

Public "mum" on tax increase

School Board stands firm on recovery budget

Low attendance at a public meeting held April 28 to address the probable increase in taxes to Howe Sound homeowners gave the School District #48 School Board the green light for its recovery budget.

"If the public is really concerned, there would have been more of an effort to attend this meeting," said Vice-Chairman Thelma Johnstone.

"There is no great groundswell of opposition," she added.

The School Board scheduled the meeting after receiving word from the Provincial Government regarding the provisional budget it submitted to the government March 15.

That budget amounted to $11,691,106 which is $1.726 million in excess of the Provincial Government's allotment of $9.844 million.

The Ministry of Education has now announced its share of the operating cost will be 59.91 percent for 1986, leaving the share borne through residential taxation at 40.09 percent.

To the average homeowner, that is, owner of a home assessed at about $58,000, the recovery budget will mean an increase in residential taxation of $161 over a 12-month period. About 40 percent of that figure will apply to this year's taxes, or about $69.

This year's recovery budget represents a 13.9 percent increase in the total operating budget over last year's budget, an increase of about $1.5 million.

The budget also represents a 21 percent increase since 1982.

A breakdown of the proposed expenditures reveals significant monies going towards increasing staffing, including teachers and aides, maintenance upgrade, and replacement of deteriorated buildings and equipment.

The budget provides for an additional six full-time equivalent teaching positions this year, one-third portion of the total of 18 full-time equivalent teaching positions the Board intends to introduce over the next three years.

The budget also provides for a wage increase for teachers but the Board refused to comment on that portion of the budget due to the current contract negotiations with the teachers.

Also included in the budget breakdown is a plan to reinstitute aides in the school system. About $60,000 will go towards hiring support staff and aides, with an additional $40,000 for the hiring of special education aides and $25,000 for French and Science aides.

Johnstone said the drastic elimination of aides in the school system in recent years would have been detrimental to the Howe Sound District had it not been for the "kind of teamwork that goes on in this District."

She added that a presentation to the Board from the Howe Sound Teachers Association in January included a request from the teachers for the reinstatement of aides.

The budget also provides for the upgrade, maintenance, and replacement of old and deteriorated equipment and buildings. According to Johnstone, the District is three years behind in the area of maintenance due to the low budget bases in 1983, 1984 and 1985. She said the need to make improvements was obvious to the Board who toured each of the schools before budget discussions began.

Weather

It was cool and rainy last week with a low of -1.0 C recorded on April 30 and rainfall for the week of 28.9 cm. During the same period last year, there was lots more rain, a total of 65.8 cm. Oh yes---we even had some snow last week! On April 29 the Weather Station recorded an estimate of ½ cm snow.

All was not lost though as the skies were blue and the temperature climbed to a comfortable 17 C on April 30. Altogether, the week produced 25.6 hours of sunshine.

Additional features of the 1986 budget include computers for instructional use, and a LEARN program, an all-day kindergarten for Native children and special needs children in Pemberton.

The budget also provides for a Job Entry Program in Pemberton.

The Board further pointed out that it was hoping to obtain monies from the newly created Funds for Excellence program for various items left out of the budget.

"But we can't count on it," said Chairman Shirley Brown.

Brown said the process of arriving at the present budget began in January when letters were sent to school principals and "wish lists" were gathered. At that time, members of the Board toured each school and met teachers and parents to address concerns.

The final budget, to be submitted to the government May 1, will undoubtedly remain in excess of government guidelines.

"We have put together what we feel is a responsible, recovery budget," Johnstone said.

Council discovers McKay encroachment

It seems Peter McKay's car lot on Buckley Ave. is hogging more space than it is entitled to.

Squamish council recently discovered that after years of operation, McKay Motors is violating property lines and is encroaching on approximately 5,000 square feet of municipal property.

The encroachment is on a gazetted road to the south of Block 23, which McKay is currently using to park his vehicles.

Furthermore, the building owned by McKay for his car lot has an existing roofline which encroaches on the required 25 foot sideyard setback, pursuant to Zoning By-Law No. 751.

The discovery of the encroachments came after the Technical Planning Committee of council received a request from McKay for an appeal regarding a building permit on the site, which was denied by the Building Inspector February 18.

At that time, McKay had requested a building permit authorizing the expansion of his existing structure and the placement of a covered deck or canopy over the gas pumps.

Bob Splinter, building inspector, denied McKay's request, citing the 25 foot setback encroachment of the existing structure.

Splinter also suggested McKay consider appealing the decision to the Board of Variance.

At the April 29 meeting, council agreed it could overlook the non-conformity of the present building whose roof hangs 1.3 feet on municipal property and allow an alteration to the front of the existing building by closing in a walkway up to the property line to allow for a larger showroom.

But council objected to the request to authorize the construction of a canopy over the gas pumps on the Buckley Ave. side of the property, which would be attached to the existing roof as it would be in violation of the Zoning By-Law due to the lack of a 25 foot setback.

Most of all, council objected to the car lot's encroachment on 5,000 square feet of municipal land, and said it will take action to see that the matter is resolved either by the removal of unlicensed vehicles from the municipal road, or by requesting an application be brought forward for lease or use of the land.

Said Alderman Dave Stewart, in summing up the matter: "The whole use of this site is a violation of the by-law."

Council approves bridges on controversial Dryden Creek

Council accepted a recommendation from the Works and Services Committee at the April 29 meeting to allow the installation of two bridges over Dryden Creek.

The application came from Steven Waslewsky, developer for Dryden Creek Resorts, who is constructing an RV Park/campground in the Dryden Creek area.

Waslewsky met with considerable opposition from Dryden Creek residents in March when he approached Squamish council requesting a rezoning of the property in Brackendale from Residential 2 to Commercial 3 to allow for the campground proposal.

At that time, area residents packed the March 4 public hearing to protest the development of the land, expressing such concerns as pollution of Dryden Creek, declining property value, vandalism, and harmful effects on the environment should the campground be built.

Additional ramifications mentioned by area residents at the hearing included the potential for sewage leakage in the area, increased garbage and debris in Dryden Creek, a potential for decrease in the local water supply due to increased demand from campers, negative effects on marine life, particularly salmon spawning, and overall deterioration of the area which could affect property values.

