Howe Sound teachers to rally for education

The Howe Sound Teachers' Association has declared tomorrow, Apr. 17 a day of concern for the effects provincial government policy is having on education.

"It will be a local day of awareness for the problems developing in the public education system, resulting from the current level of under funding and Bill 82," said Phyllis Pritchard, president of the Howe Sound Teachers' Association.

Pritchard said the level of block funding is not adequate at a time when the "extremely expensive" Year 2000 program is being implemented in schools. She also said teachers are concerned about the government's new Bill 82, which allows Victoria to open contracts and determine school boards' ability to pay, as well as intervene in the working environment.

"Bill 82 is a kind of nebulous piece of legislation because it requires guidelines that have not yet been drawn up," Pritchard said.

A public information meeting will be held at the Squamish Civic Centre at 2:30 p.m. and is open to the public. Teachers, Parent Advisory Council members and trade unionists have also been invited.

Music '91 to ride along on Royal Hudson

Passengers on the Royal Hudson and the MV Britannia will be tapping their feet and humming along on the journey to and from Squamish this summer.

As part of the province's Music '91 program, musical entertainment will be provided in conjunction with the railwaysteam ship excursion between North Vancouver and Squamish, said Paul Perkins, BC Rail's manager of passenger services. Once in Squamish, there's a chance that entertainers will play at the Squamish Pavilion, Perkins said, however more details will be available at a later date.

There are already 20 confirmed dates, he said, with more expected before the May 26 inaugural run kicks off the Hudson's 17th season.

Passengers can expect to be serenaded by a wide range of musical talents, from fiddlers to choirs to barbershop quartets.

"It will be everything from soup to nuts, I can assure you," Perkins said.

The Royal Hudson and MV Britannia will have an extralong season this year, not winding up until Sept. 29.

"We're really looking forward to seeing your downtown revitalization," Perkins said. "We believe in promoting Squamish as the destination." Before the season begins, Royal Hudson hosts will be spending a day in Squamish on an orientation session about the community.

Music '91 will also bring Johnny Cash to Squamish Days Loggers Sports on Aug. 2. Tickets are on sale now through TicketMaster (tollfree) at 1-800-665-2199, or locally at the Mohawk service station, a corporate sponsor of the Music '91 project.

$50,000 in revenue from this department, it is expected the district will in fact collect between $135,00 and $150,000 in permit fees. The treasurer took the conservative estimate of $135,000 in making the addition.

Also added to the budget last week was $1,000 for scholarships for graduating students at Howe Sound Secondary. The best male and female graduating students will receive an award of $500 each. A motion to reconsider a grant-in-aid to the Howe Sound Post Partum Support Group, which was denied funding at an earlier finance committee meeting, failed to gain the two-thirds council majority it needed.

Ald. Don Ross had asked that council provide $1,000 for the group, saying that no service exists elsewhere for women who suffer from post partum depression.

Another addition to the 1991 budget came with increased indemnities for the mayor and aldermen. Mayor Egon Tobus will receive an additional $1,000, bringing his indemnity to $20,250; while the aldermen's stipend will increase from $10,500 to $11,000. Increases to insurance coverage cost to taxpayers could end up being far more than $5,000. As an example he used the charges currently pending against the Squamish-Lillooet Regional District for permit violations in its Pemberton landfill site.

"They [the Environment Ministry] will look at everything we're doing, and if we're doing something that could be wrong, they'll advise us about it," Barr said.

One point of contention during budget deliberations was

A further addition to the budget came when Ald. Ron Barr suggested council return a $5,000 environmental sudit that had earlier been deleted.

However, Ald. Don Ross, chairman of the swimming pool building committee, along with committee member Dr. Richard Cudmore, were able to explain the pool budget -which will not increase more than 3.6 per cent -- to council's satisfaction at last week's meeting.

The requisition for the pool seen on this year's tax notices is levied through the regional district - and is not reflected in the six per cent residential tax increase.

However, with the additional levy for the pool, homeowners are looking at an approximate 12 per cent increase this year.

Cheekye fan still geologically active

A Ministry of Environment study dating slide material has determined that portions of the Cheekye fan are still active, according to the consulting geologist.

"Carbon dating collected from wood debris indicate the slide happened 1,100 years ago. Geologically that is considered pretty recently, and from a safety point of view it indicates the fan is still active," said field geologist Frank Baumann.

The study indicates the material is of a "sloppy, soupy, muddy nature" at the center of the Squamish municipal garbage dump.

The study also suggests, however, that the active area is elongated east-west and is situated well away from the Cheekye-Brackendale population centres.

Baumann said the slide was a remarkable mudflow of one million square metres, consisting of five million cubic metres in volume.

The slide was apparently relatively thin at just 5.7 metres thick. And Baumann believes that consistency indicates it is "not a massive geological situ- E ation".

The environmental study of the fan is being commissioned as a joint effort of government agencies in order to determine the area's mudslide potential alluded to in the Crippen Reports.

The controversial geological surveys conducted in 1974 and 1981 have stagnated development in the area.

Retired Squamish resident Wil Croxall is spearheading a drive to have a protective dyke built in order to construct 3,000 affordable manufactured has also stymied efforts by the Howe Sound School District to upgrade Brackendale

- Elementary School.

The elementary school sits just below the boundary partitioning the northern and southern sections. It is the northern section which is of greatest concern to the ministry. Baumann said the volcanic nature of the material is inherently volatile and the study seems to indicate that the west flank of Garibaldi may still be unstable.

"The material has been blown up into the air and settled down into dust. Loose sediment and chemicals have been weathered down very quickly and become very slippery...which causes a potential for slides," said Baumann.

Baumann has completed the initial survey on the southern sections of the fan and forwarded it to the Ministry of Environment.

Round Table seeks input

The British Columbia Round Table on the Environment and the Economy will be accepting public input for achieving sustainable development. On Tuesday, Apr. 23 the 31-member advisory body will meet at the Sechelt Indian Band Hall in order to allow presentations from the public. The forum will follow an open house on Apr. 22.

The Round Table is government-appointed and comprised of members from various parts of society, including environmental groups, industry, labour, local governments and academia. It is intended to strike a balance and promote the interdependence of environmental and economic decisions. A government news release defines the Round Table's goal as achieving and promoting sustainable development. Sustainable development is defined as "ensuring that the utilization of resources and the environment today does not damage prospects for their use by future generations."

Functioning like the Neighborhood Watch program, the Squamish Band Peace Keepers work in conjunction with the Squamish RCMP, said Toby Toman, one of the 20 volunteers. "We're mostly the eyes and ears," said Toman, who served five and half years as an RCMP officer in Prince Rupert before moving "back home" to Squamish.

