A TRIBUTE TO ROSE see page 4 & 5

Garibaldi Park was named after the famous Italian patriot and liberator at the time of a coastal survey in 1859.

The first recorded interest in the area came in 1902 when two climbers, A.T. Dalton and a Mr. Hoops, reached the lower slopes of Mount Garibaldi after a trip up the Indian River to Squamish and one to the peak in 1902.

Two years later, a group of climbers came back to the mountain and reached the bergschrund on the north east face. These attempts to scale the mountain were made via the Diamond Head area. They skirted the slopes of the Gargoyles and ascended the Ring Creek valley to the glacier. At that time the entire Ring Creek valley was covered with ice and the glaciers were at least two miles longer than they are today.

In that party were Atwell D. King, after whom Atwell Peak is named, A.T. Dalton, who gave his name to Dalton Dome, part of the Garibaldi massif, Tom Price, after whom Price Mountain near the Black Tusk area was named, and D. Grey.

It was three years before the first recorded ascent of Mount Gartbaldi took place. This was on August 8, 1907, and six climbers, A.T. Dalton, W.T. Dalton, J.J. Trorey, T. Patterson, A.D. King, and G.B. Warner, went up the Chee-Kye Creek and around the west side of Warren Glacier, thence up the north east face to the bergschrund. E. Peach and G. Walker also climbed the peak in the same year to mark the second recorded ascent and the following year. A.T. Dalton, T. Price, F.L. Townley and G.B. Warren made the third ascent following the southern route facing Dalton Dome, and up the snow face between the main peak and the pinnacle.

It was five yeras later that Miss L.C. Hanafin and Miss C.P. Munday were the first women to make the ascent in July of 1913.

In 1910, the first B.C. Mountaineering Club Camp was held on Round Mountain in August. This group of early climbers explored the region and climbed Garibaldi.

In 1911, the first ascent of Mamquam Mountain, originally called Mont Rosa because it resembled the famous Swiss peak, was made. Climbers were W. Gray, F. Perry, W. Taylor, F.H. Smith, F. Korten, and C. Chapman. They made the climb just before the B.C.M.C. summer camp on Round Mountain.

Two years later, Miss Hanafin and Miss Munday made the first climb by women of this peak.

It was in 1911 that a party from the B.C.M.C. summer camp on Round Mountain went over the glacier and the neve and camped on a ridge near Sentinel Peak. They crossed the Sphinx Glacier the next day to make the first ascent of Copper Peak and Castle Towers. This was perhaps the first glimpse of Garibaldi Lake and they decided to hold the next year's summer camp at the lake.

The following year, W. Gray looked for another route into Garibaldi Lake and followed Rubble Creek up to the Barrier and scouted the area around what is now Black Tusk Meadows and Garibaldi Lake for a camp which the B.C.M.C. hoped to hold in the following summer. Before this camp was held, a train was cut to the meadows by W. Gray and F. Long. A tablet at the head of the trail near Mimulus Creek marked the end of the route which they blazed to the meadows.

The first camp in the meadows was held that year and it was from this B.C.M.C. camp that many of the first climbs in the area were made. Black Tusk, Mount Price and many other peaks were conquered and named.

A second camp was held there the following year and after that it became a popular place for mountaineering clubs to spend their summer camps. The meadows became famous for the beautiful alpine flora surrounding the base of the Tusk and in these early years Vancouver florists and garden shops would take out pack trains of alpine plants for rock gardens in the city.

The first boat launched on Garibaldi Lake. was the Alpine Beauty in 1919, and three years later a second boat, the Bill Wheatley, was carried up in pieces on horses and on the backs of club members and reassembled at the lake shore. It had been built in Vancouver and taken apart, to be carried in to the lake and put together again.

The area was popular as a mecca for mountaineers and through the years the B.C.M.C., the Alpine Club of Canada and climbing clubs from Washington and Oregon came to the park each summer.

Many botanists, among them Professor Davidson of UBC, attended camps in the meadows and classified the many alpines growing in the area. Later Bill Matthews, former dean of geology at UBC, made many visits to the park as a student and after he became a professor. In fact, he wrote his thesis on some of the geological aspects of the park.

In 1920, the area was created a B.C. Park Reserve in order to protect it. That summer members of the B.C.M.C. explored the wilderness area from Garibaldi Lake to Cheakamus Lake and from the railway in the Cheakamus Valley to the Pitt River.

Six years later the Garibaldi Park Act was passed and the area became a provinical park.

Council nixes free lease to mini logging show

Canada's best long-term RRSP record.

We don't know any other RRSP-eligible investment that can beat this record.

