Andrew's coming home

Doctors at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. are so pleased with little Andrew Wigglesworth's progress since his recent amputation, that they are allowing him to come back home, said family spokesman Jane Walker.

She said the Wigglesworths will be arriving at Vancouver International Airport this Sunday at 1:30 p.m., with a large welcoming party planned for them.

"We are inviting people to be present at their arrival at the airport this Sunday to show them, physically, the love and support we have for them," said Walker.

Among the groups agreed to be in attendance are the Junior Forest Wardens and the local Pipe Band.

"Andrew's progress has been tremendous," said Walker.

"He was up and about with the aid of a walker over the weekend and they hope to fit him with a prosthesis in about three months."

Local residents have shown their support for Andrew, devotedly, with a balance of over $36,000 in the trust fund at the Bank of Montreal in Squamish.

B.C. Rail employees recently dug into their pockets and gathered $533 for Andrew. St. Joseph's Church of Squamish held a bingo night last week to raise funds for the cause, and Highlife Fitness held a successful open-house last Sunday with proceeds going towards the fund.

"Everyday, money is coming in," said Walker.

Still more events are planned such as the fund-raiser at Reflections Cabaret this Thursday. All staff salaries and bar and door proceeds will be donated, so come out and show your support.

Six injured in three-car crash

Six people suffered injuries as a result of a three-vehicle accident on Highway 99 near Lions Bay Mar. 8.

Shauna Hanvey, 22, was listed in serious condition at Lions Gate Hospital. Three others were treated and discharged while the remaining two remained at hospital.

Squamish RCMP are still investigating the accident which may have occurred in connection with a group of cyclists on the highway at the time.

Patterson wins bid for parkland designation

"There's no way we're going to let those developers run over us again."

Them's fighting words for Alderman Terrill Patterson, who has won the battle to have a developer return five percent of its subdivision site to the municipality as parkland.

Only council has decided, in backing Patterson's request, to accept money in lieu of land as payment of the parkland designation.

That figure could amount to nearly $4,000, depending on the final selling price of the property, which consists of some 1.95 acres at the entrance to town.

Speaking for his motion to go after the five percent parkland designation from the developer, Patterson said, "if we're going to continue to kick the little person for what we can, the the big developers are going to have to pay too."

The matter was brought to council's attention at the Feb. 17 meeting after receiving a request from North American Shopping Centre Company Ltd. (NASCCO) for permission for a three-lot subdivision at the corner of Cleveland Ave. and Highway 99 where a commercial centre has been proposed.

Patterson voted against council's motion to grant approval for the subdivision, saying under the Municipal Act the municipality was entitled to five percent of the site as parkland.

According to a report from Clerk Bill Bloxham, council may ask for payment rather than land of up to five percent on the subdivision where there are three lots or more being created. Bloxham further added that council need not take the land or the money should it so desire.

The property in question is being subdivided into three lots to allow clients in the new commercial centre to own their own land.

But Bloxham also pointed out to council that during the re-zoning stages of the site, he had arranged for the removal of about $7,000 worth of plants and shrubbery (1987 replacement costs) belonging to the municipality, from the site. Bloxham suggested that the shrubs and plants are actually the property of the present owner of the land, NASCCO.

Bloxham further advised council that should it seek land designated as park, then the municipality would have to bear the cost of maintaining it as so.

The motion to seek payment in lieu of land was opposed by Alderman Corinne Lonsdale, who said council should have requested the payment prior to approving the subdivision.

"It's unfair to them," Lonsdale said.

The motion to seek the payment for parkland designation was passed, with Lonsdale and Alderman Garth McCreedy voting against it.

Meanwhile, site preparation continues for the new commercial centre at the entrance to town, which is expected to feature two fast-food restaurants, one sit-down restaurant, a gas bar and a convenience store.

Govt grants funds for OCP review

The B.C. Government's Development Services Branch has approved a grant of $30,000 to allow Squamish to undertake a major review of the five-year-old Official Community Plan.

In anticipation of the commencement of the review, Council will meet Mar. 10 as a committee of the whole to put forward ideas to go into a "Basis for Proposals" to be submitted to a representative of the Development Services Branch who is scheduled to meet with council in mid-April.

The Official Community Plan, adopted by council in December, 1981, was undertaken at a cost of $24,500. It was designed to designate the zoning in the district, determining which areas would be implemented for industrial or commercial use, and which areas would remain residential or parkland.

At the upcoming preliminary meeting with the government representatives, council will be given the opportunity to identify some areas of the current OCP which require upgrading.

Among those areas in need of addressing are: residential development priorities, commercial property, protection of downtown core, greater allowance of neighborhood pubs, log storage in the Blind Channel, use of municipal property by the Red Bridge, use of land for museums, and parks.

The re-vamping of the OCP is expected to take place in seven phases, with phase one seeing the project put to tender for proposals and to select a consultant planner.

During the next two phases of the project, the existing plan will be reviewed as will pertinent data, maps, and policy documents.

The committee will review the growth of Squamish and attempt to identify its implications, opportunities and restraints.

Also during these two phases, public meetings will be held to allow residents to voice their concerns.

In the latter part of the project, the draft plan, after consultation with various planning committees, will go to council who will then hold public meetings and zoning hearings on the proposal.

The final version of the amended Official Community Plan must be adopted by council, as do appropriate zoning by-laws.

At the Mar. 3 meeting, council expressed concern that there be more council involvement in the OCP review process.

At least one member of council sees the project as a waste of time and money. "If it (OCP) isn't enforced any more than the present one is, then we're wasting our time," Alderman Terrill Patterson told council.

Mayor challenges defiant property owner

"I will challenge you. We will see each other in court."

Those words represented the bottom line solution for Squamish Mayor Egon Tobus, whose prior attempts to "amicably" reach a conclusion to a property dispute with a local resident have thus far proved futile.

Tobus continued to warn resident Lloyd Newman, who was present at the Mar. 3 meeting, that if he attempted to use his property in Brackendale to park large machinery, then he would be in violation of the zoning by-law and would be dealt with.

"I cannot allow you to do those things in a residential area," Tobus told Newman.

The conflict with Newman arose recently after the building inspector reported that Newman was continuing the construction of his building on a lot located near the junction of Government and Mamquam Roads, which was first started in 1965.

Although Newman does not have a permit to build, he has made application for a building permit. Council's dilemma, however, is whether or not to grant Newman the permit in light of the fact that he has stated publicly that he intends to operate a repair shop from the building which would be in violation of the zoning by-law.

In an effort to diffuse the situation, Tobus himself has met with Newman advising him of the potential for by-law infraction, and offering him suggestions of alternative land sites in the municipality suitable for his repair shop.

But Tobus said Newman refuses to cooperate and fully intends to carry out his plans for a repair shop.