The Peace Keepers are well supported by the people who live on the five reserves located in Stawamus, North Yards, Garibaldi Way, Brackendale and Cheekye, Toman said, all of which are patrolled regularly seven days a week. With a $30,000 budget estabCst. Pierre Nezan, who said the Peace Keepers have already had occasion to assist the Mounties in the few weeks since their patrols began.

"We certainly support them," Nezan said. "They come out quite readily and they're organized and enthusiastic."

The Peace Keepers can be an excellent resource for the RCMP when calls are received on reserves, he said, involving such things as house parties, domestic disputes, assaults or even missing persons.

As the Peace Keepers act on behalf of the band, which sets its own bylaws using guidelines set out in the Indian Act, they can therefore "do things that [RCMP] would be legally prevented from doing," Nezan said.

A clear advantage held by the Peace Keepers, Toman said, is their close acquaintance with people living on the reserves.

Where RCMP may be considered an intrusion, the Peace Keepers can settle a dispute and bring about a peaceful settlement more easily, he said.

Training for volunteers will also boost the effectiveness of the Peace Keepers, Toman said. Four volunteers will soon be attending a seminar on spousal assault at the Justice Institute, and courses in first aid, CPR, survival first aid and drug and alcohol counselling will also be offered.

In time, Toman said, it is hoped that the Peace Keepers will become active in fundraising, educational programs for native children, and sporting activities -- a broader approach to making their presence felt in their own community.

Two volunteers for the Peace Keepers are a social worker and a community health nurse, Toman said, which will be a help in cases where, for example, a child must be removed from a home. Rather than placing the child with the Ministry of Social Services, he or she would be placed with another family or band member.

Grad '91 close to meeting fundraising goal of $15,000

Members of 1991's graduating class at Howe Sound Secondary, along with their parents, are preparing for the first valedictory exercises to be held outside the school. The Civic Centre arena has been chosen as the new venue, providing space for more guests on graduation night, June 21.

Following the ceremony, the graduation committee plans to hold an all-night "Safe Grad" party, for which fundraising and planning have taken place since the beginning of the school year.

The committee met Wednesday night in the school library to discuss plans for both the ceremony and party, as well as a reception for graduates, parents, teachers, friends and relatives that will follow the ceremony.

The grad committee meeting also presented an opportunity to tally up funds raised in the last several months with the sale of mushroom manure and firewood.

Parent Stein Hoff told the group that the fundraising goal of $15,000 would be met once the manure sale wound up on the weekend. A whopping $10,000 was expected to accrue from this effort, helped largely by the donation of manure and its transport from the Fraser Valley by Rick Hunter, also a parent of a graduate. A firewood sale on the Easter dents gathered that night.

The committee plans to decorate the entire Civic Centre, with a "classy" black and white theme in the arena and a carnival theme in the auditorium for the Safe Grad party.

A dinner for graduates, their guests and the parents attending the party will be catered. The bill will also include snacks, non-alcoholic drinks and breakfast the next morning (served by the fathers).

Invitations and programs will also add to the cost of graduation festivities.

The final fundraising effort for the Safe Grad will take place this Saturday, as graduates take part in a promotional "family fun" day at Pacific West Building Supplies. Events and activities will include a car wash, fish pond, photographs with the fire department's antique fire truck, and more, all taking place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Overall, support from the community has been overwhelming, Hoff said.

The lot in question is under the power lines off Loggers Lane.

Once council has obtained a head lease on the parcel, they plan on leasing it out in turn to the Federation of Mountain Clubs of BC.

An area between Loggers Lane and Highway 99, now used as a staging area for logging trucks, may also be cleared and left in such a condition that it can be used as an overflow lot.

McCreedy speculated that the work on the areas in question will be completed by the end of May, in time for the peak climbing season.

This diet's going to take incredible willpower

The Deficit Diet Plan is a good name for a program to curb the nation's appetite for spending that does nothing to erode this country's massive -- and growing -- debt load.

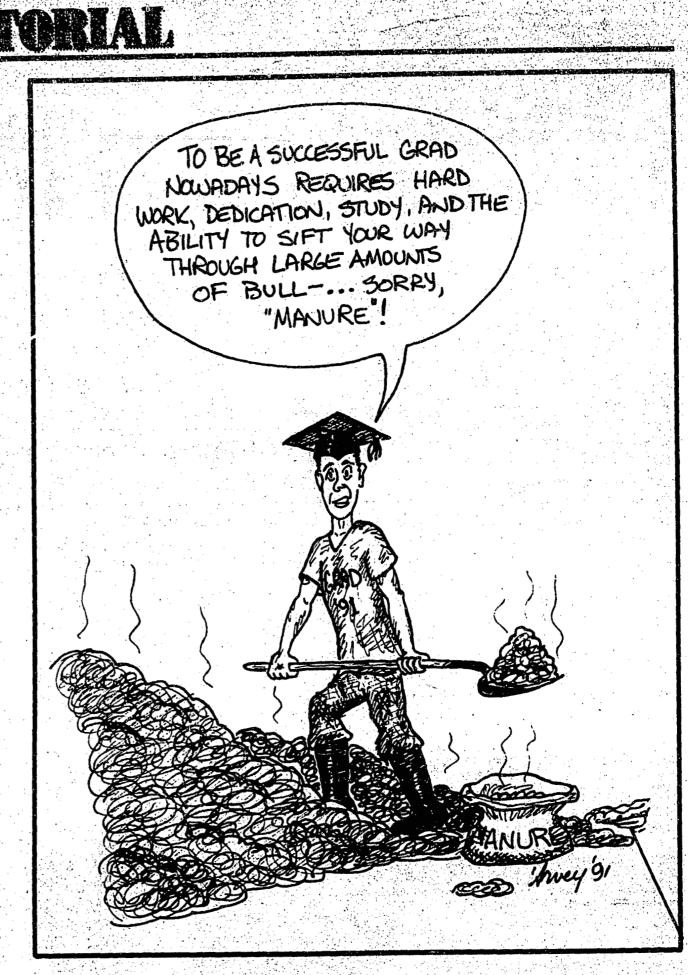

As with a diet, we're going to have to get used to living happily on less. Getting used to the idea -- especially when it may mean fewer grants and programs and funded studies and helpful handouts -- won't be easy, but is totally necessary for the country's financial health well into the next generations.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce is doing a great service to average Canadians through this high profile information program. Speeches such as that made before our local chamber last week are made before audiences great and small throughout the country -- always bringing that mammoth figure of $550 billion down to something we can hold in our hand. communities.

Telling families they could be spending more on taxes as a share of federal interest payments than they do on food hits home. So does the image of that huge clock ticking off the $65,000 a minute in interest we all must help pay back.

