Reynolds re-elected in Socred landslide

Incumbent Social Credit MLA John Reynolds was re-elected in the West Van-cover-Howe Sound Riding in the Oct. 22 election which saw a Socred sweep across the province.

Reynolds emerged from the election with a total of 12,894 votes, up from his 1983 total of 10,452 votes. Liberal candidate Ed Carlin took second place with 6,060 votes with NDP candidate Dave Manning bringing up the rear with 4,957 votes.

Reynolds, who classifies himself as an "investor-entrepreneur", currently resides in West Vancouver with his wife, Yvonne. They have seven children, ranging from the age of one year to 23 years.

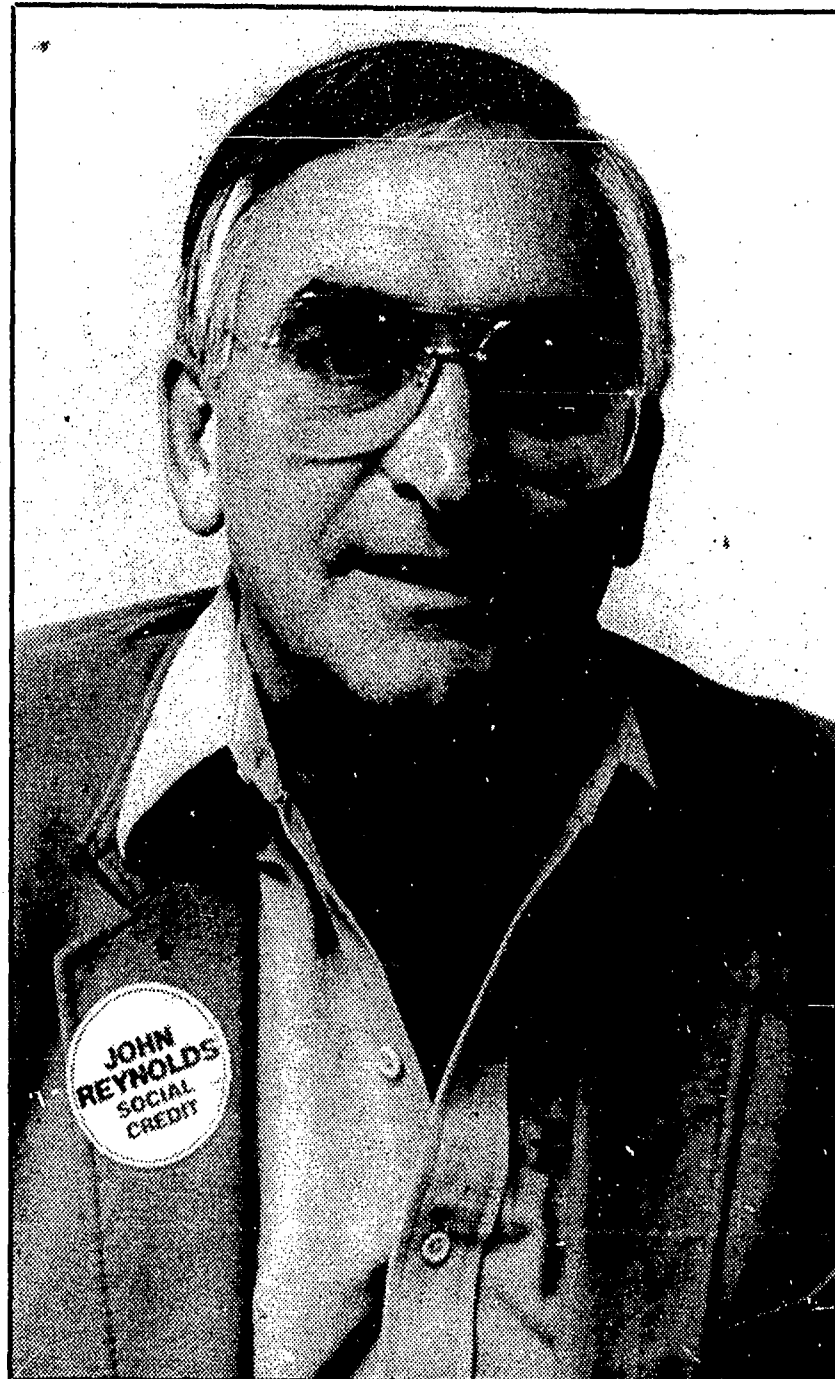

Reynolds was born in Toronto, attended school in Montreal, and has lived in B.C. for the past 24 years. His varied employment history includes stints in sales and marketing, building systems consultant, western district manager of a greeting card company, and manager for a medical supply company.

First elected to the Federal House of Commons in 1972 as the Progressive Conservative member for Burnaby-Richmond-Delta, in 1974 Reynolds was appointed chairman of the caucus committee responsible for the Department of Supply and Services by Party leader Robert Stanfield.

After the 1976 Conservative election victory, Party leader Joe Clark appointed Reynolds chairman of Investigative Studies.

Reynolds left federal politics in 1978 and joined CJOR to replace Jack Webster as a talk-show host for over three years. There followed a period in the private sector and in 1983 Reynolds returned to the public service as a Social Credit member for West Vancouver-Howe Sound.

As MLA, Reynolds has served as chairman of the Agriculture Committee, member of the Public Accounts Committee, Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Human Resources, and Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Health.

Council considers downtown pole removal

Council is considering removing Hydro poles on Cleveland as part of an overall downtown beautification plan.

The work, which will see the relocation of the poles and overhead wires to Loggers Lane is expected to cost the municipality $47,192 under the cost-sharing agreement with B.C. Hydro.

Council voted at the Oct. 14 meeting to allocated funds in the 1987 budget towards the project.

The project will consist of relocating the Cleveland Ave. pole line from Pemberton Ave. to Victoria Street to the 60,000 volt transmission line east of Loggers Lane. An underground feeder cable from the substation to the transmission line will be installed and the existing feeder and pole situated near the Esso Station removed.

A further plan to see the poles on Cleveland Ave. north of Pemberton Ave. to the railway crossing removed as well as squashed by B.C. Hydro, however, who stated that good engineering design called for the poles to remain.

B.C. Hydro also cited problems with the removal of other poles which are required to support B.C. Telephone lines.

In addition, several downtown merchants will require changes to their customer service equipment to accommodate the relocation.

Halloween: The Festival of the Dead

Halloween, as we know it today, has developed over the years from ancient new year festivals and festivals of the dead.

The source of Halloween can probably be traced back to the Celtic Festival of Samhain, a festival that honored Samhain, the Celtic lord of death. It was believed that Samhain allowed the souls of the dead to return to their homes on earth on this evening, Oct. 31. The date also marked the beginning of the season of cold, darkness, and decay.