"We ought to get together and work something out," Tobus said to Newman.

"By now you must have gotten the message. I'm telling you here and now, it's going to be problems."

Tobus has since sought legal advice and has been informed that the municipality is obligated to issue Newman the building permit.

Several members of council attempted to hash out a solution with Newman, but to no avail.

Alderman Terrill Patterson suggested Newman find a suitable site to lease to store his equipment.

"I don't think that's too much of a hardship," Patterson said.

Other members of council suggested Newman consider purchasing a lot in the Industrial Park for his repair shop. Newman discarded the idea, however, stating: "I was in the Industrial Park before. In 1958, they ran me out of there."

Alderman Corinne Lonsdale expressed concern over the other residents in the area of the proposed repair shop.

"Do you realize what opposition you are up against by people living in that area?" Lonsdale asked Newman.

But at least one member of the audience leapt to Newman's defence.

Wilf Dowad, a local developer and member of the Industrial Development Committee, told council that Newman was instrumental in the volunteer clearing of the site for the Industrial Park.

"This man (Newman) did a big favor for us and a lot of people who would be called 'fine people' in this town didn't give a nickel," Dowad said.

"If you're going to try to clean up this whole town according to by-laws, you're going to have nothing but a battle for the next couple of years," Dowad added.

Tobus defended his own actions, however, saying, "I look after the interests of this municipality. I have tried amicably and I ran against a brick wall. Sometimes a mayor's hands are forced to do things."

"I'd like to challenge you, Mr. Dowad," Tobus continued. "Would you like to see someone opening up an industrial park in one of your subdivisions, driving a bulldozer or cat through your subdivision?"

Alderman Chuck Harvey suggested council take Newman to court over the matter in an attempt to "stall" the situation until an agreement could be reached.

"I like Lloyd (Newman)," Harvey added. "I think he's a helluva guy and I don't see why we can't work it out."

Council decided to table the matter to the Industrial Development Committee in the hopes that the committee will meet with Newman and work out a resolution to the conflict.

In the meantime, Newman's builder has promised to cease construction on the Newman property until the matter is dealt with.

Finch Drive residents seek road upgrade

Several residents of Finch Drive in Squamish attended the Mar. 3 meeting of council to urge council to authorize the upgrading of the road allowance to "sub-division" standards.

According to the residents, the road is not positioned properly and requires gravel to eliminate a severe mud problem during heavy rains.

The residents are angry that they pay municipal taxes and yet do not receive amenities enjoyed by other areas of the municipality, including water and sewer, and therefore are at least entitled to the road upgrade.

"We feel most strongly that now is the time we should derive some return on our investments which up until now have been minimal," said the residents in a letter addressed to council. Accompanying the letter was a petition signed by at least eight area residents, who also stated their yearly property taxes paid to the municipality.

Specifically, the residents are requesting the municipality undertake the following improvements to the road: survey Finch Drive and locate it in its correct position; replace ditches and culverts along the road in correct locations, thus enabling water to drain off the road; reconstruct the road surface using "correct material"; continue Finch Drive west, to Highway 99, as suggested in the Official Community Plan, to reduce the costs of maintaining Loggers Lane in a driveable condition.

According to Clerk Bill Bloxham, a municipal crew has already placed gravel on Finch Drive in an effort to fill the potholes in the road.

But the residents who attended the meeting say they cannot recall seeing any evidence of recent graveling of the road, and that the condition of the road remains the same.

"I have a suggestion for council," said one resident, "drive that road on your way home tonight."

Alderman Terrill Patterson's motion that Finch Drive be relocated to its proper position and brought up to subdivision standards failed to gain passage by council.

Council instead passed a motion to table the matter and direct it to the Finance Committee for inclusion in the 1987 municipal budget.

SQUAMISH VALLEY ROD & GUN CLUB

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING & ELECTION OF OFFICERS

FOR INFORMATION CALL 898-3930

A new cooperative effort announced recently between the Ministries of Health and Education with regard to speech services in communities throughout B.C. could offer a glimmer of hope to the long-standing effort by local citizens to acquire the services of a speech therapist for pre-school children and adults in Squamish.

B.C. Health Minister Peter Dueck and Education Minister Tony Brummet announced early in February that their ministries would co-operate in the development of speech services rather than work in isolation.

At the time of the announcement, Brummet stated that the initial step would be to develop pilot projects in communities where current service is inadequate or uncoordinated.

The announcement was welcomed by representatives of local government who have been trying for several years to acquire the services of a speech therapist for Squamish, Whistler and Pemberton.

To further discuss the matter, a meeting was held recently in Squamish with representatives of the Speech and Hearing Branch of the Ministry of Health and local representatives of various government bodies, including Hospital Administrator John Dillabough, School Board Chairman Shirley Brown, and Squamish Aldermen Chuck Harvey and Corinne Lonsdale.

According to Harvey, who is council's representative on the Hospital Board, the meeting involved a review of the current speech therapy situation locally. As there is no speech therapist available to pre-school children in Squamish, Whistler or Pemberton, parents of pre-school children who require the services of a speech therapist must travel to Lion's Gate Hospital in North Vancouver to obtain such services.

Dillabough told the meeting that currently the Lions Gate Hospital speech therapist is tied up for two entire days each week just to see Squamish children.

Local parents have voiced concern over the cost and inconvenience of having to commute to Lions Gate Hospital to obtain the service. Others have cited the large number of low-income families who require the service but who cannot afford the lost work time and travelling costs of obtaining it.

Yet, the Ministry of Health has acknowledged that Howe Sound has sufficient population to warrant at least partial services of a speech therapist; however, given the geographical size of the area, the cost of establishing a therapist here would not be warranted.

Services to help people overcome speech and language disorders are provided in B.C. through community health units operated or funded by the Health Ministry and by school districts largely funded by the Education Ministry.

School district programs focus mainly on children in elementary schools, while Health Ministry services are provided for all ages, with a special emphasis on pre-schoolers, who can benefit most from early detection and therapy.

Under the B.C. Government's newly announced co-operative effort, one solution may be a pooling of staff and clinical resources to meet a community's specific needs.

At the Squamish meeting, representatives of the Ministry of Health suggested Howe Sound participate in a newly created program, whereby the government provides the community with a trained speech therapist who conducts a study on the potential benefits of the service in the community.

For the town's part, it must provide adequate clerical staff and office space to accommodate the therapist.

A second suggestion put forward at the meeting was to have Lions Gate Hospital send a speech therapist to Squamish two days per week to service the Howe Sound community.

Although no decision was made with regard to either proposal, a second meeting will be called to address the matter after the School Board has had time to discuss the matter.

Last year, local mother Debby Forsyth, whose own child received the services of the speech therapist at Lions Gate Hospital, led a campaign to acquire a speech therapist locally which included a meeting with the Health Minister.