Too bad more chamber members couldn't have turned out to hear Canadian Chamber president Tim Reid spell it out so clearly, for it is the interested and involved business community which really can make a difference by spreading the word and pressuring government to curb its appetite for spending.

Individuals, businesses and non-profit groups can make a difference in addressing one of Canada's most pressing problems. With your $21,000 requisition in mind, you might be more inclined to write your Member of Parliament when unnecessary spending goes on in your own community. There may even be examples here in Squamish where funds

Imagine. Each and every one of us owes Ottawa $21,000 free and clear as part of our share of this huge pie. For those of us who have yet to secure a sizeable bank loan, this sum is even more eye-popping. We owe, we owe, so off to work we go.

As Canadians so often do, we are waking up slowly to the reality of this economy-busting, ever-growing deficit. Simple facts help to bridge the gap from disinterest, ignorance and apathy to action from individuals, corporations and are unnecessarily handed out by senior government. Taking note of this and urging our MP to close the purse may make a difference when the next federal budget rolls around.

As with the environment, we must address the deficit knowing full well the benefits won't be realized in our own lifetime. We'll all be dead before Canada's debt-free, but if we can help ensure a high standard of living with ample opportunities for our children and grandchildren, why not start now?

Can an "aware" society afford to choose the military option much longer?

ALBOX

Dear Editor,

It was during the early 1980s that the peace movement gathered momentum in the western nations. One obvious reason for this was the paranoia caused by the threat of a nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union. Another major reason was the amount of money being spent on the arms race instead of our deteriorating environment and social programs.

Well, we're into the 1990s now and the Cold War is finally over; yet recent events in the Persian Gulf region suggest that the world is no closer to being a safer place to live than it was 10 years ago.

Sure it's great that the war was fairly short-lived. However, it is now known that more than 100,000 people, the majority being innocent civilians, died in Kuwait and Iraq during this war.

In his State of the Union address in late February, President Bush decreed that the U.S. is now the "only country that can bring peace to the world". In late March, Mr. Bush was riding extremely high in popularity polls in the U.S., one of the major reasons being that since the Gulf War, BILLIONS of dollars of contracts had come into the U.S. for some of their sophisticated weaponry.

The major buyers are Israel and Saudi Arabia. One has to wonder just how long it will be before another bloody conflict arises in this part of the world.

And one has to wonder why the U.S.-led coalition chose the military option when other methods such as economic sanctions were barely given a chance.

We are all aware that we are living in a highly technological society. Can such an "aware" society afford to choose the military option much longer? The world's population is growing at an alarming rate. Should we not try more peaceful means to settle conflicts?

The focus of the peace movement has changed: the Cold War may be over, but the ARMS TRADE flourishes. (Even at this moment arms merchants are frantically building more powerful weapons to sell to anyone who has enough money to buy them). The Canadian government hosts its own arms trade fair, called ARMX, each year in Ottawa. Many representatives from countries with long records of human atrocities appear and place orders.

How do you feel about our federal government's committed policy to tax us more and more, erode our social programs and scrap plans to clean up our environment, yet spend $1 BILLION on the Gulf War and further INCREASE Canada's military budget by another $600 million?

The polls said the vast majority of Canadians supported our country's actions in the War. Yet not once was the source of these mysterious polls given during the heavily censored media coverage.

For all of you who are not happy with our government's military philosophy, for all of you who would rather Canada once again be noted for its traditional role as a peace-making country, there is a chance to be heard.

On Apr. 20, Vancouver is hosting the tenth annual Walk for Peace and Planetary Survival. It begins at Kitsilano Beach at noon. Maybe it will feel good to go there and participate. Perhaps our government will note the numbers present and re-evaluate their policies.

It may sound very cliche nowadays, but let's think of the world we're leaving for our children.

A Squamish man reported the theft of license plates from his vehicle Apr. 8. The plates, numbered: MCL 552, may have been seen in the downtown area, police said.

RCMP received a report Apr. 9 that wood had been stolen from a leased woodlot in the Cheekye Fan.

I have ambivalent feelings about daylight savings time. I like the long evenings but I also like the bright mornings, and when the sun comes up an hour later it always seems colder, especially these mornings when the temperature is just hovering around zero. But despite the cold there are definite signs that spring is here. I do have daffodils in bloom although my granddaughter and her husband, who came over from Sooke the other weekend, smughy told me theirs were finished blooming. Another few days will see the japonica in full bloom; there are big fat buds on the rhododendrons and the crabapple on the river bank is ready to burst into bloom.

Last week I commented about the flowering cherries on the main street which were going to be eliminated in the revitalization program. I was so sorry to hear they were going, but Grant Dickie called me up recently to say they were lifted and taken up to the Civic Centre where they are going to look after them, fertilize and prune them. In the fall, when the sap goes down to the roots they are going to be pruned again and lifted. They would be moved back to the downtown area and replanted, possibly close to the chamber of commmerce building.

I do hope they can save them, they are such beautiful trees and look like huge pink bouquets when in bloom.

One of my Christmas presents was one of those "green" composters. When Cyndy and Gary were over they brought it with them and Gary installed it in a sunny spot on the lawn. I don't have much kitchen waste, because one person doesn't generate that much, but it will take vegetable peelings, any scraps of vegetables and fruit, meat or grease, etc. So now I am keeping a small ice cream pail in the bottom of the kitchen cupboard (under the sink) to collect it all and take it out to the cone. All you have to do is sprinkle some Rot-It on the stuff and close the top of the cone. The sun and the air do the rest and it decomposes into compost which can be used in the garden. Leaves can also be put in the cone along with a small amount of grass clippings if you wish. and would as soon fight as eat. It's fascinating to watch them chase others from the feeder and keep them away.

I have known people who say they demand to be fed. If the feeder is empty in the morning they will come to the window and bug me till I go out and refill it.

Hummingbird nests are fascinating things. They are small enough to fit in the palm of your hand and the eggs are tiny as befits so small a bird. They are about the size of peas.

The first nest I ever saw was at Hillcrest Lodge at Alta Lake. There was a huge cedar tree close to the lodge and in the lower, limbs which were only a few feet off the ground, there was this tiny nest with several small eggs in it. People were always passing by the tree on their way to the cabins but it didn't seem to phase the birds. They hatched the eggs and you could see them feeding their babies until they were large enough to fly away.

I do have lots of other birds around, however. There are dozens of finches at the silo feeder; sometimes all six perches are full and they peck away at the seeds until suddenly something startles them and they disappear in a flurry of wings.