Despite the concerns expressed plus petitions containing over 100 signatures opposed to the development, council gave authority to rezone the property.

Not a blockade, says Mt. Currie Band

The Mount Currie Indian Band is planning an informational toll booth on the controversial Lillooet Lake Road, a five-mile stretch of road between Mount Currie and Lillooet Lake, 100 miles north of Vancouver.

Chief Leonard Andrew, of the Mount Currie Band

Lil'wat Nation, said in a press release the informational toll booth will not be a roadblock like the one staged in 1975 to establish the Band as the rightful owner of the road and defend native rights issues.

At that time, the Band blockaded the road for over a month from all traffic. Fifty-three band members were arrested and jailed overnight after the blockade was eventually dismantled by the R.C.M.P. Charges laid were dropped or stayed.

Andrew said there have been no changes since 1975 and the provincial government still refuses to recognize the Band as the rightful owner of the road. He added the problem extends to a larger scale where the government refuses to recognize aboriginal title in B.C.

"There have been approximately a half a dozen issues that the Band has been working on since 1975, but have come to a standstill because of either the government's further refusal to listen to the issues or been unable to give recognition of title and rights, or forcing the Band to settle the issues in the courts which are very costly and require years to settle," Andrew said.

The Band decided at its last General Assembly to hold the informational toll booth to distribute pamphlets and ask for a voluntary contribution from all people passing through the Lillooet Lake Road. Andrew said the toll booth will be located where there is no question that the section of road is entirely on Indian Reserve.

Said Andrew: "The Band is not out to create any hostilities and therefore is working along with its legal counsel, and also working with its Chief and Council to make sure that all legal avenues are adhered to."

Council nixes Air Alps proposal

Ron Banner, president of Air Alps Ltd. of Squamish, is relentless in his bid to have the airport upgraded in time for Expo.

Banner's latest effort to sway council is a proposal that he undertake the construction of a new entrance to the airport himself. The trade-off? That the municipality forego charging Air Alps its lease for the next 10 years.

At $1,000 a year for the lease, the total would be $10,000 in lost revenue to the municipality.

And council's reaction? No

thank you.

"I can't see how we can support this letter," Alderman Corinne Lonsdale told council.

"There's not enough information. We should undertake the work when and if we wish to."

Banner made the offer to council via a letter dated April 9. In the letter, Banner makes his proposal and adds: "Trusting that council realizes that Air Alps must have better access to their property to further and improve their operation and financial status in the community."

After Banner's initial approach to council requesting the airport upgrade earlier in the year, council passed a motion March 4 to include construction of a new road entrance to the airport in the 1987 budget.

The proposed road construction was expected to cost $10,000, including road base, preparation, paving, engineering, and legal fees.

Banner appeared before council again on March 18 urging council to consider undertaking the work early so as to capitalize on the projected influx of air traffic into the area due to Expo.

At that meeting, Banner told council an anticipated 2600 parking spaces for aircraft will be required during Expo but Squamish would not be considered due to the rough surface of the airport.

Banner asked that council, in addition to the $1,000 already allotted for upgrading the entrance to the airport, allow funds budgeted for next year to improve the airport road to be included in this year's budget instead.

Council declined at that time, however, to undertake the airport upgrade this year, saying other items had priority.

Banner's firm, Air Alps, runs a charter air service and flying school in the area, including mountain flying and glacier skiing.

Welcome to the Trade Fair

All roads in Squamish will be leading to the Civic Centre this weekend where the third annual Sea to Sky Country Trade Fair will be held.

Come and see the well over 130 booths which will show what your community can offer in goods, industries and services. Come and support your local merchants and businessmen who are bringing new goods and services to Squamish and creating a better place for all of us.

Come and see what can be done with a little imagination and a lot of hard work.

Come and watch the exciting fashions you can buy right here in your own shops and see how they compete with styles you see advertised in the city papers. We have them here as well.

Come and sample some of the imaginative foods available right here and just sit and enjoy a chat with friends.

But be sure to come to the 1986 Sea to Sky Country Trade Fair and have some fun.

It will be a great experience.

Helping you stay healthy

Health Care institutions and Long Term Care facilities across the country are beginning to form committees and plans to celebrate Canada Health Day on Monday, May 12. In Squamish it will be featured with a booth at the annual Sea to Sky Trade Fair on May 9, 10, and 11 and with a special article in the Times on May 13.

This year's theme is "Helping you stay healthy" and posters will be displaying the theme. The 1986 program is a joint project of the Canadian Hospital Association and the Canada Public Health Association.

The day -Monday, May 12, -gives hospitals, long-term care facilities and other health care organizations an opportunity to inform the public of their programs and accomplishments in meeting community needs, and to promote co-operation between the community and the institutions.

The booth features education, technology and special services as well as showing a plan of the new acute care hospitals.

Canada Health Day also provides an opportunity to identify the various professionals and volunteers who contribute to these programs. Further it was a time to increase awareness of health care funding issues.

We did it!!

During the next five months the world will be visiting Vancouver, to see the world class exhibition which had been built on the shores of False Creek and changed that murky waterway into one of the most fascinating areas in the city.

During those months, millions will see Vancouver, the city of the future, with its links to the east but facing the Pacific where its future lies.

Expo 86 will leave a legacy to the people of B.C., with the ALRT, the soaring white sails of Canada Place, the convention centre, and the exposition site will become the future urban heart of the city.

Already the entrance to False Creek is a far cry from the dingy industrial area it was fifty years ago. No one at the time could have envisioned Granville Island, the Expo site, or the developments on the south shore of the creek.

But best of all is the fact that we did it. A young city and a province without the power and wealth of its eastern relatives has produced something which will rival and even surpass the famous Expo 67, which gave Canada so much stature.

You did it B.C. And you have every reason to be proud of it!

Put garbage in dump, not on property

Dear Editor:

I am amazed at the letter from Mr. Stembridge in your newspaper some weeks ago. After viewing the garbage dump that exists on Finch Drive I became aware of what he would like our municipality to look like ----??? Imagine the council allowing property to be devaluated to this degree. What are the elected members thinking of? Would any of our elected members like to have second-hand dilapidated trailers moved into their neighborhoods? From my understanding Mr. Stembridge thinks building codes permits should allow anything? Tar paper shacks and the "slums" everywhere in Squamish?