Forsyth also compiled a list of both pre-school children and adults who required the services of a speech therapist, and found at least 34 children and four adults locally who needed the service.

Blame the owner not the dog

Local dog owners who are negligent in caring for their pets, which includes obtaining proper licensing and spaying and neutering, are to blame for Squamish's current dog problem, said Squamish Poundkeeper Wendy Beaudoin.

The responsibility does not lie with the municipality, or the dogs themselves, Beaudoin added.

Beaudoin said that out of an estimated 3000 dogs in Squamish, only about 500 of them are licensed, making it impossible for her to identify the owners of impounded dogs.

"Everybody has an excuse," Beaudoin said. "People won't license their dogs. This morning I had three different people come in looking for their dogs but none of them had licences." Revenue lost from unlicensed dogs also means a limited budget for the upkeep of the Pound, which currently houses only five runs, meaning it is filled to capacity with stray dogs most of the time.

"The municipality is upgrading the Pound all the time," Beaudoin said, "trying to ensure the safety and health of the dogs within the area."

"But how can I justify that I need a big facility when only 500 dogs are registered?" she added.

Beaudoin said because of the overcrowded conditions of the Pound, it is necessary for her to find homes for stray dogs almost immediately, or they are euthanized.

Dogs not claimed within 72 hours of being picked up are put up for adoption. Animals considered unsuitable for adoption, or dogs not adopted within a reasonable time period, are destroyed.

"Unfortunately, the statistics for unlicensed dogs claimed are quite low," Beaudoin said. "The adoption of dogs from the Pound is increasing slowly. But neither comes close to the number of dogs received in the facility."

In the month of January, for example, of the 51 dogs picked up by the Pound, 20 were claimed by their owners, 11 were adopted out, and 14 destroyed.

Beaudoin said that occasionally, as a last-ditch effort to adopt dogs out to prevent having to destroy them, she will take adoptable dogs to Vancouver facilities in the hopes of finding them homes. But she added that Vancouver is fussy about the type of dogs sent to them, and their facilities are often over-crowded as well.

Beaudoin said that in comparison with other municipalities in B.C., Squamish appears to have an overabundance of stray dogs. For example, Powell River, with a population of 15,000 people, deals with an average of 20 dogs per month; the Squamish Pound, however, handles some 40 dogs per month although the town's population is only 10,000.

She attributed this discrepancy to the fact that Squamish is on a "thru-route", saying that dog owners will deliberately drive up the highway to dump their animals.

Beaudoin also pointed to the lack of spaying and neutering of dogs as a contributing factor to the dog problem in Squamish. She said that for every litter of pups born in the town, some of the pups usually wind up at the Pound.

Beaudoin points to dog owners as having the final responsibility in the battle to keep the dog population down and the dog problem under control.

As owners, Beaudoin said, they have the responsibility to ensure their pets are confined to their own property.

"You, the owner, are liable for any damage your dog may cause, whether it be to a person, private property, or other animals, when he is at large."

"Secondly, if you profess to love your dog, don't let him loose to roam the neighborhood. Dogs are maimed or killed every day. They can be hurt in confrontations with other dogs, or become extremely ill after consuming garbage."

Finally, Beaudoin cautioned that any dog that is unlicensed and allowed to roam, or escape, may be picked up by the Animal Control Officer. Without any means of identification, the Pound cannot notify the owner and the dog is liable to be adopted or destroyed.

Wendy Beaudoin, Poundkeeper.

Time to shape up

Squamish's five-year-old Official Community Plan is screaming out for revision.

At this week's council meeting, arguments over zoning discrepancies throughout the municipality were the order of the day. There exists as many interpretations of the zoning by-law as there are council members, property owners, and municipal staff. Zoning infractions appear to be identified only when, and if, it suits council, and moreso not.

Prospective developers and property owners do not know whether they are coming or going in terms of complying with the OCP.

The net result of the confusion surrounding the out-dated and ill-regarded OCP has been a blatant disregard for the document, which took a year and a half and nearly $25,000 to hammer out five years ago.

It has become a nuisance rather than a guiding force.

Shortly, council will commence the massive undertaking of re-vamping and hopefully revitalizing the OCP to the tune of $30,000.

Let the newly revised document not fall by the wayside like the antiquated 1981 OCP. Let it reflect the changing community, the progress, and the potential currently in vogue today. Times are a-changin' and nothing, not even a community plan, can be etched in stone.

But at the same time, let the new OCP set down some standards and guidelines to foster planned, sensible growth in this community. And let it have the dignity and respect it deserves, not to be flung aside in exasperation by council members.

What do you think of the way Ronald Reagan has handled the Iran-Contra Affair?

Jodi Braun:
"I think he was lied to by his administration. But he should be held responsible, after all, he is the president."

Murray Thrower:
"I think he had more involvement than he acknowledges. But I think he did what he had to do. If he hadn't sold arms to Iran, someone else would have."

Randy Fletcher:
"I think Reagan did a good job. He came across clean in this speech last week and I think people will get behind him and support him again."

Michelle Lacavera:
"I think he made the wrong decision. I don't think he is being honest with the American people."

Setting it straight

Dear Editor:

I hope your article of March 3 headlined "Local school reprimanded for false alarm" is not an example of the writing style of the Squamish Times reporter.

A check of facts would have shown that Squamish Elementary had indeed notified the proper authorities regarding the practice drill; and that a communication slip-up beyond our control had caused the fire department to respond in spite of our warning. Another slip-up caused this to be misrepresented at the council meeting, where you were informed.

I agree that a community newspaper has an important role to serve in the accurate reporting of facts and in fair criticism when it is honestly deserved. To that end, it is surely the duty of a responsible reporter to hear both sides of a story, if only to minimize slanting of the facts. No one in this school was contacted before the article appeared. We had no chance to tell our side.

Effective education depends on the trust of the public; this trust is easily damaged by inflammatory headlines, sloppy reporting and misrepresentation of school affairs in a community newspaper. This serves no purpose to either children, community, or the paper itself.

Yours truly,
Mr. Van der Ree,
Principal

More than just a skate rental operation

Dear Editor:

Re: Council Ponders Skate Rental Agreement "March 3"

If Alderwoman Lonsdale feels that Mr. Enkel has an unfair advantage over other sporting goods operations in our community, she should come down to the Civic Centre some night during public skating or Minor Hockey.

Many times we've seen Mr. and Mrs. Enkel helping children lace up skates because the parents were elsewhere. It's not unusual for a boy playing minor hockey to have Mr. Enkel fix a problem with equipment or lend forgotten skates or sticks at no charge. A broken stick in the middle of a game is quickly replaced. Is the municipality prepared to offer all the extra little services that the Enkels provide free of charge to all patrons of the Civic Centre? If council was to consult the regular users of the ice arena they would find great opposition to any takeover of the skate shop booth.