Other frequent visitors at the feeder are the red-winged blackbirds, one of my favorites, with the gold and crimson on their wings. the brilliant colors are most distinct when they fly and they have a beautiful clear call. The blackbirds habituated the swamp where McDonald's is now and when the swamp was filled and the rushes disappeared I was afraid that was the last of them. But there are a few rushes between the highways and Loggers Lane and this may be enough for them. They also nested in the brush between my house and the neighbors and when I was working in the herb garden last year if I came too close to the brush they would dive bomb me, skimming just inches above my head.

It was frightening. They would miss me by inches, but the minute I moved away from the fence line they would leave me alone.

I remember going over to visit my neighbor one afternoon and the three cats accompanied me. The minute the birds spied them they dive bombed them and finally the cats retreated under the truck to get away from them.

I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen it. The poor cats seemed to be dumbfounded at their hostility!

Incidentally the cats love this warm sunny weather we have occasionally. They have each found themselves little beds in the sun and lie there soaking it up. One of them, crippled little Toughy, who loves to lie on top of one of the hot air vents in the house, has found himself a cosy spot on the porch where he lies and basks in the sunshine.

Teachers declare April 17th as a day of concern for education

The teachers of Howe Sound School District #48 are speaking out against Bill 82, which is a direct attack on education and a direct attack on free collective bargaining.

But the nice part of the whole deal is that it only needs to be emptied every two or three years if you use only kitchen waste and a small amount of other organic material in it.

It's also an attractive addition to the yard and looks clean, neat and tidy, not like compost bins which can be unattractive and messy.

The hummingbirds are back in Squamish. Friends tell me they arrived on April 1. I don't have too much success with hummingbirds, I don't know why; but I do love the little jewelled fliers. They are so beautifully colored and their darting flight is amazing. They are also feisty little birds

Census reaches out to new Canadians

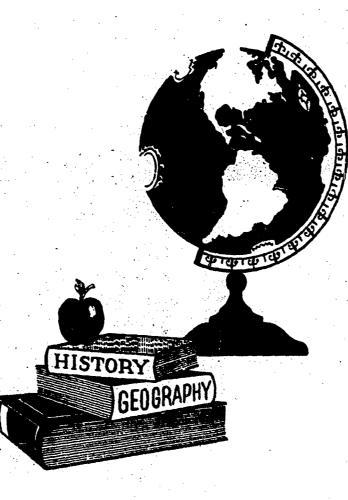

In 1989, over 25,000 new immigrants chose B.C. as their home, bringing with them skills, investment dollars and new perspectives.

In an effort to ensure that new immigrants are aware of the up-coming national census, Statistics Canada has initiated a number of campaigns. They include providing census questions in 30 different languages and a multi-lingual telephone assistance service.

As a signatory of the United Nations Convention, Canada has an obligation to protect and give sanction to refugees. In the 1991 census, refugee claimants, individuals holding student or work visas and those in the country on ministerial permits, will be counted.

Census data provides a basis for decision-making about the social, educational and health needs in every community, and is used by businesses choosing to relocate. Counts are used to calculate federal government transfer payments to the provinces. For every person missed in the 1991 census, the provinces could lose some $600 every year over the five-year intercensal period.

Census day is June 4.

Teachers have bargained and hope to continue to bargain for quality public education. Their collective agreements contain important improvements in learning conditions for children and working conditions for teachers; improvements like preparation time, professional development funds, class size reductions, and provisions for support for mainstreamed children. These conditions for quality education are threatened by Bill 82.

*Bill 82 gives the government the right to overturn a contract that was legally negotiated between teachers and trustees.

A long time resident of Squamish, Arie Hoogenboom, age 69, passed away on April 8, 1991.

Arie and his wife, Alida and four children; Margo, Gerda, Linda, Arie, all arrived in Canada (Vancouver) in 1954 and lived in a one room apartment on Alexander street. He then moved his family to Burnaby and rented the top floor of an older home. By then he had only $100 left over and used that to buy an old paneltruck, some vegetables, fruit and potatoes and took his family with him and sold vegetables door to door. That was the way the family came through the first winter in Canada. Through a customer of his, he met Stan Clarke of Squamish and he brought the family to Squamish. Arie then used his skills as a carpenter and started to build houses. Frank was born after they arrived in Squamish. Arie was educated in Rotterdam, Holland, went to drafting school, trade school and was taught how to make blue prints and how to read them. While still in Holland he was a Foreman with the Rotterdam waterworks and also worked in construction. Arie was a member of the Hospital Board, Arts Council, Fall Fair committee and also a member of the Masons. Arie was an avid painter and loved to draw. Fishing was also one of his favourite hobbies. Before coming to Canada he used to sing in a choir as he enjoyed opera music. Arie is survived by his wife: Alida; sons: Arie and Frank (Teresa); daughters: Margo (Chris) Wyssen, Gerda (Bill) Hall, Linda (Bill) Sadler, 16 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren. Arie will be missed by all.

The Squamish Days committee is currently grappling with the issue of how to improve the traditional Loggers' Stomp dance on the Saturday night this year.

The dance has been plagued with rowdiness the last number of years, and Squamish Days committee president Ray Keyes is considering a number of changes to the event. Meetings with the RCMP and the new 'Serving It Right' legislation have also motivated the

"Deficit Diet Plan" continues to hammer away at average Canadian's perception of national debt

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce is half-way through the first year of its "Deficit Diet Plan", a public information program to inform the average citizen about the huge accumulating debt facing our country. And it now appears the public is beginning to listen.

"As we developed the material for the program we had to translate the federal accounts into everyday terms to which the average taxpayer could re$65.000 a minute in interest on the federal debt, or just under $4 million an hour. And the recent federal budget prinicipal of the debt by a cent.

While people are slowly becoming more aware and con-Remember, that $43 million cerned about the federal debt,

Reid said, progress to taking action is slow.

When Finance Minister Michael Wilson announced the 1991 federal budget, with nearly a seven per cent increase in program spending, it didn't meet the Canadian Chamber's call for a two-year freeze on allocating these dollars, he said.

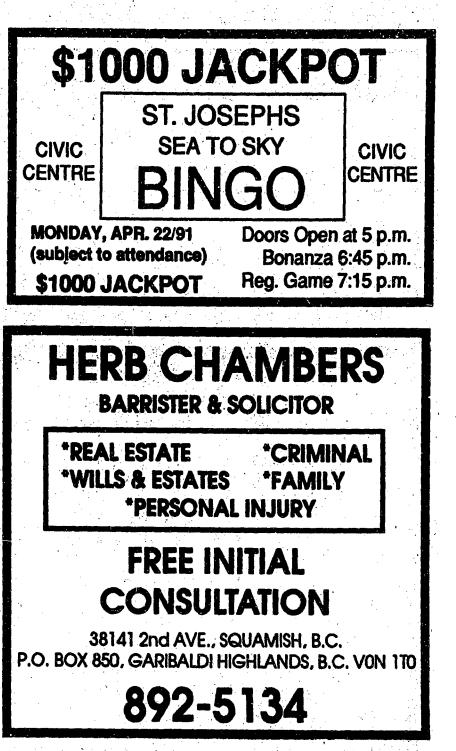

"Maybe they still don't understand just how serious the problem is."