As part of the celebration, the Druids, the priests and teachers of the Celts, burned animals, crops, and possibly humans at a big bonfire.

After the Romans conquered the Celts in A.D. 43, their two autumn festivals were combined with the Festival of Samhain. The festival, Ferialia, was held to honor the dead, and the other, Pomona, honored the goddess of fruit and trees.

In the A.D. 800's, when the people became Christians, the church established All Saints' Day on Nov. 1 where people practised their old pagan customs. Nov. 2 became All Souls' Day when the church honored its dead.

The mass that was said on All Saint's Day was called Allhallowmas. The evening before became known as All Hallow e'en, or Halloween.

Today, Halloween means children trick-or-treating, carving jack-o-lanterns, telling ghost stories, and bobbing for apples.

The carving of jack-o-lanterns was started by people in England and Ireland who once carved beets, potatoes, and turnips to use as lanterns on Halloween. According to an Irish legend, Jack, for whom the lantern is named, could not enter Heaven because he was a miser; nor could he enter Hell because he had played jokes on the devil. Thus, Jack was forced to roam the earth with his lantern in hand until Judgment Day.

Bobbing for apples was another English tradition. In England, Halloween was sometimes called Nutcrack Night or Snap Apple Night when families sat around the fire and told stories while they ate apples and nuts.

Halloween was also believed to be a date when ghosts roamed the earth and witches met to worship the devil. The Scottish, for example, paraded through the fields and villages carrying torches with which they lit huge bonfires on hillsides to drive away witches and other evil spirits.

Trick-or-treating may have originated in England when, on All Souls' Day, poor people when "a-souling" (begging) and were given pastries called soulcakes in exchange for promising to say prayers for the dead.

Use care on Halloween

While Halloween, Oct. 31, is a time for fun and excitement, children and adults should use extra care to ensure a safe evening.

Motorists are reminded that Trick-or-Treaters will be 'round and about and with all the excitement may not pay attention to passing cars. Drive slowly and watch carefully for young ghosts and goblins.

Trick-or-treaters are urged to "think safely" on Halloween night. They should look both ways before crossing the street, travel in groups, and not go into strangers' houses. Wear bright colors so drivers can see and have your parents check your treats before you eat them.

Happy Halloween!

Squamish to hold "no smoking" referendum

Are you in favor of the District of Squamish enacting a smoking regulation by-law?

That's the question that will be put to Squamish voters in a general referendum to be held in conjunction with the municipal election Nov. 15. Along with the "no smoking" referendum, voters will also be asked if they are in favor of legalized gambling in Squamish.

Council members voted 4-2 in favor of holding the "no smoking" referendum, with Alderman Dave Stewart and Ron Barr voting against the motion.

Stewart, himself an ex-smoker, said although he agreed with the intent of the proposed by-law to limit smoking in the community, similar by-laws enacted by other municipalities have proven to be deficient and difficult to enforce.

"They're (by-laws) just not workable," Stewart said. "The administration is reluctant to enforce them. I don't see that it adds credibility to council."

Stewart cited Whistler as an example of a municipality that has enacted such a by-law. He said Whistler is experiencing enforcement difficulties, particularly with restaurants.

"I am an ex-smoker," Stewart continued. "Smoking is not good. But don't bring in laws that you can't enforce."

Mayor Egon Tobus also expressed concern over the enforcement difficulties, pointing to the Squamish Hospital's attempts to enact such a by-law.

Tobus also questioned the wording of a by-law, which originally was proposed to limit smoking in government offices.

"Are you suggesting that you would prohibit the Mayor from smoking in his office?" Tobus, a non-smoker, directed to Alderman Norm Verner, who moved the motion to hold the referendum.

Other council members expressed concern over the proposed alternate wording of such a by-law that would ban smoking in public places, citing public places such as ballparks as difficult to enforce.

Verner responded by saying that his main concern was for people in such places as bank line-ups and restaurants who are exposed to cigarette smoke.

"I'm not saying you can't have designated areas (for smokers)," Verner said.

He added that he simply wishes to hold a referendum to find out the public's response to the proposed by-laws regulating smoking.

"Are enough people concerned about smoking to enact this?" Verner said.

Added Alderman Terrill Patterson: "We have to start somewhere."

Alderman Corinne Lonsdale, a smoker, added: "It's just public opinion."

Local youth dies in sewer tragedy

A Squamish youth is dead after falling into a sewage container at the Squamish sewage treatment plant late Friday night.

Terry Salmon, 17, had fallen into the sewage while climbing the plant's wall. Preliminary reports have listed Salmon's death as the result of drowning.

Salmon, along with his friend Jemal Barbeau, 15, were returning from a party when the incident occurred.

Teacher sentenced to jail

Former Sunshine Coast teacher and counsellor Len Marchant was sentenced to seven years and three months in jail by County Court Judge John Anderson who earlier convicted him of six sex charges.

The judge ordered Marchant imprisoned for three years each for rape and sexual assault charges against a former female student, six months for indecent assault on the same student, and three months each for three counts of indecent and sexual assault against two other females.

Marchant, 47, had taught the girls from 1981-83.

Squamish
bids on Expo
assets

They could have bid on red zargon balls from the B.C. Pavilion, "Jimmy's (Pattison's) desk, or Expo Ernie himself, but members of the special Expo legacy committee decided instead to try for podiums, performance stages, and seating units at the public auction of Expo assets to be held Oct. 29 and 30.

Squamish Treasurer Charlie Schilberg, Works Superintendent John Payne, and Parks and Recreation Director Grant Dickey have been authorized by council to peruse the multitude of Expo assets that are scheduled to go on the Maynard's auction block.

Schilberg appeared before council at the Oct. 21 meeting with a list of items identified by the committee which the municipality may wish to acquire.

Council authorized the treasurer to bid on the following items for the municipality: four curved front information podiums, three small outdoor promenade performance stages, and seating units in a variety of configurations. The items are from Expo's Canada Pavilion.

Schilberg cited one hitch in the bidding process, however. He said the successful purchaser of such items is responsible, in addition to the bid price, for unpaid federal and provincial sales taxes on the original acquisition costs as well as for the provincial sales tax on the bid price.

In addition, the purchaser is responsible for disassembly, pick-up, transport and reassembly costs.

Council approved the proposed bidding on three items, with Alderman Terrill Patterson voting against the motion.

"Our Contingency Account wasn't meant for buying things like this," Patterson said, "it was meant for emergencies."

