Artist brightens the day for children visiting the health unit

Squamish newcomer decorative artist Susan Cogar puts the finishing touches on a colorful mural at the Coast-Garibaldi Health Unit. The volunteer project took Cogar 20 hours in between clinics, and she hopes the bright tones and characters will make visits more enjoyable for children. Cogar will be conducting painting workshops at the Brennan Park Leisure Centre during spring break, and hopes to do more murals in the community. David Donaldson photo

Problem areas identified in school board inquiry

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

One week after announcing the superintendent of schools for Howe Sound District 48 is leaving, the board released an overview of a recent inquiry into the district's operations. The flow of financial information to the board and the payroll system were identified as having serious procedural deficiencies. The inquiry, conducted by Graham McKinnon, associate executive director of the B.C. School Trustees Association, looked at how the board handles its areas of finance, education and administration. "There were people asking questions so we decided to look into them," said board chair Constance Rulka.

She would not get into details about the inquiry's findings and said a prepared news release faxed to The Squamish Chief reveals as much information as the board is now able to supply.

"We are forming action plans to deal with these recommendations," said Rulka.

The release states the previous board of trustees appointed McKinnon to conduct the review to ascertain what difficulties existed, "...that might impede the normal operations of the district to provide high quality education for the students and to determine what actions are appropriate."

The inquiry began Nov. 21, 1996 and McKinnon's final report was presented to the new board on Jan. 21. McKinnon interviewed 148 people, including educators and parents, during the inquiry.

In the area of education, McKinnon's report finds the education of students in the district is sound, access to programs at Pemberton Secondary and Whistler Secondary schools needs improvements, First Nations programs require attention and the level of support for education provided in the school district's budget is within the normal range for districts across B.C.

Findings regarding finance revealed the 1996/97 spending in the district is not consistent with the approved budget. The release states, "unless corrective action is taken, (the district) will incur a deficit of somewhere in the vicinity of $700,000." Such action was taken Feb. 12 when superintendent Doug Courtice presented an amended budget which contained no shortfall.

The report notes the 1996/97 budget approved by the board is balanced and funds are being distributed consistently with Ministry of Education, Skills and Training caps and targets.

The inquiry also found the flow of financial information to the board is inadequate and the payroll system has serious deficiencies. The release says these problems are procedural and have nothing to do with the potential deficit.

Concerning administration, McKinnon made a number of findings, including personnel issues. The release states personnel issues are confidential so details of these findings will not be disclosed. He also found the number of administrators is within the range for B.C. school districts and the administrative structure is not a problem. The inquiry concluded relations between the superintendent, secretary-treasurer Nancy Edwards and the board are not problematic.

Parents demand more meetings in public

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The past coordinator of Howe Sound's District Parent Advisory Council (DPAC) wants this school district's board of trustees to hold more meetings in public.

Fran Cuthbert, who made a presentation to the trustees Feb. 12, said further discussions of the 1996/97 operating budget should be held in open meetings and the budget development process for 1997/98 should also involve consultation with parent advisory councils (PACs). Cuthbert requested formation of a consultative committee to review the school crossings in the district.

"It is our (DPAC's) belief that any revisions, amendments, or review to the approved financial policy should be undertaken in public meetings and an open process for review," said Cuthbert.

DPAC sent a letter to the school board last May requesting clarification of criteria for issues discussed privately by trustees and board staff during in-camera and closed-meetings.

Doug Courtice, superintendent of schools, responded by sending DPAC a copy of board policy. The policy states labor, legal and property issues are to be discussed behind closed doors.

Cuthbert said after checking with other publicly-elected boards and governments, she found it is not common practice to discuss financial matters or budgetary issues during closed meetings.

She said four years ago, parents requested a consultative process for budget development and an ongoing budget review process. But due to various circumstances, the developed consultative process was stopped.

Cuthbert said very few PACs were consulted about the board's draft budget last year and they didn't receive copies in time to respond.

"There has also been no consultation on the crossing guard issue," she said.

Constance Rulka, board chairperson, said PACs were requested to respond to the Ministry of Education's report on crossing guards three years ago.

Unlicensed dogs netted $250 in fines last year

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The District of Squamish released a more comprehensive year-end animal control activity report during last week's council meeting.

Joe Barry, municipal clerk, said the report's findings for 1996 are difficult to compare with last year's statistics.

"There wasn't a comparable front page of the report from last year," said Barry.

The district collected a total of $450 from tickets issued for animal control bylaw offences. Of these tickets, five worth $50 each were issued to pet-owners with unlicensed dogs. One $50 ticket was issued for a dog at large at one $150 fine was given for a dangerous dog at large.

The district received 222 complaints throughout the year ranging from dogs running at large, barking at dangerous dogs, and even one call about a horse on the loose.

The number of warnings issued, mainly for barking loose and unlicensed dogs, throughout 1996 was 250.

Last year, Municipal Hall and the dog pound so 1,311 dog licences, compared to 1,186 in 1994. According to statistics from the pound, 362 dogs were impounded by staff or surrendered by owners in 1996. Of the canines, 200 were claimed by their owners, 116 were adopted, 34 were sent to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) and one was euthanized.

"Owners are encouraged to pick up their dogs (from the pound) as soon as they can because there is a daily maintenance fee," said Barry.

Council set to determine destiny of secondary suites

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

Squamish council is looking at the future of secondary suites and is working on a strategy to address the issue throughout the district.

A recommendation from district clerk Joe Barry to the committee of the whole Feb. 25 asked council to disband the secondary suite task force and to direct Barry to prepare a draft registration program report with input from various district departments and the public.

"I believe it would be counterproductive to proceed with the task force as originally intended due to the apparent widespread support of these suites," said Barry.

But this recommendation was defeated and a motion was passed to instruct staff to prepare an issue paper and public communication strategy on the situation to be brought back to the committee for discussion.

The previous council passed a motion last July to form the task force to review secondary suites and gather recommendations. Such suites, separate apartments connected to single-family homes, are currently unauthorized in the district.

Barry said the project was purposely delayed for a few months to avoid confusion with the official community plan (OCP) process. After advertising for citizens to serve on the task force, only two residents were interested in participating.

"The overwhelming lack of response was the first indication that there might be widespread support for secondary suites in our community," said Barry.

As part of the OCP process, a questionnaire was distributed last June to all Squamish residents and businesses. Vancouver-based consultants Graham Farstad Associates Ltd. provided an analysis of the survey results to the district in August.

The report found 46 per cent of respondents expressed support for the suites if they meet regulations for size, safety and use. About 42 per cent supported the units only if the owner occupies the primary residence. The level of support for total prohibition was about six per cent.

The report concluded there is broad support for the suites and, "...in no case did the outright prohibition of secondary suites or their allowance with minimal regulations throughout Squamish receive the support of more than 20 per cent of respondents in any neighborhood."

"It's clear that there is a need and desire for secondary suites in Squamish," said Barry.

He estimates there could be up to 800 secondary apartments in the district, with some houses having as many as three.

Extra suites may get separate utility charges

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

Property owners in the District of Squamish may soon be billed for secondary suite utility charges.

Council passed a motion Feb. 25 during a committee of the whole meeting to instruct district staff to identify unauthorized secondary suites, such as basement apartments in single-family houses, for the purpose of invoicing additional utilities.

The recommendation must still be approved by council during its regular meeting.

"When we receive complaints about secondary suites, one of the common complaints is that they're not paying their way," said Trudy Coates, the district's deputy clerk.

A memorandum from Coates states property owners with secondary suites, which are currently unauthorized, are now billed for utilities at the single-family dwelling rate of $409.30, based on 1996 rates for the whole property. A single-family dwelling containing one unauthorized unit would be billed at double the rate and with two extra suites, the owner would be billed triple.

Secondary suites are those with separate entrances, living spaces and kitchens which are connected to another home. These suites are currently illegal in the district and Coates said even if a relative lives there, it doesn't make it legal.

"For our laws, it's irrelevant who lives there," she said.

If the committee of the whole's recommendation is adopted, the process would involve district staff compiling a list of addresses allegedly containing unauthorized suites and bylaw enforcement officer visits to the dwellings. The confirmed list of suites is to be provided to the finance department for invoicing in March.

Coates said invoicing these apartments does not legitimize the existence of the suite as a permitted use and is not municipal approval saying it meets any standard for occupancy.

Water company manager looks for compromise

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The general manager of a Squamish-based water company said he wants to find a way to share a unique water source with the District of Squamish.

"We'd like to work with the municipality to try to come up with solutions that are going to work," said Gary Lehto of Alava Spring Water Company Ltd.

The company applied to the Ministry of Environment, Lands and Parks (MELP) in 1995 for a water licence to divert 227,000 litres (50,000 gallons) every day of the surface water from Powerhouse Creek for commercial markets.

Alava proposes building a small weir structure with piping and a collection station for transporting water from the area, located on Crown land east of the eastern municipal boundary line.

Lehto said the ministry has said a temporary, 12-month permit may be issued to Alava while the company tries to secure tenure on the land.

But the district also applied for a water licence in November, 1996 asking to secure future rights for about 26 million litres (5.76 million gallons) of water daily at Powerhouse. Other than Alava, no other applicant is ahead of the district's request.

Council passed a motion Feb. 18 to write to the ministry stating the district considers Powerhouse Creek an important potential water source and the district's need should be given top priority over other commercial or industrial use applications.

During the Feb. 25 committee of the whole meeting, Afsar said sharing with Alava may be a possibility because the company is looking at surface water while the district wants to tap into the ground water. He said the quantity the company wants daily is small compared to the amount the district is planning to divert.

Lehto said the company has had its eyes on Powerhouse for about two years and plans to attract a major bottler to set up on the site. He said many companies have expressed interest in getting involved.

"There's a tremendous opportunity here given the hydrology and geology of the source," said Lehto. He said he estimates the cost for a major bottling company to establish operations at about $6 million. He also estimates hundreds of jobs would result.

Lehto said the company, which owns the mineral rights to the site, also plans to protect the surrounding area by working towards turning it into park.

The company may start construction on the project within the next couple of weeks if the ministry approves. Lehto said Alava wants to set up for a long-term business and not just the 12-month period.

"We've spent far too much money to only be involved for one year."

Testing of new spill gate control system

A new spill gate control system at Cheakamus Dam will be tested during the coming week.

