SALE STARTS JULY 28-AUG 28

38036 Cleveland Ave., Squamish

The By-Law Committee of council has drafted a new by-law that, once adopted, will restrict smoking in public areas, including banks, government offices, stores and restaurants.

By-Law No. 969, "a by-law to regulate smoking", was drafted in accordance with the results of last year's general referendum held Nov. 15 in Squamish, where voters overwhelmingly approved the establishment of smoking regulations in the municipality.

In that referendum, 1,516 voters approved regulations banning smoking in designated places, 449 votes over those opposed to the restrictions.

The by-law was written to allow individual store and restaurant owners to determine designated smoking areas in their places of establishment, according to Alderman Chuck Harvey, member of the By-Law Committee.

"It does leave it (smoking areas) up to the store owner's discretion," Harvey told council at the July 21 meeting.

"We tried to write it (by-law) so we wouldn't get into too much of an enforcement program," he added.

Under the by-law, smoking is prohibited from the following areas: in an elevator, escalator, an inside stairway, or a washroom in any building generally open to and accessible by the public; in any taxicab while operating within the District of Squamish, except with the consent of all passengers and the driver; on any school bus, public bus or other form of public transportation; in or in proximity to any service line in any building generally open to and accessible to the general public; at any service counter in a bank or government office; in any public access areas of grocery stores, supermarkets and produce stores; in any reception area.

Owners of retail shops, personal services establishments, and restaurants are allowed to designate a portion of their premises as smoking areas, provided the smoking areas comply with the following regulations: (the smoking area) is designated, constructed or arranged to ensure that the toxic effect of smoke or the chemicals or gases resulting from smoking is minimized in adjacent non-smoking areas through the use of physical barriers, ventilation systems, or special arrangements; is fully identifiable by means of signs; shall not include any area in which smoking is prohibited by the Fire Commissioner or a Fire Warden or pursuant to any other by-law, statute or regulation.

Owners will be required to post regulation-sized signs in their shops and restaurants advising patrons of smoking restrictions in their establishments, and clearly designating smoking areas. The by-law also prohibits smoking in health care facilities, including hospitals, clinics, medical and dental offices, and public health units, except in designated smoking areas.

Smoking is also banned from any building, structure, place, or area being used as a place of public assembly, with the exception of pool halls, bowling alleys, dance halls, cocktail lounges, taverns, cabarets, private clubs, public houses and bars, provided the owner gives permission.

Smoking may be allowed in a public assembly area in designated smoking areas, with the exception of classrooms, concert halls, auditoriums, gymnasiums, swimming pools, indoor sporting areas, libraries, lecture halls, seating areas of theatres or motion picture houses, music halls, display areas in museums or art galleries, or parts of school buildings frequented by pupils.

Smoking is further banned in any place of employment or any municipal buildings, except in designated smoking areas. The by-law restrictions do not apply to private social functions.

According to the by-law, any person who violates any provision is subject to penalty under the Offence Act. The by-law states its purpose upfront, being "to further the care, protection, promotion, and preservation of the health of the inhabitants of the municipality."

Council gave first three readings to the by-law at the July 21 meeting. After adoption, the by-law is then forwarded to the Minister of Health for approval before becoming valid.

Residents blast highway closures

About 200 local residents blasted Department of Highways officials for poorly organized closures on Highway 99, at a meeting held July 27 in Lions Bay.

Residents in the Howe Sound corridor, including Squamish, protested the four-hour waits, eight-kilometre line-ups, inconvenience and loss in business revenue which they said were due to poor planning on the part of the ministry in its continued upgrading on Highway 99.

Although the ministry announced the highway closures, which began July 2, would be limited to one-and-a-half hours, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., with 20-minute random delays throughout the day, residents said longer delays were not uncommon.

Bill Smith, senior engineering assistant, met with boos from the audience when he attempted to tell the crowd that his records showed few of the closures have exceeded 20 minutes.

The crowd also jeered Smith's insistence that when the road is opened all waiting cars in the line-up are let through, and that motorists are never allowed to wait in hazardous rock areas.

Some residents cited personal losses in business revenue due to the closures, while others told of personal hardships and disrupted lives.

Some residents proposed the ministry consider having construction crews work at night, when there is less traffic, but were told that the government would have to renegotiate its contract with Ebc Construction in order to do so.

Meanwhile, highway closures continue at three points along the highway, with scheduled closures and random delays still in effect.

Golf club takeover

The executive of the Squamish Valley Golf and Country Club breathed a collective sign of relief July 28 after council quashed a proposal from three Vancouver promoters to take over the management of the golf course for the municipality.

Members of the executive hovered outside council chambers while council heard a brief presented by representatives of UGCC Holdings in an in-camera session July 28.

According to Alderman Corinne Lonsdale, the promoters, who also manage the University of B.C. golf course, proposed to council that they take over the management of the course, which is currently operated as a non-profit organization presided over by an elected board of directors.

Lonsdale said one of the promoters, Mr. Lecky, who presented the brief to council, suggested they would be able to turn the golf course into a revenue-producing venture.

Lonsdale declined to say how much revenue the promoters had suggested the course could produce, but did say part of the proposal would be to institute a 'pay as you play' format, whereby members would be required to pay a fee every time they played golf, in addition to the regular membership fee. Currently, members pay an initiation fee of $1,600 and a yearly fee of $390, which entitles them to play as often as they wish without paying additional fees.

Lonsdale said she was concerned that the golf course would no longer be accessible to the average citizen under the proposal. "We want it affordable," she said. She added the pro-motors intended to promote the cafeteria and lounge further, in an effort to increase revenues.

But Lonsdale said the promoters had nothing on which to base their proposal, since they had been denied their request for a financial statement of the golf club.

"They are guessing," she said.

According to Lonsdale, council voted not to accept the proposal, with two members of council voting against the motion. An earlier motion, introduced by Alderman Terrill Patterson, to accept the proposal, failed to gain a seconder.

"... It's an absolute insult..."

Lonsdale affirmed her opposition to the proposal.

"I knew that there was absolutely nothing they could say at that point that would make me change my mind," she said.

"It would be nice to have the revenue but we never told the Golf Club that we wanted revenue, or told them to pay taxes."

Lonsdale said as far as she was concerned the matter was over with.

"We won't be considering the concept right now. We just dropped the subject."

"They (executive) have nothing to fear."

But Lonsdale echoed the sentiments of members of the golf club's executive who waited outside the council chambers while the in-camera meeting was going on.

She said she was opposed to council discussing the matter in-camera, but her attempts to pass a motion to have the meeting opened to the public failed when she failed to receive a seconder to the motion.

Council meetings are generally held in-camera, that is, closed to the public, on matters dealing with personnel, litigation, or property transactions, as was this case, she said. But Lonsdale said she argued that council could have heard the brief in open session, without hearing the particulars of the proposal, that is, "the dollars and cents."

"I was really annoyed at council for listening to them (promoters)," Lonsdale said.

"I was worried, too. I kept thinking, 'why should I be privy to this information and nobody else?'"

She said Mayor Egon Tobus had called for the discussion to take place in-camera because he felt council was receiving "privileged information."

Lonsdale added that the Mayor was annoyed because word of the promoters' presentation to council, which was supposed to be held in confidence, had leaked out to members of the golf club's executive.

To members of the executive, however, their exclusion from any discussion over the management of the golf club was "an insult."

"We think it's an absolute insult to every member," said Club Treasurer Joe Gravkin who, along with Club President Hank Greenlees and Curling Club President Bruno Marini, paced nervously outside the council chambers for nearly an hour while the in-camera meeting was taking place.

"Something like that shouldn't be kept in secret."

The three executive members said they were shocked to learn that council was entertaining a proposal to have the management of the golf course taken over by someone else.

"There's a lot of proud members out there," Gravkin said. "Most of them can't believe it."

"We've put a tremendous amount of effort into making something out of nothing."

They expressed concern that under the new management, members would be required to pay playing fees in addition to the regular fees, thereby making the sport too costly for some local players.

"Our objective has always been to keep the cost down for the local residents," Gravkin said.

"Everyone can play." He called the golf course's current financial situation "healthy" and "solid."