Over the past 19 years, Industrial Growth Fund has achieved total growth of almost 2000% (with dividends reinvested).

That means that $10,000 invested in 1967 is now worth more than $209,364.

For nearly two decades, that's a 17.4% average annual compound rate of return - a direct result of the conservative but. growth-oriented money management strategy of Mackenzie Financial Corporation.

When your RRSP demands the best long-term performance, why settle for anything less?

Squamish council has denied permission to a local logging show to perform for special tour groups at Squamish Junction free of charge, citing unfairness to other groups who must currently pay a rental fee to use the facilities.

The tourism committee, in a report to council, had asked that council grant approval to West Coast Logging Shows, represented by Bryan Couture, to be allowed to operate a mini logging show for special tour groups at various times throughout the year free of charge, provided the area had not been booked prior to the event.

added Alderman Terrill Patterson.

"Either you don't charge anybody at all or you don't let anybody in."

"It's called discrimination." Added Alderman Chuck Harvey: "By establishing a policy where we let a private entrepreneur come in at no charge doesn't sit well."

Alderman Corinne Lonsdale, chairman of the tourism committee, defended the committee's recommendation, saying that Royal Hudson passengers will also benefit from the shows as well as anybody else in the area.

Responding to a charge from Harvey who pointed out that another outfit that was allowed to hold an event in the area arranged for out-of-town catering, thus depriving local restaurateurs of the business, Lonsdale said: "We should encourage the local restaurateurs to go into catering business and go after those tours."

In a further motion, council decided to refer the matter to the Parks and Recreation Commission for policy clarification.

Council takes action against delinquent leaseholders

If you have outstanding debts owing to the municipality, the administration may soon be coming after vou.

Squamish council passed a motion at the Jan. 6 meeting authorizing the administration to take action against delinquent leaseholders in the municipality, particularly leaseholders along Loggers Lane to the east of Highway 99.

According to a report to council, legal action is now being taken against one such leaseholder who owes $1,991.88 for outstanding garbage, water, taxes, penalties and lease payments for the years 1984 to 1985. The matter will be dealt with in small claims court. Council is also faced with a number of other outstanding debts owing to the municipality.

During the discussion of the matter at the Jan. 6 meeting, Mayor Egon Tobus chided council for its reluctance to authorize the administration to proceed with legal action. Some council members had expressed a desire to have details of the individual debts presented to council for its perusal before action is taken.

"I'm a little startled over it," Tobus, said, referring to council's hesitation in passing the motion to authorize the action.

"I thought our responsibility was to the municipality."

After further discussion, however, council passed the motion authorizing the administration to take action against delinquent leaseholders in the municipality.

FMC still alive in Squamish

Despite Canadian Occidental Petroleum Ltd.'s recent takeover of FMC's Squamish Chemical facilities, Bob Harries, division manager of FMC's Peroxide Group, says we could see construction for the proposed FMC hydrogen peroxide plant commence within the next three years, if the economy permits.

The new $35 million Western Canada Hydrogen Peroxide plant, initially proposed for completion in mid-1986, was halted months after ground-breaking ceremonies in Squamish, July 1985, performed by thenpremier, Bill Bennett. But according to Bob Harries, the proposal will eventually go ahead as planned.

"We are studying the markets", he said, "and both companies (FMC and CanadianOxy) are quite compatible."

Jack Selby, plant manager of the recently acquired CanadianOxy chlorine/caustic plant in Squamish, said the acquisition is expected to improve the company's competitiveness. cost effectiveness and ability to better service the demand for these products. "CanadianOxy will also continue to suppy hydrogen steam and other utilities", Selby said, "which may be required by the future FMC hydrogen peroxide facility, once built." However, Selby added, to ensure continued service to its Western Canadian hydrogen peroxide customers, FMC will retain its existing holrogen peroxide distribution facility in Squamish.

Rose Tatlow: Keeping up with The Times

Tatlow was born in 1915 in side of Powell River, B.C., to parents of Swiss descent.

Her father was a logger who was killed in the local surrounding woods. The family lived on Wilson Crescent in a little house which to this day stands amidst the numerous to even attempt to list; suffice to say that if it concerned children, people's welfare, or the betterment of the community, Tatlow was involved in one way or another.