Council also approved the committee's list of Expo items that have already been budgeted for in the 1986 budget. Such items to be disposed by public auction or through liquidation sale include: a calculator, a four-drawer file cabinet, 20 chairs for the council chambers, an illustration board and blackboard for council chambers, a coat/briefcase rack, a 1986 3/4 ton pick-up truck, a high pressure flusher tank, a portable P.A. system, an auditorium exhaust fan, a Civic Centre P.A. system, and kitchen upgrade.

Council also authorized the treasurer to bid on several Expo items which are included in 1986 of the Seven-Year Capital Program, also known as council's "wish-list."

Capital items include: fence material, drafting and survey equipment, mechanics shop equipment, street sweeper, four-ton dump truck, one-ton dual truck, 3/4-ton truck, one-ton dump truck, and another 3/4-ton truck.

LACKY: MR. PREMIER, IT'S TIME TO TAKE THE FIRST STEP OF YOUR FRESH START INTO THE REAL WORLD OF B.C. POLITICS.

Have your say

Squamish voters will be asked on Nov. 15 whether to allow one vice into the community and whether to get rid of another.

In a general referendum, Squamish voters will have the opportunity to support or protest legalized gambling in the community, a prospect which has raised the eyebrows of more than one law-abiding, community-minded individual.

Gambling, with its connotations of greed, booze, The Mob, and other assorted undesirables, could mean big bucks or it could bring disaster. Granted, Cleveland Ave. is probably secure from transforming into a Las Vegas-type strip, but it could fall prey to the trappings that come with a pastime focused on money, winning money, and winning more money.

Gambling is for the high rollers, not the small-town community-minded working people as constitutes this town. Leave such venturesome enterprises to the likes of Vancouver and Whistler.

The second referendum will undoubtedly prove only to divide the doers and the abstainers. To smoke or not to smoke used to the question; now it is to inflict second-hand smoke on the innocent or to refrain from puffing in a public place.

Squamish non-smokers may turn out in full force to support a non-smoking community. They should also be prepared to accommodate a "puff-patrol" to see to it that the law is being obeyed. This prospect alone could see homes and workplaces become battle grounds as spouses, friends, families and co-workers are pitted one against the other.

So, for even the most discriminating voter, Nov. 15 is at least a day to have a say; if not for a municipal government, at least for a couple of age-old issues.

Opinion Time

"What was the decisive factor that determined your vote?"

Steve Horseman:
"For my party loyalty was the most important factor."

Denise Rowthney:
"I decided on the basis of the merits of the local candidate."

Nicole Sherry:
"I chose the party I thought would do the best with the jobs issue."

Donna Maroulis:
"There was no one factor. They were all more or less undesirable."

Dispute over phone service

Dear Editor:

Would you believe we live less than 70 miles from Georgia and Granville Streets and we can't get telephones?

For the past 11 years, the over 100 people in this community in the Upper Squamish Valley have been trying to get telephones. Last year, we thought we had it beat - B.C. Telephone said they would give us service if the residents would dig the trench for the underground cable. This community effort was to be in lieu of the over $3,000 per family installation fee previously requested.

There are 4 1/2 miles of Indian Reserve between us and the end of the existing B.C. Tel lines. The Reserve already has a corridor for a major hydro transmission line, so the same strip of land could be utilized. We honestly thought that B.C. Tel was once again doing their stall tactics on us when we were told they were having problems with the Indian Band.

Before we approached B.C. Tel 11 years ago, we asked if the Band had any objections to their crossing the Reserve. Somewhere in the Council archives is a tape of this Council discussion and its subsequent approval, but now it can't be found.

Retired council members recall the discussion and the passing, but that's not good enough.

It seems that to get elected to the more rewarding position within the Squamish Indian Band Council, one has to be fairly militant and show a position of strength regarding any land issues. So when B.C. Tel requests access to a strip of land currently used by B.C. Hydro, it provides a good opportunity to show just how tough you are. The reason the Band Council gives is the unsightliness of the few poles where the cable has to cross creeks and swamps. Please remember, this is under a huge transmission line.

One would think that sooner or later this reserve will need phone services as well, but it seems this year's vote is more important than next year's development.

We have a situation where local Indian people, who have no objections to our request, are now feeling the tension from a decision by a politically motivated council in North Vancouver. It is really a shame that people who have been good neighbours in the past should come to difficulties over a distant politician's ambitions.

The first weekend of October was beautiful. On Sunday I did some work in the garden and it was as warm as summer. Even with only a light T-shirt on I was very comfortable and not the least bit chilly. The next day was just as nice and when I got home from work it was warm enough to clean out the sweet pea bed, get rid of the nasturtium vines, and think about bringing in the hanging baskets.

By the time all the lobelia and nepeta are pulled out and the geraniums and fuschias cut back they can go on the shelf in the utility room for the winter. A drink of water once a month will keep them from drying out but prevent growth and they will be ready to start growth in the spring. I find that when I get ready to bring them in it's a good idea to put them in a plastic bag, give it a shot of Raid garden and house spray and leave it overnight. Should kill any bugs so they don't winter.

A better place would be a cool basement or shed but as I don't have one the utility room is the next best thing.

This year Beth planted some nasturtiums and I plan to use more of them next year, particularly the climbing ones. There are two places in the yard where there are hummocks along the side of the lawn. Nasturtiums planted in front of them would be a perfect place for the climbing varieties to roam and they could just go ahead and bloom. They would be a brilliant splash of color.

We've never had too much success with sweet peas so they are coming out next year and I'm putting some hyacinths and tulips in the beds they used to occupy. While they are still blooming I'm going to put in some nasturtiums and they can climb up the framework of wire as they grow. By the time they get big enough to climb, the hyacinths and tulips will be finished so it won't matter and they will provide color all summer long. They are beautiful this year and we never missed the sweet peas.

The high winds this fall have been bringing down the leaves and they are littering every corner of the garden. In the back, along the river bank the crabapples are turning red. If there isn't too much wind before they fall they will be beautiful in their varying shades of red and crimson. On the hill the broadleaved maples have turned gold and there are clumps of birch and willow in the same brilliant shade. The cork elm on the river bank is also starting to turn and before the leaves drop it will be column of blazing color.

Some of the shrubs are also changing. The osier dogwood has turned magneta and crimson. It is almost the deepest-colored of all the shrubs with the leaves almost a purplish-red while along the highway the vine maples are glowing in their brilliant shades. They go from yellow to orange, from pale pinkish-red to deepest crimson and every shade in between. If you are lucky enough to have a dogwood in your garden you can have flowers and berries at the same times. The blossoms make a beautiful splash of white against the multi-colored foliage.

Noticed that my honeysuckle vine also has blossoms and berries on it. The only drawback to this plant is that at this time of year it almost develops a mildew, with a whitish tinge to its leaves.