The new system will help reduce the impact of water flow changes on fish by allowing a more gradual change in flows. It will also provide benefits to flood management operations.

The test will require the temporary lowering of Daisy Reservoir by approximately 5 metres from its current elevation of 372 metres above sea-level.

The reservoir will be lowered to minimize the amount of water released from the spill gates during the test. The tests are expected to take three days and should be completed by March 7th. The reservoir will then return to normal operations.

District investigates water source options

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The District of Squamish is trying to cover all bases to determine which future water source is the best for residents. Council, district staff and interested citizens listened to a number of suggestions from two consultants with North Vancouver-based Kerr Wood Leidal Associates Ltd. and hydro-geologist, Andrew Holmes, during a Feb. 25 meeting.

The district is looking at the Mamquam River basin's ground water source and Powerhouse Creek, located on Crown land east of the eastern municipal boundary, as its main options.

"Regardless of which source is developed, both of them should be looked at as future sources," said public works director Mohammad Afsar.

Kim Stephens, project manager with Kerr Wood Leidal, and Frank Belfry, president of the company, gave an overview of a draft briefing paper on water supply issues and a master planning framework for the district.

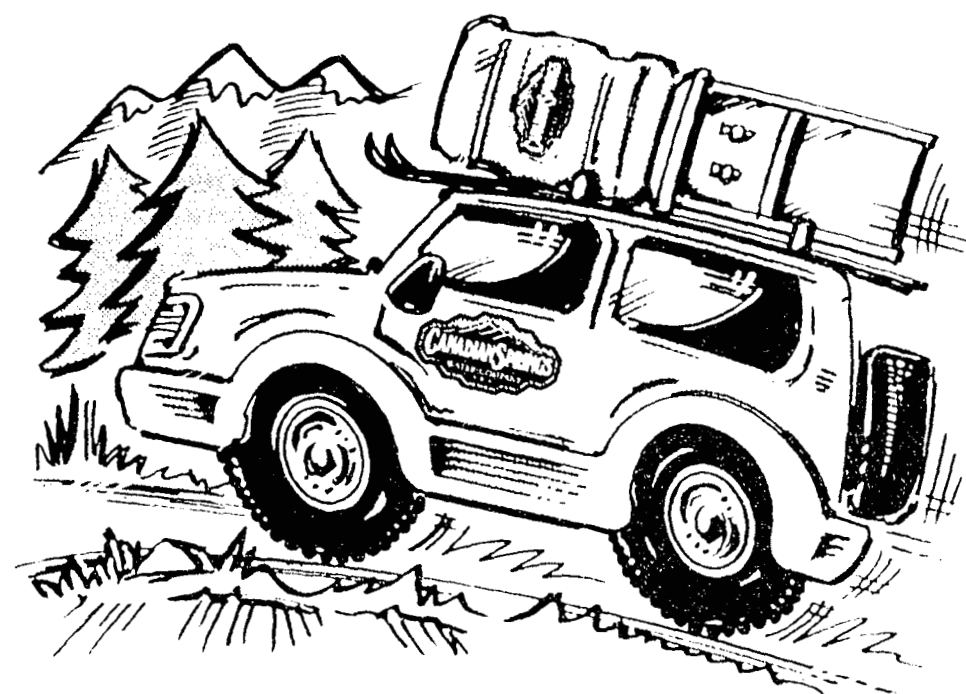

The report states if the district's intention is to proceed with developing ground water wells in the Mamquam basin, the plan should be to reach a certain quota of water. If that amount is not attainable, the plan suggests the next step is to develop either Powerhouse Creek or the Stawamus headwater storage to meet the peak demand for a 20-year supply.

Stephens said it would take about 18 months to be in operation at the Mamquam site because the district has already started testing water in the area. Mayor Corinne Lonsdale said council needs to determine which source is the most feasible and concentrate on one or the other.

Stephens estimates the cost of construction at either location to be about $2 million.

Afsar recommended the municipality start further investigations of Powerhouse Creek to see where it sits as an option. He will be meeting with provincial government officials in March to talk about the approval process for the Mamquam area. Testing in the Mamquam is now under way.

do save lives

When you are peering over the edge of the highway at your new vehicle, which probably cost in the neighborhood of $30,000 and is now totally destroyed, it is hard to imagine thinking that it is your lucky day. But that was the reaction of Sharon Folkes and Greg Stanton of Vancouver Feb. 25 a couple of kilometres past the turnoff for Alice Lake.

Rounding the corner heading for a day in Whistler, the couple's Nissan Pathfinder hit some black ice, fishtailed, rolled, plowed through about 10 metres of concrete barrier and flipped down the bank of large rocks into the trees. The rear wheels of the vehicle ripped off, the windshield was smashed, most of the other windows popped out, and the roof over the passenger's seat was caved in.

Folkes looked at that section of roof, where she had been sitting as the accident took place, watching the tow truck driver attempt several times to dislodge the vehicle from its final resting place and haul it back onto the highway. With a sore wrist and bruises from the seatbelt, she knew indeed it was her lucky day. Her partner walked away without a scratch.

They are walking, talking, living advertisements for Nissan Pathfinders and other such solidly built vehicles. Had the same accident taken place in a smaller vehicle, it is doubtful the occupants would have lived. Apparently there was another serious accident at Porteau Cove Saturday in which the occupants of a Pathfinder escaped unscathed.

That is something to contemplate as we all drive the highway. Unforeseen conditions can crop up at any time. Short of having everyone driving a Sherman tank, we all rely on our vehicles for a degree of protection in the event of an accident.

Some are obviously better than others.

Road rage hits close to home

We all know that city attitudes and actions are creeping ever closer to Squamish. That hits home once again this week with the report from the RCMP on an incident on Hwy. 99 in which a 40-year-old man was beaten by a couple of lads in their 20s after they took exception to each other's driving habits.

The incident is classified as a relatively new phenomenon called road rage, in which drivers who previously only thought about smacking another inconsiderate motorist upside the head actually do so. In the local case, that smack in the head resulted in the victim needing plastic surgery for bone damage around one eye socket. At virtually the same time this was happening on our highway, an elderly man in Okanagan Falls was followed home by an irate driver and beaten unconscious in his driveway. His crime was driving too slow.

The Squamish case is now before the courts, so we will refrain from pre-judging the outcome. A middle-aged man should know better than to confront a couple of youths half his age, no matter what the circumstances are. And the young men should have known the police would be called because of the number of cell phones being used by drivers.

A recent national survey showed that 48 per cent of motorists at one time or another think about violent action against what they consider to be other bad drivers. The fact those thoughts are more frequently being translated into actions is scary indeed.

No matter how frustrated we get at other drivers, we must maintain our cool. Report them to the police if you can, or ignore them. There are more and more people in this country who seem to hold the lives of others in low esteem. And you never know these days who is packing a gun.

Cloning a baaaaad idea

The world was agog last week when Scottish scientists announced the world's first successful cloning of an adult sheep. This is tremendous job creation news for shepherds, but has much broader implications, judging from the reaction.

Pundits immediately began asking whether the process would work with humans, and speculating on the results. Those involved in the ethics of science were up in arms, with some saying the experiment should be aborted and all its data destroyed.

Ostensibly, the experiment was set up to allow for further scientific research into disease control. Those involved in the project have said they hope to parlay their success into further research on such damaging diseases and cystic fibrosis and others. Personally, I think their main goal was to tweak the imaginations of the writers of the British tabloids.

Up until now, the concept of recreating multiples of ourselves has been left to the realm of science fiction writers and Hollywood producers.

Those of us with both feet on the ground at all times realize the fallacy of some of the fears currently being expressed. Even if we could create another human being with our exact genetic makeup, every other factor would be different. The clone would not have the same parental or family influences, the same environments growing up, the same education or the same knowledge which we have gained throughout our lives. Genetic makeup may determine our looks, stature and some other character traits, but I firmly believe our environment and upbringing has the greatest influence on who and what we become as adults.

Most of us realize that one of us is more than enough. Inflicting two of ourselves or more on an unsuspecting society goes far beyond the realm of common courtesy. But it is fun to speculate.

A whole team of Wayne could appreciate.

In basketball, can you imagine a whole team of Dennis Rodmans. They'd get every rebound but nobody would score. And the coach would probably be fired after the whole team sulked about not being allowed to play in gold bikini briefs and tank tops or have the team logo tattooed on their tongues. There wouldn't be enough talk shows to con-

As I See It

By Al Price

Gretzky clones would seemingly be invincible. Wayne Gretzky passes to Wayne Gretzky, who in turn passes to Wayne Gretzky, who scores. Perfect, except when you realize when the other team gets the puck it faces Wayne Gretzky in goal. To my knowledge, he's never played that position, so the opposition would have a good chance. And what do you do when all five Wayne Gretzkys get the puck behind the net and attempt to pass it out front. Oops.

That situation could be analyzed between periods by either Don Cherry or his sidekick Don Cherry. Surely the original Grapes has enough choke-collar shirts and awful jackets to dress the clone in the sartorial splendor only he tain the egos.

With a federal election rumored for this spring, if the process of cloning can be speeded up, Liberal leader Jean Chretien could run in every riding. But then so could Preston Manning of the Refooooorm Party. And for God's sake, keep Sheila Copps out of the lab.

The scariest thought is that one of the few people who could afford to buy this scientific research team lock, stock and data is Michael Jackson. Wasn't there a story out of Scotland recently about him wanting to buy a manor there and live in the clean country air? And how long was that before the birth of his first child...which nobody in the known world has yet seen? That's baaaaaad.

Geese flying over town a magical sight

Editor,

It is one of the most magical sights I've seen while living in Squamish. I'm fortunate enough to have witnessed this scene several times.

A few weeks ago, I again was transfixed as a flock of 10 to 20 Canada geese swept gracefully across the downtown skyline.

Powerfully. Steadily. Purposefully.

I feel it is an honor to share an area with such majestic birds. I hope we will always honor characteristics of this area that have attracted these geese here for hundreds of years.

Take action on no-fault

Editor,
One must be impressed by the creativity of ICBC's advertising consultants for the propaganda campaign designed to convince the public that no-fault insurance is a good thing.

The campaign opened with the hard-hitting attack against lawyers to instigate sentiment toward those who are financially privileged. The strategy to follow these advertisements with the "hypnotic sessions" that have aired hourly on local radio over the past couple of weeks is brilliant.

