

Fellowes resigns from council to care for her elderly mother

Service will continue in other ways

Patricia Heintzman

un. Meg Fellowes's contribution to municipal council will be greatly missed, said Mayor Anne Lonsdale as she announced Fellowes's resignation at last week's council meeting.

"It was not an easy decision," Fellowes said last week. "It was extremely interesting two years and I truly enjoyed doing the work I did. Even the battling and fro with the mayor and other councillors was something I enjoyed."

At Fellowes's decision to resign her seat before completing her three-year term was the result of no longer being able to balance the demands of being a single parent to my 91-year-old mother with the demands of being a councillor (which she sometimes added up to more than 20 hours of commitments a week). The much-loved about family values take priority over my desire to serve as a councillor.

Her decision on whether or not to fill Fellowes's seat on council with a byelection will be addressed at the next council meeting March 5.

Administrator Bob Miles said a byelection may be combined with a referendum on proposed developments for a new Squamish Public Library. But a decision on whether or not to go to a referendum on the private/public library proposal may not be made until March, said Miles. Council has an option whether or not to call a byelection since the following circumstances apply: the vacancy occurred after Jan. 1 in a year of a general election; the vacancy will fill the office; the vacancy is not in an office elected on the basis of a neighborhood constituency; and the number of remaining council members is at least one greater than the quorum for council. Fellowes expressed concern about a council with an even number of seats, adding she hopes council decides to hold a byelection.

Looking back at her two years in office, Fellowes cites her participation in the tourism development plan community-based project, which she says provides direction and comfort for both community and investors; her contribution to the book Squamish, The Shinning Valley by Kevin McLane, which she says is a "wonderful resource that develops community understanding and pride and is also a valuable marketing tool"; and working with the youth of Squamish in getting the first stage of the transit expansion up and running as highlights in her short political career.

Three things Fellowes says she regrets not accomplishing are: getting regular council meetings on the free-net; making negligible progress towards comprehensively addressing visitor needs such as parking, washrooms, water fountains, transit, and information needs such as signing and map systems; and making no progress towards a community development plan.

"In a community as diverse, fragmented, and troubled as Squamish, considerable attention needs to be focused on bringing diverse, isolated, and alienated neighborhoods and sectors together to develop a common purpose and sense of belonging that enriches and sustains a livable community," said Fellowes in a press release.

Fellowes said she will continue her role in less demanding projects including community network development and the Eagle Watch program.

She has not ruled out running for office in the future, provided her family circumstances change. But she says she understands the public can be unforgiving when an elected politician resigns midway through term.

A Kiss For Mom — Meg Fellowes gives her mom, Pat, a kiss after resigning her position on council. She said her family comes first, and the demands of serving on council did not allow her to care for her 91-year-old mother the way she wants to. Ross Wahl photo

Deadbolts twisted, businesses robbed

Four downtown businesses were broken into in the same manner overnight Feb. 18. Merchants opened their businesses the following morning to find the deadbolts on their doors had been twisted off and items stolen. The culprits did their work quickly and without drawing attention to themselves, says an RCMP press release.

One of the businesses suffered a loss of more than 200 men's Levi jeans, blue and black in color, sizes 28-36, and models 501, 512, 516, 535, 555 and 619. The total value of the theft is $10,000. Two other clothing stores hit during the night lost cash which had been left in the register overnight. One other store was also broken into.

"Basic and simple security measures would have deterred if not prevented the culprits from committing these crimes," said Cpl. Cliff Doherty. "Deadbolt plates could be installed for minimal expense. Why are businesses leaving cash in the store overnight? If you haven't noticed, the criminal scene in Squamish is changing. The community must begin to take better security measures as the old saying 'it won't happen to me again' doesn't work anymore."

Doherty suggests business owners and managers concerned about the safety of their premises should contact companies which specialize in business security, many of which offer free estimates to improve safeguards.

Anyone with information on the thefts is asked to call the RCMP at 898-9611 or Crimestoppers at 892-TIPS (8477).

Pub Plan Goes To Poll — Eivind Tornes is hoping residents within a one-mile radius of his proposed neighborhood pub on Government Road near the bus depot will look favorably on the plan. The vote is being held at the Easter Seal Camp March 2 from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Ross Wahl photo

Estates pub proposal goes to vote while industrial park pub idea nixed

By Patricia Heintzman

One proposed neighborhood pub was quashed and another given approval to proceed through the next stage as council maintained its stand on not changing the designation of phase 1 of the industrial park.

Council agreed with a recommendation by municipal planning staff to reject an applications by proponent Denis Dallas and family for official community plan and rezoning amendment bylaws to accommodate a neighborhood "warehouse" pub and beer and wine store facility in the industrial park.

Moments later, during last week's council meeting, first and second readings for a zoning amendment were passed to accommodate a neighborhood pub development in Garibaldi Estates west of Hwy. 99.

Rezoning of Garibaldi Highlands resident Eivind Tornes's property adjacent to Maverick Bus Depot from tourist commercial to neighborhood pub commercial is necessary to accommodate a neighborhood pub proposal. Currently, there is no land zoned for a neighborhood pub in the district.

Tornes's proposal — which he says will provide quality food, a coffee bar, live acoustic entertainment and a public house within walking distance to residential areas — has met with little opposition so far. A public information meeting attended by a handful of residents of the area was held March 31.

"There were no specific suggestions or discussion on the design or siting of the proposed neighborhood pub development," said deputy community planner Frank Limshue about the meeting.

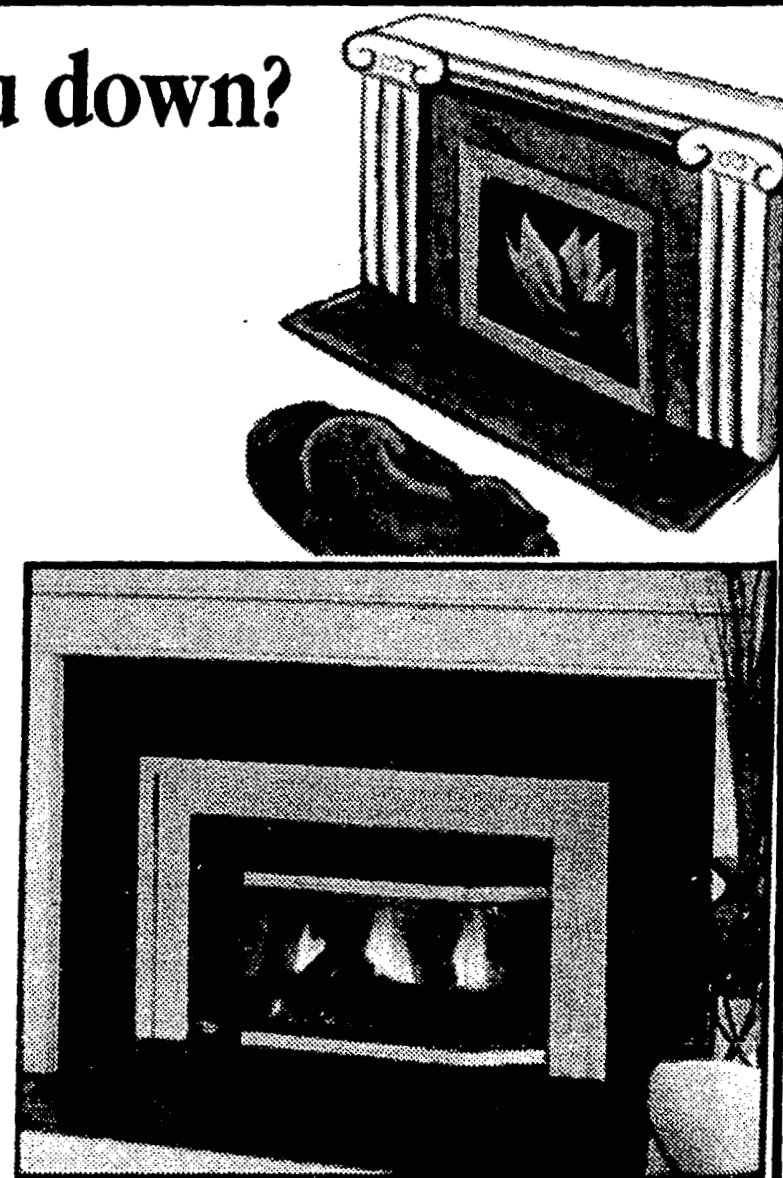

But further public input is necessary before the proposal gets final approval. Tornes must satisfy a Liquor Control and Licensing Branch regulation requiring a referendum be held. Registered voters within a one-mile radius of the proposed site will vote on the issue March 2 between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. at the Easter Seal Camp Squamish on Government Road. Tornes has already been given preliminary site and applicant approval for a neighborhood pub from LCLB.

The zoning amendment process also allows for public input through a public hearing which will be scheduled after March 2 providing the referendum passes.

Liberal leader visiting West Vancouver-Garibaldi Thursday

B.C. Liberal Party leader Gordon Campbell will be making three stops in the West Vancouver-Garibaldi riding Thursday, Feb. 29, accompanied by riding candidate Ted Nebbeling. The pair will start out the day at 7:30 a.m. at a community breakfast in the Whistler Conference Centre. At noon, Campbell and Nebbeling will be the guest speakers hosted by Squamish Rotary at the service club's weekly lunch meeting at the Sea to Sky Hotel at noon. The final stop of the day for the Liberal pair will be a wine and cheese reception at Gleneagles Golf Course in West Vancouver.

Socred seeks nomination

Mike Becker, a 33-year-old bridgeman with Capilano Highways, has thrown his hat in the ring as a candidate for the Social Credit party nomination in West Vancouver-Garibaldi. Becker is a shop steward for the B.C. Government Employees Union. He also owns and operates a custom jewelry design and repair business.

The nomination meeting for the riding will be held March 9 at 10 a.m. at Cheers Restaurant in North Vancouver. The Socreds have nominated candidates in 33 ridings to date and plan to run a full slate in the next provincial election.

Murder charge laid

West Vancouver Crown counsel has laid an additional charge of second degree murder against Arthur Maurice Allen of Vancouver in the death of 26-year-old Nathalie Bourget. Bourget's body was discovered in a bushy area adjacent to a lookout on Hwy. 99 north of Horseshoe Bay Feb. 15. Allen appeared in North Vancouver Provincial Court Thursday charged with possession of a dangerous weapon in connection with the same incident. He has been remanded in custody until March 11 for a psychiatric assessment.

Transplanted Squamish salmon help revitalize other spawning streams

By Patricia Heintzman

Transplanted salmon from the Squamish River watershed are making their way upstream in an effort to revitalize once prolific, now lost salmon runs in other areas. One of the most recent success stories involves the return of chum and coho salmon to Terminal Creek on Bowen Island where, four years ago, 10,000 fry were released courtesy of the prolific returns of Squamish area salmon.

"We've had such good coho returns and the chum stocks are so good in the area that has enabled us to transplant them in other places," said Department of Fisheries and Oceans community advisor for Howe Sound Sam Gidora. "In fact, there are several places where Squamish salmon are helping out salmon stocks in other areas. With a surplus of fish in Squamish, we can take eggs and use them elsewhere."

A number of rivers on the west side of Howe Sound and the Sunshine Coast benefit from the fry and smolts reared at Tenderfoot Creek Fish Hatchery, says Gidora, including Port Mellon and McNab creeks. Deep Bay and Horseshoe Bay creeks and rivers are also the recipients of Squamish salmon, as efforts are made to replenish formerly healthy stocks which are now depleted.

The Terminal Creek experiment is just one transplanted Squamish salmon success story, Gidora said. Several years of selecting late returning spawning chum from the Cheakamus River to supply transferred-in eyed (fertilized) eggs for Terminal Creek paid off. For the first time last November, substantive numbers of chum, aided by two newly created fish ladders, returned to the home waters of the lagoon at Terminal Falls, where spawning beds awaited the exhausted travellers. A year ago November, a few chum released four years previously, made the Terminal journey. But 1995 returns were boosted by mid-November rains. "We got the coho and chum back this year with the rains in early November," said Gidora. "Now that we've established a run hopefully it will stay. One of the keys to making things work is to use stock whose migration coincides with the weather."

"Once they start to develop their own brood stock then the success rate should start to go up."

One of the more outstanding Tenderfoot Creek Fish Hatchery projects facilitates the life span of a smolts by alleviating the burden of travel. Less than a year old, smolts have the responsibility of making the long journey from the home river to the ocean. Tenderfoot Creek Fish Hatchery has established netpens in the Porteau Cove area to improve their survival rate. The fry are brought to Porteau Cove and released in the netpens where they grow in the salt water without fear of predators.

"This way the smolts avoid predation as they migrate from fresh water to salt water," said Gidora. "We seem to get a lot better survival rate this way."

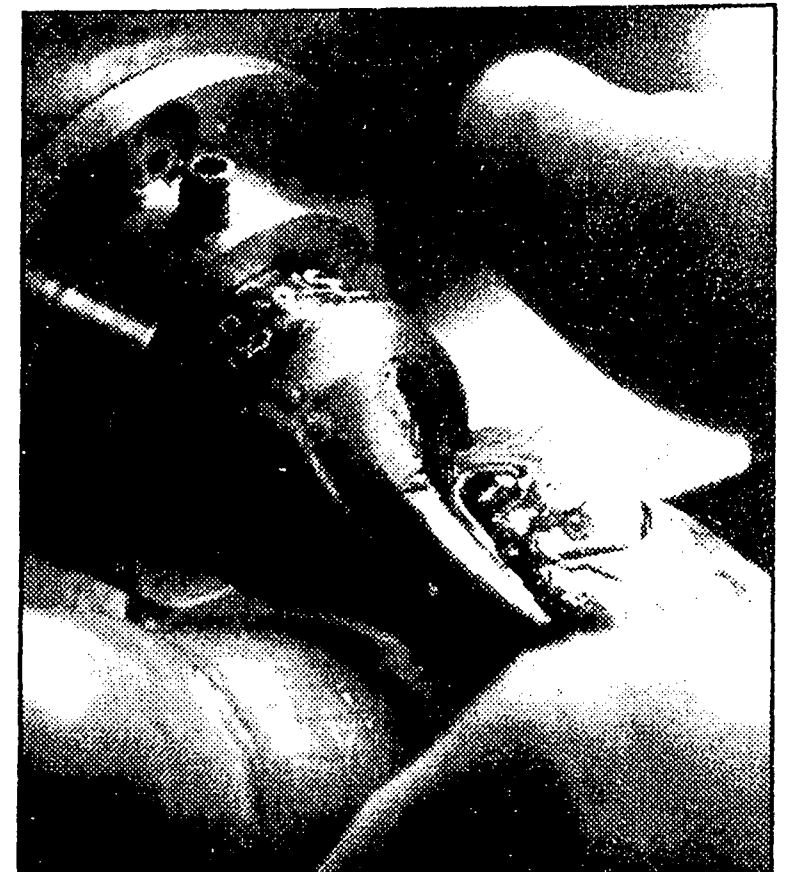

"But transplants are really a hit and miss operation."