The three members also pointed to the tourism 'spin-off' the course provides to the rest of the municipality, saying "all of our money goes back into the municipality, every dime of it."

They also expressed concern over the impending discussion of the course's 20-year lease with the municipality, which is scheduled for renegotiation in September. Gravkin said they had never received any indication from council that the $300 lease would not be renewed.

But what the members were most concerned about was the potential loss of control of the course by local members.

"Let's think positive," Greenlees told his fellow executive members, "that council has enough smarts (to realize) that the local residents can run their own course."

The Squamish Valley Golf and Country Club first opened the course for play in 1967, offering nine holes.

In 1970, nine more holes were added, and today the Club boasts some 600 members, including 81 charter members, and 436 regular members, and the rest corporate members.

The Club, which is classified as semi-private, is a registered non-profit organization, employing some 20 to 25 staff. Since its opening, it has expanded its facilities and upgraded the course by the addition of its own $400,000 automatic watering system, six sandtraps, and increased office space.

Dyking request rejected

The B.C. Ministry of Environment has rejected a request from the municipality for cost-sharing of dyking on the upper Cheakamus River and the Cheekye River, saying the bank erosion does not pose an imminent threat to existing development.

According to P.M. Brady, director of the Water Management Branch of the Ministry of Environment, in order for flood protection projects to meet the criteria for cost-sharing by the provincial government, there must be "an imminent threat" to existing development, and the benefits must justify the costs.

The Branch has conducted inspections of the eroded areas, and has concluded that the erosion does not warrant cost-sharing at the present time, according to Brady. He said erosion occurring on the Cheakamus River does not threaten any structures on the river side of the railway right-of-way, nor does it affect any of the houses on Midnight Way. Brady estimated the cost to prepare the bank and place rock riprap bank protection on the Cheakamus to be approximately $60,000.

"This does not meet the criteria for cost-sharing by the Province regarding the imminent threat to existing development and favorable benefit-cost ratio," Brady wrote in a letter directed to Works Superintendent John Payne.

Similarly, Brady said, erosion which has started along the left bank of the Cheekye River at Fernwood Road does not pose an imminent threat to existing development at the present time.

"Our funding for fiscal 1987/88 is presently fully committed," he said.

The number of passengers aboard the Royal Hudson Steam Train is lower this year compared to last year, according to Delores Lewis, manager of the Squamish and Howe Sound Chamber of Commerce.

Lewis attributed last year's record numbers of passengers taking the train and train-boat excursions to Squamish to Expo '86, which she said increased the number of tourists to the area.

Depending on the weather, there are about, on average, 600 to 700 passengers aboard each run of the Royal Hudson, with more passengers on the weekend runs. She added the train-boat excursion, with the M.V. Britannia, appears to be popular with tourists.

Beginning Aug. 4, the Royal Hudson will increase its run to six days a week from its present five-day schedule, until Labour Day. The train will make its final run of the season on Sunday, Sept. 27.

The train commenced the 1987 season on Sunday, May 17, and since then has regularly departed North Vancouver for the scenic trip along Howe Sound to Squamish.

Harbour Ferries offers a train-boat combination, with a choice of either boat up, train back or train up, boat back combinations.

Cost of the return train excursion is $20 for adults, $16 for students and seniors, and $12 for children ages 5 to 11. Children under five ride free.

Upon arriving in Squamish, passengers can use the two-hour stopover to dine or shop leisurely in town, or opt for one of the several tours being offered by local companies, including a trip to Shannon Falls, glacier flights, and the Britannia Mining Museum.

No move for Post Office

The downtown office of Canada Post Corporation, 3280 Cleveland Ave., will stay where it is for at least another year, Squamish Postmaster, Ken Warkentin, said July 30.

Moving the office had been considered, he said, because the current lease expires in September, and more space for lock boxes and letter sorting is needed.

But Warkentin said lease renewals are handled by a separate department (Public Works Canada) who make their decision independently once all the information is in.

"We'll be renewing for a year with a year's option at the present location," he said.

Warkentin speculated the general costs of a move were prohibitive "at this time."

There is a two-month waiting list for boxes in the downtown office, he said, due not to a shortage of boxes in the area, but to residents who prefer to pick up their mail downtown.

"Valleycliffe is underutilized, for example," he said.

"We can make do," Warkentin said. "We've lived with it for some time."

Job Trac provides forestry training

Two government-sponsored Job Trac programs are currently underway locally, involving juvenile spacing and pruning in conifer stands in the Mamquam River Drainage. The purpose of the projects, created cooperatively through the B.C. Ministry of Forest and Lands and the Ministry of Social Services and Housing, is to create forestry training and employment for local laborers, as well as to promote intensive forest management.

Each project employs 10 people on Income Assistance for 20 weeks during which, in addition to the listed duties, they will serve as back-up fire suppression crews.

At the end of the program, it is anticipated that the workers will be experienced in stand tending and forest protection, making them highly employable in that type of work.

The program is managed by the Ministry of Forests and Lands, and two project sponsors, CIP Incorporated, a logging company, and Lorax Reforestation, a forestry training school, are responsible for crew training, supervision and production.

The treated conifer stands will produce wood of higher value to the logging and wood manufacturing industries of the future.

Tourism minister vows support to infocentre

A Sea to Sky Tourism Association information booth in the parking lot of the B.C. Museum of Mining in Britannia Beach will not be moved until work to improve Highway 99 reaches the area, Minister of Tourism, Bill Reid, told a group of area chamber of commerce and business representatives at the booth's official opening, July 29.

"My ministry will make sure it stays here and only gets moved as far as it has to 'to get the highway through here,'" he said.

Controversy over the location of the booth began in early June when co-owner of the Ninety-Niner Restaurant, Patti Dickinson, said the booth made the restaurant difficult to see from the road, and created a dangerous traffic pattern in front of the restaurant. Dickinson also said the truckers, who used to stop regularly at the restaurant, had stopped coming in because they could not negotiate the building.

Building Inspector for the Squamish Lillooet Regional District, John Hiki, issued permit for the booth in June, but required that it be moved off the pavement in line with the restaurant within 30 days.

Doug Banner, president of the Sea to Sky Tourism Association, contacted District Highways Manager, Ron Winbow, and agreement was reached to leave the booth, which stands on Department of Highways right-of-way, where it is until "the highway comes through," Banner said.

Highways Planning Technician, Fred Said, confirmed that such an arrangement had been made, "that's what happened precisely."

He said Winbow had talked to Hiki, and because the booth does not at present affect highway work or interfere with highway traffic, the 30-day move requirement would be dropped.

Squamish resident, Rhonda Wittow, mans the Sea to Sky Tourism Association's infocentre in Britannia Beach. Wittow was hired with funds provided through the Ministry of Advanced Education and Job Training when all other funds had been exhausted, according to Sea to Sky President Doug Banner.

"We (Highways) agreed that if they want to leave it as it is, we have no objection," he said.

"(But) we do like him (Banner) to get along with the neighbors."

Highways has ordered signs, Said added, that will be posted along the roadside to inform motorists of the booth's location.

Bev Dickinson, a co-owner of the Ninety-Niner who has taken over temporary management of the restaurant, said her first thought on seeing the booth was "that will sure help business."

Dickinson, who grew up in the area but now lives in Calgary, said she had only been back for two weeks and was surprised to learn of the dispute over the booth.

She said the restaurant may get more business from tourists stopping at the booth, but that it's too early to tell.

"This restaurant's got a good location; it's a good business. If it (the booth) was 100 feet farther up maybe we would get more trucks, maybe we wouldn't."

Council's decision to address the proposed takeover of the local golf course by a Vancouver promoter behind closed doors has resulted in a flurry of secrecy, suspicion, and mistrust between elected officials and members of the public.

Granted, matters of property transaction may be better dealt with in-camera in order to hammer out the nitty-gritty dollars and cents, but a decision which could dramatically affect the dreamchild of countless local citizens should not be made in secret.

Members of the golf course have the right to be apprised of their current position as well as their future existence. Too many long volunteer hours and effort have been poured into the course to have its very infrastructure suddenly uprooted without debate, consultation, and public input.

