Nebbeling is convinced a new Crown corporation for forests is on the way

By Al Price
Squamish Chief

The Ministry of Forests is seriously considering creation of a new Crown corporation to handle the small business portion of timber harvesting in the province, known as the Small Business Enterprise Program (SBEP).

The move could mean an end to the Ministry of Forests as it is now known.

"The rumors seem to have some merit," said West Vancouver-Garibaldi MLA and Liberal forests critic Ted Nebbeling from his Victoria office Friday. "I heard that rumor twice and then The Squamish Chief phoned to ask. Officials in my office have been able to confirm there is serious consideration being given to formation of a totally independent Crown corporation fashioned in the same way the Swedes deal with their small business forest enterprise program. This would fly in the face of everything they have promised.

"A Crown corporation is just another layer of bureaucracy."

Nebbeling said the change is being considered because of a backlog of 20 million cubic metres of wood harvesting in the SBEP. He said if such a move was made to assist small businesses cut down the red tape involved in project approval and certification it would be positive, but he is suspicious of all Crown corporations.

"I think they're going to do it. Tom Gunton, an advisor to Premier Glen Clark, has always spoken of a super, super Crown corporation for forests, and this could be the beginning.

"Certainly at this point I don't support it, because we have to ask where can this lead?"

"If forest decisions are taken away from the legislature, that would not be a good thing. Enforcement of the forest practices code and Forest Renewal B.C. spending wouldn't be as accountable to the public."

Nebbeling said Crown corporations work in isolation from scrutiny of the legislature, making their own financial decisions, which makes it tougher on the opposition Liberals to extract information.

"They work with different rules and different regulations," he said. "There can be very important decisions made in Crown corporations which we can't really scrutinize."

Nebbeling said with many of the silviculture programs of the Forests Ministry now being routed through FRBC, such as tree planting, thinning and spacing, a Crown corporation for the SBEP would dramatically reduce the workload on the current staff at district forest service offices.

Protesters blockade Interfor in the upper Squamish

By Al Price
Squamish Chief

Interfor logging crews were delayed at Mile 27 of the upper Squamish valley on their way to work Monday morning when protesters blockaded the road.

Some members of the protest group, calling itself People's Action for Threatened Habitat (PATH), chained themselves to 45-gallon drums on the road, said Squamish Forest District manager Paul Kuster. After a couple of hours the blockade was taken down by the protesters and logging and road building crews from Interfor were allowed to pass through.

"It looks like it is still something to do with the proposed Randy Stoltmann wilderness area," said Kuster. "The protected areas strategy was concluded last fall, and the government decided to protect areas of the Glendenning, upper Elaho and upper Lillooet rivers for a total of 50,000 hectares. They say the Stoltmann area was 260,000 hectares so I guess there are still people trying to get the whole thing."

Kuster said Interfor has licences and is legally approved to do road construction and harvesting in the area, all of which is outside the two proportions protected by the government as future parks.

A spokesman for Interfor said the company may pursue court injunctions to prevent further blockades.

Manson honored with new chamber senator designation

By Al Price
Squamish Chief

New chamber senator Bill Manson has been serving the community in many ways for more than 50 years.

Bill Manson of Squamish is now a senator. Not the kind who sits in the Red Chamber, frustrating government and citizens alike while drawing a huge salary for doing very little. That has never been Manson's style. He is quite the opposite, in fact, having quietly done a lot for the community with little recognition until now.

In a short ceremony at the general meeting of the Squamish and Howe Sound Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening, Manson received the honor of being named a senator to the chamber. He joins Rose Tatlow and Dr. Laverne Kindree with this distinction. "It is pleasing, flattering," said Manson. "Over the years I have been involved in the chamber and the community in a lot of ways, which I suppose helps fill out the role of a citizen."

A senator is described in the chamber bylaws as: "A member who has rendered meritorious service to the chamber or the district over a reasonable period of time and is elected to this class of membership by a majority vote at a general meeting. A senator is entitled to all chamber privileges without paying the annual subscription."

Having moved to Squamish in 1946, Manson has been involved in the forest industry for more than 50 years. He is president of Harnor Logging Ltd., a major logging and road building contractor. He served as president of the chamber in 1953, 1990 and 1991, and has been chair of the chamber's forestry and economic development committees. But his contributions to the community have not been limited to the chamber.

Among his other activities, Manson has served on council, as a school trustee, a director of both the hospital board and Squamish Credit Union, on the advisory committee to Capilano College, manager of the Truck Loggers' Association, on the advisory committee to Alice Lake Provincial Park, on the separate volunteer groups which built the golf course and airport, the advisory committee of the Brohm Lake Demonstration Forest, and was the superintendent of Empire Mills (Tree Farm Licence #38). He has participated in forestry tours of New Zealand, the U.S. and Costa Rica, initiated a forest study group to examine Swedish forest practices, and was invited to critique the B.C. Forest Resource Commission option report prepared by Sandy Peel.

"I guess it's just the nature of the beast," said Manson. "I hate to be left out."

Water source to be studied

Council has agreed that Piteau Associates Engineering Ltd., in conjunction with consulting engineering geologist Frank Baumann be retained to complete mapping and hydrogeological assessment of Powerhouse Creek. The study is to map the area of discharging springs near the power generating station east of the district boundary, evaluate the feasibility of developing the springs as a source of municipal water supply and determine the most efficient method to collect and divert the spring flows. Results will determine whether a test program will be undertaken.

Council divided on casino gambling

Discussions taking place with Squamish Nation leaders

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

Squamish council is scheduled to meet with Squamish Nation leaders and elders today (Tuesday) to talk about a number of issues, including rumors about natives considering building a casino in the area.

Some councillors have strong views against gambling, others said they would have to give it much more thought before jumping to either side.

Coun. Sandra Bauer said she needs to collect more information on gambling and its effects on communities before she makes a decision to support it or not.

"The community would have to be sold on the idea or I couldn't support it," said Bauer.

She's not certain what part the district would play if the Squamish Nation decided to start a casino here.

"I don't think that as council we should have the ability to veto it any more than the Squamish Nation can veto the airport or land swaps in the estuary," she said.

Coun. Lyle Fenton said he does not support a large-scale casino and he needs to give the idea of smaller forms of gambling such as video lottery terminals (VLTs) more consideration.

Coun. Meg Fellowes said the whole notion of a casino, "scares me to death." She said she hopes talks with Squamish Nation leaders will improve communications surrounding the issue.

"There is a whole range of issues we need to address," said Fellowes. "I think there's an opportunity here to work on relationships."

Fellowes said although she doesn't like gambling herself, she is a realist and knows the idea won't just go away.

Coun. Dave Young said he is against gambling in general and thinks it's a short-term solution to long-term problems. He said there are numerous studies showing the negative effects casinos have on communities and is particularly concerned about how youths would be affected.

Coun. Ron Barr said although he needs more information, he supports a casino in the area if there's money to be made for the district.

"What we have here now is Keno, horse racing, bingos, lottery tickets," said Barr. "(A casino) is just another form of gambling."

Coun. Paul Lalli said he thinks the issue should be decided by residents through a referendum.

"This is very similar to the airport issue in that it affects the whole community," Mayor Corinne Lonsdale agreed the people of Squamish should have their say on the issue. She said the district has no intention of submitting an application for a destination casino.

"But I know the Squamish Nation is interested in pursuing it," said Lonsdale.

The provincial government recently announced a plan to set up five destination casinos throughout the province. Premier Glen Clark's government has promised it won't force casinos on municipalities which don't support them.

Teachers support plan to eliminate homophobia

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The British Columbia Teachers' Federation (BCTF) passed a resolution March 17 to work towards ending discrimination against gay and lesbian students. The decision came with an overwhelming majority of votes in favor of the resolution.

About 700 delegates voted at the annual general meeting and the result was to instruct the BCTF to form a panel to create a program to eliminate heterosexism and homophobia in schools across the province.

"There was only a handful of people who didn't vote in favor of it," said Alex Miller, president of the Howe Sound Teachers' Association.

Miller, who voted for the resolution himself, said since an information meeting involving parents and teachers was held at Howe Sound Secondary School a few days before the BCTF meeting, he's heard few complaints about the issue.

"It (resolution 102) wasn't the most controversial with the teachers," he said. "It was certainly the one that got all the media hype."

He said it's important for people to remember the passing of the resolution likely means a program will be established to provide teachers with support and resource material to help them when dealing with students and issues concerning homophobia. He said the BCTF has no power to make this into curriculum for students. Only the ministry and school boards are able to create curriculum.

Heavy rains force boil advisory, highway closure

By Brigitte Petersen and Al Price
Squamish Chief

The District of Squamish issued a three-day boil advisory for tap water used for drinking and cooking due to heavy rains last week.