Efforts to replenish what was once a run of 10,000 chum in Nelson Creek at Fisherman's Cove south of Lions Bay haven't resulted in positive returns. "We used exactly the same strategy we did on Bowen Island, but to no avail," Gidora said. "More than likely they returned to Squamish. There must be a different water chemistry in that creek than on Bowen: a colder stream and the run must have been at a different time. Historically it might have been an October run. In Squamish it is primarily a late November/December run because of the ground-water effects."

But the use of strong salmon stocks to replenish or re-establish runs in other places goes both ways. In recent years, pink salmon taken from Indian Arm have been used to enhance the pink run in Mamquam River. "And now there are good returns of pinks on the Mamquam," Gidora added. Small stream rehabilitation projects go a long way in enhancing the overall fishery, Gidora said. But the benefits are threefold as they incorporate public involvement and awareness, conserve endangered stocks, to say nothing of the cost-benefits to commercial interests and especially sport fishing.

By A Nose — Tiny salmon receive coded wire tags in their noses before release, so they can be identified when they return to spawn.

Plan Not Satisfactory — Britannia residents study a proposal presented at a meeting at the Britannia fire hall Wednesday by Maria Szalay, right, of the Ministry of Transportation and Highways, which would move Hwy. 99 and eliminate direct access from the highway to several businesses. Patricia Heintzman photo

Britannia highway plan panned

Business owners fear they wouldn't survive realignment

By Patricia Heintzman

Britannia Beach residents responded angrily to Ministry of Transportation and Highways officials at a public information meeting Wednesday at the Britannia fire hall. The meeting was held to explain the proposed realignment of Hwy. 99 in the Britannia area to improve access and upgrade traffic safety. But the proposal also cuts off direct access to several businesses, including the Britannia Creek General Store, the Britannia Beach Flea Market and Mountain Woman burger restaurant, which not only provide service to residents but also rely on highway travellers to exist. Residents and business owners fear highway realignment as proposed would spell virtual doom for several businesses in town.

"This is a community that needs its small businesses," resident Dan Cumming said at the meeting attended by more than 40 people. "You can't do this at the expense of the businesses. There must be a way to put an access road beside the highway."

But an access road adjacent to the highway to accommodate easy access and egress to the businesses is not possible, said district highways manager Maria Szalay, because "there just is simply not enough room. It's not feasible to design."

Much of the residents' disdain for the proposal stems from a perceived alliance between the Ministry of Transportation and Highways and the B.C. Museum of Mining.

"This is a plan tailor made for the museum," said one resident. "It doesn't benefit the community one bit." Current access deficiencies, as stated by the Ministry of Transportation and Highways, include a difficult left turn travelling south to access the museum, access from the museum and community requiring a difficult right turn north with improper sight distance (of particular concern to buses), and the posted speed through the community is 50 kilometres per hour, which is typically 60 km/h through communities, said Szalay.

To achieve the latter, "the geometrics of Hwy. 99 must be improved and better sight distances to the bridge developed," says an information package handed out at the meeting. "The proposal also eliminates the open access to and from Hwy. 99 near the bridge, thereby eliminating a significant substandard and accident prone entry and egress area."

Szalay said the proposed signage for the business could improve their exposure. "I believe the signing was properly done (the highway realignment) won't impact negatively the businesses and benefit them in the future."

"Not if the businesses aren't there," was the reply from one resident.

A pedestrian-controlled crossing or traffic light at the proposed intersection are also possible in the future to accommodate increased traffic volumes anticipated into and out of the community and the museum over the next decade. But Szalay could not promise safe pedestrian access to the waterfront from the community.

Szalay encouraged residents of Britannia Beach to fill out a comment sheet to clarify their concerns for ministry decision-makers. The Ministry of Highways could decide to go ahead with the proposed realignment or continue with the status quo.

Discussing The Issues — Gary Cairns, left, of Accuratus Engineering Ltd. discusses airport expansion issues with Brackendale residents Rachel Shephard and Mark Gandy following a meeting at the Region Hall Thursday night. A public hearing on the proposed airport changes will be held Thursday, Feb. 29 in the new community theatre at Howe Sound Secondary School. Patricia Heintzman photo

ed Airport benefits outlined, but noise concerns persist

ent Patricia Heintzman

some residents said at a public information meeting Thursday they are still not convinced of the benefits of increasing services to the Squamish municipal airport. Approximately 85 Squamish residents attended the meeting.

Last week's information meeting precedes a public hearing this Thursday at 7 p.m. at the new Howe Sound Secondary school community theatre. The public hearing is part of the official community plan amendment process needed to upgrade the area from limited use to commercial use to allow regularly scheduled flights. The proposed amendment comes in conjunction with a proposal by Cascadia Airlines, a Seattle-based company, to establish Squamish as a gateway to the Sea to Sky corridor. The third reading of the OCP amendment will follow the public hearing Feb. 29.

Gary Cairns of Accuratus Engineering Ltd. presented a Squamish airport development plan, completed a year ago and commissioned by the municipality, at the information meet-

He outlined many of the development possibilities for the site located in the Cheekye area of Brackendale, including land use, off-airport land use, and aerodrome classification.

Most of the public's queries had to do with noise intrusion and the potential for further development at the site without further public input. Cairns said the current plan is to have a code 1 airport — an airstrip shorter than 800 metres — which would allow use by light aircraft and would be able to serve larger short-takeoff-and-landing aircraft such as Twin Otters and Dash 7s. But no public process would be necessary to upgrade the airport to code 2 — an airstrip between 800 and 200 metres — he said, adding there is the potential to extend the runway 400 metres south towards a residential area. Extending the airstrip south could also affect noise intrusions in the area, as a Brackendale resident pointed out to Cairns, bringing a portion of the Brackendale area up to Transport Canada's 30-35 noise exposure forecast (NEF), which is considered unsuitable for housing unless adequate insulation is provided.

Concerns were also raised about the lack of an environmental impact study and noise tests, both of which are not required to amend the OCP.

The panel, which included economic development officer Robert Fine, community planning director Margaret Thornton, administrator Bob Miles, public works director Mike Darbyshire and Cairns, also answered questions about the economic benefits to the community should an upgrade of the airport occur. Although cost-benefit analyses have not been done, Fine says as many as 100 jobs will be created, bringing $5 million to $15 million to the community in five years. "It is difficult to develop a tourism economy when you can't provide air service in and out of the area," said Fine. Miles added the cost of the upgrades would not be incurred by the municipality.

The greatest applause during the meeting was reserved for Dan Tatham, one of the proponents of a proposal to relocate the airport to the Canadianoxy Chemicals Limited site in downtown Squamish. Although Cdn-Oxy does not support the proposal at this point, said Tatham, B.C. Rail, the owner of the land which is leased to Cdn-Oxy until the year 2064, has an open mind about the proposed development. A public information meeting is being held by Stonefield Development Consultants — hired by the Community Futures Development Corporation of Howe Sound to bring information about the downtown site to the public — Feb. 27 on the second floor of the Mountain FM Building between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Fellowes will be missed on council

Meg Fellowes's voice on council will be missed, by people here in the community, municipal staff and her fellow council members. Voted in during the last municipal election almost three years ago, Fellowes resigned last week. Council may decide not to incur the cost of a byelection for a few of months of service for a new councillor, when all municipal positions will be up for grabs in November.

Fellowes is the primary caregiver to her 91-year-old mother, who has not been well lately. She says the time pressure of serving on council is just too much to also be able to spend the time with her mother she needs to. Family must come first.

When Fellowes says she spent 21 hours in committee meetings alone last week, we believe her, and point out she is not on all of council's committees. She has always been noted for doing meticulous homework on issues being discussed either at council or in committee, so the total time spent is virtually a full-time job, without the predictable timetable. There is really no way of knowing how long a meeting will go, so for Fellowes there is no way of planning home care support for her mother.

Meg Fellowes

It makes us wonder just how efficient council and its committees are. Spending 21 hours in committee meetings is the exception, not the average, but that is still a horrendous amount of time when you consider there are several other council members and at least one staff member at each meeting. Can Squamish be that complex to govern?

In many municipalities, elected officials cut the time they must spend in meetings by allowing hired staff members to do their jobs and dealing with the situation only when someone can't keep up. But other councils feel the need to spend inordinate amounts of time on the minutiae of day to day operations, often taking away from the actual accomplishments of staff and leading to bigger and less efficient bureaucracies.

We certainly don't deny that municipal government becomes more complex as the community grows, and more difficult as federal and provincial governments offload responsibilities.

But perhaps it is time for council to reassess how it operates, and whether it couldn't be a bit more efficient, which would make council service less of a burden. We often hear people say there should be more younger people or more people with business backgrounds on council. But how could a working person or business person in this community consider running, unless they had the established clientele and time flexibility of realtor and council member Ted Craddock?

It is a shame when genuinely concerned and committed people find council service too much of a time drag to either finish what they started, or become involved in the first place. Is it any wonder that in many communities the size of Squamish, the only people who can consider running for office are those who are retired? But we also have to ask, is that the best mix for a changing and growing community such as Squamish?

In any case, Meg Fellowes deserves a great deal of praise for her council service. While not everyone has agreed with her positions on all issues, her commitment and dedication are impossible to fault. Situations change, and she could well be back on council in the future. And if not, there is no doubt she will continue to serve the community in many ways, as she always has.

PREMIER CLARK'S FIRST DAY IN OFFICE

Moving on to new challenges

It was with great deliberation I began to write this column. An hour later I had not even knocked off the first paragraph. Many times I wrote a sentence or two, only to eventually select it all and delete.

Fare-thee-wells have never been my strong suit. I usually get caught up in the sentimentality of memories and shared experiences, or I do an about face and remove myself emotionally from the situation, say my practical goodbyes, and revisit my feelings later in the privacy of my own company.

For a final adieu to my position as reporter for The Squamish Chief, I could sentimentalize about a cornucopia of experiences. (Now that I have used the word cornucopia in context, I should also use the words juxtaposition and conundrum somewhere in this column because they comprise three of my favorite words, for which I was teased by my fellow workers at the Chief.) I could write about some of the more satisfying moments I've experienced in more than three years of observing, reporting, photographing and writing about the community in which we all live. Or I could relive some of the funny, peculiar, and emotional happenings like the time I was on a ride-along with the RCMP and we were called to investigate a break and enter at my own home, or the time I wrote about the importance of my grandparents and how they have influenced my life in a positive way. I wrote the column as a response to hearing the news my grandmother appeared to have escaped a life-threatening health situation.

I found out just minutes after the newspaper had been sent to the presses that she had died. The column ran, and for weeks people in the community asked me how my grandmother was doing.

Moved by the community's concern, it was not difficult for me to say that she had passed away and accept their condolences. And even more encouraging was the appreciation I received from many people saying my words showed their teenager that love and respect for grandparents was something to be proud of.

It would be easy to lose myself in reminiscing and prophesies. But why waste my final carte blanche at the Chief to sentimentalize, when I can offer my humble opinion instead.

Off the Couch
By Patricia Heintzman

Last week was a busy one for me, as I anguished over whether or not to move on to other opportunities.

Municipal council never ceases to baffle and confound me.

After several years of debate and deliberation between council members and municipal staff, and a year collecting dust in Victoria, council voted against the adoption of a soil removal bylaw which would see a fee for soil removed, including rock, gravel, earth and sand, from all lands within the District of Squamish: seen by some as a much needed boon to the municipal coffers and as Coun. Ron Barr said at council last week: "I think it is only fair we get our pound of flesh."

The vote was tied three-three, with councillors Tom Bruusgaard, Bill McNeney and Mayor Corinne Lonsdale voting against the adoption of the bylaw. Coun. Meg Fellowes resigned her post the day before and was not present for the vote. Much of the debate surrounding the bylaw adoption centered on the discrepancy between the charge for soil compared to gravel. Why this became an issue after the first and fourth readings is beyond my comprehension. It should have been cleaned up more than a year ago.

In keeping with the same municipal vein, I personally hope council votes to hold a byelection to fill Fellowes' seat. Legally, council is not required to fill the vacancy as long as the resignation occurs after January 1, if the vacant seat is not back on a riding, which it isn't, and provided a quorum still exists on council, which it does. One option available to council is to combine a referendum on this library with a byelection vote.

It could be argued it is unreasonable to ask someone to resign for just an eight-month term. But more likely, interested persons would be looking ahead to another three years of public service and could see it as an opportunity to get a jump on the competition.

My fear is that council will decide not to have a byelection to silence potential candidates such as Terrill Patterson. Council has done an effective yet undemocratic job of quelling his verbal expression in council chambers for more than a year. But I hope the democratic process is not compromised more because of council's fear of scrutiny. Municipal politicians, as with their provincial and federal counterparts, are becoming more and more detached from the people who voted them into office.

Council's wanderings could provide the thesis of a dissertation, so enough said.

A quick click on the word count command and I see I'm already out of space. So I make this short and sweet. Ciao for now.

Traffic laws must make it safe

Editor,

Re: the trial of Ryan Reed.

Even though I never knew any of the three young men who were killed in the car crash, nor the young man accused of reckless driving causing their deaths, I have a few thoughts on the case.

Abolish the laws

Editor,

I have an idea. Why don't we abolish the speed limit, legalize drinking and driving, and cancel the ambulance service.

Each person driving between Horseshoe Bay and Pemberton or Mount Currie would be responsible for their own first aid and emergency treatment.

We wouldn't need the highway patrol either, because there would be no tickets.

It would save the taxpayer millions of dollars (for those of us left).