I think it is a disgrace to Squamish and the residents who pay high taxes and try to keep their yards neat and tidy to have a neighbor who is allowed to degrade the residential area by collecting garbage in his own yard be it old cars, trucks, construction trailers or in general cause a mess that is unsightly. After driving in this area I became aware of the lovely yards, and homes located on Finch Drive -- my compliments to most of the residents there but I'm sorry that you have neighbors who are allowed by the elected members to degrade the area.

I would never invest in the property in that area as who wants to live in a residential area allocated as Rural with commercial businesses allowed. Also I would like to ask the council if they have changed the by-laws? As was pointed out to me a year ago, Rural stipulates a residence on the property. You must have at least two acres in order to keep a horse and they must be your own, not lease the property to 20 horse owners??

It was also stated by the municipality that you could not put a business on rural property; it must be a hobby farm or just your own animals and agricultural type enterprise. I ask the council why the sudden change or do you change the rules to suit the related party buying the land?

One more comment, "I do not see the elected members living in this area or do I see them allowing degrading of property in the areas where they do live".

Let us think of upgrading our community, rather than degrading it! Beautify the area and keep the garbage in the designated dump!

Citizens for Beautiful B.C.

Eagles say thanks

Dear Fans:

The Squamish Eagles Junior Hockey Club would like to thank all its fans, season ticket holders and all other supporters for getting us through the first season in the West Coast Junior Hockey League. Making it into the play-offs, which was accomplished, was the main objective. Next year hoping to make it even farther. It should be noted that the Eagles were the only team to beat Seattle Americans in a game throughout the play-offs. Seattle eventually won both league and play-offs.

Again a special thanks to Mike Eckersley of Squamish Times and Frank Collard of Squamish Terminals Ltd. for their great support during the season.

Thank you.

Yes, I know, you're either a cat fan or you aren't. I am, and I'm quite proud of it. But any cat fancier would have loved the show at the Highlands Mall on April 19 when over two dozen kids came to show off their cats. There were big ones and little ones, thin ones and fat one, cats of every color and plain cats.

But each one was something special and each one deserved a prize even if there were not enough for them. But each youngster did receive a booklet on cat care and a copy of an article on "cat talk."

Okay, so you don't believe cats talk? Take it from me, they do. Perdido can let me know just what he means with a quiet little "Mr-r-r" when he wants attention to a demanding yowl when he wants to go outside.

There's a lot more to a cat's conversation than a few meows and purrs according to psychologist David Greene in his book titled, "Your Incredible Cat."

Learning cat talk is essential if you want to achieve insight into their feelings and desires, Greene claims. These are some of the ways to discover what your cat is really trying to tell you.

As with humans, cats have individual ways of expressing themselves. These have been identified as murmurs, calls and cries.

MURMURS:

Purring: Listen carefully and you will soon realize purring is not one sound but several similar sounds, varying in frequency and intensity. By these subtle changes, cats communicate a wide variety of feelings.

Rough purrs: The rougher the purr, that is the more distinct the sound of each beat, the more intense is the cat's pleasure.

Smooth purrs: As the cat begins to get bored or drowsy, the purr gets smoother, telling you that he's had enough.

Smooth, high purrs: This purr is used to signal eager attention and desire to obtain something which the cat anticipates will bring pleasure. You can identify this by the addition of a high "rrr" sound.

Distress purr: Cats sometimes purr when in extreme pain. If your cat starts purring for no apparent reason after being sick or seeming in pain, take him to the vet.

Greeting murmurs: This purr combines the initial "m" sound with the breathy "rrr" quality of the smooth purr and sounds like "mhrhrhrn". It's a friendly hello reserved almost entirely for humans.

Calling murmurs: These resemble greeting murmurs in some ways but begin with an "uh" noise and sound like "uhmhrhrnn". Their general meaning is 'come here.'

Acknowledgement murmurs: The quick short purring tone drops rapidly in pitch, ending in a nasal "ng", to give a "mhhng" sound.

It is often made when a cat is given, or realizes he is about to receive, some hoped-for tidbit or toy. It is as close as cats ever come to saying thanks.

The coaxing murmur: Produced in response to something the cat desires, it consists of a "mrrraahou" with the "r" being thrilled. It translates as "Please do what I want."

CALLS:

Calls: Calls are produced while the cat's mouth slowly closes, as in the familiar "meow". Here are the five more frequently heard calls.

The demand: This consists of two sounds, the first similar to the coaxing "mhrhrm", the second made up of an extended cluster of vowels. Together they produce a "mhrhraahou."

The begging demand: A modification of the demand call, this cry extends the "o" and "a" sound to produce a "mhrhrhnaaahooooouu". The cat uses this call when all his attention is focussed on some especially sought-after goal. It is the equivalent of "Please, let me have it!"

The bewilderment call: When the initial "aah" of any of the repertoire of meows is louder and more drawn out.

The complaining call: This sounds more like "mhhngaahou" and varies according to the emotion your cat intends to express. When the sound is drawn out, the call becomes a plaintive message. The human equivalent would be "How could you do this to me."

When the emphasis is on the "U" your cat is expressing a rather dejected complaint, much as if a human told you sadly, "And I always thought you liked me!" If you hear this cry be sure to reassure the cat by speaking sympathetically and giving him some extra petting.

CRIES:

The refusal cry: This high-pitched, raspy cry sounds cry. You may well hear such a cry every time you attempt to put a collar or leash on your cat.

Spitting: Cats make a variety of spitting noises. One quick yowl or "pffft" cry is a completely voluntary sound made when the cat is startled or frightened.

There, now you have a dictionary of cat cries. Do you recognize any of them? I know I learned a lot about Perdido's calls and what they mean. I could always recognize his demands to go out or his calls when he wants to be picked up and petted. And also his comforting purrs when he settles down on the bed for a nap. And also his grumbling calls when I move and disturb him.

Your Forests... Your Future

Our research is tremendous

Ensuring that British Columbians will have healthy, productive forests in their future requires developing and promoting better methods for planting and growing forests, and protecting and preserving the forest resource without harming the environment.

Responsibility for the management of most of our forests rest with the provinces; however, the federal government, through the Canadian Forestry Service, provides vital support. With increasing demands being made on our natural resources, one of the Canadian Forestry Service's key roles is to conduct research into protecting and enhancing British Columbia's most valuable natural resource.