Kim Creed, public works operations manager, said he took a turbidity reading Wednesday at the Stawamus River watershed and found the level to be at 20. Turbidity readings measure the amount of silt and other debris found in water supplies. Creed said the water is tested daily and when the level is five or higher, a boil advisory is issued. Residents are urged to boil water for two minutes before consuming. As of Friday, the Stawamus watershed had a reading of 0.7 and the Mashiter was at 0.87.

He said the high turbidity levels at the Stawamus watershed were due mainly to an avalanche of snow, debris and natural erosion of soil off the side of a mountain which had washed down into the water.

"For a while, there was a high infiltration of mud and debris into the river," he said. The boil advisory ran from Wednesday until Friday.

Creed said there was very little flooding in the Squamish area due to recent heavy rains.

The heavy rainfall Tuesday and Wednesday caused a culvert under Hwy. 99 near Porteau Cove to become blocked about 6 p.m. Wednesday night, sending cascades of rock and silt onto the road. The highway was closed from 6 p.m. until 1 a.m. when it was opened to alternating traffic.

Hydro looking at Cheakamus steelhead

By Al Price
Squamish Chief

Over the next two months, steelhead in the Cheakamus River will be seeing some strange critters in their habitat, and will probably feel they are being watched. They are.

Wearing drysuits, B.C. Hydro

fisheries biologists will swim the river over the next two months to count the number of steelhead returning to spawn.

This is part of Hydro's initiative to develop a fish monitoring program in the river.

"The next two to three months is the spawning period for the steelhead," said James Bruce, a fisheries biologist with Hydro. "We have limited information on how many come back to this river system, where they hold in the system, and where they spawn."

Armed with that type of information, Hydro, First Nations, the Department of Fisheries and Oceans, and community groups could embark on stock preservation or enhancement projects.

"A water use plan for the Cheakamus River is now in the early stages of development," said Bruce. The biologists will start near Butterfly Creek just below the canyon and end about 15 kilometers downstream at Fergie's Bridge.

Fire prevention bylaw rejected

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

A proposed fire prevention bylaw went up in smoke Tuesday. The bylaw, calling for various regulations including a ban on open burning, failed with a four to three vote.

"It was a setback," said Ray Saurette, Squamish Fire Rescue's deputy fire chief. Saurette said the fire department was hoping to have the bylaw in place by April 15, the date when fire permits are normally issued.

He said the department will now have to work with the district to try to fine-tune the bylaw to make it acceptable for those council members, Meg Fellowes, Ron Barr, Paul Lalli and Mayor Corinne Lonsdale, who opposed it.

"We want to meet with them (council members) to see what we can do to meet their concerns," said Saurette.

Besides banning open burning, the proposed bylaw would correct a number of shortcomings identified by the fire department including regulating the sale of fireworks, and address issues not previously dealt with such as requiring training for service station attendants, maintaining areas around hydrants, and a method to enforce the bylaw through municipal ticketing. As written, it would prohibit the burning of grass, garden clippings, leaves, tree and shrub prunings, all waste material from construction sites and any land clearing materials.

In January, council supported a recommendation from fire chief Pat Hampson to ban all open burning with the exception of fires for cooking, warmth and ceremony fires, at the discretion of the fire chief.

Fellowes said she has been in opposition to the proposed bylaw since January. "I think that it's too broad to ban outdoor burning all across the entire district," said Fellowes. "I think this would be appropriate if we were a city."

She said banning open burning would also likely result in high costs for people having to use the landfill site more often.

The recommendation for the ban was the result of a study conducted by the Ministry of Health, the Coast-Garibaldi Health Unit and due to complaints about smoke odors from people living in the district. The study, which looked at deaths in the district as a result of pneumonia, influenza, smoking-related obstructive pulmonary disease and asthma, revealed Howe Sound has the highest mortality rate from respiratory illness compared to the Sunshine Coast, Powell River and the B.C. average.

Saurette said residents will still be required to obtain burning permits after April 15 for open burnings.

Stojko, Kelesi are great role models

Other than a few overpaid professionals who can't seem to perform to their capabilities most nights, Canada is woefully short of sports heroes lately. But last week, two stars emerged from the past to give us a sense of what real character is all about.

Most noticeable was former World Champion figure skater Elvis Stojko, who sat fourth after the short program at the World Championships in Switzerland. He had been at the top of the world but fell, literally, the last couple of years, and experts said the rising stars would prevent him from attaining the level of his past glory.

Experts said Stojko's use of martial arts moves in his skating program would never be accepted by the judges, despite his obvious athletic ability. But that training, and the discipline which goes with it, was what brought the little dynamo back to the top step of the podium.

His focus was astounding. He performed the quadruple-triple jump combination cleanly, while the young hotshots turned their quads into triples, or fell on easier jumps. Stojko wasn't flawless, but his routine was far superior to anyone else, both in technical and artistic execution.

Throughout his fall from the top, and during his climb back to it, Stojko remained the picture of grace and dignity. He was unfailingly polite, accessible to the media, and didn't make lame excuses. He admitted his mistakes and tried to correct them.

Also last week, Helen Kelesi of Vancouver returned to the pro tennis tour. Many people may not realize it is a miracle she is even walking, never mind winning her first competitive match in several years.

As Canadian women's singles champ for several years and ranked as high as 13th in the world, Kelesi was shooting for the stars. But nagging injuries forced her to leave the world tour in 1994, and a year later she underwent two separate operations to remove a tumor the size of a tennis ball from her head.

Most people would have given up. Not Kelesi. At age 27 she is not in her prime, but she battled her way back to play again, successfully.

It should be obvious neither of these athletes is getting by on raw talent, as they once did. It is a combination of factors which all point to the bottom line — strength of character. Beyond their personal returns to glory, it is the character which is to be admired. They are fine examples to all of us from which we can draw a great deal of pride, and inspiration in our own pursuits.

Help save block parent program

Make no mistake about it, the Squamish Block Parent Program is valuable. Its mere existence acts as a deterrent to anyone wanting to harm young children. With about 160 block parent homes throughout the community, young people in trouble don't have far to go to find help.

But more help is needed. Though more block parent homes are always welcome, particularly in the Brackendale and Dentville areas, volunteers are needed to fill executive and administrative positions. If a few more people don't step forward, the program with a history of 20 years of service could be in jeopardy.

This is not a police program. RCMP officers act as liaisons and help screen potential block parents, but the program itself is run by volunteers. An area coordinator is needed, along with school coordinators for Squamish and Stawamus elementary schools, and to help with administrative tasks.

The safety of our children must not be ignored. If you have some time, please get involved.

"TAKE THE SNOW TIRES OFF NOW!" YOU SAID ... ITS ALMOST SPRING ANYWAY", YOU SAID ...

Big fight is on the right

Traditionally in federal politics, the NDP has occupied the left, the Liberals the centre and the Conservatives the right. But tradition was thrown out the window after the last election, and it is doubtful the political scene in Canada will ever return to what it was. The NDP was reduced to a shadow of its former self, electing only eight members. Leader Audrey McLaughlin won her seat in the Yukon but has since stepped down as head of the party in favor of Alexa McDonough. She does not have a seat in parliament, and has a public profile lower than a snake's belly in a wagon rut. In fact, the NDP as a federal political force, is seen as increasingly irrelevant.

One of the reasons Prime Minister Jean Chretien is considering calling an election is the comfortable position of his Liberals at the centre of the spectrum. Chretien has managed to avoid major controversy, has started to address the deficit, and has a comfortable lead in the polls.

In the whole scheme of things it is difficult to figure out where the Bloc Quebecois sits. Former leader Lucien Bouchard had been an MP in Brian Mulroney's Conservative government before he defected to lead the separatist party. The new leader, elected last weekend, is Gilles Duceppe, whose only real claim to fame is that until recently he was a card-carrying member of the Communist Party in Quebec.

The spot to the right of centre, formerly ceded to the Tories, has become a minefield. After the last election, the Conservatives held only two seats and could hold its caucus meetings in a phone booth comfortably. Preston Manning and his Reform Party took most of the Conservative votes, ver platter. There has been some talk, mostly in the media, of the two joining forces. That appears highly unlikely at this stage.

Even though it has only two members, the Conservative party still has a lot of credibility. On the other hand, with enough seats to tie for the Official Opposition title at the moment, the Reform Party members have munched on

As I See It

By Al Price

coming a close second to the upstart Bloc Quebecois in the battle for official Opposition status.

With a June election looking more and more likely, the Conservatives and Reformers are now battling for domination on the right. By announcing their platforms so far ahead of a vote, both are also leaving themselves wide open to intense scrutiny and criticism, allowing the Grits to sit back and watch, grinning like Cheshire cats as they tear each other apart.

By splitting the vote, they are as good as handing an election victory to the Liberals on a siltheir feet enough since the last election the party has lost momentum and could see a decline to the Tories.

I can see a couple of scenarios after the next election. If the Tories remain weak, they could be absorbed by Reform. If they regain some strength, a merger would be possible, though the details would be a nightmare to work out, such as the party name and who should be the leader.