There's something about the fall that makes one sense the ripening, the aging, and the gentle slide into winter. It's composed of the scent of burning leaves, the moist smell of earth being turned over in preparation for winter; the tang of ripening vegetables and fruit and the brilliant blueness of the skies combined with just a bit of a chill in the air.

Here on the flat we don't have the glorious colors of the hills. There the blueberry bushes turn to scarlet, crimson and magenta; the wild rhododendrons to brilliant gold, and the hills are a sea of color. I remember coming on a mountain ash bush with dazzling yellow leaves and each whorl of leaves at the end of a stem circled a cluster of scarlet berries. It was magnificent. The sombre darkness of the mountain hemlock and fir makes a perfect background for the brilliant colors.

Another beautiful spot at this time of year is the shore of Lillooet Lake where the Duffey Lake Road starts to climb. The hillside is covered with dogwood and Douglas maple and between them they run the gamut of color from the most delicate pink to the deepest maroon and every shade in between.

Fall presages the coming of winter and winter means Christmas! Yes, it is a dirty word and now it is just two months away. Time to start thinking about it, about what you are planning to do, and to getting the presents ready.

I have always, for many years, bought gifts all year round, whenever I see something I think someone would like. By the time October comes I've got lots of things stashed away and am ready to start sorting them out.

Starting with a series of boxes I go through everything, putting each family or group's gifts in its own box. Then comes the decision of what to do with what's left over. Usually they are distributed among the family for stocking stuffers but this year I'm going to check them over and see what can be set aside for Community Christmas-Care. It will likely be that there are things suitable for gifts for those who will be needing them.

That's the first step. Then comes wrapping them but I think this year I shall just leave the card table set up in the spare room and wrap as I feel like it. By the end of November everything should be wrapped and ready to mail or take wherever needed and this should leave lots of time to go ahead with the Christmas baking.

The Christmas cards are all addressed and ready to mail by early November so there's no problem getting them away. All I have to do is remember to mail each pile as I go along!

Right now I'm still in the process of making some of my Christmas presents. It's fun and gives me something to do when I watch television. I've also found that, as I am an insomniac and spend several hours wide awake each night, this is an excellent time to work on presents. And I can that while watching T.V.

By the time the first of December rolls around everything should be under control!

Council pledges land to Equestrian Group

NOTICE

Past Kinsmen who are interested in renewing Fellowship with the establishment of a K40 Club are requested to meet Nov. 12/86 at 7 p.m. in the Easter Seal Camp Library. For more info contact Bob at 898-3859 or Norm at 892-3795.

Squamish council has decided to keep a promise made by former mayor Pat Brennan to the Squamish Valley Equestrian Association for a portion of municipal land for use by the equestrian group.

The hitch is that council can't make up its mind which portion of land to give to the group.

Council turned down a recommendation from the Parks and Recreation Commission to make available seven acres of land located behind the Loggers Sports Grounds for the use of the Association. The land was an alternate site to the portion originally promised to the Association by Brennan.

Alderman Dave Stewart, speaking against the Commission's choice of site for the Association, cited the future possibility of the Department of Highways expanding Highway 99 to four lanes and the subsequent need for adjoining land as one concern over the site.

"Somewhere along the line Highways might be looking at Loggers Lane," Stewart said, adding that he supported instead the originally proposed site for the Equestrian group.

Stewart also stressed the need for council to take into consideration the future recreational needs of the area, such as swimming pools, lawn bowling grounds, and additional playing fields.

"It's going to get pretty congested in there," Stewart said.

"We have to do our planning now," he added.

Alderman Ron Barr pointed out to council the potential traffic congestion resulting from the locating of the Equestrian group in the area.

"With the tremendous use Centennial Fields gets now, it's almost impossible to get out of the place," Barr said.

Barr also pointed to the future need for expanding the present playing fields, citing a recent visit to a field in Burnaby which made Centennial Field "look like a pasture".

"There is a need for more fields," Barr said.

Alderman Corinne Lonsdale suggested that with adequate lighting that will allow the fields to be used longer in the day, "we have adequate fields for the next 100 or 50 years - I don't think we would ever expand."

Lonsdale, a member of the Parks and Recreation Commission, spoke at the Oct. 14 meeting in favor of the commission's alternate site, saying the area at present is undeveloped and an equestrian facility would improve the site.

Alderman Norm Verner also spoke in favor of the alternate site, saying it would allow the recreational use of the land to remain in a block form.

"We don't know exactly what our future needs are," Verner added.

The motion to make the alternate site available to the Equestrian Association was defeated. A second motion, introduced by Stewart, which provided land for the Association but did not stipulate which land, was carried.

Council further directed Parks and Recreation Director Grant Dickey to come up with some alternate sites for council's consideration.

Salt supply prepares Squamish for winter

It's back to the salt mines for the Squamish public works department.

Council approved the tender for the supply and delivery of road de-icing salt for this winter from McTar Petroleum Ltd.

Works Superintendent John Payne said Squamish needs about 500 tonnes of the salty stuff to spread on local roads. At $54.30 a tonne, that means just over $27,000 worth of salt will be stockpiled at the public works yard in readiness for a winter of snow and ice.

Squamish street plan to undergo revision

The Ministry of Transportation and Highways is considering five revisions to the current Major Street Network Plan that will see several changes to the Squamish plan.

The revisions will include the following: refine the Depot Road alignment along the east of Highway 99; delete the intersection with Highway 99 immediately south of Valley Drive from the network plan; delete the short east/west route just north of Industrial Way from the network plan; delete the intersection stub on Highway 99, north of Clarke Drive below Harbour View Place, from the network plan; delete Garibaldi Way from the network plan and again show the Highlands Way West connection across Highway 99 to Government Road.

The Works and Services Committee has approved the revisions and a representative from the Ministry will appear before council to address the matter.

FLASHBACK by Rose Tatlow

SQUAMISH MADE ITS OWN FUN IN DAYS PAST

When I first came to Squamish we didn't have access to Vancouver and the great variety of entertainment available there. There was radio but no television. We had to create our own fun. There was a theatre or movie hall. In fact it is the one that now sits on the main street and at the time it was known as the Rex hall and there were dances, movies, fall fairs, Christmas concerts and all sorts of other activities taking place in it.

But we had to make our own fun.

There were dances. There was an active Drama Club and it would put on plays for the enjoyment of the audiences and the Christmas concerts were a highlight of the year.

I can remember attending the movies on a Saturday afternoon. When Dad came home from camp he would bring us each a chocolate bar (that was a real treat) and off we would go to the theatre clutching our dime, to spend an afternoon watching the flickering movie screen. Periodically, the reel would break and the boys would stamp and whoop it up until it was mended and running again.