While many Canadians have called for spending cuts by MPs and Senators on Parliament Hill, Reid said, this is just another misunderstanding of the enormity of our national debt.

If we locked the doors on Parliament Hill -- eliminating all money we spend on the House of Commons and Senate -- for 111 years, we would then be able to save enough money just to cover the federal deficit for the next 12 months.

"In the context of the total federal budget, the cost of running the House of Commons and Senate is peanuts," Reid said. "The big money is tied up in federal government pro-late," said Canadian Chamber president Tim Reid, who honoured the Squamish Chamber of Commerce with a luncheon visit last Wednesday.

While the accumulated national debt stands at 550 billion dollars, the Canadian Chamber has brought that huge sum down to a figure we can all grapple with individually. That is, every man, woman and child in the country owes $21,000 as his or her share of the debts that have been rolled up by the feds and the provinces.

"Ever wonder why newborn babies in this country cry?" asked Reid. "They're wet, they're cold, and they owe $21,000."

With the national debt "clearly still Public Enemy Number One," the Canadian Chamber continues to meet with chambers of commerce across the country, getting the message out through businesses large and small.

"Outside the ranks of the economists, almost no one -business people included -- had any appreciation of the real size of the problem," said Reid. "And, on top of all these concerns, few taxpayers realized that they held the key to solving the whole mess."

The key, he said, is to convince taxpayers they must restrain their appetite for government spending "for their own sake and that of their children who will someday have to pay off the debt." More staggering figures.

Seigneur, indeed -- Ramsey, what are you up to? Recently, in the Vancouver Sun, there appeared a feature concerning the secessionist dreams of a small corner of southeast B.C.

Fed up with both Victoria and Ottawa, they have said "a pox on both you houses" and live for the day they can become an independent kingdom. Normally, I would applaud such ambition.

However, the article was illustrated with a page-wide picture of "the self-styled seigneur" of the area, waving his walking-stick like a sceptre. Suspicion has begun to gnaw at the vitals.

You see, the central figure of this story is one Bruce Ramsey, raconteur, retired newspaperman, author and historian known as the Bard of Sparwood. He has declared against income tax, sales tax and liquor tax.

And when Ramsey is involved, it is not unreasonable to ask "what's in it for him?"

First of all, we need the dictionary definition of "seigneur," the title he has assumed:

"Feudal lord, lord of manor, person of high rank or whose demeanor etc. correspond to popular idea of great nobleman."

In other words, The Boss. It figures.

Okay -- and what is seignorage?

"Something claimed by sovereign or feudal superior as prerogative; crown's right to percentage on bullion brought to mint for coinage."

Aha. In other words, The Boss gets a piece of the action -- right off the top.

Now, unless I missed it, none of this was mentioned in the Sun story. Could it be that Ramsey deliberately concealed these facts?

Before we can make some headway with what is perceived by many as Canada's largest problem, the government must strive to ensure that annual budget deficits stop growing and start getting smaller each year.

Once that is achieved, Reid said, Canadians can hope for the day when a future Minister of Finance "stuns the House of Commons by actually tabling a break-even budget."

And, after this historic step (not made since the 1960s) is made, he said, the toughest stage of achieving national financial health begins.

"There will have to be a succession of federal budgets that will generate surpluses that can be applied against the accumulated debt," Reid said.

And how long will that take? we ask.

"Let's just say that it is probable that no one is this room dawn of a debt-free Canada." Another issue of great concern for the Canadian Chamber

Trails Coalition discovering new recreation paths

The road to discovery is in mid-stream for the Squamish Trails Coalition, which is wrapping up its series of public information meetings Apr. 28 at the Brackendale Art Gallery. "We're basically looking for people to identify any trail routes and sections that they use or have used, and what use they have made of them," said Jim Wisnia, coalition co-ordinator.

Using the Civic Centre as a hub, the coalition is trying to tie neighborhoods in the municipality together by identifying as many trail loops as possible.

Wisnia said the steering committee is also hoping people will come forward with strategies that will ensure the community continues to have trails as development pressure in the area grows.

The end product of these meetings will be a map indicating trails in the valley. It will identify development priorities for trails and establish a set of recommendations that will ensure trail corridors are maintained as development takes place.

"For me the meetings that have already taken place have been a real revelation because I've found out about a lot of trails that I previously didn't know existed," Wisnia said,

"There are all kinds of people doing different things and going different places and we want to know what they know," he said.

Art not just for art's sake

Art Nuko artist Carl Chaplin is the harbinger of depression. The apocalyptic visionary, Carl Chaplin waves a hand of wee at the istence one dark cloud after another. If you had thought Planet

Earth was in rough shape before, the psyche's last storage box of peace and hope would have been torn and thrashed from Chaplin's lashing words of despair.

Speaking before members of Squamish Citizens for Peace Saturday night, Chaplin's call for action was made with a very one-sided sword indeed. Columns of smoke billowing from 10 percent of the world's oil reserves, swamping the atmosphere in the Middle East and beyond, was explained as an apocalyptic experiment out of control.

Satellite research and development money being spent in the Pentagon for a destructive net of robotic technology, that will ensure an automatic war can rage on for six months from space, was implied as reflecting the inherent insanity of the military industrial complex. And words of ozone depletion caused by the Space Shuttle's burning of rocket fuel shattered what little rays of light remained in a dimly lit gallery tea room.

Although Chaplin said for the first time in history everyone has the ability to design and choose the direction in which man should take the planet, by the end of his polemic all the inertia had been eaten from any thoughts of action.

Hanging on the gallery walls this week is a paradoxical mix of environmental innocence and fright, and apocalyptic visions of atomic annihilation and desperation, symbolizing the contradictory purposes of Chaplin's overwhelming frontline words of human mindlessness.

On one side of the dogmatic sword Chaplin urges action through sincere and earnest discussions, either in public or in private, with those who share the same concern and Outdoor Burning Permits Required.

A permit is required for outdoor burning during the fire season from April 15 to October 15.

Any person intending to burn outside municipal boundaries should contact the nearest Ministry of Forests District Office. The legal description of the property will be required.

Sites planned for Industrial fires, including land clearing, may be inspected by a Forest Officer to determine conditions for safe burning.