Fund raising a success

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank all the volunteers and citizens of Squamish who helped to make this year's Kinsmen Mother's March door-to-door campaign a success.

To date the total donations exceed $4,300, with some still coming in by mail.

Just to get the records straight, an article in the Times Today dated Feb. 24, indicated that last year's total was $500. In fact, last year's donations exceeded $3,300.

Yours truly,
Rob Booth
Mother's March Chairman

If I had known that being retired was so much fun I would have tried it long ago! I always knew that I would have plenty to do because I still keep my hand in at this and other writing; I still belong to several organizations and take an active part in them, and I have all sorts of hobbies and other interests. Between building a tablecloth for my granddaughter, working on a sweater for Beth, and other assorted needlework projects, as well as keeping busy with plans for the garden and some trips this spring and summer, I won't seem to have any spare time.

Another joy of retirement was felt last week when I got up and looked at the snow coming down with flakes as big as rabbit skins and went right back to bed. That was one Monday I didn't have to go to work and see my cats, who used to have more sense than I did, curled up on the bed or in the big chair. If it pours I do not stir out except to get the newspaper. But otherwise, no way.

I must say that I was pleased and honored, embarrassed and delighted, and humbled at the dinner given in my honor. There were things said which I am sure I didn't deserve, there were memories which I had forgotten, and there were some things which I shall never forget. Such as the look on Peter Gordon's face when I made that remark on our way back from Pemberton many years ago. Or the sly mention by Slim Fougberg of his famous "hose rip" wine and how it got its name.

But there were some stories which were not told. Like the time Don Ross and the adult education director Bob Ellison and I were coming home from Pemberton and Don got a little pig to bring down for his farm. They put the pig in a sack in the trunk of Don's car and we headed home. The poor little pig, shut up in the darkness of the trunk, bewailed his fate and every time we hit a bump in the road or came over a crossing, he squealed.

By the time we reached Brackendale we were weak with laughter, completely shaken up by the squeals emanating from the rear of the vehicle. I went home from Don's and learned later that when they took the piglet out of the trunk they found he had escaped from his sack, and in his distress, had created a terrible mess in the trunk of the car.

There were many other stories which could have been told and some of us recalled a number of them since then.

I was delighted to have my family there. I knew that my grandson Terry and his wife Gale were coming, along with my daughter Beth and my other grandson Greg, who works for the railway, happened to be here on a job, but I did not expect my sister, Marge, and brother, Bob, with her husband Cliff and his wife Barbara. And my niece, Janice, came from Comox for the occasion. Also here were my only local relatives, Norman and Lynette Halvorson, so it was a family as well as a friends occasion.

'by the time the speeches were over my daughter whispered that she said she thought she should get up and say, "Now that you've all said these wonderful things about my mother, maybe I should tell you what she's really like!" I was prepared to hear comments about my housekeeping because she is a super housekeeper and I've always admitted I find other things much more interesting and rewarding.

It reminded me of my remark after Carol wrote the article in early January about me with comments from local people as well as others. She flippily told me that now that I was retired she could write what she wanted without fear of being told it shouldn't be printed.

But I told her if I had known I was that wonderful I would have asked the boss for three times the salary I received. The accountant heard the comment and quickly said, "But it isn't retroactive!"

Thanks Carol, my family, and everyone else for making the beginning of my retirement a real fun thing. I know I shall enjoy it more as time goes on.

And special thanks to the three girls who made the dinner and evening such a success. Thanks Brenda, Dolores and Jackie.

Do kingfishers stay here all winter or do I just have one who has strayed north earlier than expected? I am sure I saw one last week perched on the snag which overlooks the Blind Channel. He was in his usual spot, out on a limb, where he perches during the summer looking for fish in the water below.

The channel is alive with activity these days. There are more ducks than I can name and several varieties from the black and white "hell divers" as we used to call them, to several other varieties.

I noticed a flock of thrushes the other day. They are the birds with the pinkish breasts that Dad used to call swamp robins. They have been busy on the bushes and the trees, fluttering around on the ground as well. Of course the chickadees and the sparrows are here all the time but I have not noticed as many birds around the feeder as there were last year. Maybe it is because it isn't as cold as usual, or that there has been no snow to speak of.

It will soon be time for the birds to come back from the south and while I have heard about people seeing robins I haven't seen any yet. I'm sure any self-respecting robin would be cowering in the brush or under shelter in this wet, soggy weather.

Noticed that fat buds on the japonica are just about ready to come into blossom. Must go out (if it ever stops raining) and cut a few branches to bring indoors for forcing. Along with forsythia, they are one of the easiest flowers to force to bloom.

The small Dutch iris in the back bulb bed are in bloom along with the tiny specie daffodils, each blossom no bigger than a thumbnail but perfect in every detail and snowdrops and crocus are just about over and there are buds on the early flowering tulips. The primroses in the border look rather sodden in the rain but present bright faces to the weather. Soon the bulbs will all be up, the spring shrubs will be blooming and we will rejoice in seeing the end of another winter.

Council, B.C. Rail hold meeting

Members of council met with representatives of B.C.

Rail Feb. 19 in an effort to solicit financial assistance from the company for various projects in the municipality.

As a result of the meeting, B.C. Rail offered council its willingness to address the concerns of the municipality on a project-by-project basis.

Representing B.C. Rail at the meeting were M.C. Norris, president, G.L. Ritchie, vice-president of administration and secretary, A. Sturgeon, senior vice-president of sales and marketing, G. Kelly, chief mechanical officer, and W. Young, general manager, real estate development.

In addressing the meeting, Mayor Egon Tobus, while acknowledging the long-standing relationship between the municipality and B.C. Rail, pointed to the "inordinate burden" put on the municipality due to costs of such services as flood protection, railway crossing maintenance, and other general community services, services which B.C. Rail also benefits from.

"The B.C.R. benefits from the Squamish flood protection program for its rail operating facilities, as well as for its extensive real estate holdings located in Squamish, without contributing towards Squamish's flood protection program," Tobus said.

With regard to railway crossing maintenance, Tobus said in the last five years the municipality has paid out $55,441 as its share of such maintenance.

Further, Tobus said, Squamish has been solely responsible for the cost of the dyke maintenance, for internal drainage capital cost in support of the dykes, as well as internal drainage operating costs. He said Squamish's share of the capital costs for dykes alone total some $1,076,000, and in excess of $1 million has been spent on internal drainage in support of the dyke systems.

"Because of Squamish's limited tax base, those financial requirements affect our ability to provide other badly needed services," Tobus told the B.C. Rail representatives.