Given the almost insurmountable lead of the Liberals, the real battle in the next election will be for control of the right wing voters.

It should be fun to watch.

Red Cross appreciates the support of Squamish blood donors

Editor,

On behalf of British Columbia patients who depend on life-saving blood and blood products, the Red Cross thanks Squamish blood donors who responded to our recent urgent appeal for blood.

Due to heavy demand from hospitals and lower collections, the Red Cross found itself facing the inability to meet the demands of area hospitals.

Thanks to the phenomenal response from donors, our bank is now up to normal levels. In the first weeks of March, donors gave 4,770 units. Thousands of patients in B. C. have benefited from this gift of life.

Recent donors may have noticed a series of new steps and procedures in the process. While these changes may increase the time it takes to give blood, the Red Cross thanks you for your patience and understanding. The changes are needed to further protect the safety of the blood supply and the health of donors.

The need for blood is on-going and supplies constantly need to be replenished. For clinic times and location, please call 879-6001. Thank you to all our dedicated donors and volunteers who responded to this urgent and immediate need.

Teenagers feel sting of discrimination

Editor,

I am writing in response to a letter that you published from Ruby Madill in the March 11 edition of The Chief. Unfortunately, I would have to agree with Ruby that teenagers are being discriminated against in and around Squamish.

I have seen several signs that read "No more than two students in store at one time" or "no students allowed between 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on school days."

Even stores that do not have these signs discriminate against us by following students around the store or by keeping an eye on us while we are shopping.

This attitude that all teenagers or students are potential shoplifters or thieves saddens me because it is simply not true. When I was in high school, I simply did not have the time to steal or shoplift because I was involved with so many other things. Between leadership, peer counselling, sports and acting, I had little time to do my homework let alone risk the repercussions involved in stealing a $10 necklace. The same is true of many of my friends, most of whom were, and are, actively involved in making Howe Sound Secondary, and Squamish a better place.

We (teenagers) have a lot of money to spend in stores around Squamish and would much rather buy things here than spend the money on gas and go to Vancouver. But by putting up signs and discouraging us from going in (stores) we have no other choice but to take our money else where.

I know that not all stores in Squamish discriminate in this way and it is unfortunate that your reputation is tarnished by the bad ones. Thank you to those stores which treat us with just as much respect as anyone else.

And those who don't, just remember it is against the law to discriminate against someone because of race, age, or disability and if it you were preventing anyone else from entering your stores, there most likely would be a public outcry.

Estuary must be protected

Received by The Squamish Chief for publication:

Premier Glen Clark,
Victoria, B.C.

Dear Premier Clark:

Following are my thoughts and worries about the Squamish Estuary Management Plan and the make-up of the coordination committee.

The current plan was arrived at and the committee set up because of constant dispute over what and how development should be handled in the estuary.

For thousands of years the estuary has managed itself, and done very well, producing a great bounty of life. It was this dependable bounty that attracted early man and supported him for thousands of years. The same is also true for the early settlers.

However, coming from a different culture and background, they immediately set out to improve and change what was here. A townsite was set up and rail yards were added later. Land not immediately needed by the railway was leased out to an assortment of chemical and industrial plants using more and more of the estuary lands. To date, less than one half of the original land is a productive entity, also greatly handicapped by developments upland on streams, hill-sides and valleys.

It is that one half that the present tug-of-war, called management plan, is all about.

The local public and conservation groups who might not have a developmental interest in the area and who have tried to speak for the interests and health of the estuary were held at bay with delayed meeting minutes and vague promises that things would be all right.

No independently-funded representative speaks for the estuary.

Therefore, the result is predictable. A plan hatched out in meetings by vested interests doing horse trading and flexing muscles.

As late as 1970, government records indicate a healthy annual harvest for the Howe Sound fishery. This harvest was available year after year with little or no input from man. All served up by a functional estuary and a working river system.

Since then, more and more residential, commercial and industrial development and resource harvesting up and down the valley have resulted in the loss of the commercial fisheries in the sound. A fishery, if the productive areas had been protected, could still provide work and income for fishers.

Therefore, I beg you to instruct all the involved ministries to stop any further development in the estuary and combine knowledge and resources in what is best for the estuary and the life it supports.

I would like to quote from Queen's Printer Pamphlet #18706: Diversity of Life.

"An action plan is being carried out to preserve threatened stocks of Pacific salmon, including a community partnership program to improve critical habitats in urban streams.

"In the spring of 1997, the province intends to introduce new legislation to protect salmon."

It is very hard to protect salmon in a dying estuary.

Intersection needs right turn lane

Editor,

Once again I was 10 minutes late for school. Not because I slept in or took too long in the shower, but because of the traffic situation in Squamish that can hold up a line of about 20 cars. I'm talking about the new intersection at Buckley and Cleveland avenues, right before the train tracks when you are entering town.

Here is where the problem occurs: both of the lanes are straight through lanes. There is no separate right turn lane.

This means if one person wants to go straight, he or she obviously has to wait for the light to change and this in turn holds everybody up. If a train is passing, this holds up the traffic all the more. This morning I was forced to stop just when I came off the highway on the merging corner and I sat there, I sat there, and sat there, and was late for school.

I have a few suggestions to solve this little problem. We could make one of the lanes a right turn only lane between the hours of 7:30 a.m.-9:30 a.m.

Or we could eliminate the bus loop and make it into a right turn lane. Now here's an idea.

You could be a smart and courteous driver and go in the middle lane if you are going straight because you wouldn't have to worry about blocking any of the cars which are turning.

I really think making a right turning lane between 7:30 a.m.-9:30 a.m. would be a productive solution. This would cost the council a minimal amount of money for a sign.

Such a change would result in less delay for students and staff going to the high school and the elementary school, as well as the people who work at B.C. Rail. It would keep the traffic flowing nicely and reduce the accident factor.

It takes just one person in a momentary lapse of attention before a careless bumper to bumper accident occurs.

This would be a simple solution to a growing traffic problem in Squamish.

Drinks not complimentary on 'trans-border' routes

Editor,

Nowadays, three months seems to be a long time not to use airplanes. A few months ago on an international flight from Germany to Canada, all beverages were complimentary. This week however, on a short flight from Los Angeles to Vancouver things had changed.

I had to familiarize myself with a new term 'trans-border'. Apparently Vancouver-LA is no longer considered an international route but a trans-border flight. Alcoholic drinks, of course, are no longer complimentary on trans-border routes.

I still needed to fill out my Canada Custom's declaration form for entry into Canada. Someone should instruct Customs personnel that trans-border flights no longer qualify as international flights, so logically excise taxes and duties are no longer applicable. This must finally be one of those much promised advantages to the NAFTA deal.

Kind of like Europe's EC move to eliminate visible borders as economies merge.

Not that I drink alcohol anyway, but what puzzles me is if tariffs are being eliminated, why are drinks now going to cost already cost-weary trans-national travellers money? Apparently George Orwell's Animal Farm is no longer standard school literature and so the lesson of the 'increased' cocoa rations goes ignored.

Mr. Chomsky would be amused, but then he probably doesn't drink liquor either. It is unlikely that this creative new eco (as in economical) spin will cause the beleaguered consumer to rise up in revolutionary protest.

Merriam-Webster will simply sanction and adopt the new term and we will at least be linguistically enriched.

All that fails is that this is the brainchild of some zealous health fanatic who is hopeful charging for drinks will serve as a disincentive to consume alcohol generally, thereby improving both personal and public health standards. Smokers are already down for the count. Drinkers beware, you are next and they will fleece you before they cure you.

For the rest of us it should be acknowledged that language influences and determines our perception in subtle ways.

Welcome to the world of trans-national flights.

Police seek help in catching culprits of Thursday car trashing

Squamish RCMP are looking for help in solving a serious case of vandalism which took place shortly after 6 p.m. Thursday to a vehicle parked in the lot off Loggers Lane at the foot of the Smoke Bluffs.

Cpl. Rob Diack said the owner of a white 1988 Pontiac 6000 parked his car in the lot and walked 15 minutes up the trail. He heard a commotion and glass breaking, looked around and saw the flash of a blue coat by his car.

"He ran down the hill but by the time he got there the perpetrators were gone. The police were there within one minute, and we caught three kids nearby but we can't be sure they were the ones who did it," said Diack. "Somebody had to have seen this taking place, and we would sure appreciate a call, either to our office or Crimestoppers."

All the windows of the car were smashed out, including the windshield, and the roof was caved in. RCMP forensic experts were examining the vehicle Friday morning at the detachment to see if they could match footprints found on the car to any of the young people they detained nearby.

"This could have been your car, or mine" said Diack. "It was only sitting there for a second." A Cat back hoe parked nearby owned by L&A Equipment Ltd. was also damaged.

"There has been thousands and thousands of dollars in damage to vehicles in the last few weeks, and it costs us all through our insurance," said Diack. "We'd really like some help from the public to solve some of these cases."