The fact that the scheduled appearance in council of the Vancouver promoters was "leaked" to the public is testimony to the gravity of the matter of hand. What is mere sport to some, is a livelihood to others, and Squamish tourism and business potential depend on such attractions as a well-groomed, attractively-set, affordable golf course.

If the promoters indeed have a better solution to the management of the course, then let it be made public to allow for input into the matter. Shrouding the discussion in secrecy can only raise suspicion and lead to unfounded rumour, and create animosity between the people and their representatives of government.

Should the District of Squamish spend the estimated $20,000 necessary to continue fluoridating the water supply?

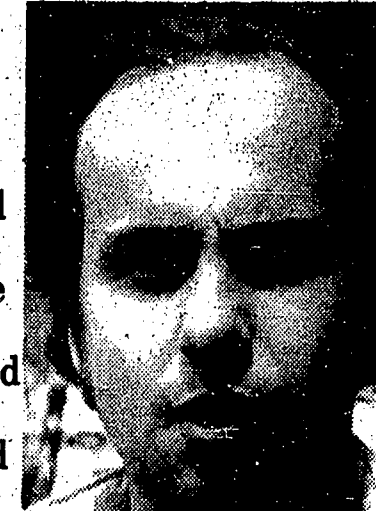

Fred Olson:
"I think it's a good idea. Spend the money and fix it."

Barbara Fraser:
"I think so. It won't make much difference; our taxes are high already."

Lisa Knight and friend:
"I guess it's a good idea."

Brian Ward:
"I think they should go ahead with it. Where I grew up we didn't have fluoridation and I had lots of cavities, but my kid's haven't had any."

A speaker's defence

Dear Editor:

I refer to a letter dated July 9th, 1987 from June Gardner, Box 1706, Squamish, British Columbia, addressed to you in which she expresses some concern about my ability as Speaker to represent my constituents in West Vancouver - Howe Sound. Mrs. Gardner understands that as Speaker, I am precluded by tradition in taking a partisan position on business and legislation which comes before the Assembly.

For over three hundred years in various parts of the Commonwealth, Speakers of Parliaments and Legislative Assemblies have been bound by the same constraints which are placed on the Speaker of British Columbia today, but in the vast majority of jurisdictions, the constituents in the Speaker's riding have understood that while the Speaker does not take public positions on matters affecting his riding he takes immediate, effective and direct action to solve any problems should they arise.

All Ministries of Government understand the Speaker's position (as do all Members of the Opposition) and accordingly, provide an immediate audience to the Speaker who wishes to make representations on behalf of his constituents. That he does not make those representations in a public forum does not diminish his effectiveness as a representative of his constituents.

While it is not my intention to be in any way critical of Mrs. Gardner's expression of concern when she states in her letter, in last paragraph thereof, "Mr. Reynolds is unable to take a personal approach to the duties empowered on him by his constituents", nothing could be further from the truth. It is indeed the personal approach that the Speaker traditionally takes which makes his overtures to Ministries of Government on behalf of his constituents so effective. Had Mrs. Gardner stated that the Speaker is unable to take a public approach perhaps she would have been more accurate.

It is entirely possible that Mrs. Gardner may be one of many in my riding, which I am extremely proud to represent, who do not fully understand how effective a Speaker can be in representing a constituency and to this end it is my intention after the present situation has adjourned, to prepare a short information pamphlet outlining more fully the Speaker's position in this matter and describing in some detail how I, as Speaker, continue to work on behalf on all the residents in my constituency.

In the meantime, I will continue to respond promptly to all enquiries from my riding on a personal basis and I sincerely hope the residents of West Vancouver - Howe Sound share the pride I feel in being the M.L.A. for the riding, as well as the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of British Columbia.

Sincerely,
Honorable John Reynolds,
M.L.A., Speaker of the Legislative Assembly

Beaver experts sought

Dear Editor:

I am conducting research on the life and activities of the Canadian beaver.

As you probably know, the beaver was not declared Canada's national animal until 1975, and yet the beaver has played a significant role in Canada's history, economy, environment and folk-lore for hundreds of years.

I would appreciate hearing from any of your readers who have had any unusual or interesting experiences or stories to tell about this unique Canadian animal.

When I see all the many activities there are for people today I wonder how we managed in the years gone by when there were no organized sports, no Scouts, Guides, Cubs or Brownies, no night classes, no recreational activities (except for the occasional dance, movie, and the odd play or concert).

But somehow we managed to have a lot of fun. Of course young people were not considered that important in the days when I grew up. You went to school, did your homework, played with the other kids, and went to bed early. I can remember spending evenings doing my homework, stretched out on the living room floor next to the wood heater (where it was nice and warm), and then going to bed early because we had school the next day. Sometimes on Friday and Saturday nights, if we were lucky, we were allowed to stay up till 9 o'clock.

Some of the excitement in those days used to be the movies at the old Rex Theatre, recently known as the Starlite. I can remember clutching my dime in hand and going to the Saturday matinees where we were all thrilled to the excitement of the old dramatic serials, with the heroine chained to the railroad tracks as the great big train came nearer and nearer...

In those days the Rex was the centre of all the entertainment in the community. We held basketball games there; all the dances and public meetings were held in the hall. It was the scene of the Christmas concerts, the plays or dramas, and any visiting entertainers. And they even held some fall fairs there as well.

Naturally, there were no seats fixed to the floor, as they had to be moved to clear the hall for dances and other engagements, but benches lined the walls and they could be quickly moved into place if they were needed.

Dances were the highlight of the year with the annual PGE ball, the social event of the season. Only the elite were invited to attend and attendance was by invitation only. Heaven help you if you tried to crash the party! The event brought out the finest clothes and the smartest hairdos and it was the final cachet of Squamish social life to be asked to the ball.

During the years of rivalry between the railway and the Merrill and Ring the loggers decided they would show how a ball should be held. They didn't limit the guest list to just the elite but invited the loggers, of course, the PGE wheels (and non-wheels) and many of the other people in the community. They hired a top-notch orchestra, decorated the old hall in grand style, and served a supper that lived in memory of many of those who attended.

It was the custom to serve sandwiches and make coffee at midnight but the logging company didn't stop at that. They brought in the camp cooks who worked on the food for the event for several days, preparing delicious pastries as well as the assorted sandwiches and other goodies. They set a standard which has never been surpassed.

People who attended the loggers' ball spoke about it for weeks after and some can still recall the long-vanished glories of that night.

There were a lot of other dances though, and the hall would ring to the music of old-fashioned waltzes and polkas, schottisches and foxtrots. If you were really daring you tried the tango or the rhumba but some of the elderly people, who sat on the sidelines and watched the goings-on with an eagle eye, would be sure to comment if you became too frisky.

You didn't dare leave the hall; if you did your reputation went with you because the only reason to leave was to take a drink or "neck". Drinking was not allowed in the hall but all the men would sneak out to take a nip once in a while.

In fact, one of the funniest stories I can remember from those days was when one youngster, now a well-known local businessman, reeled home late at night, dead drunk! When his mother went looking for the cause, she discovered that he had found someone's cache of liquor hidden under the sidewalk and, with the aid of a number of friends, had emptied the bottle. getting gloriously drunk in the process.

Of course, things have changed now, and liquor is permitted at dances. But somehow I think we had more fun when we all went to the dances and everyone danced with everyone else instead of going in small groups like they do today and only dancing with the people at your tables.

It didn't matter if you were a teenager or a grandmother, a businessman or a teacher, everyone danced with everyone else and mixers like the dances where you changed partners or drew someone from the crowd till everyone was on the floor, were a lot of fun. I know I used to enjoy it and even though I wasn't allowed to attend the New Year's Eve dance till I was sixteen years old, I loved going to any I could. My sister would prevail on my parents to let me go and she did keep an eye on me but when my younger sisters grew up they managed to get to them earlier.

The old hall was the scene of many Christmas concerts and these always drew full houses from the many parents who came out to see their children perform. Christmas concerts were always so much fun. The kids were self-conscious, they were busy looking for their parents, and they either had attacks of stage fright or were so precocious and smart-alecky that they stole the show.

But the crowds loved them and there was never a lack of an audience. Parents applauded their children, and teachers, who had been gibbering in the wings, breathed a sigh of relief when it was finally over.