Now that the first round of advertising has sparked the anger of the public, the current round aims to sedate and brainwash by repetition in that sedated mind. The music sounds very similar to the music on my self-hypnosis tapes.

Our NDP government, through its agent ICBC, is spending our dollars to attempt to hypnotize us into supporting an insurance scheme which could be grossly unfair to those who suffer severe injury and which rewards bad driving by compensating the drivers at fault for their own injuries.

When considering no-fault insurance, I believe it is fair to make an analogy to Worker's Compensation Board (WCB). If a person feels that he or she has been treated unfairly by WCB, and if that person belongs to a union that can afford to pay a lawyer to appeal, the result might be a reasonable settlement. The little guy who does not have a union to finance the appeal must accept what WCB bureaucrats determine to give. This is what no-fault automobile insurance will be like for all people except a privileged few who have the financial resources to fight the bureaucracy.

The loss of your fundamental right to sue a party that has aggrieved you and to have that grievance adjudicated through the impartiality of the courts is a loss not to be taken lightly. If you do not wish to lose that right, it's time to take some action.

Squamish RCMP need our support

Editor,
I need to address both the article on the Ocean Port Hotel and the letter from P. W. Hance since both refer to the RCMP. I cannot believe the gall that the owners of the Ocean Port Hotel have to file a harassment complaint against Squamish RCMP. I say hooray for the police and so should every citizen of Squamish. We want the police to do their job, yet when they do it, somehow comes out as harassment. We have to back our force. I sit on one of the committees where police are present at our meetings, and we are sending a letter to the quorum control board in support of them. If the owners really want to clean up the hotel they might try working with the police.

I also read where a resident complained about the number of roadside suspensions that were issued by our RCMP. I think it's great that the police will make judgment calls tempered with compassion. We don't know if the alleged offender blew just close enough to get them dead on .08 or that they were coherent, rational but blowing .08. Since we don't know the circumstance, why are we not supporting our police?

P.W. Hance says our force is out of whack. If he would check with the detachment he would find members are stepping up enforcement on the highway and ICBC is helping to pay for some overtime.

What with cutbacks, we are darn lucky to have the concerned force we have. Join Citizens on Patrol and try to make a difference or join some other citizen's group. Stop griping and get out there. The citizens are the ones who will make a difference and I'm glad the force is trying to clean up our town.

If the force is investigating 12 unsolved homicides then that tells me there were 12 unsolved homicides. It doesn't mean there were 12 homicides in Squamish, but if a body is dumped on our highway within Squamish RCMP limits then that becomes a Squamish homicide. Now what is confusing about that?

Salmon funding decision disappointing

Editor,
Squamish council recently made a very disappointing decision to not follow a recommendation from planning director Margaret-Ann Thornton and administrator Bob Miles that the District of Squamish submit the application for funding in the amount of $33,062 to B.C. Environment urban salmon habitat program.

Here is a brief and partial accounting of damage done to the Squamish River ecosystem:

- The diversion of the Mamquam River away from the east side of the valley to the Squamish River with a resultant loss of fresh water to the east side of the estuary and loss and/or degradation of salmon spawning and/or feeding grounds on the east side of the valley.

- The diking of the Cheakamus, Mamquam, Mamquam and Stawamus rivers with a resultant loss and/or degradation of salmon spawning beds.

- The degradation of the Cheakamus, Mamquam, Mamquam and Stawamus watersheds by logging operations, with a negative impact on water quality and/or flow, and a loss and/or degradation of salmon spawning grounds.

- The damming of the Cheakamus River by B.C. Hydro, resulting in a degradation of water flow.

Everyone invited to bowl for Big Brothers-Big Sisters

Editor,

On the weekend of March 21-23, Big Brothers- Big Sisters of Squamish will hold the 17th Annual Bowl For Millions fund-raising campaign at Garibaldi Lanes.

We wish to take this opportunity to extend an invitation to everyone to get together with three or four other people and form a team. If you have not participated in Bowl For Millions before, please call the Big Brothers-Big Sisters office at 892-3125 to get involved.

This year we ask that you bring your pledges with you when you bowl. From past experience we know that collecting from your sponsors at the time of pledging is an easier method than trying to collect after you have bowled.

All participants bringing their total pledges with them when they bowl will be entered in a special prize draw.

Many annual participants have a specific time they like to bowl. We ask that you please contact the Big Brothers-Big Sisters office to reserve your preferred time and avoid disappointment. Make arrangements to pick up your pledge forms early and have lots of time to collect your donations.

Pledge forms are available at Garibaldi Lanes, Health Food Heaven, All Key and Locks, and Pair Tree in Garibaldi Highlands.

It is also an opportunity for you and your team mates to have fun and support the youth of Squamish.

Teachers are not after big bucks

Editor,

This letter is in response to Ms. Kavaliunas' letter last week, criticizing teachers for not knowing the meaning of the word teamwork. I graduated from Howe Sound Secondary School and I know many of the teachers there personally, including my father. To attack the credibility of the many dedicated educators at HSSS by suggesting that they are after "a title to a name or going after the almighty dollar" is deplorable.

Maybe Ms. Kavaliunas should investigate just what a typical teacher at HSSS or any school in the province has to do in the average day before she accuses anyone of looking for bucks.

Most teachers are at the school by 8 a.m., many of them earlier than that, preparing for the school day. During the day, they are expected to teach, deal with discipline problems, contact parents, and deal with administration on a variety of issues. After school and at lunch hour, many teachers offer their time to help tutor students who are having trouble, coach school teams, sponsor clubs and assist the student council, the school yearbook, the grad committee, and a whole list of other student activities.

A teacher is also expected to help out doing student supervision before and after school and at lunchtime without any additional pay. On top of this, a teacher must mark students' work, adjust to curriculum changes, and sit on numerous school committees. A good estimate would be that the average teacher works close to 60 hours a week, and many put in more time than that.

As far as department heads are concerned, they are there to ensure each teacher is covering the same material in class, supplies are being ordered, the maintenance department is contacted when equipment breaks down, and all teachers are aware of any changes to the curriculum, which is happening rapidly. These teachers are not after big bucks. The $16,000 request is to cover the cost of a substitute replacing them in class while they carry out their duties, which are, might add, necessary to ensure continuity in the school system.

The fact is, teachers are already pushed to the max and are feeling the pressure of budget cuts just like everyone else. Perhaps if Ms. Kavaliunas was interested in saving money, she would be asking why our school board recently committed $30,000 to reinstate crossing guards when it seemed parents and other volunteers were doing a fine job. Maybe, just maybe, Ms. Kavaliunas, it is parents like you who need to be introduced to the "old fashioned concept of teamwork," if you are indeed interested in saving money.

East Park Site of Village Park

The Whistler Department of Parks and Recreation is seeking initial submissions from Artists for works to be integrated into the East Park section of Village Park, one of four connected park sites.

The prominent location of the park within Whistler Village suggests that this park will be used by a wide range of people. The landscape design provides a series of different experiences as one moves through the park, the East Park, being the most 'urban' in character. The East Park site will be very active, with strong pedestrian movement and prominent water feature.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE RESIDENTS OF
SQUAMISH AND THE SURROUNDING AREA
FROM THEIR LOCAL MLA

A letter received in my office from Mr. Robert J. Pellatt of the B. C. Utilities Commission dated February 13, 1997, states that as a result of the many complaints received from residents of the Brackendale and Garibaldi Highlands area regarding their lack of natural gas service, action has been initiated.

As you may have heard, Mr. Peter Martin, Area Manager for the B. C. Utilities Commission, has been asked to conduct an extensive door-to-door survey of potential customers, to determine if a proposed extension to the natural gas line would be an economic move on their part.

Mr. Pellatt states that they will fully advise us of the results of this survey.

I am stating, in the strongest terms, the fact that the present system used by most residents of the area in question, is an undue financial burden, which should be relieved by the timely introduction of the service other British Columbians enjoy every day at a reasonable cost.

Your area has waited long enough, and needs and deserves my support, and the support of others who can effect the change. I am sure you and your neighbours will be mobilized and will take advantage of the opportunities coming up for you to express your opinions. I will be speaking to, and writing to, those who can assist in the accomplishment of this task.

The actions of the citizens of the area, to date, have resulted in this satisfactory first step in the process. Do not hesitate to get back to me with anything further that I can do to assist. Together, I am sure we can look forward to the outcome we have been seeking: full service, at a reasonable cost.

Very best regards,

Food bank seeking donations and volunteers

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The Squamish Food Bank Society's March 11 distribution day is quickly approaching and volunteers are concerned about the limited number of donations so far. The newly-revived society met Wednesday to discuss plans to raise awareness and get more donations of food and cash to feed Squamish's poor and hungry residents.

Donation boxes were set up in Squamish grocery stores in December and January and very little has been dropped off by shoppers. Volunteer coordinator Pam Gliatis said it's difficult to tell how much will be needed when bags are handed out.

"I guess March 11 is the day we'll find out."

Volunteer Mary Billy said it's disappointing only small amounts of food have been donated at supermarkets. Although the level of need for food donations in the community is difficult to determine before distribution starts, those using the soup kitchen as well as others living on low or no incomes will probably be food bank users.

But the society has had some help in collecting food. Scouts collected 14 bags of non-perishable items last week when they staged their second Hike for Hunger. The society has been storing food at the Howe Sound Inn but a more permanent location for storage is needed.

"It has to be safe and it has to be dry," said Billy.

Food will be distributed on March 11 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Elk's Hall on Second Avenue. Gliatis said distribution may be at the same location for the next couple of times, but the society is looking for another place which may be less visible to passers-by.

"The Squamish Food Bank has more to do with than just food," said volunteer Betty-Anne Person. "It also has to do with dignity."

Gliatis said volunteers are needed on March 9 to help sort and bag groceries. Anyone who is interested in helping out should call the Women's Centre at 892-5748 or Gliatis at 898-1608.

The society has applied to the District of Squamish for a grant-in-aid and will be asking churches and schools for their help in collecting food, cash donations and recruiting volunteers. It is also looking at different fund raisers and plans to approach businesses for their support.

"We're asking for them to be supportive publicly, and also to support (the food bank) year-round," said Gliatis.

The society's next meeting is scheduled for March 12 from 1-3 p.m. at Castle Rock on Pemberton Avenue. Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer is welcome to attend.