Pennie McNutt
Squamish

We won't comment on the motives of the relatives of the three victims' families. We also know that punishment of Ryan Reed won't bring them back to life. But you would think that justice is supposed to be done in the courts of the land.

In my opinion, if someone can speed, drink alcohol, drive in someone else's lane of the road, and hit and kill someone and get off, there is no justice in the land. The judge could not offer an opinion as to what Reed was doing in the other lane. I think a reasonable answer would be that Reed was driving recklessly and he killed three people. Traffic laws were put in place to make it safe on the highway. If it is not reckless to drive like that, then don't bother to paint lines on the road.

I'm just glad the judge who judges me is not Justice Peter Fraser. I offer my condolences to the families of the victims, who have to suffer once again. I offer to them also that God will make all things right. He doesn't make up His mind until the trial is over.

Every child's death is a tragic loss evil thrives when good guys do nothing. If that doesn't say it all, I don't know what it does. When you pick up the paper and browse through the headlines, what are you looking for? When your eyes catch an article titled: Gun goes off and three children die, what do you think?

Discrepancy? Do you feel genuinely upset or are you just relieved it wasn't anyone you knew? The latter, although none of us like to admit it, is usually the first reaction that comes to mind.

Yet once in a while, our eyes catch an article that hits home. A story that opens your eyes and may even make them tearful. Why? Because that article was about a child, maybe not even 15 years old, who was killed by accident. It could have been a best friend who killed the child, by accident of course.

Children killing children accidentally is not at all uncommon. It just takes a split second for a gun to go off and their short, precious lives are taken away forever.

Every year, guns are the cause of 40,000 accidental deaths in America. That's as many deaths as there are in motor vehicle accidents. That is an enormously large number, about 40,000 people too many.

So what's going on? Why are kids getting their hands on guns in the first place? Why aren't they responsible enough to know that guns kill and shouldn't be played with? These are extremely good questions with often simple but also complex answers.

Guns are available to kids on the street, sometimes in their own homes, even at school. Many of the kids who fool around with guns just aren't thinking straight or are too young to realize what they are doing. The older kids might have given into peer pressure, they might have been trying to show off in front of their friends, or maybe they just think they are invincible.

By the end of today, 15 children will have died with a bullet from a gun ripping into their flesh and rendering them lifeless. Imagine what this is like for them. Maybe a 10-year-old just killed his best friend, sibling, or even himself. Imagine what this is like for his family. "We didn't mean for him to find the gun — we had bought it for protection. Why us, why us?"

Next time you see an article in the paper, before you feel relieved it isn't anyone you know, feel compassion and a sense of loss, because every time a child dies accidentally it hangs over our heads and our hearts. Children are the future. They depend on you.

More alcohol, more problems

Editor,

B.C. studies show another pub will make a powerful contribution to our community that is quite sobering.

Drunk driving is the leading cause of fatal car accidents.

More than half of all domestic violence in British Columbia is alcohol-related.

More than 60 per cent of all violent crimes begin and end behind "bars" — 60 per cent of violent offenders in assault, rape, and murder were drinking when they committed their crimes. Between 70 per cent and 80 per cent of males in B.C. prisons were drunk at the time of their crime.

Alcohol is a major cause in more than half of all divorce cases.

One-third of all hospital beds are taken up by people who go there by alcohol and drugs.

"In 1987, it cost the British Columbia health care and social service system over a half-billion dollars to deal with problems related directly to alcohol abuse. The figure probably runs even higher, because many of the ongoing health problems caused by excessive or prolonged use of alcohol and drugs are commonly diagnosed illnesses such as heart disease, high blood pressure, pneumonia, and many mental illnesses. The cost in injuries and loss of productivity in the work place is immeasurable." (From The Truth Book: The Responsibility is Yours, B.C. Ministry of Labor and Consumer Services booklet Q.P. #79244, 3-11.)

Pubs make money and that is the real bottom line. That is progress.

I love Squamish and I think most people want to make Squamish a better place. We are concerned about preserving the beauty of our environment. We are concerned about reducing crime. We want to better the future for our children. We want to make our highways a safer place for all.

Which kind of progress will we vote for on Saturday? I know which kind of progress I will vote for. But first I want to sign this petition of behalf of Jason, Dale and Devon.

Police should protect public and property

Editor,

After listening to the local news this morning I just had to write. A report on yet another group of break-ins to local downtown stores. And the response of our local group of Canada's finest.

According to the report, the police have determined it's the fault of local store people for leaving their valuables in their stores overnight, thereby encouraging the crooked element in our society to break in. Another think tank gem is to place more deadbolts on doors and also to leave all lights on day and night. No mention of increased foot patrols to deter those criminal parasites, or more arrests.

It seems our Walt Disney-sponsored local police detachment not only can't stop those break-ins, but cannot solve any. Surely we must have more accountability from this high-priced security outfit. A provincial police force comes to mind.

Do we, the public, have to go behind barbed-wire fences with halogen flood-lit yards patrolled by a variety of doberman and rottweillers to feel protected in our homes?

As sure as God made little apples, one of these days violence is going to happen, either by the villain or by an irate home or store owner catching someone on his property. Trying for some humor out of this mess, maybe the amount of break-ins locally is the reason for the police station to be locked overnight from early evening to morning. True.

Get this adult, Boy Scout-looking outfit out of its brand new cars. Do away with its high speed (general revenue maker for the government) radar equipment. Get back to the concept of protecting the public and its property. Even catching speeders on Hwy. 99 doesn't keep them off the road. Taking away their licence would help more than this stupid revenue making points system.

I am not a fan of this poorly run, over-financed, under-skilled, bunch of Canada's finest.

Landfill site water quality improving

Council Briefs

Three test holes at the municipal landfill site as part of the landfill leachate monitoring program showed positive results, reported public works director Mike Darbyshire. Potable water was found in the three holes with only so much iron to meet Canadian government water standards. Crozier found in another hole. Darbyshire said there has been a noticeable improvement in the quality of the water at the new holes compared to holes tested before a ban on dumping gyproc was imposed at the site.

A total of 18 complaints by the public were received at Municipal Hall pertaining to bylaw issues during a five-week period from Jan. 1 to Feb. 3, 1996. The information comes in the first bylaw enforcement activity report brought to council by clerk Joe Barry. As many as 54 parking tickets were issued during that time, totalling $980 worth of fines to be collected. Future reports will have a comparison of increases in complaints and tickets issued, said Barry.

Council has approved a recommendation that municipal staff, with the assistance of the Sea to Sky economic development officer Robert Fine, proceed with an application for $3,367 in funding from the B.C. Hydro Community Investment Partnership Program for development of brochures and presentation folders to attract new businesses and investors to the community.

Wigan Pier Restaurant has been granted a business licence to operate a fish and chip trailer on private property on Cleveland Avenue beside the Howe Sound Business Centre, subject to permission by the property owner and health unit approval.

A complaint from a contractor who did not bid on a municipal job because time restrictions prevented him from doing so has forced council to look at its emergency tendering process. North Yards resident and president of Whittaker Equipment Ltd., James Whittaker, sent a letter to council indicating his concern about drainage work being done in the North Yards. The drainage problem is a result of road construction to access the B.C. Rail passenger terminal and the industrial park. Due to the urgency of the project in November last year resulting from requests by Whittaker and other residents of the area to deal with the flooding problem, there was insufficient time to prepare tender documents and conduct a formal tendering process, says a report from public works director Mike Darbyshire. When the bids were solicited, the urgency of the project was expressed and the contractors were advised they would be required to complete the project without delay, weather permitting, with a completion target date of mid-January. Because of vacation plans, Whittaker says he did not bid on the project. But the project took longer than anticipated and went beyond the target completion date of mid-January by a month. "If we put a completion date on it we wouldn't run into problems established when we fast track a project," said Mayor Corinne Lonsdale.

There was a noticeable drop in the number of crimes in December compared to November, reported Sgt. Dwain Wetteland in the CMP's monthly report to the mayor, but the nature of the complaints were more serious. He said a lot of the crimes in December were more violent in nature because of the increased consumption of alcohol during the holiday season.

Squamish man faces sex assault charges

A Squamish man faces sex-related charges as a result of an alleged incident involving two female youths. The victims in the assault, teenage girls ages 13 and 14 years old, also of Squamish, were acquainted with the accused and were in his home willingly Feb. 17 at the time in which the incident occurred, said Const. Fran Bethell of the Squamish RCMP.

The 23-year-old Squamish male faces charges of sexual assault, sexual interference — which is an indictable offence for any person who, for sexual purpose, touches, directly or indirectly, with a part of the body or with an object, any part of a person under age of 14 years — and supplying liquor to minors.

Britannia Beach man killed in single-vehicle MVA

Stephen Anthony McLain, 20, of Britannia Beach was killed Saturday in a single-vehicle accident on Hwy. 99 one kilometre south of Gonzales Creek. Police said a Ford pickup driven by McLain was travelling south when it lost control and went off the road, striking a rock face. The investigation is continuing.

Police Blotter

Spurred by media attention, the driver of a gold Camaro turned himself into police Thursday morning.

Complaints of a reckless driver of a gold Camaro were reported to police at 9 a.m. Feb. 21 when school kids were nearly hit at a crosswalk on the Boulevard in the Garibaldi Highlands.

No charges have been laid. The investigation is proceeding.

A chainsaw, rain gear and hard-hats were reported stolen overnight Feb. 15 from a logging business at Watts Point.

At 10:30 a.m. Feb. 16, the RCMP received a report of a vehicle over a bank on the Cat Lake forestry road. A white BMW owned by a Burnaby resident and stolen from Vancouver Feb. 15 was recovered.

A pickup truck, 12 chainsaws, and four radios were reported stolen from an Upper Squamish business Feb. 17. A call from a member of the public resulted in the recovery of the 12 Husqvarna chainsaws from the Squamish River estuary the following day. The truck was found nearby on the windsurfing spit stuck in sand. It appears the culprit got stuck and abandoned the vehicle, said Const. Fran Bethell. The four radios are still missing and the investigation continues.

Five separate incidents involving thefts from vehicles were reported to the RCMP between Sept. 19-21. Incidents of this sort are on the rise in the community, says Const. Fran Bethell, and the RCMP is reminding people not to leave any property in vehicles overnight.

Cheques, reported stolen from a Squamish resident Feb. 19, are surfacing in businesses in the Squamish area. The RCMP is advising businesses to verify customers' identification.

A vehicle stolen from a downtown business overnight Feb. 19 was recovered at 11 p.m. Feb. 20 at Fisherman's Entrance to the Squamish River dike. The vehicle was destroyed by fire.

A Wilson Crescent resident heard a noise outside her home at 9 p.m. Feb. 20 and discovered two males standing outside her car. The culprits drove away and she discovered the driver-side window of her car smashed.

At 10 p.m. the same evening, three vehicles were damaged on Pemberton Ave. Windows were broken on all three vehicles but nothing was reported missing.

The RCMP is looking for volunteers interested in participating in a community patrol. Concerned citizens will assist the RCMP by patrolling the streets of Squamish watching for suspicious and illegal activities. If you are interested in helping prevent crime in the community, contact Const. Fran Bethell at 898-9611.

The RCMP received 242 complaints during the seven-day period between Feb. 15 and Feb. 21.

Reservation service offered at Porteau Cove, Alice Lake

Beginning March 1, the new Discover Camping service will enable campers to book a campsite up to three months in advance at any one of 42 provincial parks, including Porteau Cove and Alice Lake. An additional 122 provincial park campgrounds will continue to offer camping opportunities on a first-come, first-served basis.

Discover Camping was created to help visitors plan ahead and avoid waiting and lineups, and will ensure visitors of a campsite upon arrival at the campground. Reservations allow equitable use of campgrounds by all campers regardless of their proximity to the park, and eliminate the need to rush from campground to campground in the hopes of securing a site.

On average, 50 per cent of sites within the 42 participating campgrounds will be set aside for reservation. Depending on the park, between 20 per cent and 60 per cent of the sites will be reservable. Remaining campsites in these parks will be available on a first-come, first-served basis. A total of 2,300 provincial park campsites are available for reservation — 20 per cent of the total number of campsites within provincial parks.

Toll-free telephone lines will be open from March 1 until Sept. 15 and campsites can be booked from March 15 until Oct. 15. Campers can make reservations for up to 14 nights in one park — the maximum length of stay in any provincial park.

The service fee of $6 per night to a maximum of $18 for three or more nights will be charged to book a site. For example, to reserve a site for one day, the reservations fee is $6. The cost for two nights is $12. To reserve a site for any amount of time between three and 14 days, the fee is $18. Both the reservation and campsite fees are payable by credit card at the time of booking. Campsite fees vary from $9.50 to $15.50 per night, depending on the park location and level of service provided.

The reservation fee is separate from usual camping fees, and covers costs associated with securing the campsite such as operation of the call centre which will handle reservations and inquiries, the toll-free lines and computer-based reservation service infrastructure.

Without a service charge — which ensures that the service is not subsidized by the provincial government — the reservation service would not be possible.

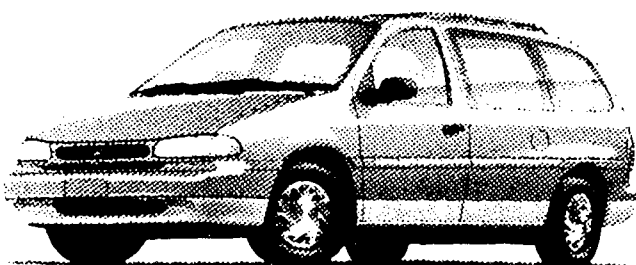

Volunteers needed

Camp Goodtimes, a Sunshine Coast camp for children with a history of cancer, is recruiting mature, responsible and energetic volunteer counsellors, kitchen staff and art directors. Camp Goodtimes is the Canadian Cancer Society's residential camping program, at Camp Byng in Roberts Creek, for children 6-16 with a history of cancer. Each year up to 50 children per week attend the camp, with more than 30 volunteers providing support.

Soil removal bylaw dumped

By Patricia Heintzman

A soil removal bylaw, which took nearly a year to get approval from Victoria, failed to be adopted as a tie vote decided its fate. With Coun. Meg Fellowes's seat vacant due to her resignation last week, only five councillors and Mayor Corinne Lonsdale voted on the issue, with Lonsdale and councillors Bill McNeney and Tom Bruusgaard voting against the motion. The proposed bylaw can be further amended by council in the future, but it will have to be sent to the Ministry of Municipal Affairs in Victoria for subsequent approval before a vote on its adoption can take place.