I can remember one fall fair held in the hall. It must have been in the early thirties and tables were lined up along the edges of the big building. All the local wares were displayed there. It was a delectable sight with huge heads of cabbage, plump ears of corn, giant squash, and succulent golden carrots. I know I loved the fall fairs and was sorry when they dropped them because of the war.

When they were revived in the PGE Hall on Second Ave., now the Hudson House, they were very popular and I can remember the delight in one young bride's face when her lemon pie won the coveted first prize over the pie entered by Mrs. Blanche Seymour, who was a simply superb cook. And the best part of the story was that she had learned to cook from a book.

And there was the young lad who entered a plate of cookies in the children's section of the fair. The judge, from the Vancouver Province's modern kitchen, said if they had been entered in the adult section he would have taken first place. Yes, the old theatre was the centre of social life but there were a few other places where people gathered. The old Elks Hall on the main street was the headquarters for the local fraternal club whose members would meet for an evening of conviviality, as well as some games and the odd drink. But women were not allowed to attend.

Things have changed but somehow one wonders if in changing they have divided us. We seemed to be a lot closer in those days.

Denise Seeley crowned Squamish Timber Queen

It was an emotional farewell for retiring Miss Squamish Alisa Lange and her two princesses, Kerstin Bicknell and Joelle Babuin, but the mood of the moment soon turned to apprehension and excitement as the audience awaited the judges' decision for this year's winner, which seemed to take an eternity in coming.

It was well worth the wait, however, as this year's Squamish Timber Queen, Denise Seeley, Miss Royal Canadian Legion, was crowned, along with First Princess, Zuzana Lehocky, Miss Garibaldi Building Supplies, and Second Princess, Laureen Lonsdale, Miss Squamish Credit Union.

Lonsdale was also given the coveted title of Miss Congeniality, chosen by her peers in the contest.

Other contestants in the pageant held July 30 at the Squamish Civic Centre were Colleen Gruber, Miss Kinsmen, Giselle Klemenic, Miss Forestland Industries, Christine Kurz, Miss Firefighters, Lizabeth Murray, Miss Squamish Yacht Club, and Karen Piche. Miss Squamish Valley Equestrian Association.

As a tribute to B.C. Rail's 75th anniversary, this year's Timber Queen Pageant took on the railway theme, "A Grand Journey Just Beginning," with the stage setting a passenger train of yesteryear, symbolizing the journey in life confronting the eight young ladies.

Musical numbers were performed by local talents, Marnie Hendrickson and Ed Yourk, accompanied by the ever-present train conductor, Al McIntosh, who also presided over the pageant as master of ceremonies.

Squamish Mayor Egon Tobus commenced the evening's program by welcoming visitors to the 22nd annual Timber Queen Pageant, and thanking last year's reigning royalty for an excellent year as "ambassadors" for Squamish.

"I consider myself very lucky to have chosen Squamish as my home," Tobus told the audience, "where we seem to have an abundance of intelligent and good-looking women."

Squamish Days Committee Chairman Garth McCreech echoed Tobus' sentiments, and used the opportunity to welcome everyone to the 30th annual Squamish Days Loggers Sports.

Following the Mayor's address, each of the candidates was presented to the audience, resplendent in formal attire. After a solo by Yourk, the girls returned to the stage, this time in casual dress.

The critical portion of the pageant was the delivery of short speeches by each of the candidates, who spoke of their future prospects and wishes. From Christine Kurz' ambition as an astronaut and Denise Seeley as a starlet, to Zuzana Lehocky's treatise on dental hygienics, each of the contestants described her future career goals.

Throughout the pageant, the girls were judged by five out-of-town judges, who were basing their decision on three criteria: poise, appearance, and public speaking. The judges had only the pageant, and brief interviews of each of the contestants held earlier in the day, on which to base their decision.

Also in attendance at the pageant were a number of visiting royalty from various communities throughout the province, including Ladysmith, Surrey, Port Alberni, Parksville, Pemberton, Mission and Chemainus.

The 1987 Pageant Committee consisted of: Coordinators, Linda Hampson and Sean Adkins, who was also the originator of the design and concept of this year's show; Pat Hampson, scenery and stage design; Georgina Kehler, visiting royalty; Svea Mountenay, contestant gifts; Pat Grandage, publicity and programs; Elsie Stewart, social calendar and chaperone; Judi Gould and Brenda Sims, The Timber Queen's Ball.

Musical accompaniment was provided by Linda Mitchell, and choreography by Joelle Babuin.

Following the pageant, a Timber Queen's Ball was held in the auditorium.

The 1987 Squamish royalty. (l to r) First Princess, Zuzana Lehocky, Miss Squamish Timber Queen, Denise Seeley, and Second Princess and Miss Congeniality, Laureen Lonsdale.

A contestant in the Chair Carve competition shows his skill with the chainsaw. Frank Rak of Squamish won the event.

The weather was touch and go all day long, but come early evening, the sun broke through the clouds in the nick of time for Squamish's biggest party of the year, the "Street Scene Festival", held Friday evening, July 31, to kick off the Squamish Days Loggers Sports weekend.

The festivities started early in the day, as the Squamish Lions Club set up its barbecue outside Overwaitea, offering hot dogs and hamburgers to hungry shoppers, with proceeds going to the Lions Club for its various community projects.

From 2 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., Granny B's took centre stage, offering a clown workshop for budding clowns aged 10 and up.

The evening program got underway about 5:30 p.m., when organizers closed off Cleveland and Second Avenues to automobile traffic to make way for a program of family fun and entertainment.

Just after 6 p.m., crowds gathered in front of the Shell Station on Cleveland Ave. for first crack at the 1,000 ping pong balls to be dropped. The crowd scrambled to capture the balls, each of which was numbered to correspond with a merchant in town who, in turn, was offering some discount or special for lucky ballholders.

Due to the threat of rain, this year's popular Lullaby Festival was held in the gym of Squamish Elementary School instead of its planned location at the Squamish Junction pavilion.

Organized by brother and sister Colleen and Murray Purdie, the Lullaby Festival, which commenced at 6:30 p.m., drew a huge crowd of kids and parents, eager to participate in the program of song and mime.

This year's Lullaby Festival program featured two top-notch children's acts, Cirque Alexander, a professional and bilingual theatre company for young audiences, and Nori Foote, popular puppeteer and songster. The program emphasized audience participation, allowing the children to actively join in the song and movement that characterized the acts performed.

Throughout the evening, a host of activities, demonstrations and performances was held in downtown Squamish, drawing both local people and out-of-town visitors to join in the festivities.

Events included Highland dancing by Jennifer Yourk, accompanied by Squamish Pipe Band Major Ian Walker, dance performances by the Garibaldi School of Dance, Russian dancing by Josef Stanischevskyj, and gymnastics led by Cindy Waslewsky.

Local band, "Holly Wood and the Producer" rocked the audience with familiar tunes, and instructors from the Eagle Run Fitness Centre demonstrated the latest in aerobics.

For the kids, newly crowned Miss Squamish, Denise Seeley, and her two princesses, Zuzanna Lehocky and Lauren Lonsdale, offered face-painting, and Pharmasave's Mr. and Mrs. Minky circulated the crowd.

Other events included a stew cook-off competition and a pancake-eating competition, as well as various clowns and characters who wandered the streets, adding to the carnival atmosphere.

At 8:30 p.m., a Tug-o-war took place on Second Ave., with eight teams vying for the winning display of skill and sheer brawn.

Judging of the Chair Carving competition, which was on-going throughout the day at the Chieftain Centre parking lot, took place at 8 p.m. in front of Workwear World, sponsor of the event.

First place and a $200 gift certificate to Workwear World went to Squamish's Frank Rak, who claimed that he had never before carved a chair with a chainsaw.

Bryan Couture took second place and a $100 gift certificate, and Neil Morgan, also of Squamish, was awarded third place and a $75 gift certificate.

The chairs, about 14 in total, were auctioned off following the judging, and the $197 raised went to Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Squamish. The winning chair went for $50.

Highlight of the evening was the huge fireworks display, which got underway shortly after 10 p.m. at the highschool grounds. Squamish residents of all ages ventured to the grounds and outside their homes to view the dazzling display.