Areas for domestic fires such as spring clean up of yard debris may not require an inspection by a Forest Officer prior to issuance of a burning permit. Permit conditions will restrict fire size and burning area.

Burning permits are subject to refusal or cancellation should weather conditions or the proposed burn area be considered unsafe.

Use of an enclosed burner such as a barrel with a screen cover of not more than 5/8 mesh does not require a burning permit.

A permit is also not required for campfires however there are regulations governing this type of fire.

Ministry of Forests burning permits are free.

If you have a problem with a fire, are in doubt about the permit or how to burn safely, contact your nearest Ministry of Forests District Office.

The dates of the annual fire season may be extended or reduced depending onlocal fire danger conditions. Current information can be provided by the nearest Forest District office.

That's the fact gleaned from statistics which show that people in Squamish have a higher risk of strokes and heart disease than the provincial average.

As heart disease is already the leading cause of death in British Columbia, a committee of local volunteers is hoping to increase awareness of what they call "Hearty Lifestyles" --a style of living that should improve heart health in Squamish.

Fraser River, which include the and Lillooet Birkenhead Rivers.

This closure has resulted from concerns over cutthroat stocks in the lower end of the Fraser River, Conservation Officer Shawn Brinsky said.

The second closure affects angling in the Blind Channel and at the mouth of the Squamish River. These tidal water areas are closed to all trout and char; however, these fish may be kept when caught in non-tidal waters, for instance, the Squamish River. According to the B.C. Fresh char in tidal waters extends up to the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

Water Fishing Regulations,

Brinsky also reminds anglers they are limited to two trout or char caught in rivers, which must each exceed 30 cm. Of these, only one can be over 50 cm. And, he stresses, all wild steelhead must be released.

A bait ban is presently in effect in local rivers, he added, meaning that no natural bait such as worms, corn or roe may be used. Local waters affected include the Squamish, Cheakamus and Birkenhead Rivers.

Anglers must use only single, barbless hooks while trying their luck in local streams and rivers -- allowing undersized or oversized fish to be released unharmed.

If you're planning on going fishing this season, make sure you have a new license, Brinksy said, as all last year's licenses expired Mar. 31.

warmer water, he said, which have brought the rivers up to allow fish to begin moving upstream into their spawning areas.

Anyone wishing to report any type of resource violation -from polluters to hunters or fishermen breaking the rules -should call the Conservation Officer Service at 892-5971 between 8:30 a.m. and 12 noon Monday through Friday. Outside those hours, call the provincial toll-free 24-hour number. Zenith 2235. This line is not used for information purposes, but for reporting of violations only.

Be sure to note the details of any incident you report, Brinsky said, including the time, place, circumstances and description of individuals. The most important detail to note, however, is the license plate number of the violator.

tle from the team that has held top honors in the Royal City Hockey League for the last six years.

The Cyclones made an amazing recovery in the second period, after the first ended with the Beavers claiming all of the three goals scored.

Adam Thompson, Kerry Gladsen and Craig Cooke took the successful shots on net for the visiting team in the first period.

Cyclones' Jan Ziedel opened the scoring in the second, with assists from Richard Lee and Randy Leblanc.

Leblanc then made a spectacular run down the boards and bulleted the puck past Beavers' goaltender, Rob Cooke, taking the score to 3-2. Early in the third period, Eldon Cooney tied the game up for the Cyclones, with assists looked as if the home team might get the game.

But it was not to be, as Craig Cooke of the Beavers slipped another shot past goalie Darrin Yonin on a power play, taking the score to 4-3 for the Beavers.

With six seconds to go the Beavers capitalized on an empty net after Yonin was pulled from goal. The final score was 5-3.

Cyclones' director John Howell said the game was a clean, hard-hitting game. "They didn't quit, even when we were down," said Howell. The game was relatively penalty-free, with the Beavers being awarded seven, and the Cyclones just four.

The recipients of the end-ofseason awards have been decided. Paul Shulte gets the award for top defenceman, Richard Lee is top scorer, MVP goes to Darrin Yonin and the award for the most sportsmanlike player goes to Pete Vukonic.

"They played great," said Howell, "They went a lot fur-

Dave Rainville, coach of the Beavers, had nothing but praise for the Cyclones. The team started off the season on a fairly sour note, and had a reputation within the league for behaving badly, both on and off the ice.

"I think something should be said," said Rainville, "about the turnaround with regards to their attitude, philosophy and general hockey. They should be afforded accolades for their change in attitude."

Rainville attributed the change in the Cyclones to the change in management and coaching.

"If the top is operating properly, then the rest just falls into place," he said.

He also commended the players on the great hockey they played this year.

Five players will be selected from each of the Cyclones, Seattle Indians, PoCo Blues and the Burnaby Bingers, to take on the Beavers in an allstar game at the Civic Centre May 4.

Tamburri takes top spot at squash club

Squamish Squash Club held its club championship and spring handicap tournament from Apr. 7-13.

Over 60 members participated, displaying an excellent level of squash and a standard of sportsmanship that was a pleasure to see.

Despite the handicapper's strong efforts to ensure all the strong players were eliminated, the final was contended by Doug Sheffield and Steve Tamburri, with Tamburri eventually coming out on top in a long, hard-fought battle. Vic Puchmayr beat rookie Neil Metcalf in the consolation "Best of the Rest" event.

In the ladies' championship event, top seeds Caroline Solonenko and Cathy Dickinson got through to the final, with Dickinson winning an excellent match by three games to one. Anne Bracey defeated Judith Fothergill in the consolation event.

The men's champion is Andrew MacPhail, who defeated Steve Tamburri in a final which, if it was not as long and exciting as some of the earlier games, clearly demonstrated that the standard of squash in the club is continuing to rise.

Pee Wees wrap up season on a happy note

The Howe Sound Minor Hockey League Pee Wee division wrapped up the season on a triumphant note.

The 12 and 13-year-old Howe Sound players hosted teams from the North Shore, the Sunshine Coast, Surrey and Langley the weekend of Apr. 6 and 7.

The teams were invited to compete in the HSMHA invitational Challenge Cup on the basis of their competitive strengths. The North Shore Winter Club came in with no losses and first place in the LGHL, and Surrey and Langley placed in the top half of league play.

But the visitors were no match for the local teams, who placed an incredible first, second and third in the final showings.

The Sunshine Coast placed fourth, and the Langley Eagles took home the trophy for the Most Sportsmanlike Team. The Howe Sound teams games results are as follows:

Howe Sound - Overwaitea (First Place): Overwaitea 4 - NSWC 1

Overwaitea 6 - Langley Eagles

Gamesheet points credited Jason James (14), Craig Halliday (11), Shane Hurren (4), Erin Ray (2) and John Lacoursiere (1).