The soil removal bylaw was designed to help improve road conditions in Squamish by providing the municipality with the ability to generate revenue by charging a fee for the removal of earth, sand, gravel and rock from land within the District of Squamish.

"I think it's only fair to get our pound of flesh out of it," said Coun. Ron Barr in defence of the bylaw adoption.

Revenue from the soil removal bylaw structure was not to be considered general revenue, but would have been established in an account for road infrastructure improvement, said administrator Bob Miles a year ago when the bylaw received unanimous support for its first three readings. The permit fees were also designed to provide incentive to remove gravel and dredge materials from rivers rather than other types of soil.

The debate in council Feb. 20 centred around the problem some of the councillors had with the discrepancy between the charges for earth compared to gravel.

At the end of the council meeting, Coun. Don Ross suggested the bylaw be amended to show standard fee for both gravel and earth. Administrator Bob Miles will look into the possibility of revising the bylaw but it will still have to return to Victoria for approval, which could take another year, added Barr.

Lawyer faces arrest warrant

A Canada-wide arrest warrant is still outstanding for a Squamish lawyer, despite the fact he returned his son to his estranged wife in Atlanta, Ga. Burke Lewis, an upper Squamish valley resident, was supposed to return his four-year-old son to his wife Amy Lewis, a Vancouver lawyer, at a lawyer's office in Vancouver at 4 p.m. Feb. 16.

Vancouver police say Lewis entered the United States in a 1994 Pontiac Grand Am with his son at 4:42 p.m. the same day.

Const. Anne Drennan of the Vancouver Police said Burke Lewis and his son were located in Atlanta, Ga., Friday. Amy Lewis travelled to Atlanta later that day and a transfer of their son was made, Drennan said.

Lewis, who has no previous criminal record, will not be arrested in the United States. He will only face legal problems if he returns to Canada. The estranged couple are both citizens of the U.S. and came to Canada in 1990.

PROJECT COORDINATORS REQUIRED

The Ministry of Forests, Squamish Forest District, will be the lead proponent on up to three Watershed Restoration Projects during 1996/97 fiscal year, if preliminary proposals are approved.

At this time, we are establishing a list of qualified teams that could carry out the management of one or more of the projects.

To qualify, your team must be very familiar with the objectives and regulations of Forest Renewal BC as it pertains to watershed restoration and with the Forest Practices Code. You have, or have access to, qualified individuals that can conduct the assessment, prescriptions and complete planning to successfully carry out the 1996/97 project in a timely and cost effective manner. This includes the tendering and awarding of various contracts to subcontractors including professional and trades. Your team has a demonstrated ability to work with First Nations groups that includes job shadowing and other training.

To be included in our listing of qualified teams, please send an outline of your team's accomplishments in watershed restoration or similar work, along with brief resumes of your key personnel to:

Future Use of the Squamish Airport

The Issues and the Facts

Discussion regarding what to do with the currently underutilized Squamish Airport has been taking place for over five years. A formal investigative process has been implemented, including but not limited to, monthly airport meetings, preparation of an Airport Feasibility Study, an Airport Development Plan, an Economic Impact Study, and significant research and analysis on specific issues. This process has provided adequate time to identify the relevant issues, distinguish between legitimate and bogus concerns, and evaluate them in a professional and analytical manner. In order that your viewpoint on future use of the airport is made from an informed position, the following is a 10 point summary of both benefits and concerns:

Improved Use of the Squamish Airport will...

1 Create jobs!

At least 100 new jobs in the Squamish region will be created. This is supported by standard economic impact models for airport activities as well as researching the number of jobs created at other comparable British Columbia regional airports (refer to the table below)

Scheduled air service will establish the Squamish Airport as an important gateway to the region. The airport will act as a visitor's first contact point, where they will obtain essential travel services such as car rentals, ground transportation, customs clearance, information, and food. Other indirect and induced jobs (i.e. outside the airport) will be created including manufacturing, retail, entertainment and tourism jobs.

Economic Impact of B.C. Airports	Jobs (full-time)	Revenues
Castlegar	223	$18m
Terrace	214	$38m
Campbell River	193	$30m
Cranbrook	237	$40m

2 Stimulate tourism to Squamish!

Enhanced airport use will be the catalyst for development of Squamish's tourism industry. Squamish has an enviable list of spectacular assets, however growth of tourism will be severely handicapped unless scheduled air service is initiated. The reason; without air service, the ability to attract the US and overseas markets will be severely limited. Today's tourist is increasingly sophisticated. Lack of convenient access (i.e. the hassle of driving) is recognized as the biggest weakness of many potential tourist communities.

3 Attract manufacturing and export business to Squamish!

Enhanced use of the airport will provide a catalyst to attract new industry to Squamish. One of the key criteria of manufacturing and export oriented companies in locating their business is the proximity to convenient transport links to foreign markets. Currently, the manufacturing and export base of Squamish is limited due to a lack of adequate transport to other markets. The closest scheduled air cargo service for the region is in Vancouver. The Squamish region has a declining resource base. Squamish must now diversify by attracting small high-tech industries and companies who package small, high value products.

Scheduled air service will provide a more convenient hub for air cargo service. This will promote and facilitate regional industry. The air service will attract new business, drawn to Squamish because of excellent access to local, US and overseas markets.

4 Provide revenues to the Squamish community!

At least $15m in new annual revenues for the Squamish region will be produced. This is supported by standard economic impact models for airport activities as well as researching the annual revenues created at other comparable British Columbia regional airports (refer to table).

The movement of passengers and air cargo via Squamish Airport will generate business revenues for firms in many sectors of the economy. For example in the airline/airport sector, revenues will be received by firms providing fuel and maintenance supplies, by local government for landing fees and by Federal government for customs/immigration fees. In the visitor industry sector, local service and retail firms will receive revenues from passengers spending on retail, entertainment, sightseeing, restaurants and staying overnight in Squamish. Other revenues will be received by service providers such as travel agents and advertising companies, freight forwarders and warehouses. Transporters will receive revenue from arranging and delivering air transportation for cargo. Rental car agencies, and bus companies will receive revenues from transporting passengers to and from the airport. In the construction and consulting sector, revenues will be received from the airport facilities, supporting accommodation and other building projects. In addition, local, provincial, and federal taxes will be generated by firms, and by individuals, whose earnings and jobs are directly dependent upon the activity at Squamish airport.

5 More convenient for Squamish citizens to travel!

Improved airport use will provide local Squamish residents with quick and more convenient access to the US. Currently Squamish residents must drive 2-3 hours to Vancouver International Airport for their international flights. In contrast, scheduled air service will provide the local community with more convenient travel to Seattle and better connections to other US and overseas cities.

6 Will not endanger the eagles!

Claims that more efficient use of the airport will endanger the eagles are instinctive and factually incorrect. Significant research to determine if there will be conflict between the eagles and the flight operations has been undertaken. The eagles will not be affected. This is supported by the following:

1. Professionally researched papers specifically designed to determine the bald eagle's sensitivity and reaction to aircraft presence concluded that the eagle is unaffected by aircraft.
2. Qualified bald eagle experts have confirmed that there is no causal link between survival of bald eagles and air service.

3. Environment Canada's wildlife biologist reported to the Squamish Airport Committee on May 3, 1995 that no danger to the eagles is anticipated as a result of the proposed airport operations.

4. Raptor authorities at airports which also have significant eagle populations verify that the eagles are not threatened by the aircraft. These include Comox Air Base, Port Hardy Airport and Vancouver International Airport.

The reason that the eagles are unaffected by aircraft is that they migrate to Brackendale for three months for the sole purpose of feeding on the salmon. Between feeding they generally roost in the trees located on the river banks. The biggest threat to the eagle visitation is therefore not air service, but a reduced food source. Ironically, what disturbs the eagles the most, according to the research, is human activity on the ground, especially intervention on foot.

7 Will not create major noise disturbance!

Enhanced airport use will not create a major noise disturbance. Supporters of more efficient use of the airport however, do share a genuine concern for minimizing noise levels. While noise cannot be completely eliminated, noise levels will be reduced through a combination of mitigating actions as follows:

- 1) A new flight path has been designed that will divert traffic away from residential areas of Brackendale. The flight path has been fine-tuned by the Airport committee and subsequently approved by Transport Canada.
- 2) The aircraft type has been changed to the deHavilland (Canada) Dash-7 because it is the quietest aircraft available, and it can operate in and out of the existing facility with no alteration in runway length.
- 3) The development and implementation of a noise abatement procedure that includes quietest departure techniques, takeoffs made to the north when safety allows and reducing power as soon as safe and practical after takeoff.

The noise impact must also be evaluated in its proper context. This requires evaluation of noise intensity, occurrence, timing and duration. The air service will be considerably less obtrusive compared to other forms of common noises in the community. For example, trains running through Brackendale at a distance of 50 feet from houses approx. 8 to 10 times per day including warning blast at each crossing, and the incessant din of Highway-99 trucks and general traffic. Domestic activities such as lawnmowers and vacuum cleaners occur for minutes or even hours on end, and have a greater noise impact. In contrast, airport noise will be heard significantly less frequently, and will only be able to be measured in terms of seconds. This is due to the speed, altitude and revised flight path which will take the plane away from the community.

8 Will not become a busy airport!

Commercial airport activity does not mean that Squamish airport will become a busy airport. Projected use is only 3-5 flights per day. This is due to the shortness of the runway which is an in-built limitation to its potential use. The short runway effectively limits the type of aircraft capable of landing at Squamish. Jets and most commercial aircraft are unable to use the airport.

9 Allow Squamish to intercept transient passengers!

Commercial airport use will provide an effective mechanism for intercepting passengers bound for other B.C. destinations. Currently thousands of visitors drive through Squamish on their way to Whistler and beyond. This causes congestion, resentment, and very little public benefit to Squamish. Squamish must look for opportunities to piggyback on Whistler's success. Enhanced airport use will provide an excellent opportunity for Squamish to intercept passengers bound for other B.C. destinations and entice them to stay, to see the wonderful assets and attractions of the community, and ultimately part with their spending dollar.

10 Position Squamish to face the competitive future!

More efficient use of the airport is necessary to enable Squamish to survive on an equal basis with other communities in British Columbia.

Other B.C. communities who are currently realizing the potential and economic benefits of their airports and have primed their community for the future include: Nanaimo, Victoria, Abbotsford, Castlegar, Penticton, Kamloops, Pitt Meadows, Port Hardy, Williams Lake, Quesnel, Port Hardy, Terrace, Prince Rupert, Fort Nelson, Smithers, Fort St. John and Prince George.

In summary, the Squamish Airport is a major regional asset. Enhanced use will provide significant public benefit for the community. Political and economic groups who recognize these benefits and endorse more efficient use of the airport include the Canadian Consulate, the Squamish District Council, the Squamish and Howe Sound Chamber of Commerce, the Economic Development Commission and the Tourist Advisory Committee.

Please be present and show your support vocally for enhanced airport use at the Public hearing to be held on THURSDAY, 29 FEBRUARY 1996 at 7:00 p.m. at The Howe Sound Secondary School (theatre), 38430 Buckley Avenue, Squamish.

The industry is so competitive, people on vacation will not spend their time driving if they can avoid it by traveling to a different destination." EDUCATION*Young people ambitious

When a Vancouver TV station was invited to come up to the Young Entrepreneurs' Conference at HSSS on Feb. 17, the reply was, "What's news about that?"

You could say that news is something exciting, different, belonging to the here and now, but with a toe-hold on the future. Our brand was different, because it showed the constructive, ambitious things our young people are doing — rather than the violent acts which make headlines. It had the bubbling-over excitement that comes from more than 50 young people planning together for a bright future.

Even newsworthy was the evidence all around of community support. The list of sponsors and donors is far too long to write out in full here, but it reads like a who's who of every successful business enterprise in this area. Included are people who trade in chocolates, clothes or coiffures, flowers, forest products and finance, who run garages and golf clubs or deal in gems, who sell pictures or pizza, or paint signs, specialize in the law or insurance, and organize the transport, from tugboats to railways and shipping. They are us.

It all began when Pat Wilbur, of the Community Futures Development Corporation of Howe Sound, realized how little was available to young people in the way of advice and help if they wanted to set up their own small businesses. The Ministry of Small Business, Tourism and Culture was willing to sponsor an event, and the business community responded generously. With Ms. Wilbur as coordinator, a steering committee was formed of busy people who found it hard to synchronize their schedules for regular meetings, so the Youth Action Committee took over and carried the plans for the conference through. These young people were: Christine Durig, Deanna and Trevor Emoff, Rory Fairchild, Erin Malone, Lindsay Smith and Bryan Stewart.

The conference got under way at 8:30 a.m. with a continental breakfast served in the high school's new multi-purpose room, while registration was going on.

The two morning workshops dealt with retail sales and recreation adventure/tourism.

Sound Schools

By Constance Rulka

The panelists in the former were: Jack Fowler of Workwear World, Trish James of Stylezone, and Cindy Morrison of Sun Spirit Studio. Presenters in the latter were: Paul Kindree of Corsa Cycles, Patrick McKernan from Vertical Reality, and Jeremy Skinner of Strategy Skateboards.

After a networking lunch there were two more workshops on technology and food services. Clive Appleby, an entrepreneur, Doug Burne of Burne Images, and Jason Fiset of Tantalus Technologies were the presenters for technology segment, while Nick Menican from Xanthine's, Brad Rustad of Cheeky Charlie's, and Annette Young from Xocolatl took care of the food services workshop.

This was the first ever youth entrepreneurship conference in Squamish at this age level and it promises good things for our future.

Science Fair

Amongst the even younger population, science projects are occupying everybody's attention — and even mom and dad are being called on for help — as the March 2 deadline approaches. Garibaldi Highlands Elementary showed its paces last Thursday, with a gym filled with displays, and other demonstrations taking place in the classrooms.

Students in Ms. Drinovz's Grade 2-3 class were especially keen and had some fascinating exhibits. Ben had been researching the phenomenon of salmon runs and had a spectacular working model that all his classmates wanted to help work. In front was a three-dimensional cut-out of a river scene. In the back, was a knob that could be turned to make the cardboard salmon come up out of the water and perform its great leap.