Local band, "Hollywood and the Producer," entertains the crowd.

Gymnasts, led by Cindy Waslewsky, demonstrate their moves for "Street Scene" on lookers.

Newly crowned Miss Squamish, Denise Seeley, conducts face-painting for youngsters.

Robbie Smith of Nanaimo, B.C., was awarded the honor of Logger of the Day for the third year in a row, at the 21st Annual Loggers Sports Show held Sunday, Aug. 2 in Squamish.

Smith was awarded the Pat Brennan Trophy, sponsored by the Squamish Times, for his impressive performance in various events throughout the day.

Smith placed first in the Brown Bros. Ford World Championship Power Saw

Tree Falling competition, a popular and exciting event with spectators, with a time of 15:40 seconds, easily topping last year's winning time of 15:97, which had also clinched him first place.

Smith also captured first place in the Chokerman's Race, beating out second place finisher Kent Horsely of Duncan, B.C. with a winning time of 24:75 seconds, just slightly off from his previous year's winning time of 24:47. For his win, Smith was awarded the L&K Lawnmower and Powersaw Repair trophy. In the Obstacle Pole Bucking competition, Smith was forced to give up his title, taking second place to Kent Horsely, whose time of 13:20 seconds was still way off Smith's 1986 winning time of 12:95.

Sportsman of the Day, sponsored by Rural Construction and awarded to the competitor whose cooperation and effort deserves special merit, went to Kent Horsely of Duncan, B.C.

Along with his win in the Obstacle Pole Bucking competition, Horsely took second place in the Chokerman's Race leg in the Team Relay for the Canadian Team, winner of the event.

In other events, Martin O'Toole of Bradford, Australia, took first place in the Underhand Chop, sponsored by Workwear World, beating out second-place finisher Brian Herlihy of Vancouver, B.C., with a winning time of 24:41. O'Toole's winning time was still well off last year's winning time of 23:65, won by Peter Coliver, also of Australia.

The Axe Throw event, sponsored by Can Pet, was won by Lake Cowichan's

David Hocquard, of New Zealand, won the Single Bucking competition with a time of 42:24 seconds, beating out last year's winner, Jack Brown-John of Williams Lake, B.C., and last year's second-place finisher, David Vaughn, also of Williams Lake, who had to settle for third place this year. Hocquard was awarded the Stedmans Trophy for the event, sponsored by Konica Film.

Hocquard also placed third in the Underhand Chop, and teamed up with Brian Herlihy and Ken Nelson to capture second place in the Standing Butcher Block competition.

The Speed Bucking event, sponsored by Pacific Equipment Ltd., was won by Ron Hartill, of Mill Bay, whose time of 11:36 beat out second-place finisher Eyle Adams of Kalispell, Montana, and Dale Hartill, of Burnaby, B.C.

Hartill also placed third in the Power Saw Tree Falling event, and teamed up with Laurence O'Toole and Martin O'Toole to capture first place in the Standing Butcher Block competition, which he also won in 1986.

The Jill and Jill Hand Bucking competition, sponsored by the Squamish Sign Shop, was won by Deby Jackson and Tracey Combes, of Bellingham, Washington, with a time of 22:38. They beat out second-place finishers Jean Boyko of Port Alberni, B.C., and Kathy Hull of Mills Bay.

Vancouver's Brian Herlihy captured first place in the Petro Canada World Championship Springboard Chop competition, with a time of 1:22:08, beating out second-place finisher Martin O'Toole and third-place finisher Karl Bischoff of Celista, winner of the event last year.

Herlihy also took second place in the Underhand Chop, third in the Double Hand Bucking with teammate Ken Nelson, and second place in the Standing Butcher Block, along with teammates Ken Nelson and David Hocquard.

In the Oregon Chain Obstacle Pole Bucking competition, Kent Horsely won the Weldwood of Canada -- Squamish Lumber trophy, with second place going to Robbie Smith and third place to Karl Bischoff.

Ron Hartill and Laurence and Martin O'Toole captured the Tim-br-Mart trophy in the Standing Butcher Block competition with a time of 1:00:87, beating out second-place team of Brian Herlihy, Ken Nelson and David Hocquard.

German beat out second-place finisher Terry Patrick of Ladysmith, B.C., and third-place finisher, Robert Bloomfield, of Williams Lake, B.C.

The exciting Team Relay, featuring the Canadian Team pitted against the International Team, and consisting of the Tree Climb, Chokerman's Race, Underhand Chop, Axe Throw, Obstacle Pole Bucking, Jill and Jill Hand Bucking, and Springboard Chop, was this year won by the Canadian Team, much to the delight and pride of the hometown crowd.

'Rags to Riches': the '80s '60s style

By Evan Levine

NBC's "Rags to Riches," a sort of "Annie" meets the Shangri-Las for the junior MTV set, was a surprise hit of the spring TV season. It's now airing in reruns on Sundays, and will return in the fall with new episodes. Here's the plot: Tough play-boy-with-a-heart-and-fortune-of-gold Nick Foley (Joseph Bologna) takes in five orphans (one was dropped from the show when the scripts threatened to run-neth over) to impress some clients. He ends up as the grumbling guardian of the spirited quintet. But here's the gimmick: The girls sing! And it's 1961, so they sing Motown! And they sing classics, like "That'll Be the Day," with the words changed to reflect the situation at hand. Playing off public desire for modern music videos and rose-colored nostalgia, this retro, miniaturized Partridge Family feeds an '80s sensibility for the hip and facile with just enough Sha-na-na to ease it down.

Joseph Bologna

Bologna sees the show's appeal as a kind of innocence. "But I didn't want just a children's show," he claims. "I wanted it to appeal to the whole family. And as a writer (he and his wife, actress Renee Taylor, co-authored "Lovers and Other Strangers"), I saw its potential." As for criticisms about the show's anachronisms, such as the girls wearing high-fashion mini skirts in a look that didn't become popular until several years later, Bologna is untroubled. "Anachronisms are great for radio contests," he contends. "It's difficult to be super authentic. What's important is the spirit."

On NBC's "Rags to Riches," Joseph Bologna plays the guardian to five orphans. They are portrayed (clockwise from l.) by Blanca Degarr, Kimiko Gelman, Tisha Campbell, Bridget Michelle and Heidi Ziegler. The show airs Sundays.

The biggest problem with his character, Bologna feels, will be keeping him on the line between good guy and villain. "Nick is struggling with morality," Bologna explains. "When the pilot is over, he doesn't turn into Robert Young."

"He's like an alcoholic," Bologna adds. "Tomorrow he could go wrong again. There has to be the potential for him to say, 'I've bitten off more than I can chew.' The kids also need the potential to go bad. They shouldn't suddenly turn into the Brady Bunch."

"Rags to Riches," in fact, fills a "Brady Bunch" void for pre-teens and teenagers. Though adults may often be forced to suspend belief — such as when the 5-year-old plays a mean saxophone — younger viewers may have found a new set of idols. Is Bologna right in insisting that other viewers also want a slightly anachronistic vision of warbling adolescents? Never say "That'll be the day" — unless you sing it.

Wade Stewart takes novice logger

Birling ace Wade Stewart, of Parksville, B.C., was awarded the Harnor Logging trophy for capturing the title of Novice Logger of the Day at the Novice and Intermediate Show held Saturday, Aug. 1, at the Loggers Sports Grounds in Squamish.

Stewart took the title away from Rick Gander, of Langley, B.C., the previous winner of the title for two years running in 1985 and 1986.

For another year, Stewart won the Novice Birling competition, receiving the Squamish Bakery trophy. He also won the Chris Arnet Memorial Trophy, for his winning time of 31:94 seconds in the Novice Climb event.

In the Intermediate show, Dan Jackson, of Bellingham, Washington, won the Norm Smith Esso trophy for Intermediate Logger of the Day.

Jackson also took first place and the Big Scoop Restaurant trophy in the Single Hand Bucking competition, with a winning time of 1:08:09.

Sportsman of the Day and the Dairyland Trophy went to Alex Ross.