From Scouts and Brownies and Guides (she still tests local Brownies for their badges), to council, school board, hospital society, library, and recently, Chamber of Commerce, Tatlow's presence was a familiar one. In recent years, she has devoted particular energies to the acquisition of intermediate care for needy residents, the organization of Community Christmas Care to help the needy at Christmas, the betterment of Squamish through tourist promotion, downtown revitalization and upgrading, and continued involvement in Loggers Sports. She has become a champion for education in the District, tirelessly attending school board meetings, functions at Capilano College, and other education-related events. She is known by local school children as Squamish's unofficial historian who is never too busy to answer a question for a classroom project. At the same time, Tatlow has risen to the top in her field--one notoriously dominated by men--and holds the honor of being the only female to have served as president of the B.C. and Yukon Community Newspaper Association. Her journalistic awards would cover the walls of a good-sized room, with plenty more to line the ceiling. Throughout the years, Tatlow has broadened her compassion and understanding for people via her many travels. She has visited Europe extensively, and has travelled to Hong Kong, Japan, Mexico, Central and South America, and many other destinations. But despite the awards, the kudos, the high-ranking community posts, and the endless, endless string of meetings, conventions, banquets and functions, Tatlow maintains a love for the home. Her cat, Perdido, is the star of many of her writings and anecdotes, and evidence of her prowess in craft-making graces the homes of many local residents. She is a crack chef-her collection of cookbooks would make any self-respecting gourmet weep-and her trays of tarts, squares and candies send figure-conscious women running. She is a graceful hostess, a fine conversationalist, and domestic to boot. Despite the years, Tatlow has not slowed a second. Her energy appears limitless and her enthusiasm neverwaning. She is a tribute to her profession, her sex, her age, and to humankind itself. And retirement to her means just even more time to pursue her many responsibilities, hobbies, interests, and loves.

Retirement--no way. How about "rejuvenation."

in the eyes of the community

Throughout her 23 years working for the Squamish Times and many more years spent living and growing in the community, Rose Tatlow has worked alongside of many people. Here, we offer a sampling of the many words of praise and tribute her peers and colleagues have to offer. John Dillabough (Hospital Administrator): "Rose is a very commonsense kind of person, down-to-earth. She's also very energetic--I don't know how the hell she does know how the hell she does it. I really admire her. She's super." Wilf Dewed: "Rose was a great pioneer that grew with the times and never lost the common touch." Lorne Greenaway (MP--Cariboo/Chilcotin): "I always found Rose to be bright, alert, well-informed, extremely fair, and not one to criticize. If she gives you a jab in the ribs you damn well deserve it. She's a super lady."

Shirley Henry (Mayor of Pemberton):"Rose is a vibrant person. She is interested in the human side of people. She's honest and sincere, and a good friend.

She's a tireless worker and a community-minded person. Rose saw that Pemberton had coverage in the paper." Pat Carleton (former Mayor of Whistler): "Rose and I had a wonderful relationship. We had a mutual respect for one another. She was very fair in her reporting. She couldn't say anything nasty if she tried." Hilda Rizun (Chairman, Capilano College): "Rose has always been a friend of the College's. We always knew that anything we needed we could go to Rose. She's been absolutely number one." Bill Bloxham (City Clerk): "I have known Rose since my policing days (1973-76) and she was very fair in her reporting of police news, but would never allow herself to be unjust in her reporting. Over the years, she has always been firm in her always been firm in her positions but not withstanding this, she also took the time to research the issue and make her firm stand more positive."

Maureen Gilmour (Times columnist): "I have had the privilege of working with Rose for the past 13 years. It was not only a working relationship but we have also developed a great bond of friendship over the years. I will miss Rose not coming into the office, but she did say, 'Remember I am just a phone call away if I can be of any assistance to you."

Beth Kershaw (daughter): "I wish that I had her energy. She makes me tired just watching her. She's an absolute friend to anyone. Without my mother there would be no Squamish Times as it is today."

Dave Stewart: "The responsibility of running a small community newspaper is very onerous and demanding. Rose's lovalty to Squamish, her stamina, and her objective outlook has served the community well. The Times, under her leadership, won many awards and her personal service with the many community organizations of Squamish has made Squamish a good community to live in. The community is her family.

Beth Hill: "Rose has been a family friend for 30 years. I worked with Rose at the Times in the early sixties. We've been to South America, the Orient, across the States to New Orleans and back. I thoroughly enjoyed all our trips. Now, we should be able to see more of each other."

EDITORIAL

The eagles are back

The eagles are back and in quantities to rival those of a few years ago, according to the official eagle count recently conducted in Squamish.

Some of the heaviest concentrations are on the trees across from the Easter Seal camp, near Baynes Island at the end of Judd Road, and above the Indian Reserve in Brackendale.

Reports said that last year the count was way down and people wondered if there were fewer birds than normal but when an unofficial count this year found over 900 in one stretch over the river alone, the number of birds must be way up. Maybe it was because our rivers were so low that other areas had been cleaned out before the fish arrived here. But the eagles are back and they are a prime tourist attraction.