During the course of the meeting, several areas of concern were identified, including the need for ongoing dredging of the Mamquam River, the proposed restoration of the Stan Clarke Park locomotive, the need for upgrading of the railway station, noise of trains through residential areas, and B.C. Rail leases of property in the municipality.

One specific topic of discussion surrounded B.C. Rail's exemption from municipal taxation. Although this exemption is set out by Statute, and therefore is not under municipal jurisdiction, council expressed concern over the cost of maintaining such services as the garbage dump, which also benefits B.C. Rail. Council pointed out that about one-third of the refuse being dumped at the landfill is from B.C. Rail.

Council also addressed the possibility of the opening of the emergency road to the south of the railway yards and the subsequent closing of the Buckley Crossing.

Finally, the representatives of B.C. Rail reported that they had been approached by the West Coast Railway Museum Association for a possible location for a railway museum. Council was advised that B.C. Rail will work with the Association in an effort to determine a suitable location.

Local motel joins automation era

A local motel has come one step closer to the 21st century with the installation of a 24-hour room key dispenser, the first Canadian establishment to take the plunge into the world of automation.

Although in use in U.S. hotels and motels since July, 1986, the August Jack Motor Inn in Squamish has become Canada's testing ground for the innovative device.

Developed by ERS Technologies of Richmond, the automated front desk clerk is modelled after the automated bank teller. It is simple to use: the customer simply walks up to the machine, inserts his credit card which is verified, answers a few questions which the machine asks via a display terminal, and-if all checks out-is presented with a room key. The customer is then free to retire for the evening.

The whole process takes about 30 seconds, according to the company's marketing manager, Brett Conkin.

"It's a boon to skiers," Conkin said, adding that Squamish was determined an ideal candidate to test the product by the influx of skiers enroute to Whistler.

"You can rent a room 24 hours a day and you don't have to wake the manager up."

Conkin said the device is virtually fool-proof since the key will not be dispensed if the customer's credit card does not check out. Once the key is dispensed, a printer located in the motel office is activated, providing the motel manager with such pertinent information as room number and type, as well as the customer's address and phone number.

"Customers have found it convenient," Conkin said, pointing to a similar response from "the managerial point of view."

"It has increased revenues for motels," Conkin continued, adding that the device enables motels to capture "business that previously was going down the street."

He added: "It's a labor-saving device. You don't have to hire night staff."

After a night's repose, the customer still has to process his transaction with the motel manager, who presents him with a bill for the night's accommodation.

Jim Kilburn, owner of the August Jack, confirmed the device's convenience.

"It's been very good," Kilburn said.

He said he had the device installed after purchasing it at a trade show, and has thus far experienced no problems with it.

Kilburn said he's had many customers use the key dispenser so far.

"We go to bed at the same time," he added, "but now we don't lose any customers."

The key dispenser, which sells for $99.95, takes about two hours to install by a company representative. Conkin said the device has so far not experienced any mechanical problems, although it went through a number of prototype stages before it became a marketable product.

Conkin said the device was first tested in the U.S. market which he said is considerably larger than in Canada. So far, about 30 motels have subscribed to the new technology.

With the success of the motel key dispenser, ERS Technologies is pursuing other potential areas of automation, including a "quick key" for service stations to allow customers to pick up their cars after hours following repairs.

"We expect to sell 125 to 150 units in Canada this year," Conkin said, "and we've had substantial international interest."

"It's a story of a local company doing good."

This automated "Night Clerk" newly installed at the August Jack Motor Inn in Squamish allows travellers 24-hour service and lets motel owners sleep while continuing to operate the business.

Twenty-six students from Ecole des Lacs in Masham, Que. (above) pose for a picture prior to returning home after spending seven eventful days as guests of Brackendale Secondary students who will be travelling to Quebec in May.

Brackendale Secondary hosts Quebecois

Twenty-six students from Quebec departed recently after spending one week in Squamish as guests of Brackendale Secondary students.

The French-Canadian students, from Ecole des Lacs in Masham, Quebec, were part of an exchange program sponsored by Open House Canada, through the Secretary of State in Ottawa. When they arrived, they were greeted by their billets and welcomed into local homes as guests for the next seven days.

Brackendale Vice-Principal and Co-organizer Mike Weeks said Ecole des Lacs and Brackendale Secondary have exchanged Grade 10 students for the last three years and Masham students will get a chance to reciprocate this year when Brackendale students visit Quebec in May.

"The purpose of the program is for the students to exchange ideas and views, and witness the economic development of another community," Weeks explained.

"Both towns are similar in size and both are close to major cities. Forestry is also a large part of life in Masham," he said.

Quebec organizer Christian Blais said tourism is also very big in Masham, but mostly during the summer season. Masham is located about 25 miles north of Hull, Quebec, and is probably best known for the Maple syrup produced there.

Quebec students spent the week sightseeing locally, climbing the Chief, as well as touring Woodfibre, Weldwood and Blackcomb. They spent a day in Vancouver visiting Gastown, Chinatown, Stanley Park and the Aquarium, and touring the campus at U.B.C.

"It is beautiful over here. People are so friendly," said Chantal Knight, a Grade 11 student from Ecole des Lacs.

"I didn't think we would blend in like we did. We made friends right away," she added.

In May, Brackendale Secondary students will leave on a three-week camping trip to Quebec, by bus.

The students are preparing for their trip by spending Wednesday evenings in the classroom in order to complete their curriculum. The trip is open to all Grade 10 students but to be eligible, a high grade point average is necessary.

"The Grand Duchess" crowned with success

by Douglas C.D. Sifton

"The Grand Duchess of Gerolstein" is full of frivolity and musical satire, enthusiastically staged at the North Vancouver Centennial Theatre by the North Vancouver Light Opera Society.

This operetta represents a style which was brought to its comic heights by Gilbert and Sullivan in England over a century ago although Offenbach had numerous similar successes in Paris a decade earlier.

The entire plot is a spoof of pretension and pomposity in government and the military. The Prime Minister declares war on Gerolstein's neighbour to force the Duchess to attend to affairs of state rather than just "affairs". The prospects of success are poor given an undisciplined regiment led by the incompetent General Boom.

However, the General is removed by the Duchess, whose undisguised interest in Private Fritz prompts her to promote him through successive ranks in a single day. The promotion enables Fritz and Wanda, his sweetheart, to realize their plans to be married to the chagrin of the Duchess who has other plans.

Wanda and the Duchess, delightfully sung by Suzanne de Grandpre and Vivian Hughes respectively, are cast well in their contrasting roles. Their competition for the affection of the ingenious Private - cum General Fritz provides the romantic focus of the oper-

Local students help child overseas

Students of Valleycliffe Elementary school have undertaken a unique and very special project this year.

Last October, through Foster Parents Plan of Canada, teacher Lyn Wisnia and her grade one students adopted a six-year-old girl in Indonesia, name Kasmawaty. The children have built a relationship with the little girl through correspondence, said Wisnia, and they have tried to help her and her family.