But most of the enjoyment was simpler. I remember Mildred MacDonald telling me about the parties at the Judd home on Judd Road in Brackendale in the early years. Here is what she said:

"I remember one party in particular, given on St. Valentine's night, to which, as was customary, everyone, young and old, was invited. In those days, if you didn't include everyone you wouldn't have enough people to make a good party. Anyway, when everyone had arrived and the older people had settled to their card games, the younger crowd would start dancing or playing games.

"Usually we broke the ice with 'Old Dusty Miller'. In this game you changed partners several times and this gave everyone a chance to get acquainted and the shy ones became more confident. After that there would be quadrilles and two-steps. 'Red Wing' had just become popular and it made a grand two-step. There was also an old gramophone with cylinder records and a big flaring horn with the traditional wreath of morning glories in gorgeous colors around the rim. Our favorite records were 'Alexander's Rag Time Band' and 'In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree.'

"When refreshment time came around a sheet was pinned on the wall and covered with red hearts. The men were given a toy bow and arrow and invited to try their luck at hitting the heart. The one they came closest to was their trophy and on the back was a number that corresponded with a heart held by one of the ladies who had received them earlier. There were lots of laughs and merriment when some of the men found they had drawn very young ladies as their partners. In fact, one love-smitten swain tried to bribe his young partner with a shiny 50 cent piece to change her number with his sweetheart.

"Some of his friends found out what was happening and urged her to refuse. She did and when he had to give in, he did it with grace and treated her most courteously.

"The party supper was laid out on long tables set up in the attic. There were stacks of sandwiches and cakes as well as cookies, all cut in heart shapes and decorated for the day. Our eyes shone because we didn't get delicacies like this very often.

"Modern day housewives wouldn't know how to cope with the problems the hostesses faced in those days. In the first place coal oil lamps were used to light the rooms and if it was a large one at least six lamps were needed. The chimneys all had to be washed and if the party lasted till the wee small hours, some would have to be refilled. The hostess didn't attempt to supply all the food, her friends simply helped out. The homesteaders and bachelors who lived mainly on rice and beans did full justice to the home-made goodies.

"The Judds were wonderful hosts and mingled with the youngsters. Our favorite game was charades and I remember that Myrtle Judd, now Herndl, was most ingenious in thinking up these brain teasers.

"The Judd house seemed to be soaked in laughter. On the last day of school for our Christmas holidays the Judds gave us a party. Every school child was invited. If it was the last day before summer holidays we would all be told beforehand to pack a lunch and Mr. Judd picked us all up at the school in his big Garford truck, which he used to run as a stage between Cheekye and Squamish and took us all, shouting and singing, away up along the Upper Valley road to Evans Creek where we would enjoy a picnic and wade in the creek to our heart's content and explore the woods. When we heard the stage horn blow we know it was time to start for home.

"That house burned down in 1916 and the present farmhouse, though much more pretentious and larger too, couldn't hold more fun and good times than the old one did.

"The baby of the family lives there now, and though her family is grown they still come over for special occasions and the old house rings with laughter again."

Recently the youngest Judd girl and her husband celebrated their golden wedding anniversary and the festivities must have brought nostalgic memories to those who attended.

Maybe there was a ghost from earlier times who joined in the fun, but if there was it was a 'happy' ghost with many happy memories.

Chamber conducts membership drive

The Squamish and Howe Sound Chamber of Commerce has declared November, "Membership Drive Month."

The Chamber calls itself the vehicle that enables people to work together to improve business and to build a better community. Its concern is essentially one of economic growth which it says is basic to the prosperous existence of the community.

The Chamber works locally, provincially, and federally. Locally, it consists of an association of hard-working people who provide input to the district council on matters affecting the community. An example, is the Chamber's efforts to promote secondary industry by way of the Industrial Park. The Chamber hopes that by securing a secondary industrial site for Squamish the future financial stability can be spread out over a broader base during economic hard times.

The British Columbia Chamber of Commerce, which the local Chamber is a member of, maintains a liaison with the Cabinet and with all the government departments to ensure its views are known. The Canadian Chamber of Commerce works with the federal government in much the same way as the B.C. Chamber does on a provincial level.

The Chamber Office, located next to the Squamish Pavilion, is also operated year-round as a Tourist Information and Business Information Centre.

The Tourist Information Centre allows the Chamber to come into direct contact with the visitors who come into town, and it may be the first to sell Squamish as the vibrant community that it is.

The Business Information Centre is operated jointly with the provincial government to provide reference materials and referrals to government agencies for both new and established businesses.

The Chamber currently has plans underway for Christmas with downtown merchants and Highlands merchants working together to ensure local people get a fun-filled shopping experience during the upcoming holiday season.

The Chamber's "You Are Here" sign located south of Squamish is shaping up, with many local merchants displaying their retail signs.

Plans are already underway for the 1987 Trade Fair. The committee will once again be working hard to put on an even bigger and better show for this coming year.

The Tourism Committee has drafted many recommendations including the Royal Hudson - Britannia extension time, which is being passed on to local, provincial, and federal representatives.

Anyone interested in contributing to the community spirit is invited to drop by the Chamber Office.

Gordon heads new health services board

RICK HANSEN Man in Motion World Tour

Block Bros. Realty Ltd. is proud to support The Man in Motion World Tour.

Peter Gordon was elected the first chairman of the new Health Care Services Board which jointly represents the Squamish Hospital Society and the Squamish Intermediate Care Society.

Nick Candy was elected vice-chairman with Bruce Kehler treasurer and John Dillabough as secretary. Nick Candy will be the board representative on the project committee which oversees the construction of the new building.

Elected to the board for three-year terms were Peter Gordon and Rose Tatlow, for two-year terms Lis Larsen and Doreen Munn, and for one-year terms Dave Hinds and Bruce Kehler.

Other members of the board will include the government representative, presently filled by Nick Candy, one from the municipal government, presently filled by Terrill Patterson, one from the Indian Band, presently filled by Shirley Toman, and one from Whistler, filled by Mayor Terry Rodgers.

The bylaws of both societies have been approved by the Ministry of Health and Terry Rodgers, who was on the bylaw committee with Dr. L.C. Kindree, said that "united the societies would be stronger and more effective."

Terry Aldridge, chairman of the Intermediate Care Board, gave his final report for the board, saying they were looking forward to 12 additional long term care beds and were also trying to seek some form of transportation for people in the community who need this.

Aldridge acknowledged the work of the staff at Hilltop House, the administration and all the volunteers who worked there. He also said volunteers are always needed and more would be welcomed.