Some 180 men and women work at the Pacific Forestry Centre, headquartered in Victoria. Specialists in just about every science discipline including biology, botany, chemistry, physics, zoology, meteorology, mathematics, computers and others, combine efforts daily to address a myriad of problems currently facing British Columbia forests.

Insects and diseases

Insects and disease cause substantial forest losses. For every two trees harvested, one additional tree is lost to insects or disease. The annual timber loss is the equivalent of more than one million homes! Each year crews from the Pacific Forestry Centre survey B.C. to detect pest outbreaks and assess the damage. This appraisal provides important information to foresters and industry on future land use, productivity and ways to reduce losses.

The mountain pine beetle is the most damaging insect pest in western Canada today, causing catastrophic losses of mature lodgepole pine. In B.C. 20 per cent of the total 1982/83 harvest was lost to mountain pine beetle. Researchers at the Pacific Forestry Centre are developing guidelines to reduce these losses.

Environmental concerns limit the use of pesticides in the forest to control insect pests. The Canadian Forestry Service recognizes that biological control of forest pests is more compatible with nature, and researchers are studying a range of control options, including the use of selected natural enemies, such as parasites, predators, fungus and virus, in addition to behavior modifying chemicals such as pheromones, to control insect pests.

Combating nursery pests

Successful reforestation depends on healthy nursery stock. In nurseries and reforested areas, however, insects and disease can cause losses of 50 to 100 per cent of an annual crop of seeds or seedlings! With B.C.'s massive reforestation program needing more seedlings than ever, Pacific Forestry Centre researchers are working with nurseries to identify and find ways to combat nursery pests and ensure the seedling survival.

Effects of logging

Foresters are often accused of damaging the environment and in particular, on the Coast of B.C., of damaging fish habitat. A portion of the research conducted at the Pacific Forestry Centre is directed to studies of the effects of forestry practices on the environment, specifically on the effects of harvesting machinery on steep slopes, resulting in changes in the type of equipment used and consequent reduction in damage. We are working on a cooperative project with fisheries on the effects of forestry practices on salmonid habitat and production at Carnation Creek on Vancouver Island.

Fire research

Thanks to a large extent to the development of the Fire Weather Index and the Fire Danger Rating Systems, both products of fire research at the Canadian Forestry Service, the provincial protection agencies are better prepared to control devastating forest fires. Not all fires are destructive. Foresters can prescribe fire as a silviculture tool. A prescribed fire can remove unusable debris and help prepare the land for the next crop.

Bring back the white pine

White pine used to be an important tree species in British Columbia, growing quickly and highly valued for its wood. However, white pine blister rust, introduced on European nursery stock in 1910, almost eradicated the species. Researchers at the Pacific Forestry Centre are currently developing a strain of tree resistant to disease in order to re-establish white pine stands in B.C.

More wood from less land

Increasing demands on our forests for wood products and the removal of forest land for recreation, roads and other uses, means that we must develop more wood on less land. An experimental site at Shawnigan Lake on Vancouver Island has gained wide recognition for not only effectively proving that thinning, spacing and fertilizing can increase crop yields, but in understanding the processes which take place when these practices are introduced into a forest stand.

Passing on the results

Research is never really complete until the results are made public. The research findings of the scientists at the Pacific Forestry Centre are made available to industry, foresters, other governments and the general public, through close liaison, scientific seminars, displays, workshops etc. Anyone wishing further information on federal government forestry research in British Columbia should write: Pacific Forestry Centre, Canadian Forestry Service, 506 W. Burnside Road, Victoria, B.C., V8Z 1M5.

Forest Week hails a vital economic force

Canada's $30 billion forest industry affects the lives of more Canadians than any other industry in the country today.

It is the economic lifeblood of some 350 communities across the country...providing jobs for one of every 10 workers and earning Canadians $14 billion in forest exchange every year.

May 4 to 10 marks National Forest Week, and pays tribute to a vital economic force and prominent feature in Canadian heritage.

The following articles were submitted in homage to National Forest Week.

Science Council supports forest research

The Science Council of British Columbia is a major supporter of forest research in this province.

Since 1980, when it first awarded A.G.A.R. (Assistance Grants for Applied Research) grants, the Council has provided over $7 million to people conducting forest research in industry, not-for-profit institutes and the three B.C. universities.

The Science Council was established by the provincial government in 1978. It has two principal mandates: to provide advice to the government on policy matters relating to science and research, and to encourage the development of science-based industry in the province. With respect to the latter, the Council operates several scholarship and grants programs, using funds provided by the legislature.

Twice a year, the Science Council holds competitions for the funds available through its A.G.A.R. grants program. Applications are reviewed by volunteer subcommittees made up of experts in each of the 10 industrial sectors identified by the Council as being important to the economic development of British Columbia. One of these areas is research related to Forests and Forest Products.

The Science Council of British Columbia is convinced that our forests will play a central role in the provincial economy for decades to come. Accordingly, many of the forestry and forest products research projects it has supported in the last six years are relatively long-term ones. In other words, the economic results, in some cases, may not be realized for a decade or more.

Every year, from 50 to 60 million lodgepole pines are destroyed in British Columbia by mountain pine beetles. Actually, the destruction is caused by a fungus the beetle carries. The beetles burrow through the bark into the live tissue of a tree, and there the fungus grows until it clogs the channels through which the sap flows. The tree dies for lack of nutrients. The cost to the B.C. forest industry is hard to estimate, but it grows higher year by year.

For over a decade, scientists at Simon Fraser University and the University of British Columbia have confronted the problem with applied research projects on many fronts. The Science Council of British Columbia has been a major source of funds for that research.

Building a better tree: an investment in the future

How we manage our forests today will have a big impact on our future.

The experts predict that in the coming decades, the world wide demand for forest products is bound to increase. At the same time, the world's forest inventory will shrink.

This is good news for timber growing countries such as Canada. Our economic future looks bright...if we take the necessary steps now to get the most from our forest resource tomorrow.

Canadian Forest Products Ltd., one of Canada's largest forest product companies, has made it a top corporate priority to reforest every hectare of land that it logs. But more than that, Canfor (as the company is commonly known) has been in the forefront of efforts to develop genetically superior trees.