"The children have held bake sales and done odd jobs at home to raise money for their new friend, her family and her community," she said.

But now the students are trying to raise more money for their new Indonesian friend. The class recently completed a special sewing project where the children embroidered letters of the alphabet on square pieces of fabric which were then put together to form an attractive quilt.

The quilt is being raffled in the community with proceeds to be sent to Kasmawaty. So far, the class has raised over $100 in ticket sales.

Wisnia said the objective of the Foster Parent plan is not to create dependency, but to help the fostered family become independent and self-supporting, through programs of medical and dental care, vocational training, and counselling by social workers.

She said all programs are adapted to the needs of the people, and tend to be concentrated in rural areas where the whole community can benefit through the provision of wells, schools and more.

Education is stressed through Foster Parents Plan, and all school-age members of foster families are encouraged to attend schools. Foster Parents are advised annually of the family's progress, and a regular exchange of letters builds a warm and meaningful relationship.

Wisnia and the grade one class of Valleycliffe would especially like to thank Vi McPhee of Bon Marche Fabrics for donating the material for the quilt and Gina Luke for her hours of assistance with the embroidering.

Further information on adopting a child through Foster Parents Plan can be obtained by writing to 153 St. Clair Avenue West, Toronto, Ontario M4V 1P8.

Grade one students of Valleycliffe Elementary and teacher Lyn Wisnia pose for a picture in front of the quilt they made which will be raffled off this Thursday, proceeds from which will go to the class' Indonesian foster child.

School blameless in fire drill slip-up

Squamish Elementary School did give prior notice to the Fire Department of an intended school fire drill, which resulted in the dispatch of two pumpers and 18 firefighters to the school, according to Principal Mike Van der Ree.

Van der Ree said the school phoned the Fire Department and notified the RCMP officer who took the call that the school was about to hold a fire drill. Van der Ree said the officer told him he would notify the Fire Department but never did.

He added that he was not aware of any letter from the Fire Department addressing the matter.

At the Feb. 17 meeting, council had directed the Fire Department to send a letter to the School Board expressing concern over the failure of the school in notifying the Fire department of a school fire drill.

Site preparation underway for new commercial site

Site preparation for the proposed commercial development at the entrance to town is expected to continue for another three weeks, according to Rick Boulier, acting works superintendent.

Boulier said the firm contracted to fill the lot, Graehold Construction Ltd., has experienced some difficulty in finding enough suitable fill, which is currently coming from the Weldwood log sorting ground.

In the meantime, motorists are experiencing some traffic diversions on Cleveland Ave. just west of the Highway 99 intersection.

The site is currently under development by NASCCO (North American Shopping Centre Company Ltd). Included in the plans for the commercial centre are two fast-food restaurants, one sit-down restaurant, a gas bar and a convenience store.

Squamish council gave the green light for the developer to go ahead with the project last August, after a representative of NASCCO presented council with an artist's concept of the centre.

Gordon Walker, representing the developer, told council at the time that some 100 to 120 jobs would be generated by the new centre.

Council has subsequently authorized the re-zoning of the site to make way for the centre, despite opposition from the Howe Sound School Board over the close proximity of the development to Squamish Elementary School.

The development also came under fire recently by Alderman Terrill Patterson, who objected to the developer's request to put in a subdivision without making allowances for parkland, which is required under the Municipal Act.

Tourist info centre proposed

A Tourist Information Centre to service Sea to Sky Country is being proposed by the Sea to Sky Country Tourism Association.

The Centre would provide visitors with information on the services and attractions in the area.

In a proposal submitted to the Tourism Committee of council, Doug Banner, Association president, cited the need for such a centre due to the dramatic increase in summer traffic bound for Whistler on Highway 99.

"With this increase in traffic, it has become increasingly more obvious that the majority of travellers pass through much of Sea to Sky Country, completely unaware of attractions that would be of interest to them," Banner said in his report.

The proposal calls for the construction of a centre at a location where motorists will be advised of the attractions offered by the area before passing such points of interest by.

Two sites have been identified as possible locations of the centre: Horseshoe Bay and Britannia Beach. The proposal calls for the employment of a student under the student employment program to man the facility. The centre would be in operation from April through September.

Cost of the centre would be provided by a cost-sharing program with local communities, with Squamish and Whistler contributing $1,000 each, Pemberton $500, and the Regional District $500. Some revenue would be gained through the rental of space on a brochure rack.

The Tourism Committee is currently studying the proposal.

Contract awarded for new Mamquam Bridge

A $939,600 contract has been awarded to Netupsky Engineering of Vancouver to build the Mamquam River Bridge and approaches at Centennial Parkway and Government Road in Squamish.

B.C. Transportation and Highways Minister Cliff Michael and MLA John Reynolds (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) recently announced the project, which is located over the Mamquam River about 2.6 km north of the Highway 99 and Cleveland Ave. intersection.

Work on the new bridge has already started and it is expected that up to 18 people will be employed at peak construction.

Work will include the construction of a three-span steel stringer bridge 81 metres long and 13 metres wide with two sidewalks. The bridge will be supported on two abutments and two piers, all on steel pipe piles. The job also includes the construction of about 650 metres of approach roads, demolition and removal of the existing bridge, and the installation of roadway lighting.

The completion date is Sept. 30, 1987.

Minor Hockey puts on a show

For the coaches and executive of any minor hockey organization there is only one thing more difficult than teaching youngsters the basics of the game.

That, of course, is teaching those same players to have fun because when you get right down to it "having fun" is the real basic of Canada's national sport. Ultimately an athlete's enjoyment for a particular sport is related directly to that athlete's ability to master certain skills and the game of hockey, more than almost any other, demands that those skills be developed to a certain extent before ever being able to get into the stage of shooting or passing.

So it was, for the 1986-87 minor hockey season, that the Howe Sound Minor Hockey Association took on the momentous task of returning to the basics - having fun and learning in the process. That translates into ice time and plenty of opportunity to compete.

If you happened to find yourself at the Civic Centre at all on the weekend you would have witnessed, not only some fantastic hockey, but put simply, kids giving their all relishing every minute of it.

In a year that saw the number of enrolled players down significantly all across the nation this still means one thing, success. The annual season wrap-up jamboree lived up to that billing tenfold by providing entertaining hockey for players and fans alike.

It was also a tournament of firsts. It was not only the first time that the league champions were the same as the jamboree winners but it was also the first time a tie breaking system was used.

Such was the case in the novice division in which the three competing teams, Stedmans, Brown's Video, and Carney's, each won a game in the round-robin portion of play. In game one Brown's eked by Stedmans 3-2 but in the next match the latter squad trimmed Carney's 5-4. To lighten matters further Carney's turned around and knocked off Brown's 4-2.