This year's Novice and Intermediate Show was held free of charge to the public, thanks to the generous donations of Overwaitea Foods and Garibaldi Building Supplies. And the weather held out, drawing a good crowd dominated by Squamish people, on hand to cheer their favorite competitors.

As per tradition, Al McIntosh, "the Voice of Loggers Sports," acted as Master of Ceremonies throughout the Saturday and Sunday shows, and the ever-popular and amusing Paula the Clown entertained the crowd with his usual antics. The half-time show, featuring Ramblin' Jesse Elliott, drew loud applause for the hilarious - and daring - tree climber who this year performed his act with a broken arm.

Many of this year's competitors were appearing in the Sports show for the first time, and competition was tough.

Winners in other events included Kim Olney, who took the Stihl Chain Saws trophy for his winning time of 15:27 seconds in the Intermediate Stihl Obstacle Pole Bucking competition, bettering last year's winning team of 18:68 set by Mike Rogerson.

The Novice Axe Throw competition was captured by Dan Herlihy of Vancouver, with a score of 10, who was awarded the Highland Video trophy for his win.

Bill Douglas of Squamish took the Peoples Drug Mart trophy for the winning time of 22:94 seconds in the Intermediate Underhand Chop, and Alden Govenlock, of Sooke, B.C., was awarded the Squamish RCMP trophy for his win in the Standing Block Chop novice event.

Squamish's Neil Morgan was awarded the Canadian Daughters League trophy for his winning time of 28:64 seconds in the Novice Chokerman's Race, and Mike Boyko, of Port Alberni, B.C., took the Sun Life of Canada trophy for first place in the Intermediate Springboard Chop, with a winning time of 1:08:66.

In the exciting Team Relay, the Squamish Team beat out the Island Team to take the trophy, with both teams displaying exceptional speed and skill in this dazzling competition, which consists of several events.

Wade Stewart is awarded Novice Logger of the Day by Squamish Princess, Zuzanna Lehocky.

Just in Time
BY MAUREEN GILMOUR

As I am starting this column a couple of days (Wednesday) before the Loggers Sports weekend, I can't really forecast what happened or who won what or if it "rained on our party" or...but I feel very confident that the whole affair was a "fantastic" success. Deadline for me is Friday July 31 so I will at least be able to congratulate the winners in the Timber Queen.

Young couple plans spring wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oldale of Squamish are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen Breu, to Graham Westwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Westwood of Brackendale. A spring wedding in March is planned by the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dupont

Bilingual ceremony unites local couple

A bilingual ceremony with questions and responses in English and French was a feature of the marriage performed by the Rev. Chris Burnett uniting Barbara Jean Cates and Roger Daniel Dupont.

The bride, who was escorted to the altar set up in the garden of their home by her son, Joshua, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Niedjalski of Richmond, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fernand Dupont of Lac Etchemin, Quebec.

The garden was decorated with pink and white streamers for the 3 p.m. ceremony on July 4.

For her wedding, the bride chose an off-the-shoulder Laura Ashley gown in white cotton, ballerina-length with a deep scoop neckline back and front edged with a self ruffle. The full skirt fell from a fitted waist and she carried a spray bouquet of pink alstromerias and burgundy carnations with lace and matching ribbons.

Witnessing the marriage were the bride's aunt and uncle, Debbie and Peter Kirkdale, and Elizabeth Kershaw. Debbie Kirkdale wore a street-length afternoon dress with muted stripes and a lily corsage.

The bride's younger son, Jesse, was the ring bearer. Peter Kirkdale was master of ceremonies and proposed the toast to the bride at the reception, held in the garden, before they cut the four-tiered wedding cake decorated with mocha icing and Grand Marnier roses made by Kathy Ramage.

For her daughter's wedding, the bride's mother chose a pink afternoon dress accented by a carnation corsage, while Mrs. Dupont wore a blue afternoon dress with matching jacket.

The wedding gown was made by Barbie Christensen, and Kelly Shollert designed and made the wedding bouquet.

A dance in the Elks Hall was held in the evening with music supplied by Ron Wigglesworth, while special tapes for the reception were made by Hans Christensen.

Members of the groom's family came from Quebec for the wedding. They included Mr. and Mrs. Fernand Dupont, Mrs. Gervaise Drouin and Claude Dupont of La Lac Etchemin, and Mrs. Suzanne Guillemette of Montreal, Serge Rheume of St. Prosper, Quebec, and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Stockmayer of Wetaskawin, Alta., and many friends and relatives from Steveston, Richmond, and the Lower Mainland.

Mr. and Mrs. Dupont will be living in Squamish.

Despite the cloudy skies which threatened rain during the ceremonies, a tarp supplied by Roy Ramage kept the guests dry during the afternoon.

Engagement announced for Kelly Swanson

Marilynn and Karl Swanson of Coquitlam are pleased to announce the engagement of their only daughter, Kelly, to Murray Deane, son of Bob and Shirley Deane of Squamish. The young couple will exchange their marriage vows on May 21, 1988 in Coquitlam.

14th Annual Squamish A.A. Roundup this weekend

The 14th Annual Squamish AA Roundup will be held in the Civic Centre from Friday, August 7 to Sunday, August 9 and the theme for the weekend will be "rediscovery is discovery". AA is a fellowship of men and women who share their experience, strength and hope with each other in order to solve their common problem and help others recover from alcoholism.

The only requirement for membership is a desire to stop drinking. There are no dues or fees and AA is not allied with any other organization. The primary goal of its members is to stay sober and to help other alcoholics achieve sobriety.

On Saturday, from 11 a.m. to noon, the public is invited to attend a meeting, where two guest speakers will give a short talk on what Alcoholics Anonymous is and how it works, followed by a half-hour question-and-answer period.

Anyone wishing more information is asked to contact either Henry at 898-3411 or Frank at 898-3843.

Klahanie: homestyle and a view too

The menu offers everything from bacon and eggs and hamburgers to Baron of Beef dinners, but it's the homemade butter tarts, bran muffins, pies and soups that bring 'em in.

"We can't keep up with them," said Ethel Hurlbert who, along with her husband, Jim, have owned and operated the Klahanie Restaurant and cam-ground for 15 years. The Klahanie, located off Highway 99 just opposite Shannon Falls, is open from 6:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily, offering breakfast, lunch and dinner.

The restaurant is a favorite among local people, but captures the tourist and Whistler ski traffic as well. One of the attractions of the location is the clear, unadulterated view of Shannon Falls, attracting motorists wishing to take a break from the highway trip.

The Hurlberts are currently in the process of renovating the restaurant, which, when completed, will double the capacity and provide a view of the Sound as well.

Ethel Hurlbert (left), co-owner of the Klahanie Restaurant with husband Jim, poses with employee, Sheila Thompson, amidst the renovations currently underway to expand the restaurant.

Program encourages "rural" doctoring

Squamish is among the communities involved in a program designed by the University of B.C. to introduce medical students to the rural practice of a family doctor.

Under the program, 90 out of 120 second-year medical students at U.B.C. are spending four to eight weeks this summer working with practising physicians in communities such as Squamish.

Local doctor, T.J. Dundas, will be joined by U.B.C. student Chris Janz, who will spend four weeks here beginning Aug. 3.

Dr. William Buchan, program co-ordinator and head of U.B.C.'s Family Practice Unit, said a major benefit of the Medical Student Rural Practice Program, run by the Faculty of Medicine, is that students receive a broader range of practice than they might get in an urban situation.

"The rural family doctor regularly handles a variety of health problems that in an urban centre would probably be referred to a specialist," Buchan said.

"Participants also get a taste of rural life and, in several cases, former students have gone back to the communities where they were trained."

Begun in 1974 with 28 students participating, the program was created to promote recruitment of family doctors to remote areas of B.C. Students are paid a minimum wage through funding from the B.C. Challenge '87 project and the U.B.C. Faculty of Medicine.

Mex Pub takes Howe Sound Men's league title in seventh inning drama

Long time fans of the Howe Sound Men's Fastball League may have noticed that over the years the number of competing teams has dwindled with this season featuring five clubs.

Yet, despite the lack of numbers the competitiveness hasn't suffered. Take for example the Cliffside Blues. In a tight league the Blues finished in fourth spot overall and thus qualified for the last playoff position.