Peter Gordon, chairman of the Hospital Board, said he was pleased to see construction of the acute care wing progressing so well and said the steel work will be starting next month.

The Intermediate Care Auxiliary report from Gordon Thackeray said bingo games were being held regularly and the auxiliary was planning to purchase gifts for those in the building and planned to buy a star for the tree.

The Hospital Auxiliary report, presented by Marian Mills, stated that Videos and books had been purchased for the children's ward and a silver recovery unit for the X-ray department. An Infant Love Seat was also donated to the hospital for use if an infant has to be taken to a city hospital.

The auxiliary is also continuing with its infant car seat rental program which has been very popular. Mrs. Mills said they were still looking for new members for the auxiliary and any volunteers would be welcomed.

Terry Rodgers gave a brief report on the Whistler Health Care Unit which opened earlier this year and said it was filling a need in the community.

In a detailed report in the new facility, Peter Gordon said it would be completed early in 1988. He also said he hoped to hear about approval for the new 12 bed extension to the extended care unit before too long.

Wilf Dowad gave a brief report on the proposed Paratransit project and said a survey was being made.

Following the election the new board met and elected the officers for the coming year.

November Blood Donor Clinic scheduled

A Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic will be held at the Squamish Civic Centre on Monday, Nov. 24, from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Donating blood is probably much easier than most people think. The actual giving of blood takes only five to 10 minutes, followed by a short rest and refreshments.

It doesn't sound like a lot of time or trouble, yet only four percent of the eligible population donates blood on a regular basis.

As the eligible blood donor population grows older, new donors are needed to take their place.

Anyone between the ages of 17 and 65 and weighing 100 pounds may donate blood every 90 days.

At least one local law firm wants a crack at providing legal counsel and service to the municipality.

Roger Stacey, of Paul, Race and Stacey, Barristers and Solicitors, appeared before council at the Oct. 21 meeting to express the intention of his firm to submit a proposal on providing legal services to the municipality.

Stacey was responding to a concern that the municipality had decided to retain the services of an out-of-town firm, MacKenzie Lidstone, which specializes in municipal law.

At the Sept. 30 meeting, council decided to retain that firm's services but elected also to call for proposals from local firms interested in supplying legal service to the municipality.

The request for proposals from local law firms is expected to be advertised sometime in mid-November.

Stacey told council that his firm has worked with MacKenzie Lidstone in the past, and, as council's chosen legal counsel, would be prepared to continue to do so.

"It would be wise to have a local firm give instructions to MacKenzie Lidstone," Stacey said, adding that by dealing with the firm through a local law firm the process would be more efficient and cost-effective.

"Hire a local firm that can handle municipal requirements," Stacey urged council.

"We want to be involved in the community."

The decision to call for proposals on legal services was part of an overall plan by council to review many of the contracted services to the municipality.

Council elected to call for proposals rather than tenders on the legal service because of the reluctance of legal firms to bid on such work due to strict advertising regulations guarding that business.

Squamish dog-owners shirking duties

Squamish dog-owners are not living up to their duties and responsibilities when it comes to the animals' care, according to Poundkeeper Wendy Beaudoin.

Beaudoin, who assumed the position of poundkeeper in May when the former keeper retired, said dog-owners are allowing their animals to run loose, are not having them spayed or neutered, and are reluctant to claim animals picked up by the Pound.

The result, said Beaudoin, has been an overload of dogs picked up by or turned into the Pound in recent months. Beaudoin said last month alone saw 48 dogs go through the Pound. The Pound facilities can only accommodate five dogs at one time.

Pound dogs who are left unclaimed are either shipped off to Vancouver to look for homes or destroyed. Beaudoin said in some instances, even when a dog's owner is located, the owner cannot be bothered to claim the dog and pay the impounding fee and thus the dog is left to the Pound to dispose of.

It is this aspect of the job, said Beaudoin, an obvious dog-lover, that is most frustrating and saddening. She said she tries to hold onto a dog as long as she can in an effort to find it a home before she makes the decision to destroy it.

Beaudoin is angered by dog-owners who repeatedly allow their dogs to run loose and disturb neighbors and who do not take the effort to have their dogs spayed or neutered. She said the community is in dire need of an education program to inform people of their responsibilities as dog-owners.

Moreover, Beaudoin, who has found litters of puppies in garbage cans and rivers, is appalled by the inhuman treatment by people of their pets.

Beaudoin spends most of her work day patrolling the municipality, looking for stray animals and answering complaints. The bulk of the remainder of her time is tending to the impounded dogs and searching for homes for them. She said the job, at the best of times, is frustrating.

Hollywood comes to Britannia Beach

On the set of "Airwolf" filmed last week at Britannia Beach.

PROTECT THE PURCHASING POWER OF YOUR SAVINGS.

Protecting purchasing power is the primary investment objective of more and more Canadians. AGF Global Government Bond Fund is designed to minimize declines in the purchasing power of your savings.

This mutual fund invests in bonds of Governments whose economic policies encourage strong currencies. It provides unitholders with regular monthly interest income, and may also yield capital gains by taking advantage of interest-rate and currency exchange-rate fluctuations. Most importantly, by diversifying assets in a variety of currencies, a decline in a single currency should not cause a decline in your purchasing power.

AGF GLOBAL GOVERNMENT BOND FUND

A little bit of Hollywood invaded Britannia Beach as television crews filmed an episode of the series, "Airwolf", starring actor Jan Michael Vincent.

Thirteen local residents, who were employed as "extras" in the episode, were given the opportunity to share a little of the limelight.

Filming took place Monday and Tuesday with various exterior scenes being shot in the community. Crews transformed buildings into a small American town with the addition of signs, posters and other props.

The episode, entitled, "Salvage", involves a mysterious duplicate of the series' famed Airwolf helicopter which has crashed in a small mining community and is being reassembled by the town villain.

The show is one of 24 episodes of the series being filmed in the Lower Mainland by the North Vancouver-based production company, Atlantis Skyflight Productions Inc.

Douglas MacLeod, Unit Manager for the company, said although many American programs and movies are currently being filmed in Actors rehearse a scene.

B.C. it is unusual that a whole series like Airwolf is filmed here.

MacLeod attributed part of the reason for choice of B.C., and particularly Britannia, for the series' location, to the scenery which he described as "absolutely spectacular."

The filming has meant steady employment for a host of cameramen, production people, and local actors, the bulk of whom are from the Lower Mainland. The "Salvage" episode will feature such prominent local actors as Barry Van Dyke, Geraint Wyn Davies, Anthony Sherwood, and Michelle Scarbelli.