Donations of non-perishable foods can be made at Save-On-Foods, IGA Plus, Super-Valu and Timber Foods. Cash is also needed and can be dropped off at the Howe Sound Women's Centre at 38132 Second Ave. or mailed to Box 2052, Squamish, B.C. V0N 3G0.

Anyone needing food who has no way of getting to the Elk's Hall on March 11, call Joy Sawatsky at 892-2051.

LIQUID LIFELINE TO HEALTH

Water — it makes up most of every human being — all of the bodily processes depend on it — yet the water we drink is being steadily polluted by thousands of toxic substances, from disease germs and viruses to poisonous chemicals added by industry or, deliberately, as controversial "medication."

WHAT IS DISTILLED WATER?

Distilled water is water which has been heated to the boiling point so that impurities are separated from the water which itself becomes vapor or steam. It is then condensed back into pure liquid form. The impurities remain in the residue which is simply thrown away. Distilled water contains no solids, minerals or trace elements, and has no taste. Distillation removes the debris, bacteria and other contaminants. Odorless, tasteless and colorless, distilled water contains no solid matter of any kind, no minerals — organic or inorganic — and is made solely of two gases — hydrogen and oxygen. It can be used as a drinking water, for cooking, for electric irons and batteries, and is pure enough to be used for intravenous feeding, inhalation therapy, prescriptions and baby formulas.

WHAT DISTILLED WATER DOES

Distilled water helps to dissolve the toxic poisons that accumulate in our bodies, helping to clean out the body cells, organs and fluids. Assisting in the elimination of these toxins and wastes through the kidneys, it passes through the kidneys without leaving inorganic pebbles and stones.

As distilled water enters the body, it picks up mineral deposits accumulated in the joints, artery walls, or wherever such deposits occur and begins to carry them out. Gallstones and kidney stones decrease until they can safely pass through their ducts. Arthritic pains lessen as joints become more supple and moveable.

If attaining these health benefits are important to you, call or drop by the...

Winter has been good to our bears

Young male bruins are the ones which most often end up in trouble

By Loreth Beswetherick
Whistler Question

Bear problems are synonymous with summer in the Whistler and Squamish areas while winter hardly seems to warrant a time of concern.

But in early February, resident bear expert, Michael Allen, started monitoring ursine dens in the valley on a weekly basis and conservation officers were tallying up numbers on their computers and are now able to tell us just what sort of a bear year we are in for come the spring thaw.

Conservation officer Dan LeGrandeur says although precipitation has been high, the winter has not been unusually cold and he expects this to translate into a low mortality rate.

"There is always some mortality if you have a really cold winter," says LeGrandeur. "It's usually the newborns and the yearlings we have a problem with."

The person with a real sense of what is happening on the local bear scene at the moment is Allen.

He has been studying and counting Whistler's bears since 1993, in a study area ranging from Brandywine Falls to Green Lake. Allen tracks the bears through the summer and follows them to their denning areas in the fall. He is currently monitoring 45 confirmed black bear dens in the area. He says 1995 was an excellent bear year with good crops of berries. That meant mating was successful and many cubs were born in the spring of 1996.

"I counted 52 cubs and 23 mothers in my study area," says Allen.

Baby bears are referred to as cubs during their first year.

Conservation officer Dan LeGrandeur spends a large amount of his time in the summer trapping, tagging and relocating problem bears in the Squamish and Whistler areas. Chief file photo

After their first hibernation with their mums, they emerge as yearlings. When the young bears den with their mums they stand a good chance of survival.

Allen says the bears' gestation period is around 235 days. "It's a delayed implantation. The bears mate in June. The eggs develop a little and then in the late summer they stop. They start again in November, otherwise the cubs would be born too early in the hibernation and the mothers would have to nurse too long."

A good number of yearlings coming out of hibernation, however, could herald a season of a numerous bear complaints.

Allen says it is the young males who land up in trouble.

Mating in June, when the sows come into heat, initiates the breakup of a family. Young females may be kept close by but yearling males are left to fend for themselves if their mothers choose a new mate.

"They are the ones we tend to have problems with," says Allen. "They are trying to establish a home range and they are competing with male adults and other families."

Last year, conservation officers received 118 bear complaints from the Whistler area. They attended 40 of these, destroyed 17 bears and relocated 10.

In comparison, 82 complaints were received from Squamish. Seven bears were relocated and 21 destroyed. From Pemberton, there were 42 complaint, six bears relocated and 10 destroyed.

Conservation officers expect similar numbers for 1997.

Conservation officers expect sightings to start late in March.

LeGrandeur says traditionally, Whistler bears start wandering into their dens during the latter part of October through to early November. "In Squamish though, because of the food availability with all the salmon in the river, we had bear sightings all the way into December. If there is a lot of food, there really is no need for them to go into hibernation."

The bears don't go into a true hibernation like some small mammals but their system shuts down, eliminating the need to eat drink. When they enter their dens they eat roots, wood chips, stones, and pine needles to create a fecal plug.

"I find bears that are used to garbage come out earlier in the spring."

To eliminate that fecal plug, which Allen says "smells really bad," and allow their shrunken stomachs to adjust, the bruins start the spring by feeding on roughage like horsetail.

Allen says, contrary to popular opinion, bears are not starving and grouchy when they emerge. "They are not that hungry. It takes a couple of weeks for them to adjust."

Two Squamish residents create a 'legacy of love'

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

Thanks to two Squamish residents a newborn baby boy in New Zealand will soon be wrapped warmly in a handmade quilt his grandmother wanted to make for her future grandchild before she passed away.

Lorelli McKay and Joan Gravkin took on the project in Dec. 1995 to make the silk quilt and send it overseas to Janet McLaughlin's daughter Louise Wenzlick for her future family. McLaughlin, who worked as a public health nurse in Squamish for several years, was unable to make the blanket herself because she was in the battle for her life against leukemia.

On Dec. 29, 1995, McLaughlin, who was in her mid-50s, lost the struggle and passed away. But before she died, McLaughlin drew some sketches of teddy bears meant for designing the quilt. Her theme for the project was a teddy bear picnic. McKay and Gravkin stepped in to see the legacy materialize.

"We decided to complete it in her memory," said McKay, who sketched and painted the designs on silk.

McLaughlin didn't know the quilt would be finished by the pair before she passed away.

The blanket was completed at the end of January, and baby Russell was welcomed into the world Jan. 22.

"His grandmother conceived the idea of the quilt long before he (Russell) was conceived," said Gravkin.

Gravkin, who did the stitching and quilt work on the six- by four-foot blanket, says the boy was born at almost the same time she took the finished quilt off its working frame.

"I didn't even know she (Wenzlick) was pregnant when I started working on it."

Both McKay and Gravkin say they were never really close to McLaughlin, but feel their lives had been enriched by knowing her.

"Jan was a very neat lady," said Gravkin. "She touched a lot of lives."

McLaughlin is well remembered in Squamish for working closely with seniors, designing a healthy heart program and many other accomplishments.

During a Jan. 3, 1996 memorial service at Alice Lake, Wenzlick read a speech written by McLaughlin's sister Monica Embacher.

"Mom taught us that success and wealth in life were measured not by possessions, but by souls touched, selfless deeds and days enjoyed," reads the speech. "She seemed to always know what others needed and set her mind to helping them."

Gravkin and McKay say they are glad they worked on this special project.

"It's a legacy of love," says Gravkin.

The quilt will be hung up for viewing at the Tantalus Seniors Centre before it is mailed to the Wenzlick family's home near Hamilton, New Zealand.

Jan McLaughlin sketched out ideas for a quilt for her grandson before she died of cancer.

Lorelli McKay and Joan Gravkin are proud to have completed the quilt for Jan McLaughlin, who touched the lives of so many people in the community. David Donaldson photo

COMMUNITY

Everyone invited to World Day of Prayer

The World Day of Prayer service this year was written by the women of Korea and the theme is: Like a Seed Which Grows into a Tree. The host in our community is St. Joseph's Catholic Church on The Boulevard, Garibaldi Highlands at 1 p.m., Friday, March 7. By participating in this year's service, you are joining in common worship with Christian women and men in more than 170 countries around the globe, and some 2,000 communities in Canada. Everyone is invited to this inter-denominational service.

Howe Sound Performing Arts Association is pleased to welcome the Capilano College Singers to Squamish. The performance of this much acclaimed and talented choir will take place in Squamish United Church on Friday evening, March 7 at 8 p.m. The award-winning choir is led by Lars Kaario, who has a wonderful rapport with his members. Purchasing your tickets in advance at Mostly Books, Squamish Public Library and Highlands Video will save you money. In advance they are $10 for adults, $7 for students and seniors and $5 for children. The prices at the door are $15, $10 and $7.

Eldercollege at the Capilano College Squamish campus has a number of intersecting courses ongoing. Beginning Wednesday, March 12, the first of four (and possibly more) sessions on Canada: Home and Abroad will be offered at 9:30 a.m. each week. The first guest speaker on Globalization and the State will be Dr. Steve McBride from Simon Fraser University. There is no registration required and no fees, and you are welcome to participate on a drop-in bases. Eldercollege is for residents 55 years and over.

Voices of Womyn through music, dance and readings will be part of the International Women's Day dinner and celebration at the ballroom of the Best Western Sea to Sky Hotel on Saturday, March 8, from 6:30-10:30 p.m. International Women's Day is an opportunity to celebrate the heroines of our past and present. Tickets at $15 each are available at Mostly Books, Anna's Attic, Stylezone, IDA, Mini Flea Market and from the Howe Sound Women's Centre. Anyone wishing more information is asked to call the centre at 892-5748. Non-perishable items for the food bank would be appreciated.

Sea to Sky Community Services is offering Advanced Self-Esteem: a Family Affair classes. These classes are open to adults who have completed the regular Self-Esteem: a Family Affair parenting course. It starts with a brief review of the principles of the regular course, then continues on to more advanced work on these same principles. The course runs evenings April 2 through to May 7 and the cost for the program is $35 per person. To register or for more information please contact the Squamish office at 892-5796.

The Squamish Estuary Conservation Society welcomes all levels of birders to the monthly bird count on Sunday, March 9. Meet at McDonald's at 8 a.m.

Also sponsored by the Squamish Estuary Conservation Society is an endangered species tour the same day, along with showing future development proposals in the estuary. Meet at the Howe Sound Inn at 1:30 p.m. For details contact Jim Wisnia at 898-2000.