That meant a semi-final series against the top spot Rimrock Cafe Reds of Whistler, a series that went the distance before the Cliffside prevailed. And so the finale was set; the Blues versus the side which tied Whistler in points in the Highlander Hotel Mex Pub.

There would be no favorites, just some good old-fashioned ball.

With the best out of three series all tied up at one win apiece, the Blues with Gary Thorne on the mound were nursing a four hit, 2-1 advantage going into the bottom of the seventh and decisive inning on Friday evening.

That lead didn't last long however as the first batter up to the plate, Ross Teichman set a hard drive to the fence at right field and then outraced an inaccurate throw in for an inside the park home run. Three batters and two outs later, after Jamey Raymond followed Teichman with a single up the middle, Thorne intentionally walked Steve Kerr to not only supply more options for an out but to force rookie Harry Gill into the deciding position.

The strategy backfired though as Gill rolled a grounder over second and scored Raymond easily from third for a 3-2 championship clinching victory.

The roller coaster game fit right into the entire series. In game one the Blues held a 3-0 lead until the Mex Pub stormed back to tie in the sixth. That match would go a full eleven innings before darkness put a halt to matters and the two sides still deadlocked.

But despite the fact that the marathon was simply scratched from the record books and game two became game one, the eleven inning took its toll as Mex Pub hurler Jan Mahood, in his second consecutive game, was stung for six runs before being replaced by Kerr.

The change came too late as Don Hales, fresh on the mound, went the distance in a five inning 11-1 win. But Mahood would be the fresh one in the next match as the Mex Pub opened up with a six run first inning enroute to a 7-2 edge that forced game three.

Bob's get the Munchies

What better way to put a close to the holiday weekend than with a fastball tournament.

The 1987 Loggers' Sports festivities finally ground to a halt on Monday night, closed for another year by a sport that isn't necessarily even related to logging other than that some of the players earn their living that way.

Sixteen teams competed in the annual Howe Sound Men's Fastball League tournament and though none of the locals were around to share in the wealth of the prize money it was a success nevertheless, especially in lieu of the quality of ball. The finale featured the undefeated Bob's Trucking against Mr. Munchies, a squad that had to play nine games, including the last match, our the weekend four of which were on the last day including three back-to-back.

The result was some great defensive ball with a third inning solo home run by Rod Short the deciding point in the 1-0 Trucking win over the Munchies.

Short also happened to be the top pitcher of the tournament and the winning one of the championship game, as he fanned seven batters and gave up four hits to ensure the victory. But he did have a lot of help, especially in the second when centre fielder Dan Klein made a big running catch off Kevin Huber to end the inning.

In the fifth and sixth a solid defence maintained the shutout when Mr. Munchies had one out and runners in scoring position, including a bases loaded situation in the sixth which Short escaped by striking out his opposite, Jeff Abrams, for the third out.

As a consolation Abrams was selected as the tournament MVP while his team collected $800 for second place compared to the $1200 for first. Third went to the Tugs while fourth was taken up by the North Delta Juniors.

The all-star team included Bob's Trucking Howard Gillies at shortstop, Chris Bailey at third and outfielder Dan Klein while Mr.

Munchies had all-stars in back catcher Jim Haaheim, first baseman Kim Scoles and outfielder Garnet Wall. Top batter, batting 500 was Mulligan's Marv Bennett.

Novice division Howe Sound Youth Floor Hockey League Playoff Champs: (not in order) Team No. 2, Victor Harry, Stephén Fryer, Mathew Lafreniere, Riel Lewis, Ryan Keeler, Travis Hunt.

Camping fees up in local parks

Campers will have to shell out a little more beginning August 1 to camp in local provincial parks.

Environment and Parks Minister Bruce Strachan recently announced an increase in camping fees which, for 1987, will range from $6 to $12 depending on the facilities and services.

The changes include a $1 increase for camping in the majority of parks, and a $2 increase for a limited number of major parks.

"The new fee structure reflects changes in use patterns and increased operating costs, and will encourage more visits outside the period of heavy use," Strachan said.

"The fee increases are modest ones, and in line with those charged by other park agencies and private campgrounds."

The $1 fee increase also applies to backcountry camping and wilderness park hut fees. Children 12 years and under will still be accommodated free in wilderness park shelters. Locally, the fee increase will affect the provincial parks as follows, according to Cathy Dunlop, spokesman for Alice Lake Park: Alice Lake, from $10 to $12; Porteau, from $10 to $12; Birkenhead Lake, from $7 to $8; Brandywine Falls, from $5 to $6; Nairn Falls, from $5 to $6.

During August, B.C. senior citizens will be required to pay camping fees ranging from $3 to $6, about half the regular campground fee. B.C. seniors will still be able to camp for free in all provincial parks from September to June.

Although the Alice Lake campsite is currently full, Dunlop said the volume of campers this summer is "about the same" as last year, even though parks officials anticipated an increase this year of returning Expo visitors.

Alice Lake and Porteau, the most popular campsites locally, are generally full by Friday afternoon, Dunlop said, and campers are advised to come early for a campsite, which is available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Alice Lake campsite is popular among families with its many facilities, including sani-station, hot showers, visitor programs, park naturalist, hiking trails, and swimming and picnicking areas.

In addition, Dunlop said, the park has recently added a nine-foot paved wheelchair trail leading from the parking lot to the washroom facilities, and down to the beach area, to allow handicapped visitors better access to park facilities.

Paul Granger is first over the finish line in the 10 km. Mens Open Class with a time of 31:54:1

Blood, sweat and cheers

A chorus of cheers and applause greeted runners in the second annual Squamish Days 10K run as they surged across the finish line in Stan Clarke park Aug. 2.

The race, which began at 9 a.m., started near the August Jack Hotel on Cleveland Ave., turned west onto Government Road to the Mamquam Bridge, went across the highway to Loggers Road, down Loggers to the intersection, back into town on Cleveland right on Pemberton, and left on Second Ave. to Clarke park.

Despite the weather, which was described by runners as cool, and the gravel Loggers Road stretch which some said slowed them down, the winning time of 31:54:1 by Mens Open Class entrant Paul Granger is a course record, according to organizer Peter Hotston. Second was Peter Holdsworth with a time of 32:08:03. Louis Helbig took third place with a time of 32:20:04.

The first woman across the line was Marianne Gillis with a time of 38:47:9, followed by Heidi Wippich at 40:55:9, and Pat Sakai, 40:58:9, in the Women's Open category.

Other Mens winners were: Robert Dowdeswell (Masters Men), 34:50:5; Hans Fenz (Senior Men), 36:36:8; Johan Lindquist (Junior Men), 34:36:5; and Jeff Skands (Elementary Boys), 45:53:3.

Women's winners included: May Wilson (Masters Women), 43:55:1, Lenora Montgomery (Senior Women), 44:29:4; and Stacey Smith (Elementary Girls), 50:15:5. There were no women entrants in the Junior category.

More than 150 runners took part in the this year's event, according to race organizers.

Seattle sisters succeed in Squamish

Susan Gregg took the Womens Open Class in the mile with a time of 4:46:7. Sister, Sandra, was third.

Sunday's first annual Squamish Main Street Mile saw local miler, Brad Brohman, finish in the top three, and the Seattle mother and daughters team, the Gregg family, win and place in the Womens Open and Womens Masters categories respectively.

Kelly Britz won the Mens Open category with a time of 4:12:8, followed (closely) by Phil Ellis at 4:17:5. Squamishite Brad Brohman was third with a time of 4:24:5.

