.

For the young people there will be an ever-popular fish pond and face painting. The youngsters love having their faces painted with bright colors and floral designs and this will be their opportunity.

A special program will be provided by the Britannia Beach B.C. Museum of Mining, which will have a slide-tape presentation on the stage in the auditorium during the three days.

That's what the organizers, the Squamish Chamber of Commerce have prepared to keep you interested. But, in addition there will be many interesting features in the booths, or presented by the exhibitors.

Come to the Fair each day. There's bound to be something new or different to see and it is going to take two or three visits to make sure that you have seen everything.

Remember admittance is free and there's a chance at the door prizes each day.

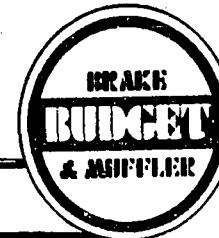

John Reynolds, MLA, who will officially open the 1985 Trade Fair on Friday evening.

Mayor Terry Rogers of Whistler who will take part in the official ceremonies at the opening of the Trade Fair on Friday.

Mayors, MLA to open Trade Fair

MLA John Reynolds, along with the mayors of the three Sea-to-Sky communities, will be on hand to officially open the second Annual Trade on Friday evening, May 10.

The events will start at 6:30 p.m. on Friday evening with the official opening and Chamber president Tony Tonkinson will be on hand with the other dignitaries for the formal opening.

Phil Turner, chairman of the Trade Fair Committee, will also be present at the opening ceremonies which will kick off the second Trade Fair. Hopefully, it will be even more successful than last year's event which was one of the highlights of 1984.

A gift to your community

There are many BOYS and GIRLS in Squamish who are faced with an incomplete family experience. You can give a great gift by becoming a BIG BROTHER or BIG SISTER Volunteer. It is a gift that does not cost money, just time. If you can afford a minimum of 3 or 4 hours you would be enjoying a tremendous social service. Male volunteers are desperately needed in the Squamish area. Currently 5 young boys are on the waiting list and have been for a number of months. Growing up is tough enough in these times, especially if there is no one to be a special friend.

Also there are some big sisters available should you or anyone know of someone in need.

If you have it in your heart to contribute in any way, please feel free to call the Squamish Agency at 892-3125.

Food for everyone

There'll be lots of food for everyone at this year's trade fair. From soft drinks and ice cream to coffee and cakes. From hot dogs to hamburgers and everything in between, there's sure to be something to tickle your palate.

Do you like perogies? Our own perogy makers will be there with their goods, there'll be taste treats from the Village Deli and the Creative Kitchen as well as the Butcher Shop.

Dairy Queen's delicacies will tempt the kids... the grownups as well, and the Lions Club will also have a booth.

Then if you want to relax with a cool one the Expo Society will be glad to look after you at the Beer Garden in the mezzanine.

Sign up now for 1986 Trade Fair

Debbie Piche in one of the dresses she will be modelling at the Fashion Show at the Trade Fair.

The Chamber of Commerce Trade Fair committee is urging exhibitors to sign up right now for next year's Trade Fair.

Planned to be bigger and better than ever, the Third Annual Squamish Trade Fair will be held in the Civic Centre and Arena in Squamish in early May.

The Trade Fair doubled in size from 1984 to 1985 and is already looking forward to taking another giant step forward in 1986.

Last year, and again this year, exhibitors have come mainly from the Squamish area with only a few from out of town. But next year, with the Trade Fair able to use the arena, as well as the Civic Centre auditorium and foyers, there should be more room for other exhibitors as well.

This year Whistler will have a booth at the Trade Fair but practically all the exhibitors are from the Squamish area. Some of them have never taken part in a project like this before and are looking forward to the exposure they will receive during the three day event.

Participation by outside exhibitors will be welcomed next year, so if you would like exposure of your product to a large market in the Squamish area, book now for the 1986 Trade Fair.

Sea to Sky Country

The Howe Sound Corridor

Whistler photographer John Bartosik's latest book reveals through its beautifully reproduced photos, a region of British Columbia that to date has never had its story told. From Britannia Beach 50 kilometres north of Vancouver, past Squamish and Garibaldi Park, through the Whistler resort and further north to the magnificent Pemberton Valley, this expedition is well worth taking part in.