To decide the two finalists goal differential had to be taken into consideration resulting in Carney's and Stedmans facing off.

In that game Carney's Jamie Splinter put in a strong performance in goal for his side but with the vast majority of the game played in front of his net he could do nothing to prevent a 6-1 Stedmans victory.

Joey Enkel led the way for the winning side as he notched a four point performance by picking up three goals and one assist. Billy Featherstone, Gurjit Dhaliwal and Chris Kormandy also sent in contributions while Mark Lynd, seconds after being stopped on a breakaway, foiled Stephen Fryer's shutout bid with an effort that came late in the third period.

But by far the most entertaining game of the afternoon was the atom finale pitting Diamond Head Motors against K&M Parts. A classic end-to-end battle the teams put 110% into every shift and the result was golden opportunities to score at one side of the arena quickly followed by more such opportunities at the other.

To make it even more dramatic K&M spotted Diamond Head a pair of first period goals, by Jeff Skands and Jason James, before Mark Fedorak beat the Motor's Jason Miller to put Parts on the board.

Midway through the second, however, Jamie Aseltine dippy-doodled past a defender and cut for the net to draw the clubs even. Barely one minute later Kevin Clark continued the momentum by notching the eventual winners in a 3-2 decision.

David Genio collected the win between the K&M pipes as the latter squad went undefeated for the weekend, beating Diamond Head 6-2 and tying the Bears 3-3 in round-robin action. Motors reached the final by knocking off the Bears 6-4.

The peewee championship bout was another contest in which either side could have won as John Hunter's trucking and Shell traded the lead before Brian Robertson out-deked everyone at 7:40 of the second to give Shell a 3-2 lead enroute to a 4-2 victory. Brett Morley notched the insurance marker while David Gaudin and Billy Kerns added some scoring touch.

Jason David provided both Hunters marks, opening the scoring at 13:17 of the first on a set up from Warren Scott.

To get to the final Shell had to beat Mills 7-4 and Hunters 5-4 in round-robin play while the latter knocked off Mills 5-2.

But then no jamboree would be finished without honouring some gifted players and individuals who have contributed to the game. As far as contribution goes the past president and co-ordinator for minor hockey, Don Patrick, has put more than his two bits in and was thus honoured with the John Hunter Memorial Trophy.

The Brice Delikatny Memorial went to Blair Larrat as the most sportsmanlike player in the midget division. Todd Moores, meanwhile, was awarded with the Terry Salmon Memorial for being the most improved bantam.

All in all the jamboree proved two things: that despite the decline in numbers the 1986-87 season was indeed a success and that the reason why it was just that was because the parents allowed kids to get back to plain and simple fun hockey.

Juniors enjoy busy season

The junior curlers in Squamish have just completed a very successful season.

Approximately 35 curlers, ranging in age from 10 to age 18 years of age participated in the Wednesday After-School League. The Fall League was won by the Chris Bowcock rink with Jeff Vanzella, Aaron Blom and Marne Stinson.

In second place was Dan Tichauer, John Riecker, Rob Bartholet and Heather Sergeant. Wendy Breckenridge, Andrew Riecker, Danielle Saindon and Rob Herman finished in third place while Rob Wittow, Shannon Myle, Noel Clegg and Kurt Patrick took the fourth spot. Early in December fourteen of the junior curlers took part in Langley's Junior Bonspiel and in late January Langley curlers came to the Howe Sound Junior Invitational Bonspiel.

At the awards banquet in mid-February trophies were presented to the top four teams of the '87 Spring League. In first place was the Vince Hay rink with Rebecca Otto, Eric Postlewaite and Danielle Saindon. The second place team was Rob Wittow, John Riecker, Omar Sykes and Peter Webb.

Lance Moore, Greg Warkentin, Noel Clegg and Aaron

Blom finished in third position while Nathan Webb, Tom Kurz, Chris Cryer and Donald Dorosh were in fourth spot. Angela Cryer was declared the most sportsmanlike girl and Peter Webb the most sportsmanlike boy.

Wendy Breckenridge won the award for the girl with the best slide and Dan Tichauer the boy with the best slide.

Council backs rockclimbing park

Squamish council has granted approval-in-principle to a proposal by the Federation of Mountain Clubs of B.C. to create Canada's first rockclimbing park in the Little Smoke Bluffs, despite opposition from Alderman Terrill Patterson who said the park would be in contravention of the zoning under the Official Community Plan.

"That land is designated under the OCP for housing expansion," Patterson told council.

"It is not parkland. Whether you like it or not, it's in your by-law."

Council gave its support to the project after receiving a recommendation from the Parks and Recreation Commission endorsing the project.

Alderman Corinne Lonsdale, commission chairman, said the Federation had been advised by the Ministry of Lands, Parks and Housing to have council send a letter in support of the group's bid to purchase land for the park.

Speaking in support of the motion to grant support, Lonsdale said a recent weekend saw as many as 300 rockclimbers in the area.

"We have a natural attraction in this area," Lonsdale said.

The Federation has made an offer of the benchlands located beneath the climbing areas of the Little Smoke Bluffs, across the Mamquam Blind Channel from Squamish.

Lonsdale said that if the project is approved, the Federation would provide such amenities as parking areas and washroom facilities.

The Federation is also inquiring about the possibility of receiving planning assistance should the project be given the green light.

Eagles season on the line Thursday

For the Squamish Eagles feeling that they are man for man better than the North Shore Winter Club Flames in skill is little consequence at the moment.

What really matters is that the Vancouver Club has a two games to one advantage in the best out of five quarter final series and that their very season is open for question come Thursday night at 7:00 p.m. at the Civic Centre. And as far as manager Jim Raymond is concerned the outcome of that meeting lies within the Eagles' heads.

"If you don't come out with the right mental attitude," he said following Saturday's 4-3 loss to the NSWC in Squamish, "but still try as hard as you can physically you are still going to lose."

That was the difference (on Saturday). The North Shore Winter Club was better prepared mentally. I could tell before the game that their (the Eagles) minds weren't on hockey... (while) on Thursday (6-4 Eagles win on the North Shore) I knew even before the puck was dropped we would win.

"They were taking it (Saturday's game) too lackadaisical. The play was even but we had four or five breakaways and didn't score on one and that tells me we are tensing up. The guys just weren't clicking and all that is is the mental aspect. We have more scoring power (than the Flames) but we are tensing up, thinking defensively and our goal scorers aren't scoring."

But that does not mean the series is over by a long shot.

"I wouldn't count ourselves out," Raymond continued. "We have the talent to blow them out and our scorers are due (which means) I think we are due to blow them out...if we can score the first couple of goals on Thursday."