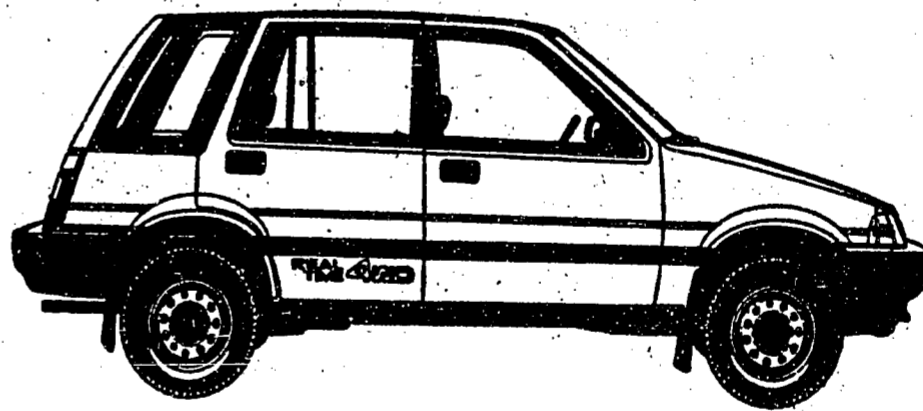

Womens Open class was taken by Susan Gregg with a time of 4:46:7, followed by Birgit Weaver by 4:53:4, and sister Sandra Gregg with a time of 5:10:4.

The Gregg story continued in the Womens Masters class with Erna Kosak winning with a time of 4:56:2, followed by May Wilson at 6:20:4, and Barbara Gregg with a time of 6:44:0.

Art Carballo won the Mens Masters category with a time of 5:21:0 followed by Larry Carter at 5:25:8, and Tim Ballard with a time of 6:02:1.

Approximately 30 runners took part in the race.

Bicycles decorated in all colors and shapes are paraded in front of judges at the Kiwanis Children's Sports.

Record turnout at Kiwanis Kids Sports

The Kiwanis Club of Squamish Valley has for several years sponsored the Children's decorated bicycle contest and field sports for the enjoyment of the boys and girls and their parents. This year, at Brennan park on August 1 was the best turnout of children, and their participation and enthusiasm made it all worthwhile for the Kiwanis Club. The weather too, cooperated "beautifully"!

Prizes were awarded to the best decorated three wheelers, the best decorated two wheelers (seven and under), the best decorated two-wheelers (eight and over) and the best decorated novelty bike (any age). It was easy to tell that much work and planning had gone into the theme of many of the bikes and trikes, along with the appropriate costumes for the proud owners.

Judges for the decorated bicycles were the new Timber Queen, Denise Seeley and her princesses, Zuzana Lehockey and Laureen Lonsdale.

There were races of all descriptions and for all ages including the shoe race, three-legged race, wheelbarrow race, egg and spoon race as well as parent participation. Winners received gift certificates for treats at Dairy Queen.

Along with free hot dogs and drinks for the children, they also received beach balls, courtesy of Kentucky Fried Chicken and Pharmasave's "famous" Mr.

and Mrs. Minkey were on hand to give out frisbees.

After the races, excitement mounted as the super guest of honour, Ronald McDonald, readied for his show. Ronald did not disappoint his young friends as he made each child feel very special. A few lucky ones managed to go on stage to "assist" Ronald with his show.

International relations, Squamish style

"Hello, how are you?"
"I am fine, thank you."

Well, it may not improve the balance of trade, but probing the depths of a foreign culture has got to start somewhere.

"It's all the English they know," Teacher/Co-ordinator, George Fedorak explains.

"They just learned it this morning."

With this tentative start, 10 Japanese girls between ages of 16 and 18 were introduced (or introduced themselves - depending on who went first), to 12 Squamish families who will, over the next three weeks, give them a crash course in Canadian culture.

In turn, the families hosting the girls, all either highschool or university students, hope to gain some insight into Japanese culture and customs.

The visit, organized under the auspices of the Cultural Homestay Institute, an organization billing itself as "a non-profit educational exchange program," is intended to improve international understanding, and give the students an opportunity to practise their English conversational skills.

In a brochure prepared by C.H.I., the company says the students "represent the educated middle class of Japan." C.H.I. says "our students are the future leaders of Japan," and believes that by encouraging cultural exchange it will make "peace among nations more secure."

Teacher/Translator, Ken Funakubo, stresses that proficiency in two languages is a prerequisite to university entrance in Japan. He says Japan recognizes that its future growth and development depends upon its ability to understand and communicate with the rest of the world.

While in Squamish, students have a regular schedule of English classes, from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. four days a week at Howe Sound Secondary School, and out-of-town trips on Thursdays. Students use afternoons to visit local attractions, and to join in host-family activities.

Fedorak says the girls will visit Shannon Falls, play squash at the Squamish Valley Golf and Country Club, take part in the Loggers Sports parade, attend Loggers Sports events, and go for a walking tour of Whistler.

Thursday outings will be to Victoria July 23 to visit the Parliament Buildings, the Provincial Museum, and the Empress Hotel; and Vancouver, July 30 and Aug. 5, to visit U.B.C., the Planetarium, the Vancouver Museum, Granville Island, and Stanley Park.

A Sayonara Party is planned for Aug. 7, and the students return to Japan Aug. 11.

Joe Gravkin, who says his family has hosted students from Mexico, Germany and Australia, and who is hosting Takako Fujiyama for the next three weeks, says his children have benefitted tremendously from the cultural exchange.

"Three weeks isn't long enough," he says.

Hiker injured in 25 foot fall

Karlo Karnik Zozikgan suffered serious injuries Aug. 3 when he fell 25 feet while hiking in the Squaw area near Squamish, according to Squamish RCMP.

Zozikgan was reported missing at 12:55 a.m. Aug. 4. He was located at 3:25 a.m. by an RCMP dog brought in from Chilliwack. The search was a combined effort of Search and Rescue and RCMP personnel.

Zozikgan was taken to Squamish General Hospital, and later transferred by air ambulance to St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver.

Visiting Japanese students meet their host family, and the host families of their friends. Teacher-Co-ordinator George Fedorak explains all the students know how to say in English is: "Hello, how are you?" and "I am fine, thank you."

A 25-foot running start, into the chute, from the chute to the working area, two passes at the backing box, and into the serpentine.

It's rodeo time, but the riders are drivers, and each of the drivers has several hundred horses at his command - with names like Mack, Freightliner, and Peterbilt.

Drivers guide their fully loaded 18-wheeled steeds through a course that would challenge the average driver in a compact car. Contestants begin the course with 1000 points and are assessed demerits for offences ranging from not blowing the air horn before backing up, five points, to missing a backing box, 200 points. There is no time limit.

A preliminary event, held at 9 a.m. in the parking lot of the Highlander Mall and Hotel Aug. 3, pared the field of contestants down to the top five. The finals, held at 1 p.m., saw Jim Kernaghan take first with a combined score of 1667 points, followed by Don Cliff with 1661 points, and Dave Dezan with 1493.

A noon hour team relay event, where contestants form teams of three, pass a hardhat like a baton, and race against the clock, was won by the team of Wayne Burt, Bob Thompson, and Herbie Armstrong from Art Tuddy Trucking and Valleau Logging with a time of 6:50.

Second place went to Jim Kernaghan, Lyle Ayers and Steve Burritt of Badger Logging with a time of 8:14; and third were Lorne Walters, Paul Heindenrich and Gary Stefiuk of G. Stefiuk Trucking with a time of 9:37.

Truck Rodeo Chairman, Gary Stefiuk, called the team relay event, which had not been run in Squamish for four years, a success. The rules for the event had been lost in the interim, Stefiuk said, but new ones were devised and the event, with refinements, will appear again next year.

Jim Kernaghan came out on top at the Truck Rodeo held Aug. 3 at the Highlands parking lot.

"Improved manpower productivity" to cost 28 jobs

Improvements to the saw and planer mills of Weldwood of Canada's Squamish operation will significantly improve efficiency, but will also put 28 people out of work, according to Mill Manager Tony Ker.

The sawmill will shut down for two weeks starting Aug. 21, Ker said, to allow for modifications to lumber flow. The modifications are expected to result in a five percent improvement in output, or about 40,000 board feet per day. The sawmill will reopen on Sept. 7, he said. A mechanized lumber sorter will be installed in the planer mill, which will shut down Aug. 29 and reopen Sept. 21, and is expected to improve productivity by 15 percent, Ker said.

Modifications to both mills will cost a total of $3.5 million, he said.

Four jobs will be lost in the sawmill, and 24 will be lost in the planer mill. These positions will go immediately after start-up Sept. 21, Ker said.

During the time both mills are closed, Aug. 29 to Sept. 8, 160 workers will be temporarily off the job.