Four young offenders walked away from the wilderness camp program at Porteau Cove Wednesday night. Cpl. Rob Diack of the Squamish RCMP said the youths, three age 16 and one age 17, were reported missing at midnight. Shortly after, a car was reported stolen from Porteau Cove. Though police have no proof the two incidents are related, they suspect the youths may have taken the car and driven south. The four youths are all from the Lower Mainland.

A search warrant obtained under the Narcotic Control Act was used by police to search a house in Brackendale March 17. Seven marijuana plants almost at the harvest stage were seized, along with some improperly stored firearms and ammunition. Diack said police generally estimate a street value of $1,000 each for a mature marijuana plant. A Squamish man could be facing charges.

District considers merging animal control, bylaw enforcement

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

Animal control and bylaw enforcement staff members are opposing a recommendation from the district clerk to merge services and contract out operation of the dog pound.

Gary Johnson, national representative with the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), met with Mayor Corinne Lonsdale and councillors during committee of the whole meeting Friday. Clerk Joe Barry recommended creating "one-stop" type of enforcement which would see a team of officers enforce bylaws and handle animal control. He also suggested having the dog pound run by the Society for the Protection of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) or to contract out services to another group.

Barry said if council approves this proposal, net expenditures for other protective services would decrease by $12,547. Under the proposed reorganization, Barry said no staff would experience reduced hours or lower wages. He said annual wages would actually go up by about $6,800.

The district currently employs one bylaw enforcement officer, one animal control officer, a part-time animal control assistant and a casual on-call employee.

The proposal recommends two full-time and one part-time bylaw enforcement officers be employed to carry out duties, including animal control, throughout the district.

Barry said there is a need for bylaw enforcement on weekends and after hours. Officers ensure regulations for parking, signage, water sprinklers and others are followed.

Johnson said there are a number of reasons why he does not support the recommendation. He said animal control in Squamish is efficient the way it is and Barry's proposal would actually end up costing the district more money.

"If it ain't broken, why are we trying to fix it?" said Johnson.

Johnson said the idea of one-stop enforcement would mean there would not be enough time to properly handle animal control while juggling regular bylaw enforcement at the same time.

"On average, contracting out these services does not reduce costs, it increases costs to taxpayers in the long run."

Johnson asked the committee of the whole to come up with a better plan.

"We're prepared to talk about improving services," he said.

Mayor Corinne Lonsdale said the intent of the recommendation to merge services was to improve services.

Squamish Block Parent Program needs support from the community

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The Squamish Block Parent Program (SBPP) recently turned 20 years old. But unless the program gets more support, it may not have much to celebrate.

"We think it's a very effective program for educating kids about safety," said RCMP Const. Fran Bethell. "And for people who are a potential threat, it gives them the message that people are watchful and concerned about other people in the community."

Bethell said there's a public misconception that SBPP is a police program. It is run by volunteers, and the RCMP act only as liaisons to provide support and screen potential block parents.

At least five volunteers are needed to fill the positions of area coordinator, school coordinators for Squamish and Stawamus elementary schools and to help out with administrative tasks.

There are currently about 160 block parent homes throughout the District of Squamish, mainly in Garibaldi Highlands, Brackendale and Valleycliffe.

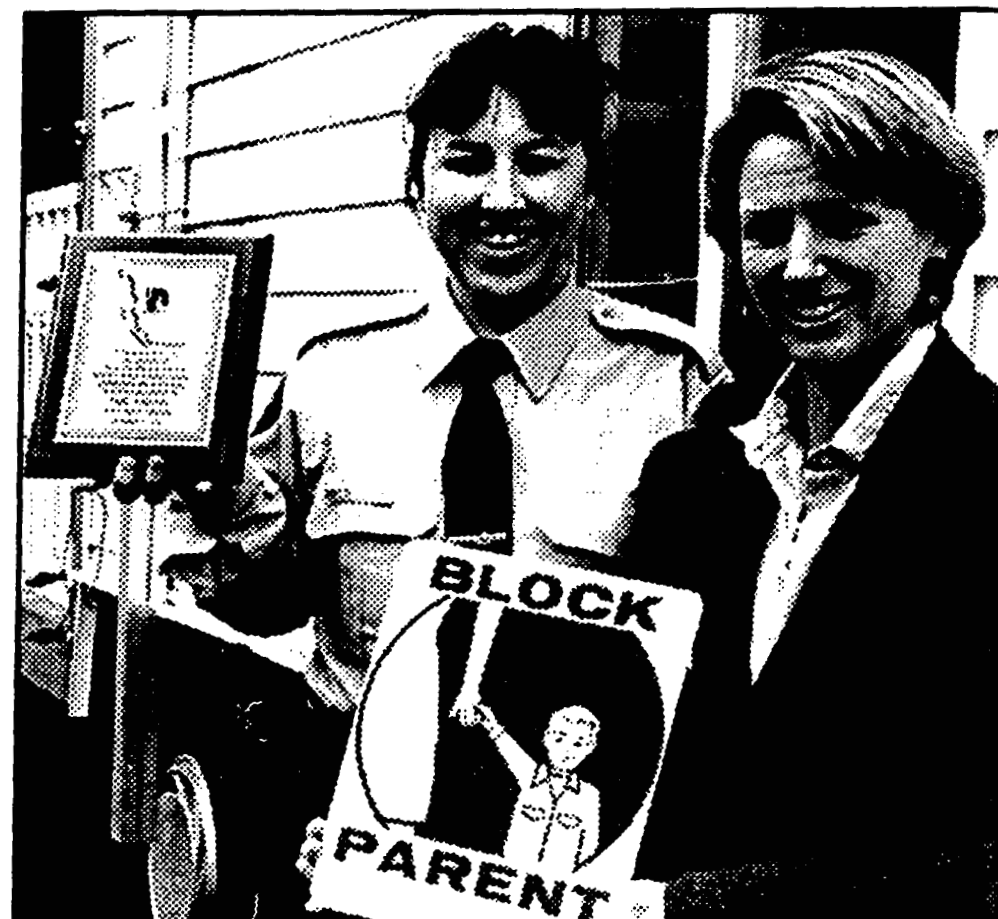

Elizabeth Shepherd, past area coordinator for SBPP, said there is a need for block parent homes in the downtown core.

Shepherd said anyone 18 years of age and older can apply to become a block parent. "You don't have to be a parent." Anyone in need of help, particularly children and seniors, are able to find it at a block parent home.

After filling out an application form, potential block parents are screened by the RCMP and are measured against a list of criteria set out by the B.C. Block Parent Program.

Anyone 12 and older living in a house with an applicant must also be screened.

Once a block parent meets the criteria, SBPP committee members provides the volunteer with information and a sign to hang in the front window. Shepherd said these signs tell children or adults in need of help that a particular house, will provide a safe haven during an emergency.

Shepherd said the program's goal is to have six block parent homes on every residential block.

Bethell said the number of times block parents have to answer to a distressed child or senior at their door is small in Squamish. But the community is growing and people don't necessarily know their neighbors as well as they used to.

Block parents are not expected to provide food or beverages, toilet facilities, transportation, administer first aid or leave their home to break up fights or confront a potentially dangerous person.

Children are urged to go to a block parent home when alarmed by a stranger, bully or animal, is in an accident or is lost, ill or caught in severe weather conditions.

For more information on how you can help SBPP or to become a block parent, contact Bethell at the Squamish RCMP detachment, 898-9611, or Heather Nash, Valleycliffe block parent school coordinator at 892-5807.

FRBC focusing on job opportunities

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The chairperson of Forest Renewal B.C. (FRBC) said the Crown corporation is working towards meeting its mandate, but there is still much more to be done.

"There are a number of areas that we recognize we need improvement in," said Roger Stanyer during an interview last week with the Squamish Chief. "We have not been successful in creating the kind of forest employment that we want as a board and certainly as the members of communities of British Columbia want to see us do."

Stanyer addressed the Squamish and Howe Sound Chamber of Commerce meeting last Tuesday.

Before the meeting, Stanyer said FRBC is working towards its goals, but changing the way the forest industry does business is not an easy task.

FRBC's mandate is, "to plan and implement a program of investments to renew the forest economy of British Columbia by enhancing the productive capacity and environmental values of forest lands, and by creating jobs, providing training for forest workers, and strengthening local communities that depend on the forest industry."

He said the corporation spends money on a regionally equitable basis, putting dollars back into areas which have spent the most on forestry.

Stanyer said in some areas, the corporation is outperforming its own expectations. In the area of environmental spending, which includes watershed restoration and repairing damage done by past logging or by nature, FRBC is well over its spending target.

He said the corporation's administration costs have been high because it's needed to pay for start-up costs.

"As with any corporation, start-up costs are higher than you would like them to be over the long term, and we're working to bring those numbers down."

He said the corporation wants to spend more money on the land by investing in growing more and better timber, improve the inventory process to provide data for future planning, and work with members of the forest industry to determine what kind of long-term employment will result from forest renewal activities.