Accentuating team play, both defensively and offensively, were linemates Jamie Jonah, Billy Featherston, Terry McGlame and Lucas Lewis.

Goaltender Adam Ryan allowed only seven goals between the pipes during the entire tournament.

The Overwaitea team was coached by Dale Jonah and Rob Hurren.

Point-getters for goals and assists were Johnathon Vanzella (11), Mark Lynd (10), Shane Antone (9), Jeremy Marshall (7), Ryan Johnson (6), Ryan Vaugeois (3), Ryan Howie (3), David Jones (3), Lisa Swens (3), Joey Brooks (2) and Rory Tait (2).

Ouarterbacking the team, recording a shut-out to capture third place, was Jamie Splinter. Lino Vanzella and John Johnstone coached.

Tournament volunteers came to the rescue, helping out with a tournament not conceived of until February.

Thanks go to all those who helped out, particularly Vicki Hurren, Kathy and Roy Weiss, Linda and Dale Jonah, Grace Mapstone and Pat Halliday, Prizes, raffles, give-aways and a fun shoot-out helped create the successful atmosphere of the tournament.

Awards packages included trophies for the top four spots, 56 MVP medals, Most Sportsmanlike Team trophy and participant trophies.

Support by the local population was great and there is talk of bigger and bigger tournaments for next year.

Squash club winds up finals

Probably the best final from a spectator's point of view, was the men's consolation between Ken Miller and John Perdue. Miller had won an incredibly hard-fought semi-final at noon against Dave Ramsay, and less than four hours later found himself back on court for the final. It took almost 75 minutes to decide the winner. There are only so many miles one can run a day, and Miller ran them all and more. He eventually succumbed by the narrowest of margins in the fifth and deciding game.

Finals were followed by the first and hopefully annual Squash Club dinner/dance. Over 90 members and friends attended and after an excellent meal provided by club manager Theo Mayer and his staff, presentations were made, and music by Doshef provided the opportunity to round off the week's activities with dancing. Memberships to the Squamish Squash Club are on sale for an incredible $100 from now until the end of September. Take advantage of this opportunity while you can. In January 1988, the club had 18 playing members. There are now between 70 and 100.

The summer league starts up in just over a week.

Twigg offers insight into B.C. book business

Alan Twigg set out at the age of 17 to share his youthful idealism with the rest of the world. Tempered in time by experience, he now earnestly takes on the role of helping other people share beliefs and yourself."

He says the Toronto publishing community caters to a circulation that amounts to about five per cent of the population. He says it's important to question the legitimacy of the ideals, and "little pearls of wisdom".

As publisher of BC Bookworld, Twigg provides information on the province's writing community, hoping to nurture the region's writers and bring an end to the Toronto elitism that permeates the publishing industry.

Discussing the nature of the book publishing business at the Squamish Public Library last Wednesday night, the author/publisher said he gradually discovered the reason why there weren't many writers from British Columbia.

Twigg says it appeared there were no writers, not because there were no writers but because there were no publishers. "If you're waiting for Mommy and Daddy in Toronto to do something for you, you can wait until Hell freezes over," says Twigg. "So don't complain about how others The publisher of BC Bookworld offered helpful tips to aren't doing things for you. authors looking to break into the publishing world. The solution is to do things for publishing elite and what it is telling people when it says what it finds important in a book has to be important for the rest of the country.

Twigg says the publishing industry has to become more democratic and he hopes he has fostered this ideal through his quarterly newspaper.

"It's an educational product that presents, in an informative rather than judgmental way, the news that's in books to as many people as possible.

"People want information because they want to figure things out for themselves. When you're being judgmental you're doing that for them."

Developing the writing community in British Columbia is important because regional books help people understand things about themselves, and the lives they live.

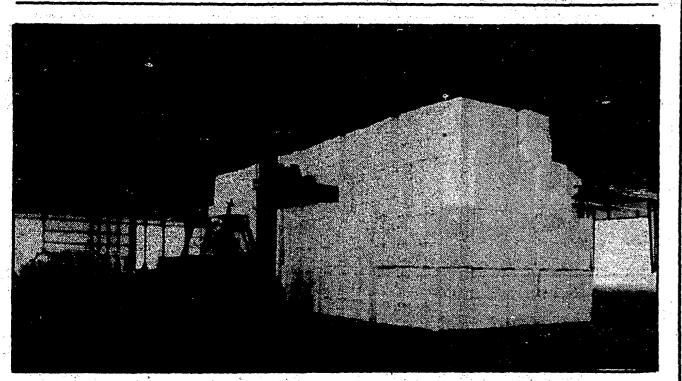

"Where you come from and where you live is important to you as a being. But the more we become members of the 'global village', the more our own lives become less important.

"The meaning of our lives is being robbed by this industrial global media complex. And that's why I'm interested in people who write and who want information [as to what is written]," says Twigg.

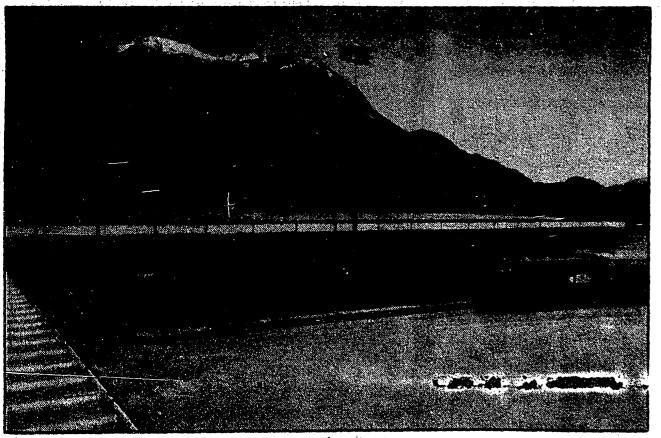

Through the writing, publishing and reading of books, people become more aware of themselves and the community and people around them. It's important, then, that the writing community in B.C. is encouraged and supported through exposure in the media. The writing community in the province is becoming more and more sophisticated all the time Twigg says, and part of that success must be accredited to BC Bookworld - from which other media pick up information.

"B.C. culture is fascinating and writers in B.C. are as exciting as those anywhere else...There is nothing inferior about where we live," says Twigg.

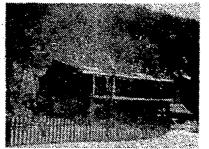

EXPANSION MODE-- The first load of pulp is offloaded Friday in Squamish Terminals' new warehouse, which adds another 210,000 square feet of storage space for the expanding business. This year the Terminals expects to handle 900,000 tonnes of pulp, with an additional 600,000 to 700,000 tonnes expected to come on stream in the next few years. The new warehouse increases storage capacity by 70 per cent, said Ray Wilburn, Squamish Terminals' traffic manager.