The book discussion group at Squamish Public Library will meet on Thursday, March 13 at noon. The book to be discussed is The Piano Man's Daughter by Timothy Findley. Register at the library and pick up a copy of the book.

Spring is just around the corner and the 1997 grad class at Howe Sound Secondary School's fund raiser is a mushroom and steer manure sale. The price is $5 a bag or $15 for four bags or $120 for a four-yard truck load. Please note, all orders are payable in advance. If you are not canvassed, call 898-5961.

An important meeting for parents and students of the 1997 graduating class will be held at Howe Sound Secondary School at 7 p.m., Wednesday, March 12. Your support is needed, please attend.

About Town

By Maureen Gilmour

Owners of kayaks, canoes and other small craft wanting to understand charts and their practical uses are invited to attend the coastal navigation course offered at Brennan Park Leisure Centre on Saturday, March 8. Tides and currents on Thursday, March 13, covers one of the fundamental topics for all ocean travellers. Children ages 3-5 years are invited to the Spanish with puppets on March 15. Spanish is taught with puppets through games, songs, stories and crafts. Also, on March 15, the Northwest Coast button blanket course will teach you how to make one of four designs using contemporary fabrics and modern buttons. Register at the leisure centre or phone 898-3604 for details.

Tuesday, March 11 is the distribution day for the Squamish Food Bank from noon to 3 p.m. Your donations of non-perishable goods at Save-On-Foods, IGA Plus, Super Valu, and Timber Foods would be much appreciated. HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Clark - eTVData Features Syndicate

March 2 through March 8, 1997

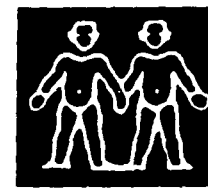

Aries (March 21 - April 20)

Your loyalty to your family will pay off in a big way. A dream gives you an important clue to a future event.

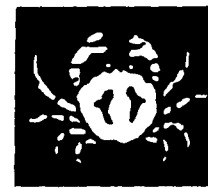

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)

You may receive a surprise or two where finances are concerned. Get a second opinion on a medical matter.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

When dealing with a relationship, listen to your heart. Read the fine print before signing any financial agreements.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

Let go of preconceived notions about what a person should or shouldn't be. You may find it is easier to like people for who they are.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

A friend will relay an important message, but think twice before acting on it. Choose your words carefully when talking with an authority figure.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

You've suffered a loss recently and it has made you a bit gun-shy where love is concerned. Take things slowly; there's no need to rush.

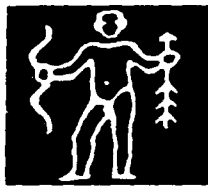

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

You must stand firm in your convictions even if it means disappointing someone you care about. That person will understand eventually.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)

It looks as if your social life will be picking up soon. Encourage a friend to go after his or her dreams.

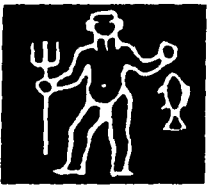

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)

A little quiet time would be nice. Plan a short trip with the intention of getting some rest. Leave the family behind if necessary.

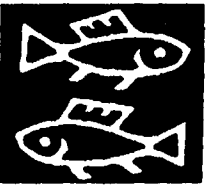

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)

Though it seemed a good idea when you embarked on this new path, it's not too late to retrace your steps and begin again.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

Get rid of all those negative thoughts and focus on what is good in your life. Do some deep-breathing exercises to relieve stress quickly.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

Working hard and earning a good living is important, but not at your family's expense. Take time for those who care about you.

Born this week:

March 2 - Eddie Money, Jennifer Jones
March 3 - Jackie Joyner-Kersey, Shaquille O'Neal
March 4 - Chastity Bono, Chris Rea
March 5 - Dean Stockwell

Creative flow expands your consciousness

Whether we know it or not, we are all blessed with creative talents and abilities. Of course, they exist on all levels and forms. Many of these talents have been brought with us in each incarnation, and can be firmly imprinted within the self.

It is beneficial to pay heed or allow ourselves to discover these aspects of ourselves and develop them, in order to be more of who we are. I have seen people who claim not to be able to draw a straight line create wonderful paintings. Some are creative with their ideas or words and have something worthwhile to share with others.

Those who have had little haunting messages that urge them to create something new need to acknowledge these gifts. Starting a creative flow expands consciousness and affects every area of the life, even if seemingly unrelated to such areas.

So start firing up those rusty cylinders and start living fully.

Dear Diane,

I would like to know what's in store for me in '97, especially with finances, career and romance. I feel as though things are difficult to attain with my career. Any ideas? Signed, CK.

Dear CK,

You will find things coming your way to push you into a more self-focused direction, particularly concerning career. I feel you are just treading water.

Change your working situation first.

Listen to your messages and have faith.

What would you like to achieve in your work area? It may take nothing less than giving everything up and taking a leap of faith off the cliff.

Take some time out to think, a holiday perhaps. October is a good productive time for you. As soon as you sort out career, love and finances will also be a happier situation.

Dear Diane,

My home needs repairs so I'm considering a loan to fix it up or sell and buy elsewhere. What do

Ask Your Psychic
By Diane Mills

you feel about it? What can I do to have my needs met in my love life? I enjoy your column. Signed, Sincerely,

Dear Sincerely,

This year be prepared to have a lot on your plate. But don't let that scare you. Because you are leading to big changes. It's time to meet your own needs.

Your previous partners have not, because you do not. It's time to look at patterns and change them.

Make a fresh start. This goes for your home too. I feel you would be better off moving.

Look to a new life.

Dear Diane,

I have been stuck for a very long time. I can't seem to break free no matter what I do. I take comfort from the fact that I am where I'm meant to be, but it's wearing thin. Are you sure there are no mistakes? What am I doing wrong? Signed, Lost and Confused.

Dear Lost and Confused,

Yes, I'm positive there are no mistakes or accidents in life. There is a time for action and a time for non-action, which is when we do our inner work and preparation for action.

You are in a period where you are doing what I call closet cleaning. You are in a state of completion and must be ruthless about it. Listen to your messages, that will get louder as '97 progresses.

You are also preparing to start a new cycle, and so must empower yourself to act on decisions. If you don't know yet what I mean, just be patient and you will be shown. We so often want what we want yesterday. Quit feeling that what you are doing is wrong.

Diane Mills is a practicing psychic counsellor living in Brackendale. You may send or bring letters to Diane c/o The Squamish Chief. Please include your question and birth dates whenever possible. This column will be published every two weeks.

Darts & Daffodils

A prescription full of daffodils to Jane McQuinn, the wonderful pharmacist at Shoppers. Your kindness in re-opening the store after you were on your way home Sunday night to fill a prescription for my sick daughter is very much appreciated. Thanks a bunch, signed a very grateful Mom and my daughter, who is now smiling again.

Two very rare, beautiful daffodils to the two people who returned two most personal items to me. I commend our honesty, as that is rare these days.

A Triton Steel warehouse full of daffodils to Roy, who delivered a much needed battery to me. Thank you for going out of your way.

Busloads of darts to the government agencies which would not let a chemotherapy patient get on a bus to Squamish after treatment. The patient was sick on the bus and subsequently kicked off. Darts also to the driver. Where has human compassion gone?

Daffodils of paradise to the lady who had the guts to go it on her own and take the bus.

An ambulance full of daffodils to my family and wonderful friends for a surprise 50th birthday. Jim.

A burger full of darts to the restaurant which hired my friend then fired her when she got the flu. You obviously don't care about your customers very much. Just remember, words spread faster than germs in Squamish.

Bunches of daffodils to the people who stopped to help out the night of my accident at Porteau Cove. Thanks also to the kindness of many at Squamish General Hospital and an especially big bunch of daffodils to Suzanne for all the running around she did for me. Thanks Sis.

Colorful daffodils to Sue Cogar for painting a wonderful mural of jungle animals and plants to cheer up our clinic room, and Home Hardware for donating paint. They always come through. Thanks.

A restaurant full of darts to the employer who found it fitting to fire an employee because she was sick with the flu. Perhaps you would have preferred she spread the germs to the staff and customers instead of to her daughter, who ended up in hospital. Needless to say, my friends and I will not be frequenting your establishment any more.

Want to say thanks and make sure everyone knows why? Or maybe offer a little constructive criticism without confrontation? Send your Dart or Daffodil to The Editor, The Squamish Chief, Box 3500, Squamish, B.C. V0N 3G0 or drop it off at our office at 38113 Second Avenue, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. You can also fax your message to 892-8483 or e-mail to: sqchief@mountain-inter.net.

A wall covered with beautiful yellow daffodils to my husband for washing my walls. Much appreciated. Kay.

Two canvases full of daffodils to Vange and Elodie of Art Times Two Studio in Brackendale for spending a sunny Saturday in our store painting scenes on our non-functional windows. They're beautiful. Thanks a million. Dianne and Cindy.

A golf cart full of daffodils to Uschi for the fabulous service and attention she provides for the predictable ladies who regularly visit her on Sunday. Her cheerful disposition and friendly manner always make us feel better having been in her company. It's refreshing to meet someone who obviously enjoys her job. Thanks, Uschi.

Daffodils to Merrill and Ring for maintaining existing trails on their newly logged property, and a bouquet to GBA Logging for clearing the Pia Trail of last year's windfalls. From walkers and mountain bikers.

A pool full of darts to the swimmer who complained belligerently to the lifeguard about the music at the early bird swim. We have had a couple of surveys and a democratic vote, and majority wins. Actually, they do play an assortment of music.

A fire hall full of daffodils to Bob Fulton and Nick Peek for their very informative tour of the hall. The Second Mamquam Brownies sure enjoyed it and learned some valuable information.

Years of daffodils to Mary Billy for her most interesting and enjoyable A Look Back in Time. It is truly one of the items we read first.

A camp full of daffodils to Starbucks Coffee for their donation to our camp and to their customers for filling our Timmy Tin. Thanks from Camp Squamish.

Daffodils to Julie Enkel. She has stuck with her running even if it meant giving up many after school activities in order to train every day. She has participated in many races and has come first in more than one-third of them. Keep it up Julie.

Great bunches of daffodils to the whole town of Squamish. Your kindness and support have been wonderful. You have what makes a small town great. The Gordon family.

Have you ever noticed what you eat (or don't eat) totally affects how you look and feel? That's because food is fuel, which will rev you up and keep you going strong for hours. This means you need to eat the right kind of foods at the right time.