Twelve top photographers share Bartosik's vision of the area. Their portrayals are sensitive and subtle; portrayals of town and bald eagles, of the rain forest and of the gripping geometry of the Coast Mountain Range.

And the people figure in this work. Lumberjacks and skiers; windsurfers and hikers deep in the mountains. Mix that with Glenda Bartosh's well-researched history of how people came to settle in this demanding area, and you have an idea how the geographically disparate but ultimately interdependent region has developed as it is today. And one is given a clue of what is to come.

Bartosik, a seven-year resident of Whistler who trained at Ryerson Polytechnic Institute of Toronto, view this production as the first of its kind. Says Bartosik, "No one's really seen this area before in this form. It seems as if everywhere else in B.C. has been documented in high-quality productions, but nowhere could I find anything about the Howe Sound Corridor. Considering all the beauty here, it's hard to see why."

Sea to Sky Country is now available in bookstores and gift shops throughout Vancouver, the Lower Mainland, Squamish, Whistler and Pemberton. The summer of '85, Sea to Sky Country will be available in hardcover.

One of the loveliest displays was this one by the Garden Centre.

Two of the exhibitors took advantage of a lull in the number of people at the Fair to have a quiet chat.

Last year's Trade Fair made Squamish history

The 1984 Trade Fair, the first ever held in Squamish was a smashing success. Starting with the opening of the fair on Friday evening, crowds filled the Civic Centre for the three day affair. There were over 50 booths, almost all by local exhibitors, and it was a showcase of the businesses and firms in the valley, displaying what they could offer the public. Many people did not even know some of them existed.

At the close of the show, Tony Tonkinson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the event, said, "It was an unqualified success. I'm gratified with the response from the exhibitors and from the general public which seemed to like what it saw."

Admission to the show was free and there were lots of draw prizes from the big ones offered by the fair itself to those from individual exhibitors.

The prize for the best exhibit in the Trade Fair went to the Howe Sound Equipment Centre but there were several others in competition for the prize. Displays by Garibaldi Tire, Ervik Construction, the Garden Centre and Grand Banks Dory all had crowds standing around them during the entire fair.

At the close of last year's fair, Phil Turner said it exceeded his wildest dreams and people were already booking space for the 1985 fair.

These attractive 'stones' can be used in a number of ways. Highland Masonry will be one of the exhibitors at the Trade Fair showing what can be done with concrete and stone.

Electricity, the choice, today and tomorrow

One of the Chamber of Commerce's major Corporate members will be at the May Trade Fair. Fair goers will see in the main auditorium B.C. Hydro's booth which emphasizes the merits of electric heating. Homeowners who are currently using oil for space and water heating will be especially interested in various equipment and models on display.

On hand from the local Hydro office will be Gary Wong, LaRoy Watt and Ken Akers to offer helpful and friendly advice on conversions and new installations. Specially procured literature and kits will be available for customers and trades people as well as information and free samples dealing with Energy Conservation.

As an added bonus, homeowners who are interested in insulation and conversion costs can have a computerized energy audit personally and immediately prepared for them. To make the analysis as accurate as possible, customers are asked to bring with them specific information on their home (see adjacent ad for details). Alternatively, customers can in advance contact the Squamish office during business hours to obtain a computer fill-out form.

B.C. Hydro hasn't forgotten about young people visiting the Fair. Several solar energy models will be set up to fascinate youngsters (and oldsters) alike.

Even if you are not presently thinking about home building or renovations be sure to drop by the B.C. Hydro booth.

Exhibitors draw

Exhibitors are encouraged to make their display as attractive as possible and to make it interesting enough to have everyone stop to look at it.

There is a prize for the best exhibit and all entries in the Fair are eligible for this prize.

Last year the winner was the Howe Sound Equipment Display and this year there is expected to be keen competition for this trophy.

The prize winning display will be selected by the mayors of Squamish, Pemberton and Whistler and will be presented to the winner on Sunday.