These "super trees" will grow faster and straighter and be less prone to disease than their run-of-the-forest cousins. Forest land planted with genetically superior seedlings should yield about 10 percent more timber - and that's a lot of wood.

Canfor is taking two approaches toward this goal. The more conventional path is being taken at the company's Sechelt Seed Orchard on B.C.'s Sunshine Coast, north of Vancouver.

Here you'll see row on row of Douglas-fir and hemlock trees being grown for the seeds they produce. These seed trees, called "ramets", are created by grafting the top of a mature, superior-quality tree onto a younger tree. The seeds collected from the ramets will in turn produce seedlings that should grow into trees as superior as the original parent tree.

There's one problem with this approach: time. It takes several years before a ramet begins to produce seed cones, and many more years before the foresters can be sure which ramets really are superior stock. Breeding trees this way is still a bit of a "hit or miss" proposition.

There may be another way. Since 1980, Canfor has sponsored research into tissue culturing - more popularly known as cloning.

If we can take a piece of a tree that we know is genetically superior, and from it produce hundreds of seedlings that are its exact duplicate, we'll have created a valuable shortcut to a vastly improved forest.

That's what Canfor and Clay's Nursery Ltd. of Langley, B.C. have been working toward. Clay's has already been successful at "cloning" various garden plants, such as African violets and rhododendrons. Now the aim is to do the same with Douglas-fir, yellow cedar and white spruce trees.

After almost six years of painstaking laboratory work, it's obvious there won't be any sudden breakthrough. Still, success may be just around the corner.

"With a research project like this, you can never be sure how close you are to success, but we feel we're in the home stretch now," says Canfor administrative forester Paul Wooding. "We've seen more progress over the past year than we've had since the work started."

At the Clay's tissue culturing lab are thousands of color-coded test tubes and containers, each a home to one or more tiny plantlets. The little trees can't be called seedlings because they aren't grown from seed. Instead, they're created by taking a clipping from a mature, superior-quality tree and nurturing it in a mixture of nutrients and growth hormones until it sprouts a shoot, then roots.

The trick is to consistently get multiple shoots, so that each cutting produces numerous plantlets that are the exact duplicate of the original tree. That way, we can efficiently mass-produce an entire forest of "super trees".

Scientist Ling Cherng-Hsi, the project research director, is especially pleased at how well the Douglas-fir specimens are doing.

the Times

Every year, the police in your community set aside one week to highlight ongoing police/community relations activities.

To this end, the Squamish Detachment during Police Week 1986 will be present at all six elementary school in Squamish assisting the Squamish Rotary Club with the Rotary Bicycle Rodeo where children are instructed in bicycle safety and tested on their bicycle handling skills.

Twenty-four finalists from the schools will perform their skills again at a final rodeo tentatively set for Sunday, May 18, weather permitting.

In addition, the Squamish Highway Patrol will attend Howe Sound Secondary School with a presentation on Counter Attack and the drinking and driving problem.

Police and the Community

Working Together To Prevent Crime

In conjunction with these activities, the RCMP will be at the Squamish Trade Fair, May 9, 10, and 11.

The Squamish Kinsmen Club will be hosting their OPERATION FAMILY IDENTIFICATION during all three days assisted by the Squamish Block Parents. This program provides parents with a complete personal identification record of their children consisting of a photograph, set of fingerprints and personal data. The parents or guardians must accompany the child when the fingerprints are taken and are the only ones to receive the complete record.

The intent of the program is to ensure families have complete identification records of their children to assist authorities in locating them should they ever have the misfortune to go missing.

Another ongoing program is the Bicycle Identification Program. The Squamish Rotary Club will be registering bikes as they have done for years but with a major improvement in the area of identifying bicycles. The vast majority of bike thefts are never solved. An increasing number of bicycle thefts involve the removal of many of the parts leaving the frame discarded. The frame can be traced back to the owner if identified but the parts have been sold or traded away. Although the police often know a bicycle may contain stolen parts, they can seldom prove it.

The bicycle Identification Program marks all these parts with a readily-accessible number, such as a B.C. Drivers Licence number, so that the bicycle is no longer of any value to a thief. With $90,000,000 worth of bicycles stolen in 1985 across Canada and bicycle theft exceeding auto theft in British Columbia in terms of dollar loss value, it is indeed becoming a great problem. We encourage all Squamish residents to bring their bicycles to the Trade Fair to be identified by Rotary free of charge. Bikes which have previously been ID'd at Squamish but not marked for Identification in this new manner are welcomed back to have it done. All persons bringing bikes to be ID'd will receive Safety Bear reflective anklet suitable for children to wear, as an additional safety feature.

Lastly, is the Squamish Detachment booth, featuring a Counter Attack theme. The RCMP will have on display the new roadside screening device, the ALERT, currently being tested for use in B.C. The booth will be manned also by Howe Sound Secondary School students and have continuous video presentations on Seat Belt safety, Drinking and Driving, and what to do when first to happen upon an accident scene.

We welcome all members of the community to attend the Squamish Trade Fair and take part of the activities planned and help the Detachment start off Police Week 1986.

THANK YOU

May we warmly thank all our friends who have supported and consoled us in our loss of Eric.

Your gifts of friendship through cards, flowers, and generous donations to the Heart Fund and to the Squamish Intermediate Care Society will always be remembered and appreciated.

NBC brass offer actor his own valentine

By Gillian George

The next time you watch Scott Valentine sail through one of his nifty comic scenes on "Family Ties," check out his physical condition.

Scott Valentine

He seems to be a typically fit, health-blessed American teen, right? Wrong: The 27-year-old actor has been walking without crutches or a cane for the past two years.

In 1980, the day after he signed a contract for his first daytime soap role, Valentine nearly lost his life because of a drunk driver. The actor was riding his bicycle on New York's Eighth Avenue, when he was rammed from behind, flipped into the air, had his pelvis run over and was dragged for almost two blocks.

If a courageous pedestrian hadn't leaped onto the truck's running board and forced the driver to stop, Valentine would probably never have survived. Even so, he sustained five major fractures and 32 minor

The actor was hospitalized for 61 days and spent the next three years undergoing numerous operations and thousands of hours of physical therapy. Several doctors told him he'd never walk again, especially after later complications left one hip completely useless and necessitated insertion of an artificial hip made of steel and ceramic.