All the exhibits in the gym deserved closer examination, but it was possible to spend time with only a few.

Caitlin and Amanda had managed to get some teeth from an obliging dentist and had set out to show the relationship between tooth decay and some of the various liquids with which our teeth come in contact. They had a series of little jars, in each of which was a tooth, submerged in one of the liquids. There was fruit juice, coke, water, vinegar, coffee, milk and so on, and their effects on the teeth were being noted.

Carving

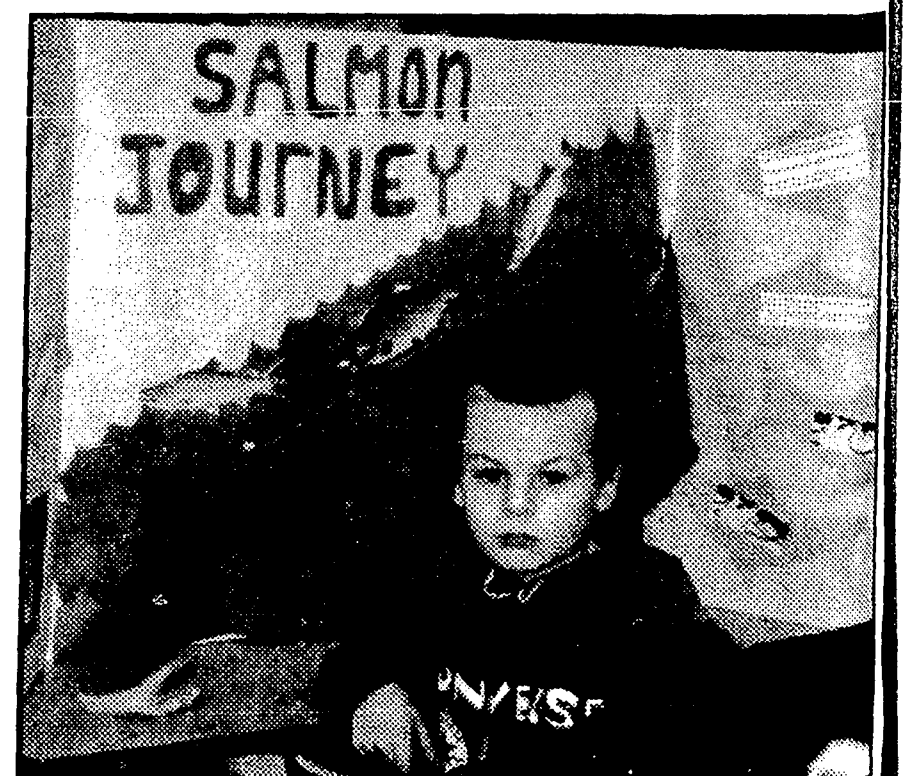

Work continues on the log that is to become the welcome figure at HSSS. One morning I watched Aaron Nelson-Moody burning sage and other herbs in an abalone shell to prepare a smudge before he started working on the wood. He wafted the smoke over it with a fan of feathers from a Canada goose — the bird which best symbolizes team work.

It appears that when the welcome figure is completed, its significance will be two-fold. Not only will it welcome the community into the new parts of the school and into the theatre, but it will also welcome back those elders who were once alienated by lingering memories of the residential schools. They always valued learning, and now they have their own place in the schools.

Being Good Citizens

Earlier this month, our elementary students, through Project Love, worked to help school children in Ghana — doing their bit for communities abroad. Last Thursday, their efforts focused on our own community, as they took part in the concert which featured Norm Foote. Last year, our school choir raised about $2,000 in this way — towards the cost of a grand piano for the new theatre. This year's concert should have brought them even closer to that target.

On Wednesday, the student choirs from Garibaldi Highlands, under the direction of Ms. Caldwell, the Sea to Sky singers with Ms. Thomson, and the Valleycliffe choir with Ms. Paterson, were having a wonderful time rehearsing with Mr. Foote. The songs were of the very best kind — with lots of actions — and they were putting every bit of energy into them.

Science Fairs — Ben sits ready to explain his project as GHE students gear up for the science fair. Constance Rulka photos

COMMUNITY

Everyone invited to World Day of Prayer

An invitation is extended to everyone in the community to attend the World Day of Prayer service this Friday, March 1 at 1 p.m. This annual ecumenical service will be held in Squamish Baptist Church (corner of Marescent Road and Read Crescent) and the theme God Calls Us to Respond was written by the women of Haiti. The offering will go to the World Council of Churches. The service will include special music, and refreshments and fellowship will follow.

This evening, Feb. 27 you are invited to an open house in the Mountain FM building, 38011 Third Ave. to review and add your comments on a preliminary concept for a Howe Sound airport alternative for Squamish. The open house in Room 222 is ongoing from 5-8 p.m.

The canvass for funds for the Heart and Stroke Foundation of B.C. and Yukon is winding down, with the final day for campaigning being Thursday, Feb. 29. One of the coordinators, Karen Vanzella, said Squamish has a great reputation as being a most generous community. Your donations are most welcome.

Several special events are planned at the Squamish aquatic centre in March. Take the family along to the pool for the teddy bear swim from 6-8 p.m. on Sunday, March 3. On Friday, March 8, a lifesaving instructor course begins. Phone 898-3604 or stop by the Brennan Park Leisure Centre for information.

The award winning choir The Capilano College Singers, led by Lars Kaario, has a fine program to present when it returns to Squamish for a concert on Friday, March 8 at 8 p.m. in the new community theatre at Howe Sound Secondary School. The sponsors, Howe Sound Performing Arts Association, suggest you purchase your tickets soon, and they are available at Mostly Books, Squamish Public Library and Highlands Video. Costs are $9 for adults and $7 for seniors and students.

The regular monthly meeting of the Howe Sound Performing Arts Association will be held on Monday, March 4 at 10 a.m. in the upstairs boardroom at the Squamish Credit Union. On the agenda will be a discussion on a new PNE talent contest for the new theatre at Howe Sound Secondary School will take place from 7-7:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 7 during the evening of entertainment and art displays from 6-10 p.m. Refreshments will also be available. Also look for the special box to put your suggestion in those 55 years and over.

About Town

By Maureen Gilmour

Celebrating her first birthday tomorrow, Feb. 28, is Sally Enns, and on Saturday, March 2, Josie McKay has her first birthday.

STORK STORY - FERGUSON - Ryan and Linda are proud to announce the birth of their son, Blayne Keith, weighing 7 lb. 1/2 oz. and born in Lions Gate Hospital at 23.56 K on Feb. 11. Totally ecstatic first-time grandparents are Lewis and Frankie Ferguson and Dale and Janyce Eakins, all of Squamish. Equally thrilled great-grandparents are Margaret Eakins of North Vancouver and Albert and Catherine Bisset of Mission. Aunties Elizabeth and Kristen welcome the privilege of providing exemplary babysitting services to their new nephew.

International Women's Day will be celebrated on Friday, March 8 at the Legion Hall from 6-10 p.m. Following the dinner, a program in celebration of women is planned. Tickets at $10 each are available at Mostly Books, Howe Sound Women's Centre, IDA, Anna's Attic, Stylezone and Valleycliffe General Store. If you wish more information please phone the Women's Centre at 892-5748.

Next week, Monday through Friday, March 4-8, has been designated Education Week. The official opening ceremonies for the name of the new theatre. The deadline has been extended to the end of June.

We love to watch the skaters perform on television during competitions and special shows, but there is nothing like watching homegrown talent perform. More than 100 skaters of all ages, including guest skaters, are busy rehearsing for the Squamish Skating Club's ice carnival. The theme this year is Chasing the Dream, and performances are planned at the Brennan Park Leisure Centre arena on Saturday, March 9 at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m., and on Sunday, March 10 at 1 p.m. Tickets are available at A Shade Better, Home Hardware and Workwear World at $9 for adults, $6 for students and $4 for children and seniors. If purchased at door, add $1 to each category.

Every year the Howe Sound Secondary School grads hold a fund raiser for their dry grad. This year is no exception. Beginning March 1 and ending March 15, this year's class will be canvassing door to door selling manure throughout Squamish. This year they will be offering steer manure as well as mushroom manure. Mushroom manure will cost $5 per bag and $125 for a pickup load. Steer manure is $4 per bag or four bags for $15 and $100 for a pickup load.

If you are not home when the students come calling, place your orders with Delores at 898-5793.

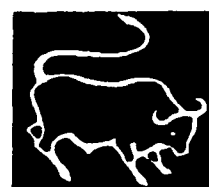

HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Clark

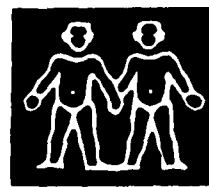

February 25 through March 2, 1996

Aries (March 21 - April 20)

The tension in a relationship is mounting, and you have no one but yourself to blame. A conversation could turn ugly if you are not careful.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)

Health matters should take precedence over everything else. Check your diet and exercise routines carefully.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

It is important to take time to relax and enjoy life. Accept a friend's invitation for some fun and frolic. Perhaps take a minivacation.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

There is no reason for you to take your temper out on family members. They love you and they do not deserve this kind of treatment.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

A friend will help you out of a difficult situation. Learn your lesson and do not let yourself get into trouble like this again.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

It is time to lift your spirits and re-energize your body. Take an art class or join a study group in which you are interested.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

Stay calm and do not let anyone see you sweat. Sometimes you have to play head games to get ahead in the world, but watch your step.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)

Don't put all your eggs in one basket. Continue to diversify your life, especially your finances. Find time to read a good book.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)

Take a deep breath and dive in. There is no other way. Once the tasks are complete, take some time off for good behavior.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)

You can continue to blame the past for what you are today, or you can get over it and start your life anew.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

Everyone makes mistakes. The important thing is to try not to repeat the same ones over again. Give a loved one a big hug.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

Spend a romantic evening reading in front of the fire with a loved one. A friend or relative will call with important news.

G) Cat

Fingerprints are often used to solve crimes.

Before the development of fingerprinting, people identified some criminals by branding or tattooing them.

In the 1880s, Sir Francis Galton calculated mathematically that no people have exactly the same fingerprint patterns. Even identical twins have different fingerprints.

Sir Edward R. Henry of Great Britain developed a fingerprint classification system in the 1890s. His system became the basis for the fingerprint system used in the United States and in many other countries.

Fingerprints are recorded on a piece of glass or metal coated with a special ink.

Darts & Daffodils

Want to say thanks and make sure everyone knows why? Or maybe offer a little constructive criticism without confrontation? Send your Dart or Daffodil to The Editor, The Squamish Chief, Box 3500, Squamish, B.C. V0N 1A0 or drop it off at our office at 3811 Second Avenue, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. You can also fax your message to 892-8483 or e-mail to: sqchief@mountain-inter.net.

Many daffodils to Maureen Gilmour of The Squamish Chief, Mountain FM, Community Cable 10 and Squamish Jewellers for their help in making our Valentine Tea such a success. A grateful Order of the Eastern Star Chapter.

Daffodils to the RCMP for their concerned efforts in charging a man with dangerous driving causing death. Darts to the judge who found this man not guilty.

A fire truck full of daffodils to Squamish Fire Rescue chief Pat Hampson, Chris French and the rest of the guys who responded to our latest chimney fire. You guys are great, and it's amazing we still all have a sense of humor.

A Power Ranger costume full of daffodils to Pam for making my skating costume, and special thanks to Debbie for doing the sequins. You've made a little boy (and mom) very happy.

Daffodils to everyone who made our wedding day memorable. A special thanks to Bruno at Destra Signs for the excellent just married sign, and Bonnie of Rosewood Florists for the beautiful job she did on the flowers. Thanks. The happy newlyweds.

A ledger, tax return and stick-it notes full of daffodils to Saint Chris. Your patience, professionalism and sense of humor make numbers and forms tolerable in our lives.

The most valuable gift I have been given is our friendship. Thank you. Your numerically challenged friends.

Daffodils to the four beautiful young girls who pushed my station wagon into the Chevron gas station on Cleveland Avenue last week. Thank you so much.

Daffodils to Chris Mazotti at Grapes 4 U for thinking of us on our Marshall Lake weekend. Thanks from the Squamish five.

A fire truck full of daffodils to Squamish Fire Rescue for answering the call of...overflowing Yorkshire pudding. My people got a real kick out of my unique dinner bell. I was also teased for my different technique of trying to get a date with a fireman. At any rate, the dinner was a success, the oven is a mess, and there was lots left over so you could have stayed. Thanks, guys. And also, I'm sorry.

Truckloads of daffodils to Heidi, Katrina, Nadine and the other women for the lovely meals they prepared. Your thoughtfulness was greatly appreciated. Daffodils also to my family for all your love and support. Thank you with all my heart.

Our Ronald McDonald House recently sprouted McDaffodils thanks to Aaron and Rory for donating more than $18 in pennies which they have been saving. Their kindness will be shared by many children in need. Many thanks.

Two Squamish courts full of daffodils to all the organizers, volunteers and club executives for the successful Sea to Sky Squash Tournament. It takes more time and energy than people realize. A great tournament. Thanks.

Signs and signs of daffodils to Phil at Sea to Sky Signs for his more than generous contribution to the Youth Entrepreneurship Conference. All his time, effort and patience were a major factor in the professionalism (the adjective most used to describe the conference by the delegates in their evaluation) of the conference. We believe that you get what you give. If this is true, Phil, you are a rich and successful man and your business will continue to thrive.

Thanks, from the Youth Action Committee and Community Futures.

Daffodils to the mom who returned my son's ski jacket to the pool. It was very much appreciated.

Eagle's Eye

A Different Perspective

Many people only know what Squamish looks like from the ground, but the best way to get a complete perspective is from the air, as photographer Patrick Heintzman did several months ago from a helicopter heading west approaching the Squamish River estuary.

Photographers Wanted

We welcome submissions to the Eagle's Eye from anyone of any age — and you don't have to be a professional photographer either. Mail to The Squamish Chief, Box 3500, Squamish, BC V0N 3G0, or drop it off at 38113 Second Avenue.

Those who are published will receive a FREE 5x7 enlargement (from 35 mm neg).

Two new programs created to encourage shopping in Squamish

Through discussions with the Squamish Merchants' Association and the tourism committee, two promotional initiatives are being planned for this summer.