"We want to see people go from opportunity to opportunity and thereby get a reasonably good work year."

Stanyer said it's a challenge for FRBC to try to provide displaced forestry workers with the right kind of training to give them job skills for the future.

"It takes a lot of comprehensive planning to be able to re-train workers for real job opportunities," he said.

"What we're focusing on is job opportunities in the community and providing training for workers right in the community."

He said many of the training dollars are spent in the value-added sector. In Squamish, displaced forest workers have been retrained in some forest tending practices.

In areas such as silviculture, FRBC plays a function by providing funding to improve the quality and quantity of stands of trees planted by forest licensees following harvesting.

"We're not talking about (FRBC) replacing the employment base of the silviculture contractors, we're talking about enhancing that base," said Stanyer.

FRBC has a number of programs including one for unemployed forest workers which helps them learn skills to find a new job either in or out of the industry.

"It isn't only about forest industry employment, it's about the forest industry workforce," said Stanyer.

FRBC has provided a total of $25,030,787 in funding for forest renewal projects in the corridor since 1994. Stanyer said a lot of applications are received, but many are turned down because they don't meet the corporation's criteria.

"We are approving many projects that go out to the year 2000. When we can plan those kinds of dollars, then both the industry and workers can start planning the kind of employment that will flow from those approvals."

In the 1996/97 fiscal year, FRBC paid out a total of $275 million across the province. The highest spending was in the areas of environmental renewal and land and resources. Spending on workforce, communities and the value-added industry was significantly lower.

FRBC's provincial mandate is to spend $2 billion on forest renewal throughout B.C. over a period of five years.

Forest Renewal B.C. chair Roger Stanyer visited Squamish as guest speaker at the chamber of commerce meeting Tuesday.

Comedian Gordon White kicks off two great April shows at the BAG

by Al Price
Squamish Chief

Hilarious physical comedian Gordon White takes to the Brackendale Art Gallery stage April 13 at 7:30 p.m. in a program sure to delight an adult audience. Fresh from the Just For Laughs Comedy Festival in Montreal, White has been a feature artist with the world renowned Cirque Du Soleil in New York and Chicago, and has appeared in main stages and festivals throughout Europe, the U.S. and Canada.

White's special guest for this performance will be Norm Foote of Squamish, a well known entertainer of children and adults alike.

Ageless jester and highly respected musician and actor Rick Scott performs April 20 also at 7:30 p.m., hot on the heels of the release of his award winning and critically acclaimed CD Philharmonic Fool.

Playing his trademark electric dulcimer, Scott was long a member of Pied Pumpkin with Joe Mock and Shari Ulrich, then when Ulrich left he stayed with Mock as Pied Pear.

Since then he has performed solo as a musician, and received excellent reviews in his stage appearances with the Arts Club in Angry Housewives and Late Bloomer.

His zany antics and rubber face are sure to delight children of all ages.

Scott is the only person in the known world, possibly the universe, to play an electric snowshoe.

He was nominated for a Juno award in 1996 and tours extensively throughout Canada, the U.S. and Asia.

Tickets for the concerts are $7 each for youths and $9 for adults, available at the Piano Six makes acclaimed performers available to smaller communities

by Al Price
Squamish Chief

The Howe Sound Performing Arts Society's (HSPAA) piano and Rotary Park will get a tremendous boost when Janina Fialkowska takes to the stage at the community theatre at Howe Sound Secondary School April 18.

Sponsored by the HSPAA and the Rotary Club of Squamish, the gala event is a fund raiser to purchase a grand piano for the theatre and to help construct the park. With their concert tickets, participants will attend a reception with the artist featuring appetizers and refreshments, and both a silent and live auction.

Fialkowska's evening performance, along with an afternoon concert for Howe Sound Secondary School and Garibaldi Highlands Elementary students, is made possible in part through Piano Six, founded by the artist in 1994.

She and five other celebrated colleagues have dedicated 10 days every year for 10 years to performing in small and isolated communities across the country at a fraction of their usual fee.

"It's so fantastic performers of this calibre are willing to come to smaller communities at such a reduced fee," said HSPAA president Joanna Schwarz. "It really helps us see the best, and should really help the fund."

The goal of Piano Six is to build classical music audiences and provide personalized encouragement to young music students in outlying areas. Fialkowska is a highly acclaimed virtuoso who has performed in many of the most prestigious concert halls in Europe, North America and the Far East. She is a protégé of the late keyboard giant Artur Rubenstein, and is considered a Chopin specialist and one of the foremost interpreters of the music of Franz Liszt. She will be performing works by Haydn, Beethoven, Brahms, Chopin, Grieg and Rosenthal.

The concert gets under way at 7:30 p.m., with the other events to follow. Tickets at $90 each are available from Bill McNeney at 898-5718, Linda Carney at 892-5675 or Carol Finnie at 898-3483, or from the Squamish Valley Golf and Country Club or the Howe Sound Inn.

"The tickets are expensive, but we have a charitable tax number and receipts will be issued for tax purposes," said Schwarz. "We are particularly looking for support from businesses and companies. Even though the fee for the artist is reduced, there is the cost of renting the venue and bringing in a grand piano, which we won't have to pay when we have our own."

Eight of 12 corporate tables of eight seats each have already been sold. Corporate patrons have reserved tables in the middle of the theatre, the first meeting with the artist along with a champagne toast, and early preview of the auction items.

Sea to Sky Canine Club looking for more members

The Sea to Sky Canine Sports Club is looking for new members for the upcoming season beginning April 15.

The club is open to anyone throughout the corridor and any size, shape or breeding of dog can participate as long as they are obedient, healthy and well socialized.

The aim of Sea to Sky Canines is for owners to have fun with their dogs and to promote responsible and enjoyable dog ownership through the sports of dog agility and flyball.

Agility is a fun sport with spectator appeal in which the handler and dog work closely as a team demonstrating the dog's fitness and handler's ability to control the dog.

The dog is required to correctly negotiate an obstacle course consisting of various types of equipment which can include tunnels, jumps, teeter-totters, A-ramps and weave poles. Agility tests are run against the clock and faults are deducted for unsafe or incorrect negotiation of the course.

Flyball is a fast and exciting sport for the dogs, their handlers and spectators. A flyball team consists of four dogs and their handlers, and a box loader. A relay race is run in which each dog on the team is sent ahead over a series of four short jumps.

At the end is a special box which, when the dog depresses a pedal with its paw, tosses a tennis ball into the air. The dog catches it, retrieves the ball and returns with it over the jumps to the finish line. Teams compete against each other in tournaments.

In the past, Sea to Sky Canines has participated in agility and flyball competitions throughout the Lower Mainland and hosted many local demonstrations. The club is looking for new members. Beginning April 15 the club meets Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m. across from the Rod and Gun Club in the horse pasture. Drop-in fee is $4. For more information call Maren at 898-4778.

Amenta stars in Amazing Dreamcoat at UBC

Contributed to The Chief

The Musical Theatre Society of the University of British Columbia (MUSOC) will be performing Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's musical Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat on Saturday, March 29, at 8 p.m. in the Chan Centre for the Performing Arts (265 Crescent Road, UBC). The part of Joseph is being played by rapidly rising singing sensation John Amenta of Squamish, who is a student at UBC.

Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat is an interpretation of the biblical passage describing the story of Joseph, son of Israel.

Unlike most of the theatre productions held at UBC, this is not a product of the Theatre Department nor the School of Music, and has nothing to do with the curriculum of any course. The students involved in the show come from a wide variety of faculties, ranging from chemistry to psychology, from fine arts to engineering.

Joseph will be MUSOC's attempt to revive a once thriving organization at UBC. Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat will be the first offering of the newly reformed society.

The performance is on Saturday, March 29, at 8 p.m. in the Chan Centre. Tickets are available at all Ticketmaster outlets for $10 each. Groups of 30 or more receive a 10 per cent discount.

COMMUNITY

Churches hosting Easter services

Easter services will be observed in churches in the community on Easter Sunday, March 30 and many churches will also hold Good Friday services. I will mention some of the services in this column but if your church is not listed, please phone the church as the directory and phone numbers are on this page.

The cast of Surprise Party as presented by Howe Sound Players is burning the midnight oil in preparation for performances planned at the new theatre at Howe Sound Secondary School. Surprise Party dates are the week of April 1-5 and the following week, April 9-12, starting at 8 p.m. each night and Saturday matinees are planned for 2 p.m. Tickets are available at Mostly Books at $10 each, with Wednesday performances two-for-one.

This evening, March 25, the Howe Sound Loan Association will hold its annual general meeting at 7 p.m. in the school board office on Second Avenue. Students interested in obtaining loans or anyone wishing more information is invited to attend.