"But my father taught me never to quit," Valentine says softly. "I just made up my mind that all the experts were wrong."

His perseverance paid off last July when he landed what was to be a one-episode role as Nick Moore, an artist who wins Mallory Keaton's (Justine Bateman) heart.

The NBC brass are so impressed with Valentine's potential that they've already taped a pilot for a new fall series with him in the lead.

"It will probably be called 'A Family Business,' 'Taking It Home' or 'Bringing It Home,'" the actor explains, "and I'll play an Italian guy named Nick Morelli who runs a small custom toy factory in Detroit with his grandfather, who's being played by Herschel Bernardi."

"The new Nick will be a lot like the old Nick," says Valentine, "but he's going to be at least twice as smart because he winds up running the family business. Best of all," he adds, "it's a nice feeling knowing that somebody has enough faith in me to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars preparing the pilot."

Students launch balloons for Expo

Some jumped the gun, others burst, still others required prodding to become airborne.

But despite the few false starts, 350 balloons were launched on April 30 by students at the Brackendale Elementary School, to the delight of balloon-owners and spectators alike.

The Balloon Launch of multi-colored balloons into the sky was the culmination of a school unit on Transportation and a celebration of the opening of Expo 86 whose theme is "Man in Motion".

Each balloon was tagged with the student's name and return address with the hope that the finder will return the balloon to the school.

Students are now eagerly awaiting replies from landing sites near and far. Results will be plotted on a map in the school.

Preceding the actual launch, letters of invitation were sent to the media and various dignitaries. Topics such as air currents and temperature pressure were discussed, maps were made, and other types of balloons were constructed. Younger children drew pictures and learned songs, stories and poems about balloons.

Several local dignitaries participated in the ceremony: Alderman Corinne Lonsdale, School Board Secretary-Treasurer Don Ross, Superintendent of Schools Trevor Harris and Nancy Harris, Trustee Sylvia Johnston, Expo Society Chairman Ric Raynor and Gary Baldy.

Expo 86 Chairman Jimmy Pattison sent his best wishes and regrets that he could not attend.

The staff and students wish to thank the parents who spent the morning inflating balloons and helping with the organization: Dee Dee Price, Jess Campbell and Rhonda Ladeur.

Stockley family rejoices with millionaire son

A new world has opened up for Derrick Stockley, 22, a C.N. Rail trainman from Prince George, currently working in Vancouver.

Stockley has become B.C.'s biggest lottery winner—$7.8 million from the April 26 Lotto 6/49. He and wife Carrie, 21, married last August will now be able to take that honeymoon—to just about anywhere they wish! Stockley's parents, Lewis and Yvonne, brother Dennis 17, and uncle and aunt Derek and Beth, are all residents of Squamish, but were unavailable for comments. It seems the family has "disappeared" for a few days to recover from the excitement of having a sudden millionaire in the family.

The winning ticket, sold in Surrey last week, contained the numbers 8, 10, 24, 27, 35, and 43.

Unless there is a change of heart by the Progressive Conservative government, the Katimavik programme will be discontinued at the end of June. For the past two weeks we have been pleased to have Moira Etherington billeting with us. Moira comes from Burlington, Ontario and apart from wondering if the sun ever shines out here, she doesn't mind Squamish. She, along with Janet Dhaliwal, who was on her work experience project from Howe Sound Secondary School, were most helpful to our staff during our recent move.

When Fraser MacPherson and his Quartet played the benefit concert in aid of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, it was also a chance for a family reunion. Fraser, sisters Betty Falt of Squamish and Sister Mary Elizabeth from Pembroke, Ontario were able to be together for the first time in many months.

Double ring ceremony at Brackendale Art Gallery

Beautiful mauve and pink carnations, chrysanthemums, orchids, iris and heather graced the Brackendale Art Gallery for the March 22 wedding of Lesley Joyce Brohman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Brohman of Garibaldi Highlands and Randy Souliere, son of Mrs. Theresa Souliere of Ottawa, Ontario.

Marriage Commissioner Joan Hinds officiated at the 6 p.m. double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents Jim and Pat Brohman, chose a floor length lavender voile gown, banded with satin and featuring double ruffles around the neck and elbow length sleeves. She wore a pearl necklace. Lesley carried a bouquet of mauve tulips, sterling roses, lilac and heather.

Joanne Soulier, cousin of the groom as maid of honour wore a deep purple afternoon dress with V-neckline and long full sleeves.

A friend of the bride's, Diana Gavin wore an off-white dress with handkerchief hemline, V-neck and short sleeves. Each attendant carried a bouquet of mauve, pink and white carnations.

The little flower girls were Jessie Herron and the two-year-old niece of the bride, Justine Gould. Jessie wore a mauve dress with ruffled hemline and satin waistband. She wore a bowler hat and carried a basket of mauve flowers. Justine looked sweet in a long white voile dress with ruffled hemline and ruffles around the neck and long sleeves.

All flower arrangements and bouquets were created by the bride.

Tony Soulier, brother of the groom, was the best man and the usher was Peter Brenner. The groom was attired in a gray cut-away with mauve tie and the two groomsmen wore gray tuxedos with mauve ties.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Brohman chose a pure silk paisley calf length dress in tones of blue, mauve and pink with orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Gallery. Lyndsey Brohman, the bride's sister, acted as mistress of ceremonies and the traditional toast to the bride was given by Billie Kibsey.

Before leaving the reception, the bride donned a maroon suede jacket and skirt. The young couple travelled to Ottawa for their honeymoon. This was a gift from the groom's family.

Sharing in Randy and Lesley's special day were many relatives and friends from the lower mainland including the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Edna Brohman and the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Bridget and Ian MacDonald. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Seltzer from Murrieta, California, Mr. and Mrs. A. Brohman from Edmonton and Corby Brohman, Lyndsey Brohman, Doug Kemp and Joanne Deno from Victoria.

The young couple are making their home in Burnaby.

Over $6,000 donated to Heart Foundation

February was "Heart Month" in Canada when the annual campaign for funds was held by the Canadian Heart Foundation. Squamish proved it really had a "heart" as local co-ordinator Jess Campbell said a total of $6,480 was donated.

Campbell said the financial support will benefit all programmes of the B.C. Heart Foundation. In particular, they will be directed to the continuation and growth of research programmes with an emphasis on defining the causes, cures and preventions of Canada's leading health problem - heart disease and stroke.