We should organize tours to bring people to Squamish to see those magnificent birds. Maybe the Americans would pay a small fortune to see their national bird, which is an endangered species in their country, thriving and multiplying in British Columbia.

Maybe we could put a charge on eagle viewing and recoup some of the money lost on the softwood duty.

We're being suckered

The floods of people coming to Canada and seeking refugee status are making a mockery of our immigration process.

Anyone coming here and claiming refugee status is fed and housed, while others who are going through the regular channels and following the rules, have to wait while the newcomers are allowed to stay. Meanwhile, we are being used by travel agents and unscrupulous people who take their last dollars from these people and dump them in Canada for us to look after. Indications are that the people who set the Tamils adrift off Newfoundland made a mint out of the plight of those hapless people who paid their last dollars or funds to come to Canada because we have the reputation of being generous to those in need.

provided for them but demanded to be allowed to stay in a hotel, seem to think this is a land prepared to give them what would be a luxury in the lands they came from.

This is not to deny freedom and a place in our country for those who are d_{dec} truly fleeing from oppression in their own countries. But they should be screened before they are allowed to enter Canada, and then they should come in only after their actual refugee status has been assembled. If we don't tighten up immigration procedures we will be flooded with thoudands of people who think that Canada is a soft touch. If we have money to spare to provide food and shelter for these people, maybe some of it should be spent on our own people who are in need, instead of for those who are entering our country under false pretences, or by endeavoring to escape the normal procedures.

What changes would you like to see happen in the New Year?

Terry Bergstrom: "That question is a biggie. I hope they go ahead with the mill in Britannia."

> Wendy Clear: "I would like to see more restaurants and a better nightclub scene - its dull in this town."

Donna Hogan: "Squamish should have a new theatre and new workshops for handicapped children."

> Eric Gumbel: "I would like to stop being a drug addict because I am addicted to marijuana and I have been trying to quit for 20 years."

SQUAMISHIANS, AS OTHERS WHO LIVE IN NUCLEAR FREE ZONES, SLEEP CONVINCED THAT WORD MAGIC IS JUST AS EFFECTIVE AS REAGAN'S 'STAR WARS' DREAM.

Last week we dealt with your horoscope and the things it reveals about you, according to Dr. Chase's almanac. Would you like to know what this same volume has to say about the weather in the next few month? Or maybe you'd prefer to be in ignorance.

Well, according to the almanac, in B.C. the year should turn colder and the moderating trend at the end of December should disappear. Well, perhaps he is right, but would you believe that I found pussy willows in bloom along the loggers road by my place the day after Boxing Day? That's right! The earlists I've ever found them before was on January 7, so this must be an all-time record. But then I've still go soggy roses in my garden too.

In January, coastal temperatures will still be quite moderate and there will be a drop in temperature towards the end of the month with gales and strong winds. At the end of the month it will turn mild again.

In February, the temperatures will be mild but there will be strong winds and gales but by mid-month a cooling trend will show and while storms are predicted for the entire province they will not appear although the clouds will be heavy. Colder temperatures will prevail at the end of the month.

According to the almanac, temperatures will be low and winds brisk in early March and this will last till the middle of the month but there will be drop in temperatures in the third week followed by rain and milder weather in the last few days of the month. No snow so far! Maybe it will be an open winter!

In April, temperatures will rise and spring will definitely be on its way. There will be a light fog and rain but no cold weather. May will also continue nice and warm and by the middle of the month there will be hot winds but only for a few days. This will be followed by cooler weather.

June will be mostly moderate and warm and reasonably clear but there will be some cooler weather at the end of the month. In July, weather conditions will be mainly warm and clear with showers at the end of the month. August will start out showery and then temperatures will rise, and by the 8th they will be unusually high. Light rain will be followed by more hot weather and September will start out hot followed by cooler weather lasting thoughout the entire month. In October, rain will be followed by high winds and cool temperatures until the middle of the month when it will warm up. But the month will end with lots of rain and fog. November will start with a series of minor storms, followed by a drop in temperature and heavy rain. By the middle of the month there will be a brief warming period followed by more rain. December will be cold and wet and the year will end on an icy note. And there you have it. They don't predict a beautiful summer like we had last year but they don't predict any snow either so maybe it will be just long, cool summer.

that hatched out there this last spring. She had at least half a dozen and brought them proudly by for a swim. I always wanted to know what to plant to attract the birds and one of my Christmas presents, which I haven't had a chance to get into yet, is a book on shrubs and trees to attract birds. I also received a series of three books on birds so now I shall be able to keep track of the ones that come to the feeder.