The gift shop at Squamish General Hospital is filled with cute stuffed bunnies, chicks, ducks and other cuddly stuffed animals and they make perfect gifts. The shop is run by the Women's Auxiliary to SGH and is open Monday to Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The WA is planning a spring white elephant sale in May and is interested in good reusable items (no books or clothing). A call to 898-5119 or 898-3040 will ensure pick-up of your goods.

First birthday wishes to Alex-Andrea Long-Henderson, Lauren Bukowsky, and Jessica Payne.

A few hours after the pain in your gut subsides you kind of shuck your shoulders and wonder when it will happen again. This is the feeling George and I and our neighbors have as once again we were awakened in the middle of the night (at approximately 4 a.m. one day last week) when an out-of-control truck smashed into our neighbor's fence and our yard. For the 30 years we have lived in this house there was never any problems with uninvited vehicles until 1988, and this recent crash was the fourth such incident. Four too many for us, and yet we are helpless to do anything about it. Perhaps when the North Yards railway crossing is closed and the new road opened up through the industrial park the speeders and intoxicated drivers will not have the speedway of Government Road to lose control on as they round the bend past the tracks...and crash into our yard.

The Howe Sound Performing Arts Association, the Rotary Club of Squamish and many other sponsors are bringing to Squamish the international pianist Janina Fialkowska in a Piano Six performance. The gala fund raiser will be held in the community theatre at HSSS on Friday, April 18 at 7 p.m. Tickets at $90 each ($60 tax receipt) includes the concert, refreshments, hors-d'oeuvres, silent and live auction and are available at Squamish Valley Golf and Country Club and Howe Sound Inn. All proceeds will go to the Howe Sound Performing Arts Association grand piano fund and the Rotary Park project.

Music teacher Stan Thomson at Brackendale Secondary School said his department is looking for musical instrument donations. He promises they will be well taken care of and well used. If you can help out, contact Stan at the school at 898-3671, fax: 898-4672.

A local discussion group has been formed to explore the works of Jane Roberts, author of Seth Speaks and other books. The group will focus on the practical application of human consciousness study. For further information contact Ted Mousseau at 898-9762 and leave a message.

St. Joseph's Catholic Church will have the following Easter masses: Holy Thursday, March 27, at 8 p.m., Good Friday service, 3 p.m., Holy Saturday Easter Vigil, 8 p.m., Easter Sunday Masses, 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. Please note, the 4:30 p.m. mass on Saturday, April 5 is cancelled.

About Town

called.

There will be a film production workshop this Saturday, March 29 at the Howe Sound Inn. The workshop will cover the basic overview of what goes into making a movie from conception to the finished product. The cost is $20 and runs from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tickets are available at Howe Sound Inn or by calling Adriane Polo at 898-5930.

German language classes are offered once again at Brennan Park Leisure Centre. Beginners and/or advanced classes for adults will commence March 27 at 7 p.m. with a minimum of eight students needed for each class. German playtime for preschool and kindergarten children will start March 29 at 10 a.m. German play 'n learn for Grades 1-2 children will run April 1 - June 10 after school on Tuesday. German for Grades 3-7 runs Tuesdays starting April 1. Register for all classes at the leisure centre or call Katie at 892-5360.

Several programs are offered at the Brennan Park Leisure Centre this week. Easter egg extravaganza Wednesday, March 26, is for six- to 12-year-olds. It will be held from 5-7 p.m. and $15 registration includes supplies. Thursday, March 27, decorative art, German for adults, mini-basketball and teen floor hockey are offered.

The annual Easter egg hunt will take place at the Brennan Park Leisure Centre on Easter Sunday March 30 starting at noon. It is sponsored by the Squamish Firefighters Association.

The Easter Sunday service at Valleycliffe Christian Fellowship Church will be held at 11 a.m. on March 30.

Squamish Pentecostal Church has a special Easter Sunday Kids Time program in the sanctuary at 10 a.m. The theme of the Easter service at 11 a.m. is entitled, What It's All About.

There will be a Good Friday service at Squamish United Church at 11 a.m., March 28. The Easter Sunday celebration and confirmation service will be held at 10 a.m.

A happy and blessed Easter to all of my readers.

HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Clark - ©TVData Features Syndicate

March 23 through March 29, 1997

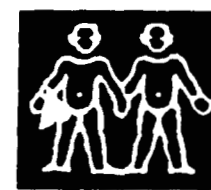

Aries (March 21 - April 20)

Work-related projects will hit a few snags, but nothing you can't handle. Step outside for some fresh air; it will help clear your head.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)

Stop putting off your promise to exercise. Start with a few minutes a day and it won't seem so impossible.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

Clear the clutter from your mind and your domicile. As far as your career is concerned, it's time to make a move.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

Be firm with loved ones who ask too much of you. Financial matters may be more complicated than you originally thought.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

It seems as if everything is at a standstill, but that isn't necessarily true. Get out of your rut by taking in a midweek movie.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

Family is very important to you, but you mustn't let it make decisions for you. The strength to cope is within you.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

Stay calm and assess the situation before jumping into the fray. It is difficult, but you must think with your head and not with your heart.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)

Life is a little crazier than usual, but you'll make it. Curl up with a good mystery book or movie and enjoy some time alone.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)

Strange dreams may be more prophetic than you imagined. Keep a journal and write down your thoughts as soon as you wake up.

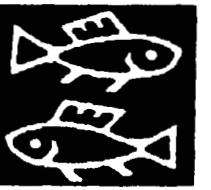

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)

One wrong word could turn your world upside down. Think about what you really want to communicate to others.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

Sit down and make some long-term goals, and take time to reflect on how far you've already come. Your psychic energy is growing stronger.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

Be a social butterfly at gatherings, and take in your surroundings. Being aware of the undercurrents at work is important.

Hate will always be with us

Unfortunate as it is, people tend to look for somebody to hate, and will continue to do so regardless if they know a lot about them or not.

Two large beast war toys full of darts to the person or persons who decided a black knapsack left at Garibaldi Highlands Elementary School playground for a short time was theirs to claim. In the meantime, a young boy has lost his faith in the goodness of people.

A wood stove full of daffodils to Squamish Fire Rescue, which searched everywhere for our nonexistent permit, and to Tony Worth, who checked out the stove on such short notice. We greatly appreciate your efforts.

A new house full of daffodils to Nanci Fulton for outstanding service in selling our old house and helping us buy the new one. We especially appreciate your efforts in resolving our unexpected, last-minute hurdles.

Twelve steps overflowing with bright, beautiful daffodils to the wonderful people who showed me what genuine caring and support can do. Your concern and kindness made me feel truly blessed during a rough few days.

Huge grocery bags full of daffodils to all who donated to the first distribution of the food bank, especially Super Valu for the super-sized donation of food and grocery bags.

Also to Save-On-Foods, IGA Plus and Timber Foods for their enormous support, and to the volunteers who made it all happen. A total of 103 bags were given out and the cupboard is bare again.

A Bobcat bucket full of daffodils to Wayne for clearing the heavy lumps left by the snowplow after the surprise snowfall last weekend.

A preschool full of daffodils for Const. Leverson for his visits and talks to the children at Happy Times Preschool.

Darts to the District of Squamish for banning sandwich board signs. These small, out-of-the-way signs give a little character to our downtown main street. People who are complaining that they are in the way should watch where they are walking or they might walk into a district shrub planter, district garbage container or a small child.

I think the sidewalks are plenty wide enough for these tasteful signs.

A hockey rink full of daffodils to all the great parents who helped out at the novice hockey tournament. A special thank you to Sylvia, Duncan and Lisa for all your extra time and effort. You did an excellent job and made for the best tournament ever.

Want to say thanks and make sure everyone knows why? Or maybe offer a little constructive criticism without confrontation? You can also fax your message to 892-8483 or e-mail to sqchief@mountain-inter.net.

An Easter basket full of daffodils to Phil and Joy at Sea to Sky Community Services for shredding all that colorful paper to fill our Easter baskets. From the Fire Mamquam Sparks.

Hwy. 99 full of darts to all those road warriors who refuse to obey or heed traffic control signs. A dump truck full of daffodils to all those considerate drivers who slow down and use their hazard lights through construction zones.

An ambulance full of daffodils to constables Steve and Jeff and the two ambulance attendants who escorted my mom to hospital. My apologies for not knowing your names. You handled my mom with dignity and consideration. You are a credit to your profession. This was the second time the lady attendant had taken my mother to Lions Gate Hospital, and both times were handled with finesse. My 14-year-old daughter was there. You were wonderful role models for her to watch. Words cannot express my gratitude for your handling of a potentially ugly situation.

An ice rink full of daffodils to Sylvia Gertsch and Lisa Lynch for organizing the novice hockey tournament March 15-16.

It was a very successful weekend and all your hard work and dedication showed. It was a wonderful experience for the kids. They had a great time and we're very appreciative of all your efforts. Thank you. Coaches and parents.

A birthday cake full of 17 daffodils to Kirsten A., with lots of love from your family.

Daffodils to Warren and Bjorn from Interfor for helping the teens make the skateboard ramps. Thanks tons.