Without the assistance of the Division Chairman and all the canvassers who gave their time and effort, Campbell said the campaign would not have been as successful.

Many groups were involved in raising funds for the Heart Fund through special events. They included: the Ladies Squash League, Howe Sound Secondary School students, the RCMP, Squamish Firefighters, Highlander Hotel, Fleetline, Royal Canadian Legion and the Dart League.

The publicity given by the Squamish Times, Mountain FM and Reliance Distributors was also appreciated by Campbell and her canvassers.

Video discusses wife assault

On April 8, the Howe Sound Women's Centre presented the video "Wife Assault". The 45-minute presentation gave viewers a dramatized overview of the new legislation that deals with wife assault.

Special guests and resource people present as a panel to answer questions and explain the criminal process were the film's director, Peg Campbell; the principal actors, Doreen Ramus and Bob Owens; Constable Roy Hancock of the Squamish R.C.M.P. and Catherine Dziny - Director of our local Probation and Family Court Services.

The actors spoke of their emotional involvement and their growing understanding of the problems surrounding wife assault. The resource people gave listeners a good idea of the difficulties faced by women considering removing themselves from abusive situations. However, the video illustrated the positive results of freedom from abuse because of the variety of local and out-of-town support services available.

Mining Museum launches 1986 season

The B.C. Museum of Mining at Britannia Beach is planning a special event to mark the opening of the museum's 1986 season.

On Saturday, May 17, at 2 p.m., 36 lucky winners of the museum's opening day draw will have the privilege of the first ride of the season underground in the mining train. Bill Barkely, Director of the B.C. Provincial Museum and President of the Canadian Museums Association, will engineer the inaugural trip.

The mine train will break the ribbon at the mine head entrance, officially launching the museum's eleventh season of operation.

At that time, a new sign carrying the museum's brand new logo will be unveiled. The 100 foot sign is the work of local Katimavik volunteers Daniel Millette, Moira Etherington, and Paul Wismer, with the assistance of P.R. person Doug Henderson and Museum Artist Denise MacNeill. The sign will rest permanently on the concentrator building.

Katimavik participants will be on hand opening day to sell home-made "mother-lode" cookies and other light refreshments.

The Britannia holds the proud position of the largest copper mine in the British Empire during the 1930's. Each year, over 25,000 visitors go underground at Britannia to experience the sounds and sights of mining.

BY MIKE ECKERSLEY

It's Over!!

The 1985-86 soccer season (?) drew to a close with an apology.

"I'm sorry it has been such a lousy season," said Walter Sweeney as players, coaches and parents alike gathered around for the handing out of the silverware, "but I think the weatherman had a lot to do with it."

Indeed he did as the schedule suffered from both mother nature and father time what with incessant rain forcing the cancellation of a major portion of matches and with not enough time in the year to make them up.

But then most would think what is Soccer day without rain, right? Actually the torrential downpour, which has plagued past seasons held off for a change only to be replaced with an intermittent drizzle and a strong head wind that gusted out from the south.

It was not enough, however, to put a damper on the enthusiasm of playing a good game of soccer under a somewhat sunny sky. To advance to the one game finals on Sunday, 25 teams making up six divisions, down in numbers from past years, squared off over the course of two weekends.

One of the best contests that came away with a playoff champion was contributed by the lone girls' division. After round-robin action, Squamish and Mamquam ended up tied in points at one win and a tie apiece, the latter against each other and the former versus the left out Stawamus side.

In the final the two clubs faced off in a typical, "let's see the coaches hair turn gray" fashion.

On efforts from Kim Petroff, with a pair and Nicole Parry, and the goaltending of Marla Whittaker, the league champion Squamishites stormed into a late 3-1 advantage and were seemingly well in control.

But in a spurt of energy, Mamquam took over and managed to tie as Jodi Cunningham, Katherine Lynd and Tricia Hampson combined over the course of the match. The latter youth also made one big play by sneaking behind her keeper to knock a ball that had goal written all over it, off the line to help force overtime.

There the drama never let up as Whittaker blocked a Mamquam penalty shot in the first extra session. In the second though struck Mamquam twice to salt away a come-from-behind 5-3 victory as Cunningham broke through the defence, failed to beat Whittaker on the initial drive but popped the rebound over the keeper's head courtesy of a chip shot for the winner.

Hampson proceeded to put the game out of reach with her second goal of the contest.

Meanwhile it was still soccer galore for the boys. In a defensive title in which neither side could penetrate, I.G.A. and Brackendale split the playoff title in division nine after settling for a scoreless draw. Both squads went undefeated in five games of round-robin action, trying each other in a previous match up and in total points at thirteen.

I.G.A., however had the added concession of being the league title holders.

Another tight battle was proved in the division seven showdown as Brackendale took the undefeated, in elimination play, and league champs, Mamquam. The latter's streak continued though as they clipped Brackendale 1-0.

In other games Brackendale doubled Mamquam 4-2 in division five to protect its league title while in division one I.G.A. won over the top regular season point getters in the Timberwolves. For division eleven Squamish outpaced Brackendale B squad 3-1.

So ended another season, short but in its own way a success, with thanks being owed to a lot of people, parents, coaches and kids alike, none of which will be mentioned here for fear of leaving anybody out. But one particular individual who stepped into the hearts of all was Mark Shollert who dedicated himself to the game.

In his honour the Mark Shollert Memorial trophy was born, the winner being the most improved team. The winners of this award were the division nine Valleycliffe Strikers.

The winner of the 1985-86 season at Garibaldi Lanes is Pat Wagner from the Tuesday Mixed League. Here, Wagner, winner of a trip to Reno, is being congratulated by Vince Koch.

Irly Bird didn't get this worm

DeCook Trucking had three things going their way in Sunday's Squamish Men's Soccer League playoff final: a blustery head wind in their favour in the final half and a pair of youthful legs each.

Combined this was all the squad needed to shutout Irly Bird 2-0 and thus capture the playoff championship in its first season out on the field as a team. With both sides solid in the back field it seemed as if Trucking realized that it would be to their distinct advantage if they managed to keep Irly Bird off the scoreboard in the opening frame for in the second the former would be able to make use of the wind at their backs to tire their opponents and create more scoring opportunities.