When you blow off eating all day, maybe you were too busy or you're trying to lose 10 lb. by tomorrow, and you finally get home starving, chances are you bulldoze through the kitchen like the Tasmanian devil. But you can prevent that feeding frenzy and boost your energy by snacking smart and eating healthful foods all day which means breakfast, lunch and dinner.

People who eat breakfast are more motivated and energetic, and perform better in school or work.

Why? After all of those hours of sleeping without sustenance your body needs food to get your brain and muscles going.

People who skip breakfast are almost twice as likely to be overweight as people who do eat their morning meal, because they tend to be hungrier and eat more throughout the day. So eat an apple, toast, or cereal. Your body will thank you.

For all you women, if you're having cramps, try stocking up on fresh fruit, veggies (especially legumes), whole grains and nuts. Nuts contain nutrients which can help make you less moody and give you a lot more energy.

After a hard workout, you should drink something to replace the fluids you lost from sweating. The best choices are water, juice, or a high-carbohydrate sports drink such as Gatorade. Avoid cola, especially the caffeinated varieties.

There are certain things which make your body slack. Try to avoid these as much as possible. They include high fat meals, alcohol, too much sugar, excessive amounts of meat and unorganized vegetarian diets.

Every day we should try to exercise for at least 20 minutes. Whether it is walking, running, dancing or skipping you can raise your metabolic rate by increasing your amount of daily physical exercise. So next time, skip the elevator and take the stairs.

When you're craving something good to eat but don't want all the fat or salt, try these: pretzels, air popped popcorn, fresh fruit, Graham crackers and skim milk, "energy" bars (I recommend Balance Bars, you can buy them here in town for a couple of bucks), veggies and dip made from low fat yogurt or sour cream, frozen fruit bars, gingersnaps, fruit juice seltzer, angel food cake, veggie juice and a whole grain bagel or roll, cereal with skim milk (try Grapenuts, Cornflakes, low fat granola, Muesli, Raisin Bran, or Cheerios), vegetarian chili, baked potato with low fat sour cream or salsa, bagel with low fat cream cheese and sliced banana, nuts and seeds, low fat frozen yogurt, or stoned wheat thins.

Liberals maintain positive attitude

I have just returned from the B.C. Liberal Convention in Penticton, and I would really like to convey to you the strong feeling and positive attitude that comes out of the convention and carries through to West Vancouver-Garibaldi, affecting each one of us.

News stories out of the convention dealt with many aspects and impressions of the sessions and speeches. I can assure you that Gordon Campbell's keynote address was received by the delegates with full support as he pledged to continue the fight and to build the alternative to the current government and its misplaced priorities.

If any of you want clarification of B.C. Liberal policies, call my office. We will be glad to discuss issues with you and provide you with copy from the B.C. Liberal policy manual which details our solutions to the major issues.

The well being of every constituent in B.C. is of major concern to me, and to this end I was the first signatory to the amendment to the B.C. Rail privatization legislation which had been proposed.

In our efforts to accommodate others and to reach out to those who do not currently feel they are represented in the legislature, our policies now reflect the needs and aspirations of the widest possible group of voters.

The requests for assistance I receive in my offices every day come from a broad political cross-section of constituents. It is my ongoing objective to serve our rapidly expanding membership in a spirit of inclusion. All British Columbians need to be served in an equal manner.

We will not be advocating a reduction in the number of MLAs in the legislature, so ridings in the north will not be even further spread out geographically. B.C. Rail will not be privatized under B.C. Liberal policy, as many constituents have voiced their concern of how this will impact their lives.

We believe that listening to these opinions being voiced by British Columbians will assist the unification of the more than 60 per cent of the voters of our province who do not want the NDP to be their government.

Constituent input, and the problems of my constituents will continue to receive prompt attention. It is really gratifying for me when I can find an answer, or be part of the solution to a problem.

To keep you up to date, I am currently dealing with West Vancouver-Garibaldi issues such as the Cypress Bowl completion, the Auto Propane Tax, the natural gas pipeline extension and the Lions Gate crossing.

As the legislature is soon to sit in Victoria to consider and debate the major issues of the day, I will continue to work on your behalf.

Bridges program places emphasis on recovery

By Mary Billy
 Contributed to The Chief

Often it's only those who've been through recovery who can help others going through similar problems. Alcoholics Anonymous is a good example. Bridges, which stands for Building Recovery of Individual Dreams and Goals through Education, is the beginning of just such another group in Squamish, this time for the mentally ill.

Garry Hughes, Eric Gumbel and Brian Stymchuk have completed their first 14-week session as co-leaders of this trial project. Although they began with eight people and only ended up with two, they feel they've made a good start. Some dropped out for lack of childcare, or health or family problems. One the greatest deterrents is the poverty which so often accompanies this illness.

"This is a course of consumers (of mental health services) teaching other consumers about mental illness and how to cope, how to access support systems by building bridges in the community with those with similar problems, as well as learning how to make the best use of the system," said Hughes. Sometimes it means educating the professionals too.

Hughes described one incident in which a member of the group was turned away at hospital emergency because he didn't have any physical pain, without staff being able to understand he was in a highly anxious state and was terrified for himself mentally.

But the greatest benefit of the Bridges project is that it has provided a safe place to tell their stories about when they first discovered they were mentally ill (usually between the ages of 17 and 26), the murky world of medications and their side-effects. All said this proved to be the most difficult subject.

Their main purpose is to try to get rid of the shame and stigma attached to mental illness and to include all people as part of the process of bringing those with the illness back into the mainstream of society.

One of the participants said it took a lot of the fear away to be able to come to this group and share something about their illness. Their major emphasis has been on recovery. The greatest benefit for Gumbel, he said, "is the realization for each person that there is support available, and the major lesson is that when they get together they are less alone."

Although this group is over, it is hoped another will spring up to take its place.

Bylaw officer received 164 complaints in 1996

A 1996 year-end bylaw enforcement activity report prepared by municipal clerk Joe Barry states there was a total of 164 complaints from the public throughout the year.

Of these, 15 were regarding business licensing, 14 for illegal dumping, 13 reports of illegal suites, 15 noise complaints, 32 calls about parking violations, 12 regarding property maintenance, four for road obstruction, 13 about signs, 12 for illegal watering and 34 zoning bylaw complaints were filed. A total of 114 bylaw enforcement warnings were issued during 1996, mostly for parking violations.

During December, 36 warnings were issued to vehicle owners interfering with snow clearing operations. A total of 77 home occupation inspections were conducted to check for business licence applications. In 1996, 120 parking tickets were issued, totalling $2,320 in value. More than half of the tickets were for overtime parking violations at $15 per ticket. Citations for other offences such as double parking, blocking lanes and parking on crosswalks, are usually $25.

SPIRIT OF SQUAMISH

Cheryl Gordon and her two sons Bryan, four, and 12-year-old Danny Silva accepted a $500 cheque Feb. 18 from Gerry McPhillamey of the Squamish Elk's Club. The club's donation will go towards helping Bryan in his battle against Burkitt's Lymphoma, a rare form of cancer.

BES students serve up fossil stew and swamp juice

It is good to hear that Ms. Fisher will be acting as teacher-advisor to a student in the spring. The young lady is coming here from Malaspina College to do her practicum and will get the benefit of Ms. Fisher's expertise as she learns the techniques of handling a class.

Dino-ing Out

You could eat at Dino's Diner if you were so inclined, but the first item on the menu is palm-leaf salad with cold grass snake.

The Grade 2 students in Ms. Harker's class at Brackendale Elementary have been learning all about dinosaurs — their appearance and habitat, preferred foods and mysterious disappearance from the earth. Last Monday they brought it all to a grand finale.

There was a musical presentation in the multi-purpose room for their families. Then they took parents back to the classroom to show them the projects they have completed, including a collection of menus suitable for a dinosaur eatery. The event was rounded off by lunch made with the help of mothers, featuring such dishes as fossil stew with swamp juice.

Brackendale Secondary School Band

The same day, the Grade 9 band at BSS was having a good practice but feeling the loss of many of its regular players. Two classes of students had gone on a field-trip to IMAX, at Canada Place in Vancouver to see a film on marine biology, a field which appeals to many of our students as a possibility for a St. Pierre. They are learning a lot about the small ways in which life in Canada differs from life in France. It was rather a surprise to find our students, when talking about Sebastien, the boy in their text, and a typical day in his life, deciding that he apparently watches too much TV and stays up too late on school nights.

Mr. Manning's Retirement

Dave Manning has taught in the district for 16 years and will be remembered by many of the students whom he counselled and to whom he gave learning assistance. He was honored at a dinner Friday evening, when various colleagues paid tribute to him. He was also presented with a print by Rick Harry.

I remember him best for his addiction to puns, and for his productions with groups of gifted students, called Night of the Notables, when students took on the roles of famous characters. Mr. Manning, who had been an actor in his youth, particularly liked to impersonate Orson Welles.

future career.

French Conversation

Other Grade 9 students have just started a new quad in French as a second language and are making great progress in conversation with Mme.

freight is sent through Whistler Courier and Freight.

Applications are reviewed by a committee of the chamber, which includes Rose Tatlow, Ted Craddock and Ken Perry.

Bob Hazelton, area manager for Whistler Courier and Freight is also on the committee.

Community groups can make application to the fund by forwarding a letter outlining the need for funding and the amount required to the Whistler Courier and Freight Squamish Community Service Fund c/o Squamish and Howe Sound Chamber of Commerce, Box 1009, Squamish, B.C. V0N 3G0. Only applications that have a direct benefit to the community as a whole should apply.

There are only 79 days to the annual Sea to Sky Country Trade Fair, the most effective way to reach up to 10,000 local consumers for under $300.

The major event will be held May 23-25 in Squamish. Booth reservation space is going quickly. Don't delay, call the chamber at 892-9244.

The Squamish Chief is the official publisher of the trade fair program.

Use good wine in cooking

Wine used in cooking seldom gets the same respect as wine destined for the table. "I just need it for cooking," is most often a code for "give me something cheap." The first guiding rule for cooking wine — If you won't drink it, don't cook with it.

But there's more. After all, this could be the cooking and seasoning liquid for a very expensive piece of meat. Why degrade its flavor for the sake of a few dollars? Would anyone make Hollandaise sauce with margarine because it's cheaper? Not likely.