The Summer Savings '96 discount coupon sheet will be distributed to event organizers to encourage visitors participating in the various local events, such as the Test of Metal mountain bike race, Thunder in the Streets, Squamish Days Loggers Sports and the Eco-Challenge, to experience some of the numerous tours and activities available at Squamish and the surrounding areas.

The second promotion is a customer appreciation program called the Win a Squamish Days Holiday Passport Book. Passport books will be distributed at the Sea to Sky Country Trade Fair at the chamber's booth.

Everyone receiving a passport book will have their name registered to be included in a weekly draw to win a $25 gift certificate.

Throughout the summer when people are shopping at participating businesses, their passport book will be stamped with the store's stamp and the value of the purchase entered. Once $100 in purchases has been accumulated on a page at a maximum of five stores, the page is torn from the book, the entry form on the reverse filled out, and the entry deposited into the draw box at the store.

Chamber News

These entries are eligible to win one of three prizes of a Squamish Days holiday, which includes cash, gift certificates, accommodation at the Sea to Sky Hotel and admission to all Squamish Days Loggers Sports events. A final cash draw will be presented on Sept. 7. Customers can enter as often as they wish. Businesses wishing to participate must contact the chamber before April 1. A minimum number of business participants is required to offer this promotion.

The RCMP is looking for volunteers interested in participating in a community patrol. Concerned citizens will assist the RCMP by patrolling the streets of Squamish watching for suspicious and illegal activities. If you are interested in helping prevent crime in your community, contact Const. Frank Bethell at 898-9611.

Promoting Events — Squamish Days Loggers Sports is just one of the community events which will be promoted with the new Summer Savings '96 discount coupons. Chief file photo

Whips & Spoons

By Cathie Price

The Welsh are something of a hidden population in Canada, even though March 1 brings them out to celebrate St. David's Day, the patron saint of Wales. For most of us, St. Patrick's Day and Robbie Burns Night are family events. But St. David's Day?

Many more Scots and Irish settled in Canada than Welsh. The Welsh presence was overshadowed by these considerably more aggressive nationalities. That plus a Welsh distaste for ostentatiousness hides a proud cultural identity that survives far from its homeland. Singing is their unrivaled display of national confidence, and the very heart of soul of being Welsh.

St. David no doubt used the Welsh gift of oratory and love of music to spread the gospels in 6th century Britain. One of the earliest missionaries in Europe, he lived in Wales and travelled Ireland and Brittany. He founded a monastery in West Wales which a thousand years later became one of the great shrines of Christendom. There is a story that St. David led the Welsh to victory against their Saxon foes. (These invaders had named the much older Celtic people "Welsh" meaning "foreigners." While that stuck with us, the Welsh still to refer to themselves as "Cymry" or "fellow countrymen.") Legend has it he wore a leek so as not be mistaken for an enemy. Whatever the reason, the leek has become the national emblem of Wales.

Welsh cooking is best described as plain. No surprise. It's a cuisine born of poverty in a harsh land. Best described as substantial food, it was designed to stoke the inner fires in a country that, though never exceedingly cold, is frequent-draw and bone-chilling. Oats and bacon were additional staples in the country. Root crops, mutton, salt beef and fish rounded out the diet. Leeks, of course, kept well in the garden throughout the winter.

This leek dish isn't Welsh by any means. Like the rest of the British Isles, the Welsh were noted for their kind or even varied treatment of vegetable dishes. The leek gratin with cream and cheese is one of the great, simple dishes of northern France, a specialty of Normandy. While the Welsh didn't pick up the cooking habits of Normandy, they certainly kept up an ancient kinship with northern France's remote region of Brittany. In the far-flung corners of France and Britain, Celtic culture survived through the centuries in a few isolated pockets. As late as a century ago, Bretons sailed to Cornwall and Wales, flogging onions and speaking to the Cornish and Welsh in a shared Celtic language. Too bad they didn't swap a few more recipes.

Gratin of Leeks

8 leeks
2 Tbsp. butter
2 Tbsp. flour
1 cup half and half cream
1/2 cup Swiss cheese, grated
1/2 cup Cheddar cheese, grated

Choose small, tender leeks with bottoms no more than 1 1/2 inches in diameter. Avoid ones with yellowed tops and overgrown roots. They will be tough and stringy. Trim off the roots and cut off the tops, leaving only an inch or so of pale green. Slice the leeks lengthwise almost right through. Carefully separate the layers while rinsing under cold water to remove any sand. Stew them in a covered saucepan with a bit of water until tender, about 15 to 20 minutes. The water should almost evaporate. Arrange the cooked leeks in a buttered, shallow baking dish.

Heat oven to 375 degrees. To make the sauce, melt the butter over low heat, stir in the flour and cook for a few minutes. Whisk in the cream. Stir over medium heat until the sauce boils and thickens. Simmer for 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in half of the cheeses. Season to taste to salt and a few grinds of pepper.

Pour sauce over leeks, sprinkle remaining cheese over top. Bake for about 20 to 30 minutes, until top browns nicely.

A fine variation on this dish is to wrap each leek in a thin piece of ham before saucing and baking.

Wine and vegetable dishes can make a good match. I would choose a decent quality German Riesling to set off the gentle sweetness of the cooked leeks and the cream. Riesling's tangy, lemon-lime acidity and ripe fruit flavors are lovely with a delicately seasoned dish. This leek gratin is a delicious side dish for ham, one of Riesling's great partners.

Seniors centre a good idea

There was a pretty hefty turnout for the meeting held Feb. 15 at the Elks Hall to discuss a seniors' activity centre to be built on land set aside for that purpose between the seniors complexes of The Cedars/Squamish Manor and Eagle Grove Co-op seniors housing development. It was felt that many people hadn't had a chance to hear and have input into the proposed plans, so it was necessary to have a well advertised and open meeting to report on what's available now and what is planned for the future.

The Tantalus Seniors Centre on Pemberton Avenue was opened in 1993 and right from the beginning it was clear it was not ideally suited to the needs and programs required. Some had visited centres elsewhere and realized how much more could be available here.

In a questionnaire poll, the three outstanding needs for seniors in this area were found to be housing, a seniors' activity centre and transportation. The housing issue was considered dealt with in the development of The Cedars/Squamish Manor complex and Eagle Grove. As part of that deal, 0.6 hectares (1 1/2 acres) has been set aside for a seniors' activity centre on the site known as Block R.

Chairman Tom Bruusgard asked Doug Robinson, of the Access Building Association, to display and talk about a tentative plan which he called a schematic design layout, to show how it could best be utilized. The proposed building includes a cafeteria with patio for eating outdoors in summer, a large lobby and reception area, meeting and craft rooms, a daycare area for special needs of the elderly who live at home, a large meeting room for exercise classes, banquets, or dances, and examining rooms for things like eye and foot care, hearing testing, heart health, and counselling for anything from hospice care and mental health to diet and taxes. It has the potential for providing meal services either on site or deliverable to those who live nearby, which will eventually number 150 to 200 units.

The proposed building will be approximately 925 square metres (10,000 square feet).

et who are still working, many of them full-time. Many are also ill or infirm or don't have transportation.

I wondered if anyone had announced or offered to car pool or pick up those for whom a long bus trip and a possible long wait out in the cold might be a bit much to expect. Criticism comes so easily, with

Start-up funds of $250,000 have been set aside by the municipality as part of the agreement with Eagle Grove, specifically for this purpose, and the projected total cost is $1.6 million. Robinson emphasized that there can be many variations on the proposed design shown; the site is ideally situated to serve the greatest numbers, and is convenient enough for those who live outside the downtown area to get to, both by car and bus.

There was some concern that because it was so close to Eagle Grove and Squamish Manor, it would be considered to be just for them, but all it would take is a good advertising campaign to inform and welcome all seniors, and a few special events designed to bring them into the fold to clear that up.

I was quite taken aback by the confrontational attitude of some of the attendees at this meeting. It was my first one, and I must say it didn't encourage me to attend many more. Over and over I heard people complaining about all the people who should have been there and weren't. Yet what tends to get forgotten is how many in the 55 to 70 age bracket supportive action takes planning and care.

I think the whole concept is an excellent one, and I know the community will come forward in the same generous and heartfelt way it has for other projects, to make it a special place for their elders to enjoy happy and healthy old age. Brighten up some of you, okay? Have you ever heard of being spacious in your heart to make room for those with different ideas, values or views? That you can catch more flies with honey than with vinegar?

Another meeting has been suggested at a time and place convenient for all. Anyone who wants to is welcome to get involved and join the planning committee. Or offer suggestions of what they'd like to see as part of such a centre. How about a swimming pool? Or a gym? Or a skating rink or hula hoops?

Oh stop, I didn't mean that last part, but what about something a little different, like tai chi, yoga, meditation, a circle of elders to talk to the young? And as our dear departed friend Ellen Lavery would say "Smile, you're part of my scenery!"

Coast-Garibaldi Health Region declared viable

Coast-Garibaldi Health Board chair Shawn Cardinall met Feb. 20 in Victoria with Paul Ramsey, Minister of Health and Minister Responsible for Seniors. During the meeting the minister declared the region viable.

"We are extremely pleased with the result," said Cardinall. "Now we can get on with the challenging work of implementing our plans."

The regional health board and its three health councils will be focusing on four short term goals:

- hiring of the regional chief executive officer and community senior administrators.

- Health goals for 1996-97.

- The creation of a communications plan ensuring full community participation.

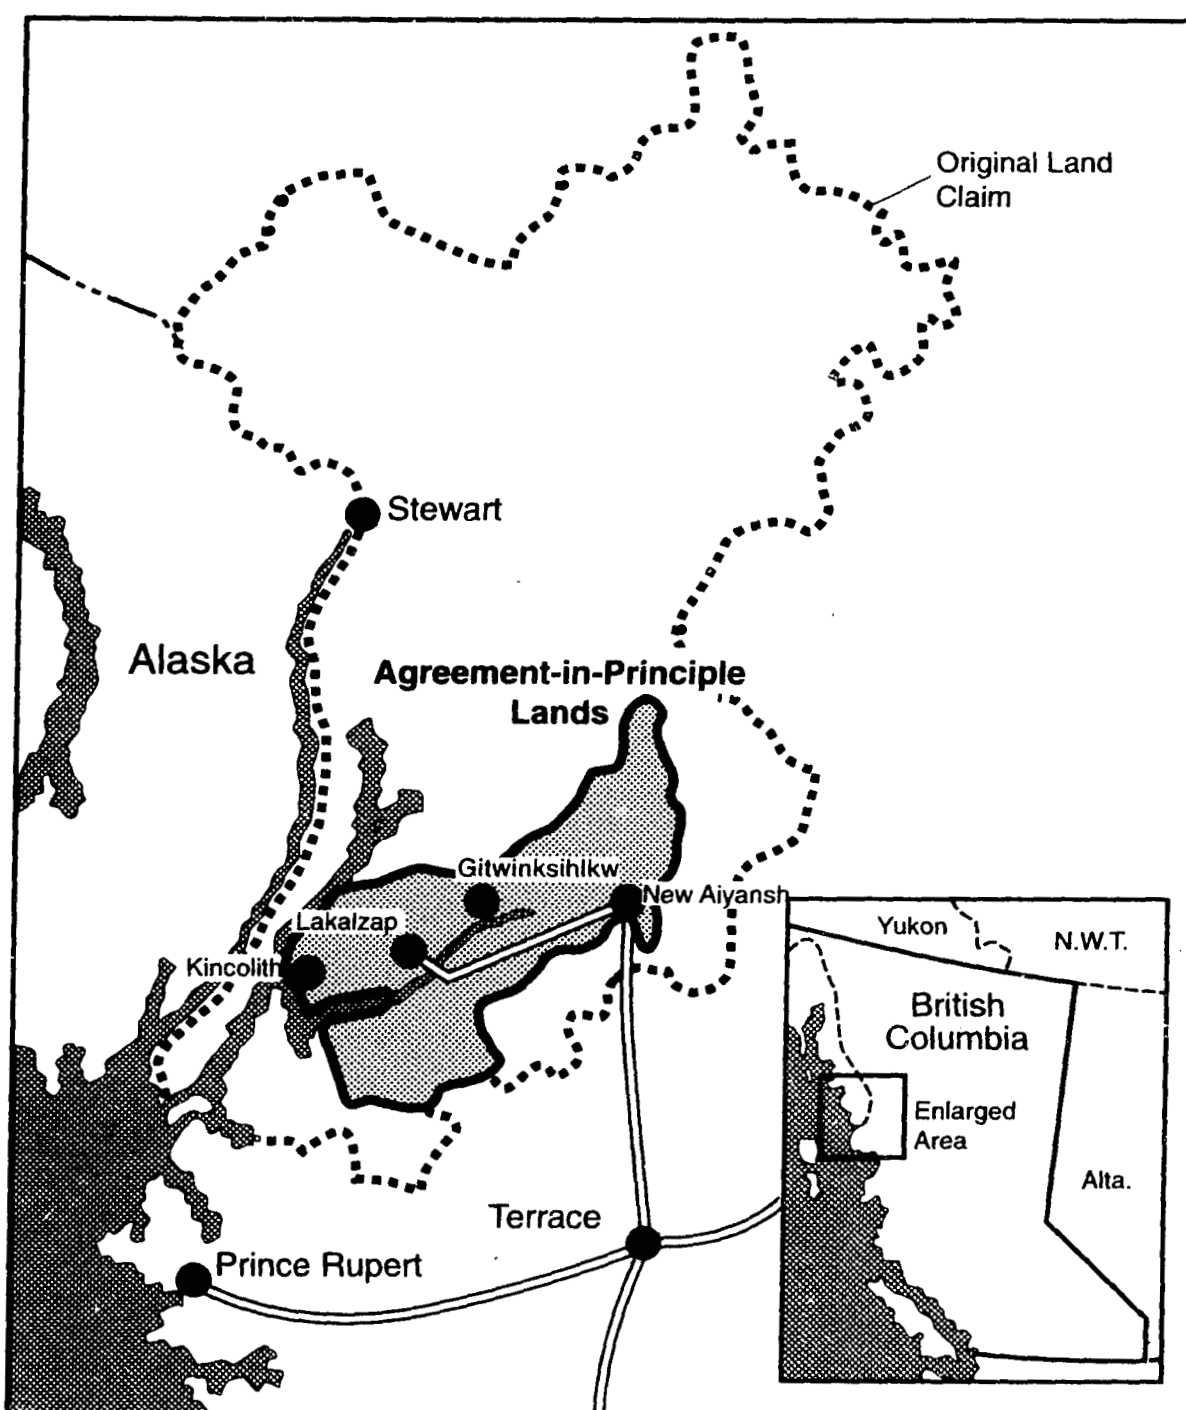

- Amalgamation and transfer of societies, programs and services.