An arena full of daffodils to Sylvia, Lisa and all the other people who worked so hard to put on such a great novice hockey tournament for the kids. We had an awesome time and it was a great way to end the season. See you in atom.

A cul de sac filled with daffodils to Marilynne, Robert Lana, Madi and Tongue. Though the distance between our homes may be far, our hearts will always be close. Thank you for your generosity, your laughter and your friendship.

Celebrating the success of women in Squamish.

Lonsdale takes pride in her community

BY BRIGITTE PETERSEN SQUAMISH CHIEF

Corinne Lonsdale will go down in history as the first female mayor of Squamish. Although sitting in the mayor's seat since 1993 may still be somewhat new to her, Lonsdale is not a stranger to community leadership.

Lonsdale moved to Squamish at the age of seven and has since that time been actively involved in the community.

"This is my home and I'm proud of it," she says.

As a child and into her teens she was a Girl Guide, and joining a church youth organization helped her develop leadership skills early on. Later, Lonsdale founded a local chapter of the Canadian Daughters League, a national fraternal organization involved in education and organizing special events.

She also started the ladies auxiliary for the Howe Sound Ball Association and was the official recorder for the parks and recreation commission. Lonsdale said participating in these and many other organizations helped her develop a strong interest in working for the public.

In 1983, Lonsdale was elected and took her seat as a councillor with the District of Squamish.

"I didn't run because I was unhappy with things," she says. "I ran because I was truly interested in the community."

Lonsdale ran for mayor in 1990 but was defeated by Egon Tobus by a handful of votes. But she didn't give up on her dream and in 1993 was handed the key to Squamish.

Lonsdale says she runs into more and more female mayors and councillors when she attends meetings in various communities across the province. She also encounters some discrimination from her male counterparts when she is away from home.

"I sometimes get the feeling that people don't think I know anything about certain issues," she says.

But Lonsdale makes it her business to get to know as much as possible about matters dealing with municipal, provincial and even federal levels of government. She takes her job seriously and has chosen to make it a full-time occupation. The mayor for the District of Squamish is not required to put in full days of work nor to attend conferences throughout B.C., but Lonsdale chooses to do so.

"As mayor, you have to well-informed on all of the issues."

Lonsdale says the gender issue never entered her mind when she ran for mayor. She says individuals should be commended for their abilities and not placed into categories based on their sex.

"It matters not whether you're a female or a male. If you believe you can make a difference you should feel encouraged to run for public office."

Corinne Lonsdale is the first woman mayor in the history of Squamish.

IGA PLUS LOUISE SHILLITO DELI MANAGER

Louise Shillito is the Deli Manager at the new IGA Plus Marketplace in the Squamish Station Mall. She's been in the grocery business for 23 years in sales, marketing and catering, and loved every minute of it. She finds working with the public most satisfying; and shopping and being employed in a new competitive marketplace particularly motivating. She and her staff are there to answer any questions regarding products, special needs, and of course, "hands-on" cooking. Customer service is IGA's number one priority. Louise is another multi-interest person. She's had 10 years of ballet, learned the retail jewellery business, taken a boating course, and is a Girl Guide leader. She's also a certified dental assistant and hygienist and learned first aid. Special interests are: cooking, boating, music, art, children, pets, gardening, swimming, health and environmental issues. Louise welcomes you to the Deli in the new IGA Plus Marketplace at Squamish Station.

B.C. MUSEUM OF MINING SHERRY ELCHUK CURATOR/MANAGER

Sherry Elchuk is the curator/manager at the B.C. Museum of Mining (National Historic Site & B.C. Historic Landmark) at Britannia Beach. She started there 13 years ago as a summer student and worked her way up to her present position, which she's held for four years. After graduating from HSSS, (making her a local girl) Sherry went to UBC and then to Langara College's recreation program, museum studies, marketing and fundraising and exhibit design; then she added geology and a prospecting course. Sherry was named Mining Industry person of the Year in 1994, in recognition of her service and dedication to the mining industry and her help in promoting the goals and objectives of the industry. For information about the B.C. Mining Museum or any of its programs, call (604) 896-2233 or 688-8735.

THE SQUAMISH CHIEF DIANNE HATHAWAY ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVE

Dianne Hathaway logs a lot of miles in the Sea to Sky corridor in her position as an advertising sales representative for the Squamish Chief. Dianne visits dozens of local retailers and business operators every day advising them on the best route to take for promoting their specific products or services to the Squamish market. Dianne knows her business. She's been working in the newspaper and print industry for 19 years, the last three in Squamish, and that experience certainly benefits her clients. Off the job, Dianne enjoys family time with her son Adrian, travelling, gardening, and hunting for antiques. As past president of the SPCA, Dianne has been very involved in improving conditions for animals in crisis situations. She credits the SPCA volunteers for all the time and energy they devote to the cause.

Hackett knows the value of unpaid work

By BRIGITTE PETERSEN SQUAMISH CHIEF

Marya, more commonly known as Muff, Hackett is one of a rare breed. She knows the value of volunteer work and realizes some of the best experiences in life don't include a paycheque at the end of the week.

"I come from a long line of volunteers," says Hackett.

Since she moved to Squamish in 1990 with her husband Doug and two children, 13, and 10-year-old Megan, Hackett has worn a number of different volunteer hats.

Now in her third year as chair of the Squamish Public Library Association, Hackett donates about 30 hours each week to making the new library a reality. She says she doesn't usually spend that much time with the association, but trying to raise funds to furnish the building by July is a big task.

"That is my largest commitment in the community at this time," she says.

Hackett is also the Squamish and Whistler regional director for the B.C. Lung Association, runs monthly hot dog sales at Stawamus Elementary School to raise money for special events and equipment, and she's a member of the school's parent advisory council.

If that's not enough to keep Hackett hopping, she fills in her extra time volunteering with the Vancouver Folk Music Festival, editing the newsletter for Campbell River's Heathens Rock Climbing Club, and does a lot of gardening.

But even Hackett admits money is a reality. Her family mainly relies on Doug's income, but when she can, Hackett sells women's clothing and provides casual clerical assistance at the Howe Sound School District 48 board office.

She says she fell in love with volunteering years ago thanks to her parents who always got involved in the community in which they lived. Her parents, now residing in Whistler, actively volunteer in that community.

Motherhood and running a household have also kept Hackett busy over the years. She says she decided to pursue a more traditional way of life than many of her female peers because she wanted to commit time to raising her children. She has been criticized for choosing this path, but she's glad she did.

"People look at you and say, 'What a waste.' It's not a waste. (Home-making) is a very important job. You can be fulfilled whichever way you choose."

Hackett says regardless of what women do with their time, they need to have a wide range of capabilities to bring them into the next millennium.

She plans to get back into the paid workforce some time in the future. And volunteering over the years has given her a wide variety of experiences and allowed her to meet a lot of people.

"Volunteers have always been the backbone of the community. There's an infinite number of opportunities for volunteers."

Muff Hackett learned her love of volunteering from her parents, and has been donating her energy and talents to local groups for many years.

Squamish climbing guide a first in Canada

By AL PRICE SQUAMISH CHIEF

Sheila Sovereign was first introduced to rock climbing at age 18 when she took time off school for a leadership training. The course involved hiking, mountaineering, paddling, rock and ice climbing, and a variety of other outdoor recreational pursuits.

She was hooked.

"I seemed to hit it off with rock climbing right away," said Sovereign. "The difficulty was that I was at U Vic then, and there aren't a lot of climbing opportunities there, so we'd climb the cafeteria walls. And a group of us would come to Squamish on weekends to climb."

After moving to Vancouver, Sovereign managed to get into the guides training program through Canada West Mountain School, and after several years of practice and training, she became the first woman in Canada to be certified by the Association of Canadian Mountain Guides (ACMG) as a full rock guide.

The association certifies guides in rock climbing, skiing and full mountain disciplines, and there are several women certified as full mountain guides. But Sovereign was the first to be fully accredited as a rock guide, which she says has an extremely technical certification level.

"It's a pretty long process, involving mileage climbed, a self-directed apprenticeship and a lot of ACMG training courses. I took the assistant rock guide exam, which was one week guiding people over a variety of conditions, then another year or training and another week of testing to get to the next level. You are tested on your ability to guide on different rock terrains, single and multi-pitch, and the ability to do a rescue should the need arise. It's pretty intense."

Only 13 people in Canada are full rock guides.

Sovereign says she has a great deal of admiration for full mountain guides, who have to be comfortable guiding on snow, ice and rock, travelling for longer periods of time, making more personal judgment calls and facing more hazards.

"Mountain guides have to have a much broader picture and more knowledge, and have way more responsibility. For me, rock guiding is much more manageable."

Sovereign does her guiding from May to October, and up until this year, worked as a ski guide in the winter. This winter she decided to go back to school. With the possibility of a career in nursing in mind, she is upgrading her chemistry marks through the Squamish campus of Capilano College. But guiding is still her first love.