Most cooking wines end up reduced in the sauce. Whatever elements are obvious in the wine to start with are exaggerated. Avoid sour, tannic or bitter tasting wines.

There are smooth, soft and fruity wines in the $10 range that are excellent candidates for the pot.

Also, consider the flavor elements in the dish. Poach fish in a tart, citrusy white if the finished sauce is seasoned with lemon or herbs like tarragon. Braise pork roast with an unoaked, appley tasting Chardonnay if the dish is served with applesauce.

Cooking wines are not restricted just to the main course, but make fine sauces or fruit desserts. The red wine sauce for the pears in the following recipe is spicy tasting.

I used Penfold's Rawson Retreat Cabernet-Shiraz (about $10). Smooth with berry and black plum flavors, it has a spicy aroma. This is an excellent, all-purpose red, useful for many dishes as well as the table.

For the orange dessert, I chose a German Riesling from the Mosel region. Piesporter Michelsberg Riesling Kabinett (about $11) is typically tangy and lemony, with a honeyed richness and a hint of orange blossom on the finish. In such a simple dessert, this wine adds a range of complementary flavors.

Poaching winter pears in wine makes their firm flesh edible. Anjou pears are large and chubby with a succulent, tangy flavor.

Bosc pears are elegantly shaped with scaly brown skin and rock-hard flesh. With their slender necks and curving stems, they look exquisite when poached.

Use a stainless steel or enameled pot for poaching fruit in wine. Otherwise the acid reacts with the metal surface and leaves a tinny taste.

Winter Pears Poached in Red Wine

4 Anjou or Bosc pears
3/4 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups red wine
3/4 cup water
1 slice lemon
1 slice orange
a two inch piece of cinnamon stick
1 whole clove
Peel the pears, leaving the stems on.
Cut out the blossom end.

Put the sugar in a heavy skillet on high heat. Shake it around until it melts and starts to caramelize. Stir until light amber in color. Remove from heat. Very carefully pour in the water and red wine. The sugar will bubble up and harden. Return to medium heat to melt the caramelized sugar. Stir until melted. Add the pears, fruit slices and spices. Cover and simmer for about 20 minutes, turning the pears occasionally. Test the pears with a skewer. The flesh should gently resist. Remove and discard the seasonings. Remove the pears to a bowl. Bring the syrup to a boil. Reduce to about one cup. Pour over the pears and chill. They can be left for several days in the fridge.

Serve each pear with a small scoop of ice cream (chocolate is very good) or a pool of custard sauce. A crisp sugar cookie on the side is nice. This is a knife and fork dessert. Makes four servings.

Navel oranges are particularly good right now, perfect for the following simple recipe. The oranges soak in a cinnamon scented white wine syrup. Refreshing on their own, they are particularly delicious spooned over a scoop of bread pudding or baked custard.

Oranges in White Wine Syrup

3/4 cup white wine
1/2 cup water
1/3 cup sugar
a two inch piece cinnamon stick
3 large navel oranges

Bring the wine, water, sugar and cinnamon stick to boil in a stainless steel saucepan. Boil for 10 minutes. Cut the ends from the oranges and cut off the peel, including any white pith. Slice each crosswise into four rounds. Place in a shallow bowl and pour the hot syrup over top. Chill for several hours or overnight.

Remove the cinnamon stick unless you want a strong cinnamon flavor.

DU auction aids wetland preservation

The Squamish committee of Ducks Unlimited is holding its eighth annual banquet and auction on March 8, to raise funds for wetland preservation and conservation.

Although the funds raised in Squamish are unable to be used directly for the Squamish estuary due to current land issues, funds raised at other dinners will go towards helping this area when these are resolved.

The banquet and auction is being held at the Squamish Legion March 8. There will be live and silent auction, raffles and door prizes. Cocktails and viewing of merchandise will begin at 6:30 p.m. and a buffet will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are available from Mr. 1-Hour Cleaners in Garibaldi Highlands, Ron Drewry at Squamish Finning, Jamie Blattmann at Paintin' Place or through committee chairman Andrea Hunter, who can be reached at 898-4783.

Some items to be auctioned-raffled are: introductory scuba diving course, wine tasting yacht cruise, helicopter tour, snowmobiling tour, diamond ring, camping package. The Squamish Estuary Society is setting up a display at the event.

Good news in a propane bill?

It's true!

Look carefully at your last propane bill.

The price of propane has dropped!

Why? ICG is paying less for propane from our suppliers, and just as we said we would, ICG is passing the savings on to you and also our retail partners. Thanks to a warmer winter (at least in some parts of the country!) and lower demand, propane reserves in North America are increasing. In other words, there is more supply than demand for propane right now, and so prices have fallen.

What about next month? No one can predict what lies ahead, but ICG is working on innovative ways to prevent large price fluctuations in the future. In the long term, propane is still an economic fuel. The portability and clean burning factors of propane make it the best choice.

Want to know more? For answers to your questions about propane, call our Customer Care Centre: 1 800 424-8807. It's a free call, anytime.

It's amazing what you can do when you have the energy.

Affordable power for the next generation.

As British Columbia moves into the twenty-first century, we can anticipate all kinds of new energy needs. At Stave Falls, we're replacing the power plant to help meet those needs. By the year 2000, it will generate 25% more electricity than it does now.

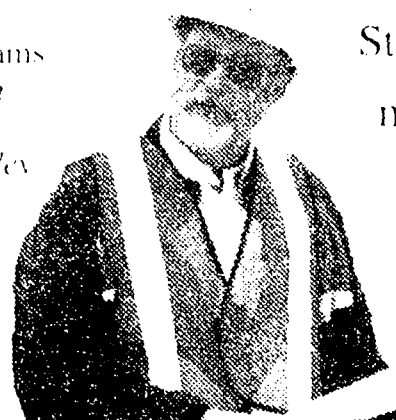

Providing safe, affordable energy, now and for years to come, is a responsibility we take very seriously at B.C. Hydro. Through Resource Smart projects like Stave Falls, we're meeting that responsibility in a way that provides jobs for the people of B.C., and improves the quality of life here today.

Kickin' it with the big boys

By David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

Nicole Fowler is in the league on her own. The 13-year-old soccer player is the only girl on the Squamish Scorpions U15 team, which plays in Vancouver's Three District Soccer League. She's also the only girl in the whole league playing against the boys, as the other teams come from communities large enough to support separate all-girl teams to play in the league.

"She's only 13 and playing in an under-15 age group so she's playing against kids a full two years older than her in a male-dominated sport and she's held her own throughout," says her coach Richard Dawson. "She's won a lot of respect from everyone she's played against."

In fact, she won the respect of the coach for the North Shore U15 girls rep team, who asked her to play for them. He was surprised to learn Nicole is actually in the U14 age group and she was given a chance to play on that team but she finished the season with the Scorpions instead and is thinking about playing in the North Shore next year.

Nicole turned 13 in December but had she been born a few weeks later she would have been one of the older players on the U13 team rather than the youngest player on the U15 team.

Some of the guys on her team give her a bit of a hard time but it doesn't bother her. "Some of the boys are more mature and nicer to me but I always know they're just joking," she says.

If the boys on the teams she plays against take special notice of Nicole, it's usually because of her skill as a player.

"I've never heard an unkind or sarcastic comment from anyone after they've seen Nicole play," says Dawson. "I've seen a couple of raised eyebrows from parents or coaches but after the game is over there is always nothing but positive comments. I think she's stood up well under the scrutiny."

"Sometimes other team's players ask the guys for my number but most of them don't care," Nicole says. "They just want to win."

But Nicole plays to win too.

"I just think it's fun to play that way. I play competitively because I don't like to give up, I like to do my best."

Dawson says it's that tenacity that makes her a great player. "She's taken some brutal checks and got up and always gone back in. She's never been intimidated enough not to get back up and get in the play."

"If everyone played with her spirit we might have an even better team."

Nicole has been playing soccer since she was four years old and is also active in baseball, basketball, ringette, field hockey, skiing and mountain biking, to name a few.

"Sometimes my mom gets mad at me because I always have too much to do and I don't have time to do my chores."

Whenever any of these sports overlap, like ringette and soccer at this time of year, Nicole always chooses her favorite, which is soccer. She says her ringette teammate Heather Ray always chooses ringette over soccer.

Her older sister Leslie boxes with the Squamish Rock Boxing Club and Nicole thinks it would be fun to try it too but her mom said she has too much to do already and "I wouldn't want to get punched in the face and get a broken nose."

Nicole has a number of options for soccer next year but she and Dawson would like to see an all-girl travel team from Squamish.

"There's enough skill for a girls team but it would be hard to find enough devoted players," she says.

"We need enough girls interested in soccer so there can be enough teammates for her," says Dawson. "If she could get into more competitive play in the girls side of it, she would be more to the forefront of notice."

"She seems to have a natural affinity for the game. It's neat to see someone not allow stereotypes or obstacles to stand in the way of things they want to do."

Midget reps one goal away from provincial berth

By David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

"We were one goal away from going to the provincials. One goal."

In one of the most incredible hockey games he had ever seen the Howe Sound midget rep Eagles went back and forth with West Van, going ahead, falling behind and settling for a 9-9 tie, coach Gary Morris said Sunday.

In the first game of the round robin tournament to decide the provincial berth Howe Sound defeated tournament favorites Hollyburn 3-0 Thursday to advance to the next round in the provincial playoffs.

"It was 1-0 with 10 minutes to go in the third period. We scored the second goal and took the wind out of their sails and scored the third goal and it was all over," said Morris Friday.

"It was an excellent hockey game. Their goaltender played good, our goaltender stood on his head. The kids were right pumped and it looks like they're ready to go to the provincials."

But Saturday the Squamish team fell to Sechelt.

"We were blanked 4-0. Sechelt came out good, we came out flat."

To win the provincial berth now, Howe Sound needed to beat West Van and Hollyburn to win its game.

Howe Sound led West Van 2-0 in the first period but went behind 3-2. By the end of the second they were back up 7-4 but late in the third West van went ahead again 8-7.

Howe Sound tied it with two minutes to go in the game but West van was right on top of them, scoring their ninth before Howe Sound scored again with under a minute left. But despite a breakaway with four seconds on the clock, the Eagles couldn't nail that last goal.

"I've never seen a game go back and forth like that," said Morris. "The kids played their hearts out. They went right down to the wire and nobody quit. They left everything they had on the ice today."