"We are grateful for the opportunity to put into practice our health and management plan, and are looking forward to working with our region as we focus on our goals of efficiency, integration and a seamless health service delivery system," Cardinall said.

"Thanks again to ministry staff, regional and community staff and all the countless individuals who choose to invest in our health care future by being involved in this process."

NISGA'A NEGOTIATIONS FIND COMMON GROUND.

On February 15, 1996 the Governments of Canada and British Columbia initialed a landmark Agreement-in-Principle with the Nisga'a of the Northwest Region. This is an important step on the road to a final treaty.

The complete Agreement-in-Principle is available on the Internet at <http://www.aaf.gov.bc.ca/aaf/>

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE NISGA'A AGREEMENT-IN-PRINCIPLE.

The agreement highlights these key issues:

- LAND. The Nisga'a will own 1,930 square kilometres of land. No private land was negotiated away.
- CASH. The Nisga'a will receive a total of $190 million to be spread out over a number of years, plus $11.5 million for commercial fishing vessels and licenses.
- FISHING RIGHTS. There will be no Nisga'a supplemental commercial fishing rights as part of the treaty.
- TAXES. Over time, the Nisga'a will pay the same taxes as everyone else.
- LAWS. The Criminal Code, Charter of Rights and Constitution apply to the Nisga'a. For the first time, provincial pollution, wildlife and forestry standards will apply on Nisga'a lands.
- SELF-GOVERNMENT. Nisga'a jurisdiction within their lands, generally similar to municipal powers, will be phased in over time.
- ROAD ACCESS. The Province retains control of all provincial roads within Nisga'a territory.
- CERTAINTY. This will lead to the full and final settlement of land ownership and Nisga'a rights.

Screaming Eagles claw to the top in playoffs

By David Donaldson

The Howe Sound Midget Rep Eagles hockey team has been toughing it out in a rough playoff series, beating West Van in four games last week and beginning its series with Sunshine Coast Sunday night.

The Eagles massacred West Van 8-1 the first time the two teams met Feb. 17. West Van scored first with its only goal at 10:35 to go in the first period. Craig Halliday scored twice for Howe Sound in the first with one power play and one short handed goal.

The second period saw Jon Vanzella get his first at 11:42, and Halliday completed his hat trick two minutes later on the power play, with Stephen Fryer right behind him a minute later. John Lacoursiere and Vanzella rounded out the second period with a goal each and Evan Starling scored the only goal of the third period. West Van racked up 30 penalty minutes to Howe Sound's 14.

When the teams met again the next day in Squamish, the fists flew faster than the puck, with each team earning up to 90 penalty minutes and a number of game misconducts in the 6-6 tie game.

Ashton Robertson, called up from the bantam division as a substitute, was the leading scorer of the game with a hat trick under his belt early in the second period before West Van had a chance to score its first goal. By the end of the second, the score was tied 4-4 with the Eagles' other goal from Steven Fryer.

In the third period Howe Sound got ahead with goals from Robertson and David Jones before all hell broke loose with 3:28 to go.

A fight broke out and pretty soon both sides had vacant benches and the ice was littered with padding as the players piled on each other. When the fracas had fizzled, Eagles Fryer, Mark Lynd and D.J. Little, and two West Van players were shown the gate with game misconduct penalties.

When the game resumed with West Van at a two-man advantage, they easily tied the score. In the last minute, Vanzella broke away and nearly put the Eagles ahead, but he was beat by the West Van goalie, ending the game with a score of 6-6.

The third game in West Van Feb. 19 was nearly a loss for Dog Pile — With just over three minutes left to play in game #2, a massive brawl cleared the benches.

Overachiever — Called up from bantam to fill out the Howe Sound roster, Ashton Robertson has scored more than his share of goals.

hockey, with only 22 penalty minutes to West Van's 54.

Simon Danielson scored the Eagles' first goal with 9:18 to go in the first, followed by Fryer's power play goal at 3:26. Second period scoring opened with Halliday's power play goal at 9:46, with Ashton Robertson behind him with a goal at 5:30. Five minutes into the third, Robertson scored again, with Halliday following four minutes later before things got a little nasty near the four-minute mark. West Van started a fight resulting in two of their players being ejected and a man advantage for Howe Sound, giving Steve Lacoursiere the opportunity to score with 1:21 remaining in the game.

The Eagles had a well-earned two-day break before starting their series against Sunshine Coast Sunday. Halliday kicked off the first period with a short handed goal at 11:45 and Sunshine Coast tied it up a minute later.

Howe Sound got a little rougher in the second and with two men short when the coach team took the lead at 8:14. The second period ended with a two-on-one as Halliday flipped the puck to Robertson right in front of the net to tie the score.

The third period gave power play opportunities to both teams, but only the Eagles managed to kill its penalties and score with the man advantage with goals from Halliday at 12:09 and 2:51 to go. Sunshine Coast scored one more at 2:11 but Vanzella strengthened Howe Sound's lead when he scored with 18 seconds on the clock.

Quick Stop — Eagle goalie Adam Ryan made plenty of good saves throughout the playoffs. David Donaldson photos

McFried by Flyers

McDonald's got kicked in the McRibs with two losses, but managed to hold on to fourth place last week as the Howe Sound Men's Hockey League nears playoff time.

The Squamish Tire Red Wings trashed McDonald's 7-0 when the teams met Feb. 16. In the first period the Wings had goals from Barry Woodard, Scott Hunter and Dale Hedin. The second period gave Woodard two more, another for Hunter and one each from Al Shulte, Dave DeBalinhard and Kevin Read.

It was a close game Feb. 17 as the North's Hornets met the Mexx 9:18 to Pub Flyers for a 3-3 tie. The Flyers began scoring three minutes into the first period with Rich Raffaele's goal. The Flyers retaliated with a goal from Calem Gardner at 11:44. The Hornets briefly pulled the third head with a goal from Bob Cunneyworth at 8:53, but the Flyers caught up four minutes later when Randy LeBlanc scored.

The second period was just as fiery as the first as goalies Murray and Steve Hadden from the Flyers only let in one goal apiece. The Hornets' goal came from Raffaele at 16:19 and the Flyers started the game when Neil Wippich scored at 12:37.

Sunshine Feb. 21 saw some rougher action when Build-All Construction took on Pair Tree Thunder for a 4-1 victory. Pair Tree scored the only goal of the first period when Mike Marzocco slid the puck past Hornet goalie Thrower, filling in for Build-All.

The second period didn't see much action until halfway through, when a power play gave Shane Fordo a chance to score one for Build-All at 9:39. After that they didn't slow down with Ryan Johnson scoring at 4:08, followed by two from Ryan McKenzie at 3:08 and nine seconds remaining.

McDonald's was back in action to lose 6-2 to the Flyers Feb. 23. Brad McKay scored the first goal for McDonald's midway through the first period, but a body checking penalty gave the Flyers the chance to even the score with a goal from Wippich at 8:24. Myles Rosser put the Flyers ahead when he scored with 2:20 remaining in the first.

The Flyers kept McDonald's goalie Paul Savage on the tips of his skates in the second period with four goals. LeBlanc began the barrage with his first at 17:13, momentarily interrupted when Brian Jahnke scored for McDonald's at 16:58. Rosser continued the Flyers' onslaught at 14:45 with LeBlanc again at 13:32 and Maurice Mountenay finishing the game with his goal at 6:56.

Men's league action will intensify as the teams get ready for the '96 playoffs. The first game will feature the fourth place team facing the first place team, March 6, 8:45 p.m. at the Brennan Park Leisure Centre.

Centres Men's Soccer League observed a minute of silence for the tragic death of young Local 170 player Stephen McLain.

McLain died in a car accident on Hwy. 99.

Local 170 players showed tremendous character to turn out and defeat Continental Power Services 3-0. This victory boosted them to sixth place in the league, only one point behind Lil'wat Coyotes, who managed a 1-1 tie with Ellis Moving Eagles to keep them in the running for fourth place and qualification for a premier playoff spot.

Top-placed Squamish Khalsa had little trouble defeating bottom-ranked Thunder Hawks 6-0 to maintain their distance from Cheeky Charlie's United, which struggled to a 1-0 victory over the Dynamos.

The winning goal came when a cross from Jim Walker and a challenge by Daryl Simmons forced the goalkeeper to punch the ball straight to midfielder Dave Sweeny, who found the back of the net with a powerful drive.

"We looked as though we hadn't kicked a ball for a few months," said Charlie's coach Sean Keightly. "The Dynamos played last week and we didn't, so it wasn't until the second half that we began to control the game despite only having 10 players."

This week's games at Centennial Field Sunday, March 3 at 10:30 a.m.: Local 170 versus Dynamos, Ellis Moving Eagles versus Cheeky Charlie's United, Squamish Khalsa versus CPS and Lil'wat Coyotes versus Thunder Hawks.

Shootout gives Squamish FC victory in cup match

By David Donaldson

After two overtime periods in an extremely close soccer game, Squamish FC overcame North Shore White Spot with three goals in a penalty shoot-out for a cup match victory.

FC coach Doug Muir said the team played a good game and really deserved to win. A cold wind was blowing throughout the game, and whoever was facing it was at a disadvantage. Squamish was down before gaining the wind advantage in the second half, and Christian Oreamuno tied the game late in regulation play.

Both overtime periods saw many chances for both teams, with the ball bouncing off the crossbar twice for Squamish and once for White Spot. The shootout saw Squamish goalie Ricardo Olague make two excellent saves as his team scored three shots on the White Spot net.

North Shore White Spot is in third place in Metro Division IB — about the same place as Squamish FC in Division IA, so Muir is feels good about the win.

"There wasn't a weak spot on the field," he said.

Vancouver Metro Soccer

League Cup matches are played throughout the season between all the divisions. When a team loses one match, it is out of the series and the winner goes on to the B.C. Championships.

Squamish FC has a bye this week.

Axemen dedicate victory to fallen mate

A victory came out of a tragedy Saturday as the Squamish Axemen defeated the Ex-Brits 26-12 only hours after learning of the tragic death of one of its players. Both teams held a minute of silence before the start of the game, which was dedicated to the memory of Britannia Beach resident Stephen McLain, who was killed in a single-vehicle accident on Hwy. 99. His wit and ever-present smile will be missed by his mates.

The Ex-Brits took an early lead in the first half with a converted try by its veteran forward pack. They continued the pressure, with another goal line attack resulting in a try to bring the score to 12-0.

The Axemen huddled up and came out with a firm resolve to win. Their march downfield culminated in a try by George Lewis to give Squamish five points.

The second half started with even play from both teams, but some well-placed kicks from Axeman Brian Buchholz and an excellent chase by the team resulted in Ted Matsumoto's first try of the season, converted by Buchholz. This was followed by a try from Lewis, converted by Buchholz to put Squamish ahead 19-12.

The Axemen showed some stalwart defensive play with a five-minute goal line stand before they broke out with a beautiful overhead behind-the-back pass by Don Pashleigh for the final try of the game, bringing the score to 26-12 for Squamish.

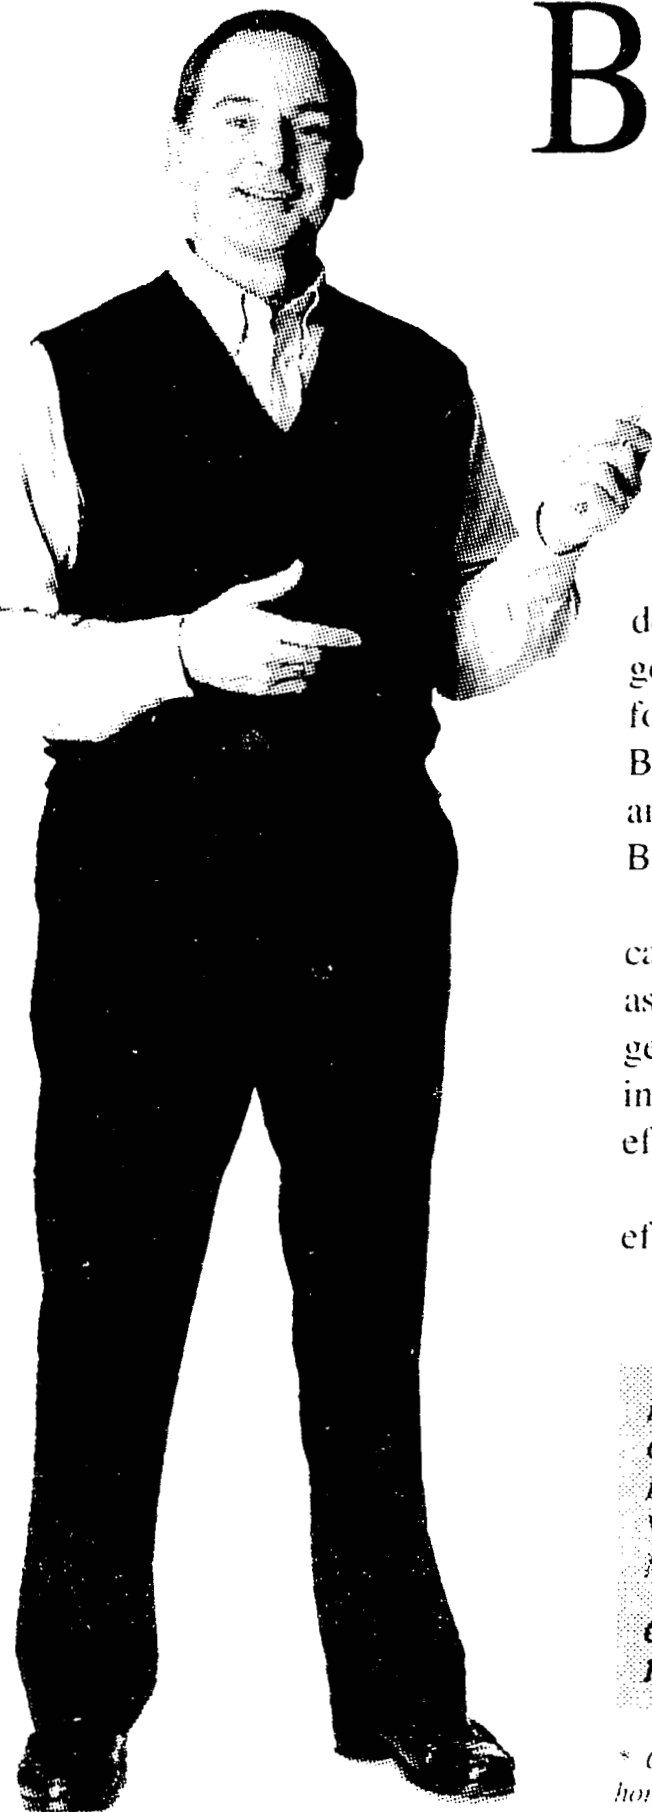

Brennan Park gets batting cage

Batter up — finally. After nearly two years of waiting, the Howe Sound Baseball Association (HSBA) will be able to build a batting cage at Brennan Park.