It is strange but there are very few birds at the feeder now. Maybe it is too wet for them and they will only come if there is snow and feed is hard to find. Of course there could also be lots of food for them and they may not be hungry.

I also received a beautiful book by Anthony Carter and it contains the Indian legend about Mount Garibaldi. I will have to use this in a column later on or maybe build a column around the legend. I was sure there must have been one but the only thing I ever found before this one was one about a flood and that didn't seem to be old enough to be a true legend because it was the explanation for the drowned trees in the Cheakamus River.

And one of the other gifts, a giant crossword puzzle book, is one that I'm sure I will get hours of amusement from. I also got a smaller crossword book. Somehow. people must know I'm an addict.

And the ultimate in crosswords must be the roll of toilet paper imprinted with them which a friend of mine received for Christmas. It came complete with the pen so he could amuse himself in the john!!

I've always been interested in birds and the place where I live is ideal for them. There are lots of ducks and other water birds in the Mamquam Blind Channel and we always see the black and white fish ducks which we used to call hell-divers, as well as several other kinds of birds on the water. They look so cute as they pop under the water and then bounce up again as much as to say "here I am!!"

Last year, there were a few geese in the water and also a family of swans. Perdido eyed them but I think he finally decided they were too big to tackle and kept this distance. He was fascinated with the family of ducks

Following a drop in business due to the IWA strike, Squamish merchants are onc again optimistic after a successful Christmas season. After a relatively slow September and October, local retailers were delighted when December finally rolled around.

"December was excellent", said Nes Kotyk, owner of the new Radio Shack on Cleveland Ave.

"In the last six months I have been in Squamish, business has been meeting my expectations, plus." Doreen Shaw, owner of Fashionality, said "people were doing a lot of last minute shopping for Christmas. But overall December was better than I expected."

Much of the credit for increased sales is due to the recent settlement of the hard-hitting IWA strike in Squamish. "It was a good year in spite Foote, owner of MacKenzies Work Wear Centre.

"But now business is picking up strongly," he added. "I have no complaints," said Christine Moloughney of The Country Store. "Business was quite good.

"I think the people of Squamish are more aware now then they ever have been of how important it is to support their local town." said Moloughney.

Although the benefits of the strike settlement were felt by most retailers in town, some local merchants

Nes Kotyk, Radio Shack complained of no change at all. "It could have been a little busier", said Ruth Tilsner of The Cobbler Shoe Store. "A lot of the men had just gone back to work." Bev Gunn, manager of Fields, said "it wasn't too good. We were down from last year in sales."

Overall, merchants say they were pleased with their sales over Christmas and with the month of December in particular.

"December was our best month": said Anver Rehmtulia; owner of Howe Sound Men's and Boy's Wear.

"We are looking forward to a good year."

Merchants say it will take a few months before any dramatic changes in retail sales will be evident, but a brighter future is definitely visible.

quiet holiday season

"Our message on drunkdriving seems to be getting across", said Staff Sgt. Dan Leroux of the Squamish RCMP.

Between Dec. 19 to 31, there were no arrests related to impaired driving.

"Overall, in the month of December", said Leroux, "there were only eight drivers who were found to have an alcohol-blood level of 0.08 or more." These statistics imply a decrease of 40 percent from last year.

New Year's Eve this year was unusually quiet. Police responded to 15 complaints that night which resulted in only one arrest for impaired driving after the driver collided with another vehicle.

"Our message has always been one of safety", said Leroux, "so we keep all our emergency vehicles at the roadblock." Alongside the breathalizer vans are vehicles such as ambulances and even a funeral hearse.

"It lets people know that if they drink and drive, they could end up in one of those vehicles," he added.

Squamish lights up for Christmas

Squamish residents "lit up" to the idea of putting a little competition into Christmas decorating, as testified by the many entries received by the local Chamber of Commerce for its Christmas Home Decorating Contest. Neighbors throughout the Squamish area nominated residents which they believed deserved the honor and recognition of having the best-decorated house. The overall winner of the contest was the Bouwman family of Valleycliffe. Runners-up were Mr. and Mrs. Jay Carratt, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gunn, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Payette, all of Valleycliffe, and Mr. and Mrs. John Hurren of Brackendale. Congratulations go out to the winners and all the other entrants, and to the organizers for their efforts. Judges of the contest included Robin Hoodspith from the Squamish Times, David Larsen of Mtn-FM Radio, and Donna Denis.

According to Corinne Lonsdale, co-organizer of the contest, the judges initially examined the houses nominated, each judge taking an assigned area of town. After noting the houses they admired, the judges then joined together to decide on the winner.