Hollyburn beat Sechelt 3-0 Sunday and advanced to the provincials.

"We were the only team to beat Hollyburn and we shut them out 3-0 in the first game, so we showed we can skate with the best teams."

Morris said it was a great year for the team and would like to thank each player, as well as manager Doug Robertson and trainer Roy Ramage for all their hard work.

Three Winter Games medals for Squamish

Squamish athletes brought home one of each medal at the B.C. Winter Games in Campbell River Feb. 20-23.

The Squamish Skating Club pre-novice dance team of Dallas Smith and Morgan Price captured the gold medal in their category.

Smith and Price skated a flawless performance in the dances of tenfox and tango to easily finish in first place. A judge later said the skaters have improved greatly over the last year.

Judy Swens, also from the Squamish Skating Club, delivered a strong performance to finish eighth in an extremely strong field of 20 skaters in the intermediate ladies category.

Steffanie Casvant of the Whistler Skating Club gave an excellent performance to finish fifth in primary ladies while her teammate Kristine Todd Millar took the gold in the same event.

"All the Sea to Sky skaters are to be commended for their strong performances," said zone 5 figure skating manager David Harrison. "This is the strongest field of athletes I have seen in five years."

Aileen Reed, Anne Pino and Vanessa King came home with silver medals for their performances with the zone 5 ringette team and Squamish gymnast Paul Ryan earned a bronze in the male team category.

The zone 5 girls hockey team with Squamish player Katie Jones lost its first two games and won its third.

"We had a really tough draw," she said. "We had to get up at 4:30 a.m. Friday for our first game and play again that evening."

Zone 5 was narrowly defeated 4-3 in the first game by the team which went on to win the gold. Although that put them back in sixth place, Jones said she had "a lot of fun."

The zone 5 boys hockey team with Squamish bantam rep players Ryan Chapman and Scott Harrison also finished sixth.

The Howe Sound Curling Club team representing zone 5: Caroline Bradley, Carol Mazzotti, Andrea Hoyrup and Maggie Simms, finished fifth overall.

Hume gets top Canadian result in World Juniors downhill

Squamish alpine skier Jeff Hume scored Canada's top result in the men's downhill race at the World Juniors in Schladming, Austria Wednesday.

Hume placed 23rd with a time of 1:34:39, beating Canadians Kristian Guay from the National Junior Team and Michael Read from Banff Mountain Academy.

His teammate Britt Janyk, from Whistler, was the top finisher in the women's downhill, her 13th place finish ranking her as the top 16-year-old in the world. The next day she placed sixth in the SG, where she is currently ranked fourth in the world in her age group.

Janyk won two Nor Am races this year before being selected to the World Junior Canadian team.

Hume, 17, placed 5th in the GS at the recent Sun Peaks FIS race, 5th in the DH at the Apex Cavendish Cup FIS Feb. 9 and second in his age group in the Sugerloaf Nor Am DH Jan. 14.

The second annual Furry Creek 10K Challenge is being held Sunday, March 23 at the Furry Creek Golf and Country Club.

The event includes a 10-kilometre run and a five-kilometre run/walk through the golf course. Proceeds from last year's run helped with the Lions Gate Hospital Palliative Care Campaign and this year's proceeds will be going to the hospital's pediatric unit renovations.

The run begins at 10 a.m. and includes a long-sleeve shirt, post race meal, draw prizes and awards. Entry forms are available at the club.

The 1997 Spud Valley Loppet held in the Pemberton Valley Sunday, Feb. 23 saw 100 skiers (52 adults and 48 children) enjoying the sun, fun and exercise as well as some serious racing.

Participants ranged from ages four to 67 with four- to six-year-olds completing the 11-kilometre course.

More than 90 per cent of this year's entrants were from Pemberton. Squamish's Don Ross, a veteran loppet skier, completed the course in record time. With the growing interest in the sport the Spud Valley Loppet committee is now discussing plans for a cross-country ski club in Pemberton for 1997-98.

With the great turnout from last year's highly popular Sea to Sky Soccer School, organizers have already opened registration for this year's spring break sessions March 17-21.

Four programs are offered: Skill Enhancement instructs boys and girls how to improve their individual soccer skills, team play and understanding of the game, for players from beginner to experienced ages 4-17.

Team Development is concentrated on team-oriented skills although individual skills are also taught. If 10 players from the same team participate, each player receives a $5 discount.

The Goalkeeping Clinic will instruct boys and girls seven to 17 in the art of goalkeeping. The coaching staff includes players from the Mexican Under 21 National Team and the SFU junior varsity squad.

The Full Day Camp is for boys and girls aged four to 17 who like a full day of soccer ending with some swimming pool time. Lunch is provided.

All participants in the Sea to Sky Soccer School will receive a T-shirt, soccer ball, juice and oranges daily, a camp photo and pizza on Friday. Families with more than two children receive free enrollment after the first two children. There are also limited spaces for full sponsorship for boys and girls who qualify for subsidy.

More information and registration is available at the Brennan Park Leisure Centre.

Support boxing in Squamish and get some exciting entertainment at the Gloves of Granite II boxing show at the Howe Sound Secondary School gymnasium Saturday, March 8 at 7 p.m.

Featured boxers from the Squamish Rock Boxing Club include Ben Kyllonen, Brian Russell, David Jones, Kevin Schellenberg, Shusei Kushida, Steve Featherston and Leslie Fowler.

Tickets available at Black Tusk Realty and the Squamish Rock Boxing Club are $10 for adults and $8 for students.

OBITUARIES

McPHADYEN

Isabelle Ethel McPhadyen passed away peacefully in Delta Hospital, February 13th, 1997. Ethel is survived by one son, George Coulthard (Janet), grandchildren Sherrie (Barry) Monk and Jeff (Jessica) Coulthard, two great grandchildren (Coulthards). Ethel will be sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her sister Louise Zornes of Penticton, B.C., brother Russell Hill (Doreen) Calgary, Alberta, and Roberta Metheral (Jay), Edmonton, Alberta. Her step-children, Niel McPhadyen (Judy), Phyllis (Greg) MacNeil, Donald McPhadyen, nine grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren (McPhadyens) plus numerous nieces and nephews. Predeceased by her second husband (1985) Bernard McPhadyen, of Squamish, B.C. She was a member of the Royal Canadian Legion Auxiliary and a life member of Order of Royal Purple of Canada. Funeral service was held in Delta on February 17, 1997. Memorial tributes may be made to the Delta Hospital Foundation, 5800 Mountain View Boulevard, Delta B.C. V4K 3V6.

PICKARD

Robert Albert of Oliver, B.C. passed away peacefully on February 19, 1997 in his 81st year. He is survived by his loving family, wife Pearl, son Jerry (Marnie) of Agassiz, daughters Doris (Les) of Winfield and Bonnie (Don) of Squamish, nine grandchildren, eight great grandchildren and two sisters Ruby and Doris of Red Deer, Alberta. Roger's life work was in the forestry industry but his love was golf and curling. His hobbies included woodworking and rug hooking. He spent many volunteer hours helping in the upgrading of the Princeton Golf Club for which he was awarded life time membership. After retirement, he moved to Oliver. His famous laugh will be missed on both Princeton and Cherry Grove courses. No service by request. Cremation. Arrangements in care of the Memorial Society of B.C.

REAL ESTATE

OFFICE ADMINISTRATOR

Our Whistler client is seeking an individual who is motivated, organized, flexible and thrives in a fast-paced work environment. This position will be of interest to someone who is as much a leader as a team player. An eye for detail is the key! The successful candidate must have expert knowledge of computers, specifically with Microsoft programs and the ability to handle systems management and provide computer support. An office supervisory background is a must, as well as experience with records management, office systems and a proficiency with numbers and graphs. Experience with real estate conveyancing is a definite asset.

Interested candidates can fax their resume with a cover letter outlining salary expectations to:

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

Professional Cook Training Program

This 21-week program provides entry level qualified cooks to the Squamish/Whistler region. The program follows B.C. Provincial Cooking curriculum for selected aspects of Level 1 cooking.

Employment prospects for graduates from this program are high.
Successful graduates will be able to:

- find employment in the hospitality industry
- enter into an apprenticeship agreement as they work simultaneously in restaurant and hotel settings
- enter the final months of the 12-month culinary arts program at Vancouver Community College

Tourism and hospitality is the fastest growing industry in BC.
A similar cook program was run in 1996 and all successful graduates found jobs.

ELIGIBLE PARTICIPANTS

This program is sponsored by Human Resources Development
Canada, therefore applicants must be Employment Insurance recipients or Employment Insurance exhaustees.

Maximum class size: 12

Admission requirements: Grade 10 or equivalent, plus completion of a medical questionnaire and submission of a negative TB test.

Please apply by phone or in person. You will be notified about a program information session.

In general terms the purpose of the proposed "District of Squamish Zoning
Bylaw No. 1342, 1995, Amendment Bylaw (Amendments to Rural 2 Zone)
No. 1451, 1997" is as follows:

- To permit the following uses on parcels on land zoned Rural 2 and that are 2.0235 ha (5 acres) or larger:
 - (1) one (1) accessory residential unit with a maximum size of 139.35 sq m (900 sq ft);
 - (2) accessory small-scale manufacturing; and
 - (3) accessory buildings within a front yard with a minimum 7.62 metre (25 ft) setback.
- To define "small-scale manufacturing".

Persons interested in specific particulars are directed to obtain a copy of the proposed bylaw as indicated below. Also available for inspection are copies of the District of Squamish Zoning Bylaw No. 1342, 1995 which would be amended by the proposed bylaw and various reports and plans which have been considered by Council.

A copy of the proposed bylaw and an information package may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, 37955 - 2nd Avenue, Squamish, British Columbia, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday inclusive, excluding statutory holidays from March 4th, 1997 to March 18th, 1997 inclusive.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that anyone who wishes to comment on the proposed District of Squamish Zoning Bylaw No. 1342, 1995, Amendment Bylaw (Amendments to Rural 2 Zone) No. 1451, 1997 may do so by:

- Making a written submission to the Council of the District of Squamish; and/or
- Appearing as a delegation before the Council of the District of Squamish on the 18th day of March, 1997 at 7:30 p.m. in the District of Squamish Council Chambers.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that no verbal or written communication will be received by the Council of the District of Squamish after the close of the hearing.