With $3,000 from the district and other grants and donations, the association now has the funds to begin construction of the cage which will measure approximately three metres wide by 24 metres long and three metres high, with a target completion date set for the end of March.

HSBA president Keith Magee says a batting cage has been needed for some time, especially for the younger players who need to develop their swing.

The event saw nearly 100 entries, with almost all the Squamish skaters finishing in the top 10 of their categories.

"The kids did really well. It was the first time (performing) in front of people for a lot of the younger ones," said Pat Murphy of the Squamish Skating Club.

Squamish skaters consistently place well in competitions and are well recognized in the skating community, said Murphy. "More often than not, we take home more medals than the home clubs."

Members of the Squamish Skating Club are now rehearsing for their upcoming ice carnival, Chasing the Dream, and will be competing in the North Shore International skating competition in March.

Families who like to ski together can compete together in the 11th annual Spud Valley Loppet, a cross-country ski race for the whole family.

The Pemberton race will be held Sunday, March 3, beginning at the Lillooet Forestry Bridge and finishing at Outward Bound.

The loppet course is approximately 10 kilometres in length, over fields and forests in the Pemberton Valley, and is suitable for beginner skiers.

Registration for the non-profit event is $5 for 14 and over, and $2 for seniors and 13 and under. This includes refreshments, medals, prizes and trophies, as well as shuttle service to or from the race start location. Registration is from 9 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. at Outward Bound, and the race starts at 10 a.m. at the Lillooet Forestry Bridge.

The Canadian Red Cross Society

The District of Squamish Public Information

NOTICE OF VOTING

Mr. Eivind Ternes of Garibaldi Highlands, has applied to the Liquor Control and Licensing Branch and the District of Squamish for a Class "D" liquor licence to operate a Neighbourhood Pub at 40452 Government Road, Squamish, B.C.

A vote will be conducted by MarkTrend Research on behalf of the District of Squamish on Saturday March 2, 1996 from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Easter Seal Camp, 41015 Government Road to determine the degree of community support within a one mile radius of the proposed establishment. In order for the application to proceed further, the results of the vote must indicate that at least 50% plus 1 of those voting are in favour of a neighbourhood pub at the proposed site.

A person aged 19 or over whose principal residence or business falls within the boundaries of the referendum area is eligible to vote. Only one vote will be allowed at each business address and any one person may only cast one vote. The ballot for the business may be cast by the owner or manager, who is at least 19 years of age.

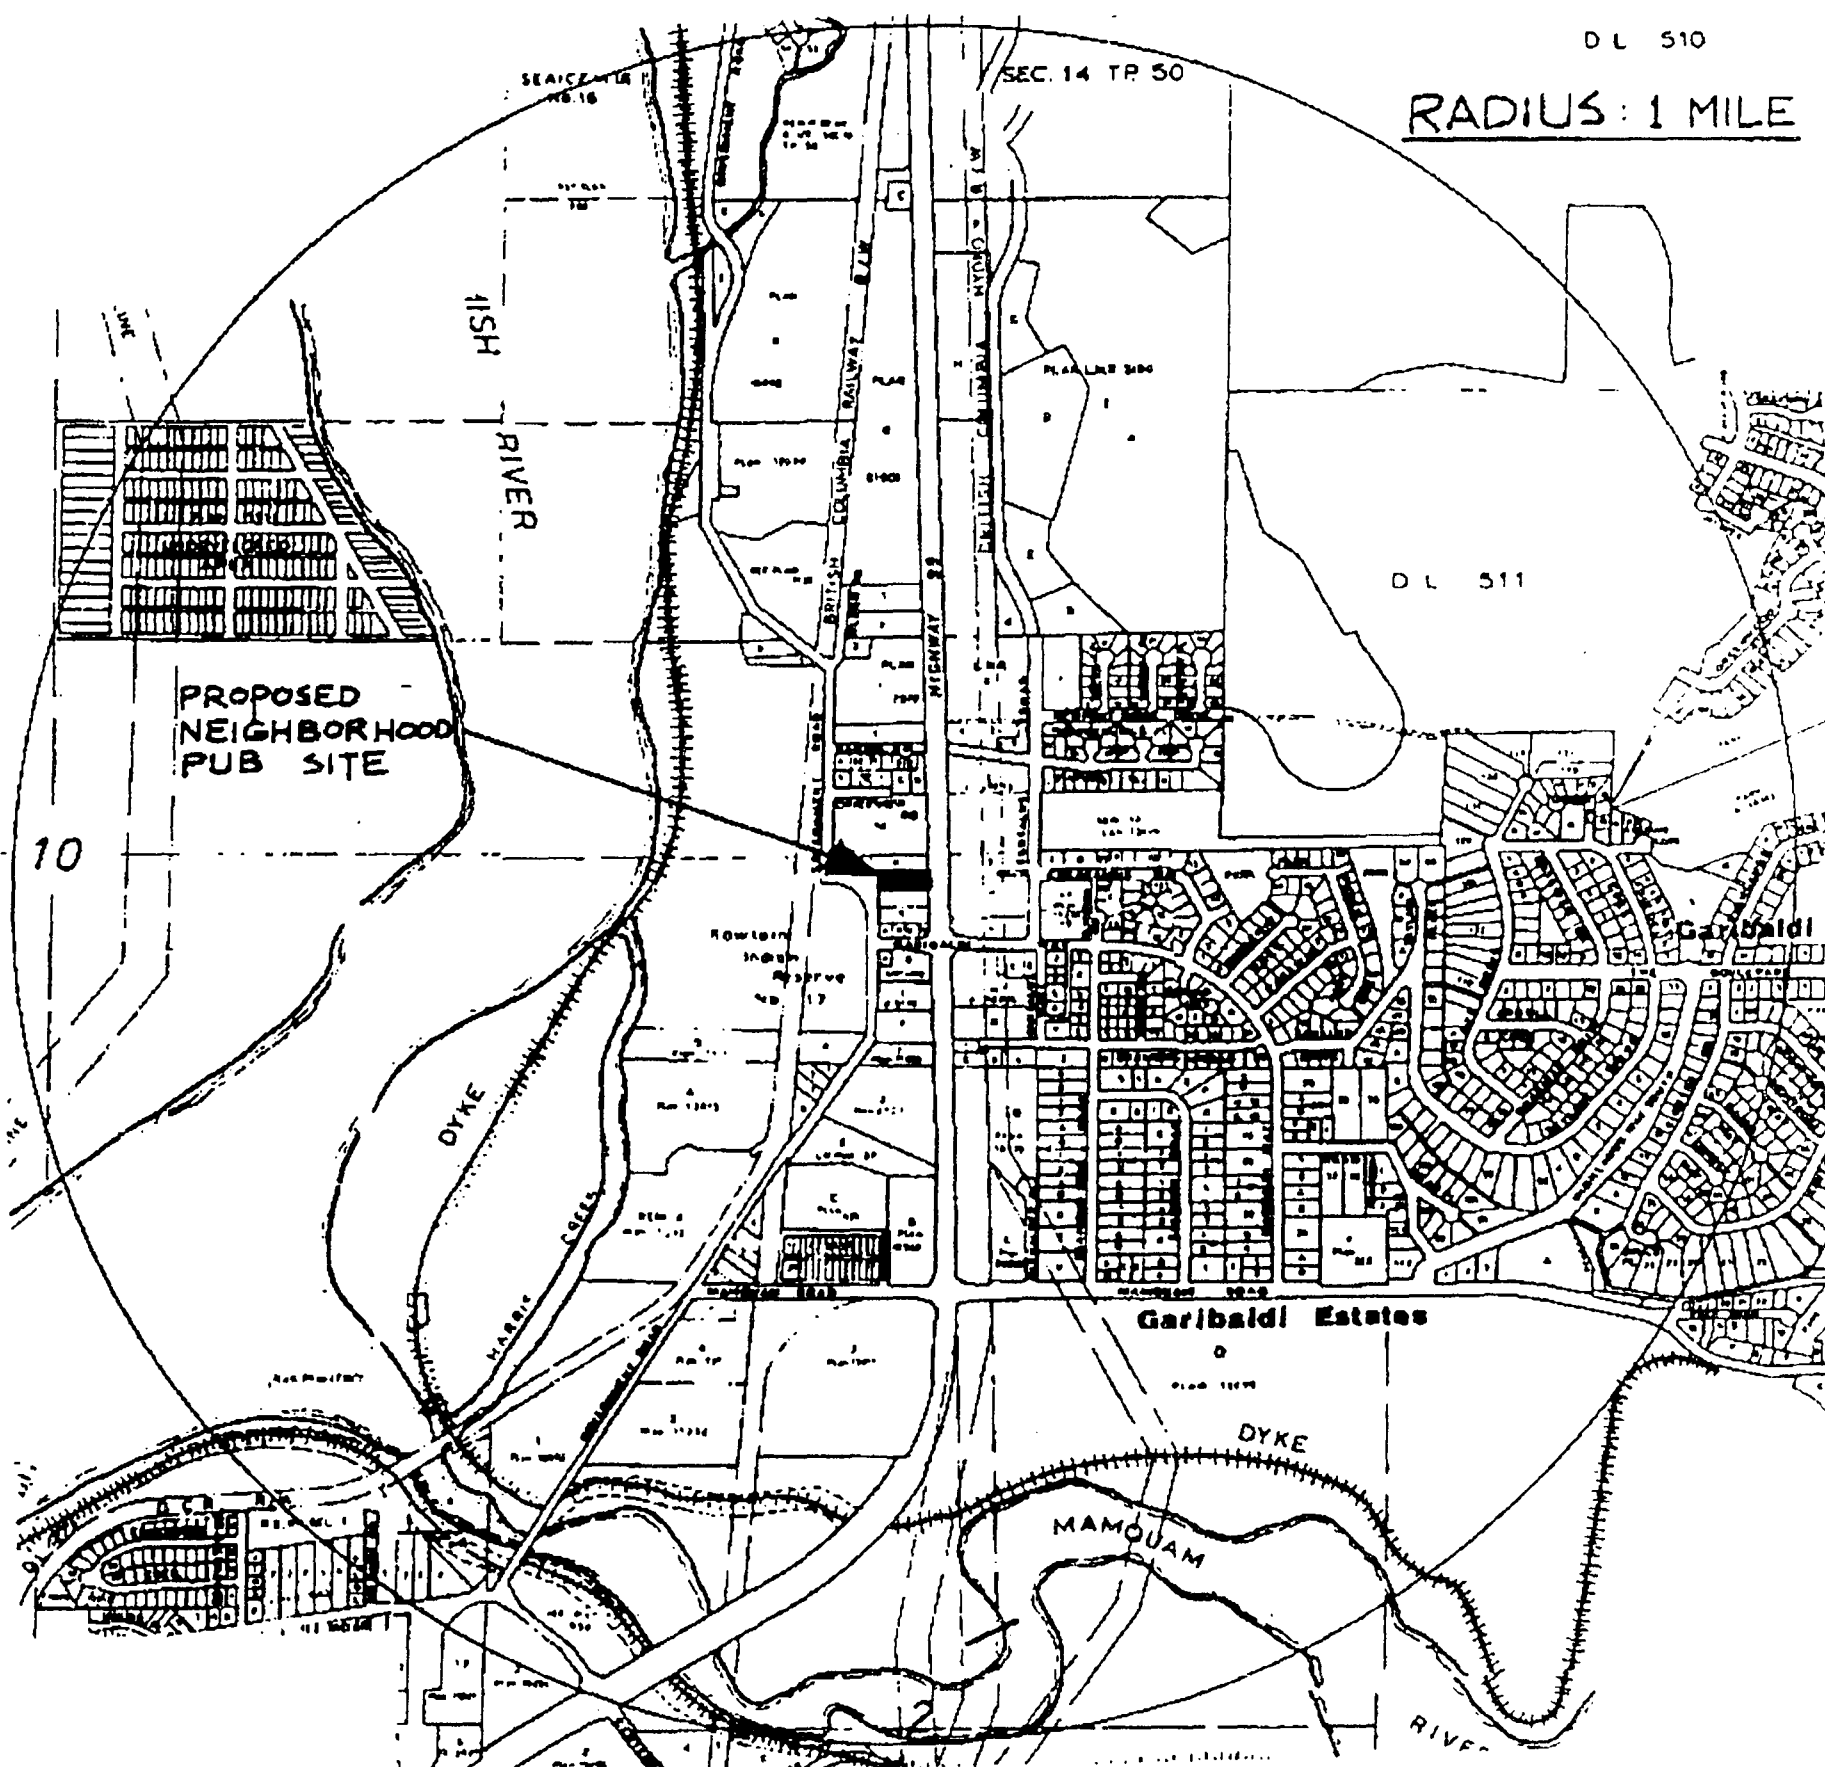

An enumeration of residents/businesses in the referendum area will be conducted during the week of February 19. Residents will be contacted between the times of 5 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. while businesses will be contacted during normal business hours.

On the day of the referendum, residents who have been enumerated previously will simply be required to show identification to receive their ballot. For those residents who were not previously enumerated, they will be required to show identification with their current address.

Persons requiring any further information regarding this Neighbourhood Pub Referendum may contact the undersigned at 815-5005