But Squamish residents were not the only ones to get in on the competition for Christmas decorating this year.

who, on Dec. 20, joined Christmas shoppers and other strollers on the downtown streets, sporting their distinctive red suits, while secretly judging shop decorations.

The Country Store was determined the Best Decorated Business, and was awarded a dinner for two at the Loggers Inn.

Squamish also organized a decoration competition, encouraging all retailers in Squamish to participate. Distinguished judges were Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus,

He was accompanied by his grandchildren, Jennifer and Carl Greenwood and their dad Len Greenwood of Langley and the Carters and their German shepherd Ki. Phyllis said her dad keeps in shape shovelling snow in the winter and gardening in the summer.

This coming week, Jan. 17 - 24 is Minor Hockey Week and it will be celebrated across the country. Laurie Vanzella said it started in his home town of Trail in 1956. Special ceremonies are planned there with members of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and some professional players in attendance. The theme for this year is "Minor Hockey is for the fun of it." Laurie said the Squamish Association promotes lots of house leagues to enable all youngsters regardless of their ability to play hockey. Parents, friends and others are urged to get out and see the boys play "clean" hockey.

Snow might be just around the corner, but Donna Maroulis, who lives on 4th Avenue, spotted two robins in her yard last week!.

Sincere sympathy is extended to Mrs. Monica Ferguson and family on the loss of a beloved husband and father, Bill Ferguson on Jan. 3. In remembrance of Bill, Monica invites friends and acquaintances to drop by their home at 38031-4th Avenue this Saturday (Jan. 17th) between 12 noon and 5 p.m. Attendants Shari Bishop as maid of honour and Kathy Halvorson, sister in law of the bride and Nancy Knox, the bride's sister, wore calf length deep green velvet skirts and white lace bloouses.

Junior bridesmaids, Lisa O'Hara, sister of the groom and Natasha Paquette, daughter of the groom wore floor length green velvet dresses with white lace trim. The little flower girl, Miss Hayley Halvorson, niece of the bride looked sweet in a floor length white silk dress, a copy of the bride's dress. All bridal attendants carried red roses, freesias, and turquoise glittered white chrysanthemums.

Blaine Scheck of Fort St. John was the best man. Ushering duties were shared by Don Halvorson, brother of the bride and Mark O'Hara, brother of the groom. The groom and ushers were attired in charcoal grey tuxedos and grey bowties and cummerbund.

Rebels use overtime to knock off Eagles

As far as the Squamish Eagles are concerned they exist for two reasons: to provide entertaining hockey and, more importantly from their stand point, to provide winning hockey.

Ultimately the two go hand in hand as the fans are there to be entertained and to watch their home team win. But it is quite possible to have one without the other and Sunday's match up with the Delta-Ladner Rebels was just such an occasion. In a free-wheeling, physical, and yes, entertaining, game, one of the largest crowds of the year got their dollar's worth and more as the two sides finished the third period tied at seven and thus entered a ten minute sudden death overtime session.

It was a session that featured some outstanding chances at both ends and ended when Ladner's Kyle Marks found room behind keeper Rob Nickel at 7:09 for an 8-7 victory over the Eagles. A loss nevertheless for the home side but one that should bring back more spectators next week.

In many ways however it was a strange game as the how staying ahead of Delta by trading efforts, a second from Rosser and a first by Jamey Raymond, for a 6-5 advantage going into the third.

Fifty nine seconds in though Stephen Freeman crossed the Squamish blue-line and drilled a rising shot past Nickel as the young keeper, in his first game back in a Squamish uniform, was going to his knees. The Rebels then took the lead for the first time in the game on what was their upteenth three-on-two break that was executed to perfection, before Craig Warren forced overtime by deflecting a point shot.

And while in the extra period Nickel made up for his earlier errors, making a great arm save in the opening stages and then somehow blocking a series of shots with a pair of Rebels standing over him. At the other end the Eagles enjoyed a power play and were rewarded with one rattle off the post.

Coach Doug Sissors however, with his team in the midst of a battle over second place with Burnaby and the North Shore Winter Club, tried to tell the guys not to get caught deep, to leave a third man up high (in the offensive zone) to take away that threat. All we had to do was hit them, not hard, but enough to break up the play but we didn't."

Raymond however was impressed, along with a lot of others in the stands, with the play of call ups Cory Antosh and Richard Tetzlaff, both of whom made their pressence felt on the ice.