Noticeably absent during the two-day shoot was the state-of-the-art "Airwolf" helicopter on which the series is based. MacLeod said file footage of the helicopter is re-used for each episode.

A regular helicopter was flown in however to film aerial shots of Britannia Beach to be used in the episode. In addition, some filming took place inside the old Britannia copper mine, now the Britannia Museum of Mining.

The Squamish Food Bank wishes to thank all those in the community for their generosity through donations of food and money. For those not yet in receipt of an official tax deductible receipt for cash donations, these will be forwarded at the end of the year.

On the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, Norman and Shirley Saugstad reaffirmed their marriage vows at the morning service of worship at Squamish United Church on Sunday 26th before Rev. Chris Burnett, family members and the congregation. A reception and cutting of a special anniversary cake followed the service. Norman and Shirley were married in Bella Coola on Nov. 4, 1936 and they will be returning there to celebrate with other family members and friends.

Dave is rather distressed right now. His two month old tan terrier poodle cross was taken from the Woodfibre Ferry parking lot at Darrell Bay on Oct. 19 between 1:30 - 2:30 p.m. He would appreciate getting it back and if you have any information on the dog, please call Dave at the Woodfibre ferry, 892-5343 or the SPCA, 898-9890 or 898-5182.

Wedding anniversary wishes to: Mr. and Mrs. Rheal Lalonde, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cook, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Hamilton.

The staff at the Britannia Volunteer Library extend a sincere "thank you" to all the Britannia residents for support, both in supplying and buying at their bake sale held on Oct. 26. A comment from one of the volunteers was "We did really well!"

The Squamish Hunters belong to the Greater Vancouver Women's Metro Soccer League and the gals would really appreciate your support when they take on the West Van Comets at Centennial Field on Sunday, Nov. 2 at 12:30 p.m.

IGA's Gift To Go project to purchase a van for disabled children is going well. All lower mainland IGA supermarkets including the Squamish store are involved. The van will be presented at this year's Timmy's Telethon in Dec. While supporting this worthy cause, you also have a chance to enter the free draw for a trip to Disneyland.

Jim Mulholland of Stedman's Store phoned on Friday afternoon to tell me that Mrs. Joan Robertson had "scratched" her way to a $10,000 prize in the regular Scratch and Win. Congrats to this happy individual.

Past Kinsmen who are interested in establishing a K40 Club are requested to attend a meeting at the Easter Seal Camp (library) on Wednesday, Nov. 12 at 7 p.m. For more information please contact Bob at 898-3859 or Norm at 892-3795.

Capilano College and Emily Carr College of Art and Design Outreach Programs will present an adult sculpture workshop by noted artist-teacher George Norris of Shawnigan Lake the weekend of Nov. 29-30 in Squamish. Registration can be arranged with Louise Krohn at 984-4908. Early registration is recommended as enrollments are limited.

After Trick or Treatin' on Halloween Night, all you weird and wonderful characters are invited to end your evening at the Civic Centre. A big bonfire will be lit behind the Centre at 7 p.m. followed by a fireworks display at 8 p.m. The Parks and Recreation Department and members of the Squamish Fire Department are getting together to ensure you have a safe but exciting evening.

A visitor at the home of Ross and Gwen Rivett last week was their brother-in-law, John Wilson from Toronto. We met John at the B.C. Lions vs Hamilton football game and he along with the 40,000 others in the stands was not too impressed with our team. He is a Toronto Argonauts fan and so of course was rooting for the Lions!!!

One of the advantages of television is that it gives a teenager something to occupy his mind while he does his homework....How well I remember!!

Hidden Value celebrates first anniversary

Theresa Torkoly, owner of Hidden Value Boutique

Where can you buy an entire winter wardrobe for a fraction of the cost in most retail stores?

If you don't mind clean, ironed, but somewhat used clothing, Hidden Value Boutique is the shopping spot for you.

Theresa Torkoly, owner of the Hidden Value Boutique, a second-hand clothing store located in the Tantalus Mall behind the Highlander Hotel, is currently celebrating her first anniversary in business.

To celebrate the occasion, Torkoly will be offering a coupon in an upcoming issue of The Times which will give customers 50 percent off a purchase made from Nov. 4 to 8 at Hidden Value Boutique. In addition, purchasers will be invited to drop their names into a barrel for a draw that will give the winner 50 percent off all purchases during the entire month of November.

Torkoly said her anniversary specials are her way of thanking her many customers for their patronage throughout the year and to encourage new customers who haven't yet visited the store.

She has built up a steady clientele of customers who regularly visit the shop which offers clean and ironed used clothing. Clothing is available for infants to adults, and in sizes 3 to 20-plus. In addition, there is a selection of shoes, belts, handbags, scarves and other accessories to complete a wardrobe. The bulk of the stock is ladies' clothing; however, the shop offers children's, boys' and some men's clothing as well.

Torkoly has been a resident of Squamish for about five years and is an aerobics enthusiast. A former manager of the Honey Pot Natural Foods in Squamish, she has managed both health food and retail clothing stores in Vancouver.

Big treat for lucky teenager

Editor's Note: The following article was written by Herb Johnston, a science teacher at Howe Sound Secondary School who recently completed a month-long volunteer teaching assignment for the Canadian Teachers Federation in Kenya. The object of the assignment was to provide instruction in teaching methods to the teachers of Kenya, and thus assist in the improvement of the quality of education in that developing country. Johnston has previously assisted teachers in Zimbabwe and Fiji.

Most Canadian students and their parents probably think very little about what it would be like to attend school in a Third World country.

Most people take for granted the high quality of education Canadians enjoy. Yet, only 100 years ago, education in B.C. and the rest of Canada was very much in its early development stages. In countries such as Kenya, however, this is the case in 1986.

To most Kenyans, school is a privilege and something to be sought after with enthusiasm. It is only through an education that a child can have a future that is beyond sustenance living.

Consider for a moment the life of a student in a typical rural school. Classes may be as large as 90 students, and likely average between 50 and 60 students. There may be four students sitting around a desk no larger than a metre. Some schools do not have electricity or a well for water. Textbooks are hard to come by, are usually in class sets, and somewhat aged. Pencils and paper are prized commodities. Boards to write on may be in the classrooms but chalk is rare.

When a teacher is away sick, it is expected that a neighboring teacher would cover two classes for as long as necessary. Many students are very happy to come to school for this is where they will get a meal at lunch and not have to work so hard in the fields. Urban schools are usually more fortunate in their conditions but overcrowding is predominant.

But, to many Kenyan children this is far better than what it was like a few years ago. So, when I would enter a schoolyard, I would be greeted by happy smiling children, anxious to find out something about this white stranger.