Whether intended or not the strategy worked to a tee as Irly Bird, wind or no wind, couldn't crack the DeCook defence in what was largely a mid-field battle. As an added bonus, two minutes towards the end of the opening session Terrence Knox set up Mike Sims in front with a cross that potted the eventual winner to break a somewhat dull affair.

Thirty minutes into the second half Knox again helped drive a nail into the Irly Bird coffin as he took a pass down to the right side from Mike DeCook and then found Peter Baines charging onto the left post for the insurance marker. Keeper Ross Teichman collected the shutout.

Meanwhile in another mens game, of sorts, the Squamish Hotspurs took on Mt. Currie and came out with a 2-0 win as Mike Howard notched a shutout between the posts for the Hotspurs.

Ballet dancers perform first week of Expo

Sixteen students of the Garibaldi School of Dance auditioned successfully to perform at Expo during Greater Vancouver's Regional Week, May 4 to 11.

They will be performing a number called "Hues of the Pacific" with original choreography by the school's director Lynette Kelley. The music, Pachelbel's "Canon" was arranged and played on a synthesizer by Squamish musician, David Conrad. The costumes were sewn by Squamish seamstress, Mrs. Raye Ryan.

The dancers will perform at the Bandshell on May 4 from 1 to 1:30 p.m., and from 2 to 2:30 p.m. They will dance at the same time on May 11.

There were bands and music, soldiers, sailors, flags, heads of state and a real prince and princess to officially open Vancouver and British Columbia's showcase, Expo 86 on Friday, May 2 at 3:15 p.m.

Young people, the dancers in brilliant colors and costumes and the choirs in black and white, along with white clad gymnasts, also took part in the ceremony and at the end the huge stadium at B.C. Place exploded in color as those attending flashed colors in many hues creating a rainbow effect.

The stands started filling early and by the time the ceremonies began an air of hushed expectancy fell over the building.

The fanfare and a choir rendition opened the ceremonies and then the military bands led by the Viex Frenadiers of Geneva, Switzerland, in their colorful uniforms entered the hall, followed by the United States Navy Band from Seattle playing Anchors Aweigh, the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry Band played a regimental march and this portion of the program ended with a rendition of Hearts of Oak by the Canadian Forces Naden Band. Their appearances were greeted with loud applause.

Following the Royal Fanfare and the massed pipe bands of British Columbia, who paraded into the stadium in their colorful kilts, came the dignitaries, Premier and Mrs. W.R. Bennett, Prime Minister and Mrs. Brian Mulroney and the starts of the performance, the Prince and Princess of Wales.

The Expo Dancers and the choirs along with the orchestra entertained the crowd, the young dancers presenting a brilliant display of dancing with color garlands and then Premier Bill Bennett welcomed everyone to the fair, particularly thanking Grace McCarthy and Jim Pattison for their efforts. Bennett cited Pattison for bringing the fair in on time and under budget.

Prime Minister Mulroney said that in his next campaign in British Columbia he would hang on to Jimmy Pattison's coat-tails. He also paid tribute to the province and the people who made this world class exhibition a reality.

The Prince of Wales expressed his delight at opening the exhibition to which his mother had invited the world three years ago.

After the royal couple left the stadium the building exploded with color as the people in the stands held up their color-coded cards to display a broad spectrum of shades and colors around the perimeter of the building.

It was a magnificent scene and a fitting opening to a world celebration.

Dog impounding fees go up

Does your dog have a prior criminal record?

If so, it will cost you plenty to bail your dog out of the Pound should he be picked up by the Poundmaster.

Council passed a motion at the April 29 meeting to allow for an increase in impounding fees at the Squamish Dog Pound.

Dog owners will have to pay $20 for a first time offence, $30 for a second offence, and $50 for a third offence. That's if your dog is caught by the Pound and imprisoned but has a licence.

If your dog is unlicensed, look out: It will cost the owner a whopping $50 to bail his dog out of the Pound, plus the cost of a dog licence.

In addition, owners of impounded dogs will have to pay a $5 per night room and board fee.

Council voted nearly unanimously to take a tough stand on roaming dogs, with the exception of Alderman Terrill Patterson who voted against the motion to raise the impounding fees.

Outdoor Burning Permits Required.

A permit is required for outdoor burning during the fire season from April 15 to October 15.

Any person intending to burn outside municipal boundaries should contact the nearest Ministry of Forests District Office. The legal description of the property will be required.

Sites planned for industrial fires, including land clearing, may be inspected by a Forest Officer to determine conditions for safe burning.

Areas for domestic fires such as spring clean up of yard debris may not require an inspection by a Forest Officer prior to issuance of a burning permit. Permit conditions will restrict fire size and burning area.

Burning permits are subject to refusal or cancellation should weather conditions or the proposed burn area be considered unsafe.

Use of an enclosed burner such as a barrel with a screen cover of not more than 3/4 mesh does not require a burning permit.

A permit is also not required for campfires however there are regulations governing this type of fire.

Ministry of Forests burning permits are free.

If you have a problem with a fire, are in doubt about the permit or how to burn safely, contact your nearest Ministry of Forests District Office.

The dates of the annual fire season may be extended or reduced depending on local fire danger conditions. Current information can be provided by the nearest Forest District office.

A touch of Class

by Shannon Cooley and Lousie Van Uden

Graduation is a time for happy memories and enjoyment, not worries about whether one's son or daughter will arrive home alive.

But nowadays this is a real and justified problem as every year, somewhere, a graduate is killed in a car accident, either the result of reckless or drunken driving.

Will it be someone we know this year? Or just some other statistic in another province.

What can we do? No matter what is suggested, some young adult is going to put his and maybe other people's lives at risk.

There is the idea of at a house party, the parents or chaperones take all the car keys and when anyone wants to leave, they are checked before they leave.

Maybe this would work but what about the graduates who do not like this and do not to this party although they should as graduation is a group event. It is probably the last time they will see everyone.

Perhaps these people could give their keys to a friend who is not going to drink anything that night-who?

If only the people would remember what happens in an accident before they drive-if not death, maybe a wheelchair for the rest of their life.

The worries may be forgotten but never completely -this year will be better.

As the graduates, splendidly attired, walk down the aisle, smiling and happy, we hope it stays that way.