"If everyone put in the effort that those two did," Raymond said, "the game would have been an entirely different outlook. Ladner doesn't like getting hit and when they do (get knocked around) they retaliate." Antosh and Tetzlaff both hit effectively and both were subject to the retaliation, most notably a hard check on Antosh which resulted in a penalty in the second period leading up to Raymond's power play marker. Both youngsters were given the ice time as a result of the injury bug which has Dan Payne and Gord Trenaman off with shoulder problems and Eldon Coney still nursing his knee. "You are always going to miss the abilities of a Payne (up front) or a Coney on defence but we are still four goals better than that club (Ladner) with the players we have," said Raymond. "I've been around these guys for three or four years now and I can seem to sense, when the dressing room is quiet, that they're having little doubts about themselves. They are (the Eagles) good hockey players and should go out thinking that they can win, but when some guys showing up fifteen minutes before the game it says to me that they are not here with hockey on their minds." So while for the fans the game was entertaining, for the Eagles it was a game in which they knew they could do better. The loss also means that the gap between second and fourth could be marginal, the dog fight on for that all important play off spot. And with a date on Sunday at 1:15 p.m. with Burnaby, the club that currently has a hold of second, now, as Raymond put it, "is not the time to start slipping or have any doubts." ICE CHIPS - Dan Payne is expected to join the team on the ice soon while Trenaman is out definitely with a shoulder separation...Sissons was named as the coach of the West Coach Junior Hockey League all star team...Sunday's game will see all registered minor hockey players gain free admission and a free pop in celebration of Minor Hockey Week.

MINOR HOCKEY GEARING UP FOR "ITS" WEEK

It all started in the Interior city of Trail, a time when the current president of the Howe Sound Minor Hockey Association Lauri Vanzella was a wee lad of - well let us just say a wee lad of an undisclosed age - a time he remembered as "our week." Thirty years later those seven days known as Minor Hockey Week has grown to encompass all of Canada. Beginning on Saturday, January 17 and running to January 24 it will be the player's week once more as the nation pays tribute to the youngsters that are the life and soul of our national sport.

Indeed, it would seem that hockey's real heroes are the likes of Wayne Gretzky, Gordie Howe or Guy Lafleur. But even those greats of the game were, at one time or another, taught and developed their skills through the local minor hockey system. More often than not those that helped in that development, the many coaches and executives who volunteer their time to give a boy a dream, played the biggest roles in a player's career but were given little or no credit. than putting the kids on the ice and letting them play. The coaches, executive and parents are there to simply serve that cause.

To kick off Minor Hockey Week the HSMHA will be putting that priority, of letting the kids get ice time, first.

On Saturday, from 6:00 to 7:00, in order to "provide increased awareness of our hockey program and to increase participation in our organization," free ice time has been set aside for all four to eight year old boys and girls who are not currently enrolled in hockey or ringette. The event is sponsored by Overwaitea and Dairyland is providing free Super Socco to all participants.

On the same day, at 11:15 the local Petite ringette squad is facing off against Langley. Sunday will see another ringette battle, this time at 12:00 with the Tweens meeting West Vancouver. Later all registered HSMHA players will gain free admission and a free pop at the junior B game featuring the Squamish Eagles and Burnaby Bluehawks. The Pups, first level players between the ages of four and seven, will put on a mini game in the second intermission of the Eagles match up. But the activity doesn't stop there as not only will all regular house games take place during the week, there will be other attractions thrown in such as Monday's coachesexecutive-spouses game at 8:30. Tuesday, January 20 is ringette day and the Civic Centre will get a taste of the game played at its finest when the Lower Mainland Tween Selects, with locals Dawna Tipper and Karen Larcombe playing for them, meeting the Aldergrove Tween A club. On Wednesday several hockey training videos, such as Wayne Gretzky's "Hockey My Way", will be shown in the upper room of the Civic Centre between 6:30 and 8:30. The week of activity will finally come to a head on January 24 with a Hot Dog Sale taking place at Overwaitea from 10:45 to 4:45. Hot Dogs and drinks are 50 cents and all the money raised will go to HSMHA. Overwaitea is providing the food as well as a free hot dog and drink to all HSMHA players. So Minor Hockey Week is for the fun of it and aimed at the increased participation of youngsters all over the country.

Rebels outplayed the locals by playing a free-wheeling, physical style, but still found themselves down by scores of 3-1 and 5-3, and had two goals called back.

The Eagles' power play and face-offs helped a bit as the Squamishites scored three times while with the extra man and three times connecting just seconds after winning face-offs in the Delta zone.

In the first period Culin Zoran, Bryan Markert and Myles Rosser, the latter two just over a minute apart as the Rebs ran into a rash of penalties, paced Squamish into a 3-2 lead. The second continued much the same way with the Eagles some-remained unimpressed with the Eagle's effort, replying a short "another stinker" and a "who cares" when the so-called entertainment value was mentioned.