In class, students are very attentive and half the class would raise their hands to answer a question. Their projects, whether they be in class or out of class in the fields, are done with enthusiasm, with students trying hard to get a little bit more of this thing called education.

Most of my work was with the teachers and they too had this same thirst for knowledge and desire to progress. They do recognize that their educational system does not have all the things of the western education system and many have never seen a computer or used a video. But they are proud that they are progressing and in fact have more than many African countries.

They recognize that having 50,000 untrained teachers with little more than a high school education out of a national teaching staff of 150,000 means considerable problems, but they are making progress even though it is slow.

As a Canadian teacher working within the Kenyan education system, I was left with a great respect for the efforts and successes of the Kenyan teachers and at the same time, a greater appreciation as to how fortunate we really are as teachers, students, and parents to be enjoying the Canadian education standards.

Each year, the Canadian Teachers' Federation sends about 70 volunteer teachers to assist teachers in developing countries in Southeast Asia, the Caribbean, and Africa as part of their program, "Project Overseas -- Teachers Helping Teachers."

Any groups interested in a slide presentation of education in Third World countries should contact Herb Johnston at Howe Sound Secondary School.

EAGLES SEND AMERICANS PACKING

A mere four weeks ago, the day the Squamish Eagles opened their home season with a rather disappointing loss to the White Rock Whalers, general manager Jim Raymond laid down the formula for attracting some fans.

In short that formula measured up to one thing; playing competitive, entertaining hockey, and more importantly, not coming out with a "who cares" attitude.

It is a formula that is beginning to pay off, not only in the crowd department but in the win column as well as on Sunday the home town Eagles sent the defending champion Seattle Nor-West Americans reeling with a convincing 10-4 thrashing. For Squamish it is their third consecutive home victory, a parade that has netted 26 goals for and but six against.

It was also, in recent memory, the first time Seattle has ever given up that many goals in a single game. And just how did they manage that?

"We outthrustled them," quipped Raymond. "We applied the body, especially in their end and whenever you do that they cough up the puck. We were all over them from the start."

Indeed the Eagles, for the second straight weekend against tough competition, kept up the pressure throughout the full sixty minutes and were especially effective in the fore-checking role. Leading in that category was the line of Dan Payne, Myles Rosser and rookie Dave Port which constantly kept the Americans back-pedaling.

As a result at least one of the trio were involved in six of the Squamish tallies with Rosser collecting the hat trick and an assist. Payne and Port both earned a goal and two assists.

Yet despite the edge of the scoring it was not their game until the last minute of the second period and in fact the issue was much in doubt when the Americans, rebounding from Rosser's opening marker that hit the back of the net before the final chord of O Canada barely had time to die out, built up a 3-1 lead in lieu of two power play goals.

But the elapsed time from that third tally and their fourth would be 46 minutes and 24 seconds to be exact and by then it would be all over.

And the perennial straw that broke the camel's back would again be provided by Rosser, with less than a minute left in the middle period, Rosser took off up the right wing, after successfully helping to kill a penalty danced around to the outside past a defender and then snapped a shot into the far corner of the net before the keeper had time to prepare himself for the drive that was already behind him.

Not only was it the eventual winner but it set up a five goal third period as the Eagles exploded for a pair of power plays and short handed goals. One of those latter efforts came from Chris Frederick as he contributed with a hat trick of his own and a pair of assists while Bryan Markert notched two more goals.

"If we gave the same effort on Friday (in a 12-6 loss to White Rock) as we did today," Raymond stated, "it (the score) would have been different. There is no way White Rock is six goals better than us but the guys started stick-checking and once you get into that it's hard to get out of it."

ICE CHIPS: Gord Trenaman will be sitting out for two weeks with a groin pull while defender Paul Schulte left after the end of the second frame, slightly aggravating the same injury that has kept him out of the line-up. Richard Tatzlaff was called up for the game but saw only spot duty.

Next up for the 6-4 Eagles is a Thursday date in Mission before returning home for a 1:30 start on Sunday versus the NSWC Flames.

Raiders fall short in over-time

An interception by the Whistler Dragons in extra time of the championship game proved to be the difference in the four team Whistler Invitational Flag Football Tournament.

The errant pass resulted in Whistler clinching a 29-28 victory over the Squamish Raiders which in five previous games during seasonal and tournament action, had failed to lose to a Whistler opponent. The October 18 loss came despite some impressive individual stats as quarterback Brian Marchant, in the two games played, including a 38-22 win over the Whistler Mofos in the semis, threw for a total of ten touchdowns, four of which were caught by Herb Chambers.

Kym Kostiuik, meanwhile, was on the receiving end of three of those passes while Tate Patton snared two and Brent Roche got under another.

The Dragons, who knocked off McGrew's from Vancouver to reach the final, claimed a $150 first place prize. Other standouts for the Raiders, who are hoping to host a similar competition soon, were Stan Laskovic and Dale Rourke.

The Hunter's Women's Soccer Club moved into a tie for second place with a 2-0 win over Van Cardinals at Stan Clarke Park.

Lora Lee Doak started the scoring by beating the Cardinal defender and tucking the ball past their goalie. Doak then later had two more chances but just missed past the outside post.

Then, it was Kelly Raymond's turn to come up big as she stopped three good solid shots to keep the shutout. With about 12 minutes remaining, Mavis Lewis rounded out the scoring by stripping the defender of the ball and putting it away in the corner of the Cardinal net to ensure the victory.

About $400 worth of tools were reported stolen from a house at Perth Place sometime between Oct. 17 and 22.

Christmas Seal Campaign underway

The B.C. Lung Association's annual Christmas Seal Campaign is once again underway to raise funds for lung disease research and health education.

According to Irene Vickers, Squamish Christmas Seals Chairman and member of the Squamish Hospital Women's Auxiliary, this year marks the 64th year for the annual fund-raising drive.

By mid-November, almost one million homes throughout B.C. will have received their traditional sheet of Christmas seals.

This year's goal for the Squamish area is $4,770, up about two percent over last year's returns.

Council turns down festival offer

Thanks-but no thanks. That's the response of Squamish council to an invitation from the B.C. Government to host next year's annual B.C. Festival of the Arts.

The government is approaching B.C. communities in an effort to entice them into hosting the annual event billed as a "showcase of dance, theatre, film, music, drama and the visual arts." This year's festival was held in Prince George.

Council accepted the recommendation from the Technical Planning Committee to turn down the government's invitation in light of the fact that Squamish does not have the facilities necessary to host such an event.

Included in the list of festival requirements are: a minimum of two theatres, a minimum of five recital halls, gallery and film equipment, banquet hall, accommodation for 1,000 performers, and a core of 500 to 600 volunteers.