Raymond is also hoping for a large turnout of local fans as it "certainly helps when the crowd gets into the game." But either way the Flames have to beat the Eagles to win the series as much as the Eagles needs to win to stay alive.

In the least that means entertaining hockey.

Minor Ball prepares for busy season

Squamish Slow Pitch isn't the only ball group gearing up for this season.

The Howe Sound Minor Ball Association, which last year had 52 teams and 700 youngsters playing everything from T-ball to softball to 'Junior Babe Ruth' fast-ball is hard at work organizing teams and signing up players, umpires and coaches.

"We won't know how many teams or players will be with us this year until April," said organizer Karen Vanzella.

"But already we've had 40 kids signed up for T-Ball, almost enough for six teams right there." T-Ball is the first-year version for six-year-olds playing ball for the first time.

Minor baseball, like slow-pitch, begins the first week of May, and continues to the end of June. On the July 1st holiday weekend, all levels have a playoff.

"Following that," added Vanzella, "all-star teams go away to places like Prince George, Cranbrook, or Vancouver to play in provincial tournaments."

There is a late registration at the Civic Centre on Thursday, Mar. 12 for children and teens, who would still like to join up.

Cap College instrumental in gov't aid

Squamish has Capilano College to thank for being selected to receive assistance under the federal government-sponsored Community Futures, one of six programs comprising the Canadian Job Strategy.

Through the efforts of representatives at Cap College, who took a leadership role in representing the Howe Sound Corridor in its application for the program, Squamish will be provided with funds over the next two years to be used to boost the local economy.

Included in the area designated to receive assistance are Britannia Beach, Whistler, Pemberton, Pemberton Meadows, Mount Currie, Birken, and D'Arcy.

Under the program, a Community Futures Committee composed of local business, government, labor, and community representatives will be established.

The Committee may recommend one or more program options to help workers start businesses, learn new skills, or relocate to seek jobs. There is also a provision for the establishment of a Business Development Centre to provide advice and equity investment in new or existing firms.

According to Dr. Lorne Greenaway, M.P. (Cariboo-Chilcotin), Community Futures is a special federal effort to assist communities in their efforts to identify, develop and implement measures to expand employment opportunities. It is aimed at communities with long-standing high unemployment.

"The 'Community Futures' program is an innovative way of allowing local representatives to discuss and decide just what kind of assistance their particular area is in need of," Greenaway said.

"I am confident that the constituency will derive a great deal of benefit from the 'freedom to choose' initiative of government."

The selection of the Howe Sound Corridor as one of the areas in Canada designated to participate in the program by Employment and Immigration Canada, was achieved through the efforts of Cap College, Greenaway, and various community representatives.

The campaign to have Howe Sound's application accepted began last June when Mike Osborn, manager of the Local Economic and Renewal Development Project at Cap College met with a representative of the Community Futures Branch to discuss the concept of individual or joint designations.

In July, Osborn appealed to Greenaway for his support of Howe Sound's application. In a letter to Greenaway, Osborn pointed to Howe Sound's present economic state which made it a likely candidate for the program.

"The communities of the Howe Sound, and in particular, the Municipality of Squamish, have been hard hit by the economic downturn of recent years, and has resulted in many layoffs and high unemployment," Osborn wrote.

"While the potential for renewal for this area remains high, the establishment of a Community Futures Program would be of tremendous assistance in accomplishing this regrowth."

Osborn quickly followed up his letter to Greenaway with a direct appeal to Benoit Bouchart, Minister of Employment and Immigration, outlining the Howe Sound Corridor's suitability for Community Futures.

Said Osborn in his letter: "The Howe Sound Corridor includes the communities of Squamish, Britannia Beach, Whistler and Pemberton. With its beautiful coastline, dense west coast forests, majestic mountains and friendly people, this area has the basic resources required to become economically prosperous.

"...All that is needed is a helping hand with organizing and overall assistance," he added.

Osborn's letter to the minister was backed up by one from Greenaway, who wrote: "The economy of the area has suffered greatly in the past five years and is in need of our support."

In September, Janet Morris, administrator of Cap College, attended a conference in Penticton to support the Howe Sound application for the program.

In February, after deliberation by Employment and Immigration Canada, Squamish, along with the other Howe Sound communities, was chosen to take part in Community Futures. The announcement was made by Greenaway.

As a participant in the program, Squamish can look forward to a variety of federally assisted proposals for economic recovery.

One such proposal is "self-employment initiatives" which will help unemployed workers become self-employed by providing income support of up to $130 a week for 52 weeks over a period of time while a business is being established. People currently receiving unemployment insurance or welfare will be eligible, providing they have some equity investment of their own, such as loans from relatives or friends, or savings.

A second proposal is the "Business Development Centre" which will provide locally managed technical and advisory services to small business as well as loan investment assistance of up to $75,000 per firm from a $1.5 million investment fund.

Community Futures also provides for assistance to unemployed, employed and self-employed people in obtaining occupational training which will provide needed skills or increase earnings and employability.

Other areas in B.C. designated as Community Futures areas include Williams Lake, 100 Mile House, McLeese Lake, Likely, Horsefly, Canim Lake, Bridge Lake, 70 Mile House, Hagensborg, and Stuie.

Single parent group welcomes new members

A local support group is welcoming single parents to a meeting tonight to mix, have coffee and socialize.
"We're encouraging single people who have been married, whether they have children or not, to join us," said Director Mary Lou.
Mary Lou (this group withholds its members' last names) went on to say that the group, which was founded in September, 1985, plans activities for both adults and their children.
"We want to do things as a group. We don't talk about our personal problems, and we don't want to meet people in bars."
"It's a chance to socialize with others."
Anyone interested in attending the meeting or joining the support group may call Mary Lou at 898-5695.

"The Grand Duchess"

etta. Ken Holletts Fritz was well-acted but his voice was often overwhelmed by the orchestra.

Robin Gillespie as Prince Paul of Pfiffelhofen, portrayed foppish royalty, prone to tantrums, with a good sense of musical force while the devoted but overworked civic servant Kras played by Glen Greaves supplied humorous highlights with each appearance on stage. David Madison's voice and Tom De Lang's stage presence were added features of the production!

Musical comedy presents a challenge in staging for an amateur group but the whole effect achieved by Artistic Director Rob Santo was pleasing. Music Director John Morecroft conducted the orchestra of 14 members with all the vitality and colour that characterizes Jacques Offenbach's score. In a well-balanced performance, the music affords fine support for the on-stage cast.

The production adds up to hilarious musical comedy which provides a very enjoyable evening. It is worthy of the pride of the North Vancouver community and the support of the general public. Performances continue on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 12, 13 and 14 at 8 p.m. The Centennial Theatre is on Lonsdale Avenue just off Highway 1. Ticket inquiries 988-6166 or at V.T.C./C.B.O. 280-4444.