A NEW LANDMARK--Finishing touches on construction of this new 210,000-squarefoot warehouse at Squamish Terminals are being made as the first load of pulp is stored there. Work on the $4 million warehouse began in October. The design of the building allows for future expansion. A new office and maintenance shop were also added at the Terminals' site.

Squamish is the greatest place in the world to live: Reason No. 311 II.a.

By Mike Yates -- Special to The Times

Park Royal about a week ago: I'm in Woodward's shopping for male lingeric. I'd love to blame Jack Fowler of Dub-yuh, Dub-yuh, Dub-yuh here in Squamish for my having to travel to Big Smoke for underwear (actually, I've been trying to figure out how to blame Fowler for the recent carthquake -- still working on it), but he doesn't carry my brand and I'm too old a body to learn new gaunchies.

Something is wrong. I'm listing to the left. My keys.

Mikey's. Great pun.

I phose to hug myself.

Put the mind in reverse and back-track. Used the keys to put something in geriatric Toyota in Squamish. Heather drove, Using her keys.

Mine can't possibly have dangled from the trunk all the way from Squamish to West Van. I sprint – at 96 frames per second – for the door, shouting over my shoulder: "Hold them drawers; I'll be right back." Outside, stnazingly, I find the keys in the trunk, drop them in my pocket, and dash back to collect the new u-tron and wife.

When we come out, a lady with a couple of teen-agers is standing near the Toyoter. She begins to explain in a pleasing accent that she and the antsy kids have been waiting for us because (she's stepping back toward the trunk as she talks) the keys were dangling from the trunk. Then she glances down and sees, with alarm, that the keys are gone.

I explain that I must have dashed out and grabbed

Her teenagers were fired up to get into the stores and she disappeared as I yelled thanks again. Regrettably, I didn't get her name.

Thanks again, Ma'am, whoever you are. I'll see you on Cleveland and we can make better acquaintance.

Can you imagine, someone in Vancouver hanging around the trunk of a stranger's car to insure keys won't be stolen? Not likely.

Someone from Squamish, yes,

This sort of ethic is peculiar to non-metropolitan communities.

Give you a funny example. I was living in Port Clements in the Queen Charlotte Islands. My next door neighbor was supervisor of the shop at the logging outfit for which we both worked. A week or so earlier, we had had a disagreement in the marshalling yard and he wasn't speaking to me. It was raining heavily. A great number of boxes of books arrived and the driver offloaded them in my driveway. There was no way I was going to get them under cover before the water runied them. My neighbor came out his front door and stepped over the fence between the two properties and we two apes got the books in in a jiffy. He stepped back over the fence and entered his house. He hadn't spoken a word to me during the entire process. Another week went by before he cooled off enough to speak as though nothing had aspected.

He knew that he was simply paying his small com-

Atavism which cannot define itself in that context. Whether fourth-generation back-biting, a local joke, a hello from a face whose name doesn't come to mind until the moment has passed, or a cacamamic sign in a window, the collective mind of Squamish is not only sensory but personal.

In the south of the U.S., there are three kinds of yankees: northerners (anyone new is presumed from the north until proved innocent); straight yankees (these come, do what they came to do, then vanish); and damn yankees (these suckers come to stay). When you move to a small community, you're watched and you watch for an indefinite period. Then, one day, occasioned by nothing in particular, you realize you have not just moved there. You have become a part of there. You find yourself chuckling at the non-locals.

Only in Squamish could I drop in and swap abase with the Brothers McCartney – all of whom wear the same colour of shirt, red; is this a political statement? – at the deelie-bob store. Where else could I buy a Newfie industrial-strength rain-hat, after a couple of weeks of high-level negotiation – by shaking a can full of coins in an undisclosed (and unknown) amount?

Where else could I perfect the drive-by hird-flip, except with the cooperation of Brucie's Chevron employces?

Roadside screening devices weed out drinking drivers

The hand-held breath tester known to its users as the RSD has been a big success in the CounterAttack against BC's drinking-drivers. During the Christmas roadchecks the police reported they detected and charged almost a third more drinking-drivers per vehicle stopped, than without the RSDs during last year's Christmas CounterAttack.

The RSD is being used yearround in all of B.C.'s police jurisdictions. The RSDs are always effective but they really shine during the roadchecks. During the Spring CounterAttack this year police expect to stop over 250,000 vehicles end drivers. Those suspected of drinking and driving will meet the RSD -- right where they sit -- behind the wheel of their vehicle or beside it where they're stopped.

Roadside suspensions, fines, jail-terms, are all possible punishments for the driver who drinks, gets behind the wheel, and drives. Refuse to give a breath sample? The same penalties for being impaired are promised -- a minimum year long prohibition from driving plus a $300 fine, to a maxiumum $2,000 fine and six months in jail.

The first 200 RSDs distributed to the police were used during the Christmas CounterAttack and officers across the province have been using them every day since.

Drunk or sober, you may meet an RSD at a roadcheck this spring; sober you'll be on your way, but drunk, there isn't any excuse that can prevent the known consequences.

The drinking-driver may not like the RSD very much, for the rest of us on the road the Roadside Screening Device is a little blessing - "that fits in the hand of every policeman in B.C.."

Don't be a drinking-driver, this spring or at any time.

Children take on estuary clean-up

Valleycliffe Elementary School students turned words into action at the Souamish estuary during World Wildlife Week.

"I couldn't believe the extent to which the estuary is being used as a garbage dump, so I thought it would be worthwhile to bring the students in here and raise their awareness," said Hilary Fisher, Valleycliffe Elementary School teacher.

The field trip was part of a school-wide study unit on the estuary that has encompassed everything from art to poetry to sciences and social studies.

It took the grade five and six students just 20 minutes last Tuesday to fill about 30 black garbage bags with refuse.

Car parts, construction materials and a television set were also collected, but the students were only able to make a small dent in the amount of garbage spread throughout the Fisherman's Entrance of the estuary and Squamish River.

"Before we came down here we talked about the importance of not having garbage and toxic materials near the estuary and the river, and the leaching process that takes place," said Fisher.

She said kids have a much better awareness of garbage and recycling than older generations.

Carney's Waste Systems volunteered to pick up the larger materials and the remaining garbage bags that could not be stuffed and transported in the truck the group commissioned from a parent.

Valleycliffe Elementary students clean-up the Fisherman's Entrance to the Squamish Estuary as part of World Wildlife Week. The kids barely made a dent in the garbage scattered throughout the area.