Manager Jim Raymond was a bit more explicit, stating that "there are still a few guys that aren't showing up for the game (figuratively speaking). Ladner is a skating club and a physical one. They used the same play on us through the whole game. We would have three men caught deep and they break away on a three-on-two and would break that down to a two-onone using the trailer. "They must have had about

25 three-on-twos and we

The Brackendale Elementary School would like to thank all those people involved in making our winter carnival a success. A special thank you to the teachers and parents for their hard work. Without the support of all the people involved our Carnival would not have been the success it was.

The Brackendale Elementary School.

They are the bona fide champions and in many ways Minor Hockey Week is their week as well.

This year's slogan is "Minor hockey for the fun of it." In a time when the world is concerned about brawling, a time when we as Canadians share doubts about our system of playing hockey compared to the Russians, it may be a bit of a challenge to put the fun back into the game.

Canadians take their hockey, if anything else, seriously and all too often, when things aren't going the way we want them to on the ice, we look to the grass roots, namely our minor system, in search of the why's.

So perhaps the upcoming festivities should make the nation as a whole examine more closely our game of hockey and why we play it; get to the grass roots of the grass roots of the sport so to speak. Hockey for fun of it. Ignore the hoopla over the Russia-Canada brawl, ignore the hoopla over the so called sad state of our professional ranks. In the amateur level there is only one motivation for youngsters to play and that is for the sheer enjoyment.

If it becomes a task to play then the number of minor hockey players will eventually dwindle and like a domino that lack will spread through the system right up to the pros.

Minor Hockey Week is about youngsters, more importantly youngsters sharing with adults a common joy for a particular sport. There is nothing more important

Howe Sound Men's Hockey league weekly standings

But let us not forget that it couldn't happen without the volunteer coaches, executives and sponsors, such as Dairyland, Overwaitea, Weldwood, and the Squamish Eagles.

January: plan to attend play After the hustle and bustle of Christmas. is January leaving you in the doldrums? If so, why not liven it up with an evening at the Brackendale Art Gallery. The Howe Sound Drama Club brightens the scene with a play by Sir Terence Rattigan called "Table Number Seven". The dinner/theatre dates are Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 24 and 25 and the play only dates are Friday and Monday, Jan. 23 and 26.

The play is set in the seaside town of Bournemouth, England at the Beauregard Hotel. Table Number Seven allocated to Major Pollock in the plain dining room is the scene of tense conflicts amongst the residents. The focus is on a retired army officer whose lonely isolation is broken only by the friendship of a woman who is emotionally crippled by her domineering mother. The facade of the "Major" crumbles as his secrets are exposed.

The director of the play is Douglas Sifton.

Tickets are available at the Brackendale Art Gallery (898-3333) or from Mostly Books (892-3912).

Seniors in our community are invited to attend the dress rehearsal on Thursday, Jan. 22 at 8 p.m.

residents in the Garibaldi Highlands of bears foraging in the neighborhood.

A resident on Highlands Way North reported Jan. 8 that a bear had broken into a deep freeze kept in the garage and had stolen food. Police said the Department of Fisheries and Wildlife has been notified.

Christmas bird count shows record year

This year's Squamish Christmas Bird Count has broken its own record for the number of bald eagles sighted.

Birdwatchers counted nearly 1,400 eagles at this year's annual event, held Jan. 3. They also sighted about 70 other species, including a few that are seen only seldom.

In an upcoming issue of THE TIMES, further information on the method of counting the birds, the species sighted and the people involved, will be presented.

Break-in at McKay's Motors

About $1,400 worth of equipment was reported stolen from McKay's Motors bodyshop as a result of a breaking and entering during the night of Jan.

Among the items stolen were a four ton jack, an air sander and a unispotter.

In addition, police said battery acid had been spilled over a freshly painted vehicle, causing considerable damage.

The bodyship was entered through a dog hole into the shop.

The case is still under investigation.

Highlander under new ownership

The Garibaldi Highlander Hotel has come under new ownership as of Dec. 30. Bob Doerkson, previous manager, is now the hotel's owner, along with partners Sunni Bing and Karl Chomyc of Alberta. The hotel was previously owned by Wally, Berukoff.

Doerkson, who resides in Squamish with his wife. came to Squamish from Vancouver where he managed another hotel to take over the management of the newly renovated Highlander Hotel.

Already, Doerkson has made a number of improvements to the hotel, including live entertainment in the lounge, hot tubs and saunas for guests and for rental to parties, and a beer and wine store.

Doerkson said business over the Christmas season was good, although the pub and cabaret were slow. He said response from out-of-town skiers to the bed and breakfast special has been very good.