"None of us make a great living," said Sovereign, 28, whose husband Graham is also a rock guide and is pursuing his alpine mountain certification, something Sovereign is herself hoping to accomplish next year.

"Most people don't really want to be guided. Most want to learn how to be independent themselves eventually, so I do a lot of courses. People learn basic rope handling skills in the gym or indoor climbing walls, and we see them the first time they try it outside, teaching them how to make an anchor, how to lead climb or rescue techniques. I might guide someone to the top of the Grand Wall (on the Stawamus Chief) who is not quite ready to do it themselves, and some climbers from out of town hire guides because they don't want to waste a lot of time finding the great spots."

As a female guide, working mostly for other guiding companies, Sovereign does get some female clients who might not have had a great first experience with the sport. Perhaps a male partner with a higher level of expertise might have been somewhat intimidating, so Sovereign tries to give them a positive and fun day on the rocks, which she finds extremely rewarding.

She said any gender problems she encountered throughout her training and practice were self-induced.

"Up until I passed the full certification, there had only been men, and they all have strong leadership qualities. I tend to be a quiet leader, so I wasn't sure they would recognize my style of leadership. I thought I would have to go into the test super cocky, but I couldn't do it because that just wasn't me. I just did my own thing and they recognized that, so the only problem was my own fears," she said.

"The keys are knowing your own limits, acting responsibly and showing good judgment. As long as you demonstrate those, gender is not a problem."

With the advent of indoor climbing walls, the sport is growing rapidly, and many more women are taking up rock climbing. Sovereign says there is no limit to what women can do.

"There are a lot of great women climbers. Jola Sanford (of Squamish) is the best woman climber in Canada, and in my opinion she is the best climber in Canada period. A lot of women are really strong, and it is extremely rewarding work getting them turned on to climbing."

Sheila Sovereign, right, has established herself in the rock climbing fraternity by knowing her limits, acting responsibly and showing good judgment. She is the first fully certified Canadian rock guide.

Rewards outweigh headaches

Juggling a full time job, a family and her duties in minor sports is no easy task but Kathy Weiss has had years of practise. Weiss is the registrar and treasurer of the Howe Sound Youth Soccer Association and the registrar for Howe Sound Minor Hockey, which adds up to "probably another full time job after work."

It's her job to make sure all the kids are properly enrolled and insured, and with her husband Roy, president of minor hockey and vice president of minor soccer, form the teams.

With approximately 850 players enrolled in soccer alone this year "it takes a lot of time to register them and input them in the computer — we're now computerized thank goodness!"

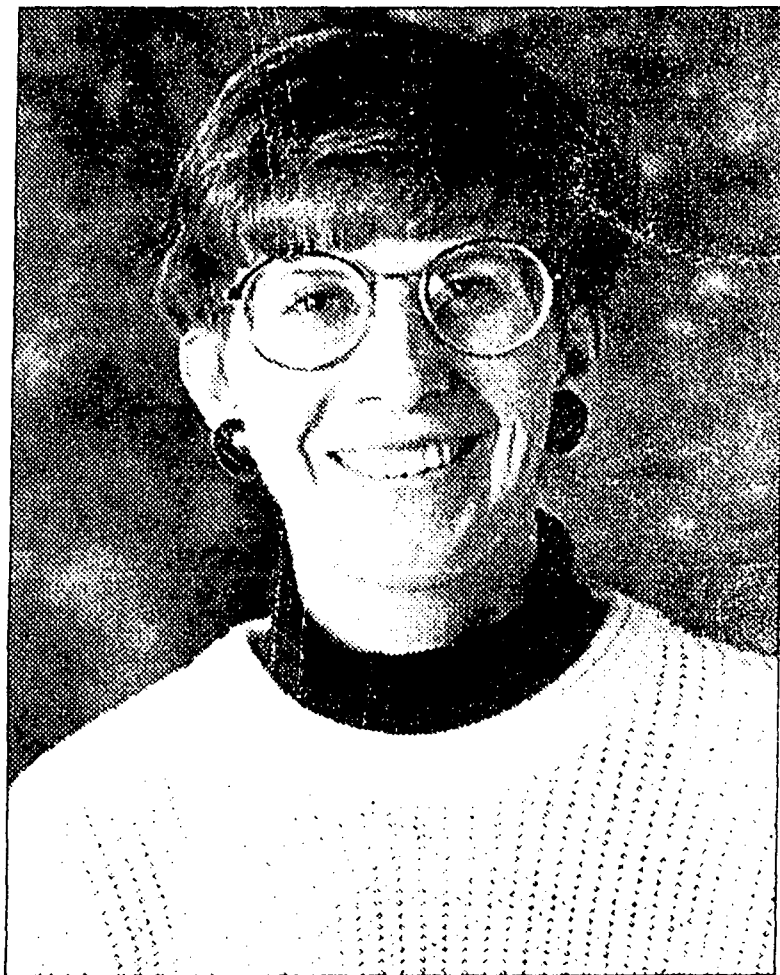

She says it's quite time consuming but very rewarding because "you know the kids are out there in organized sports and are having fun."

The job can last right through the entire season because new families are always moving to town or children change their minds about playing a sport after they see how much fun their friends are having. Weiss tries to accommodate late registration as much as possible to the point of signing up players from work.

She manages the newly-opened Goal Net sports store at Chieftain Centre and says when she's at work "people come in and ask so I just register as I go, wherever I am."

The whole Weiss clan is involved in registration now that sons Michael and Scott know how it's done. "We've been doing it since 1979 so the kids have grown up with it. So they know when it's that time of the season they chip in."

Even though their sons have almost grown too old to play in the minor sports leagues, Roy and Kathy plan to "keep doing it as long as they want us to."

Kathy Weiss and her husband Roy make a formidable team in organizing minor sports in Squamish.

Mother of three takes to the skies

BY BRIGITTE PETERSEN SQUAMISH CHIEF

Ever since she was a teenager, Dale Janecek has had the desire to spread her wings and soar through the air like a bird. Today, the Mission resident has her wings, but they look more like those of a dragonfly.

Janecek earned her commercial helicopter pilot's license three years ago and now works as a co-pilot for Black Tusk Helicopter Inc. in Squamish.

"I've always been interested in aviation," she says.

Janecek joined the military in 1981 with the intention of becoming a pilot, and worked as a technician doing maintenance and getting to know aircraft better. She also took aviation theory courses before taking to the skies herself.

In 1984, Janecek took time out to get married and a year later she also became a mother. Her family moved to Castlegar, where she once again started working towards her pilot's license. But having two more children during the next couple of years kept her grounded a little bit longer. Janecek's children all support her today and think it's great what their mother does. She says her eldest daughter is looking into becoming an astronaut.

Janecek, who is 5' 2" and weighs about 50 kilograms (110 pounds), says she never had any second thoughts about pursuing her dream because she is a woman. Two years after moving to Maple Ridge in 1989, Janecek enrolled in flying school with North Delta Helicopters and got her wings in 1994.

Today, Janecek has her own helicopter, a Hughes 269-A model, and does heli-logging with Black Tusk Helicopters. She says she is working on registering her own company to provide sight-seeing and aerial photography tours. She is seriously considering moving to Squamish in the near future.

As a part-time co-pilot with Black Tusk, Janecek helps with the daily inspection of helicopters, and when in the air she watches the gauges in the cockpit and helps the pilot with flying while heli-logging crews are at work below.

Janecek, who has 600 hours experience as a co-pilot and 100 as pilot, says her main goal now is to get more experience in the pilot's seat. She expects it will take her quite a few years to get to the height she has in sight. She also wants to get to the point where she can become an instructor.

"I want to learn more. I want to become a really good pilot. I want to develop the insight and the intuition."

Janecek has only met two other women in the helicopter industry so far. She says it's rare to find women pursuing flying careers in what is still a male-dominated field. But her male co-workers treat her with respect and she rarely feels out of place.

"I think of myself as one of the guys."

Janecek recommends other women look into this non-traditional field for future employment.

"It's challenging, it's rewarding and exciting. I think it's a wonderful industry for women to get into. It's certainly not an impossible dream for any woman."

Dale Janecek is right where she wants to be when she's at the controls in a helicopter. Here she sits in the cockpit of a Bell 206-B Jet Ranger at the Squamish Airport.

Rulka keeps on teaching and learning

By BRIGITTE PETERSEN SQUAMISH CHIEF

Education has always been at the centre of Constance Rulka's life. Now as the chairperson of the Howe Sound School District 48 board of trustees, Rulka finds she is still learning as she works to improve education for others.

"I've never been away from school," she says.

Originally from Scotland, Rulka earned her master's degree in English and French at St. Andrew's University in 1947, a time when well-educated women were rare. She also attended Columbia University in New York, N.Y. for one year and later earned an education diploma at the University of Dundee, Scotland.

After her schooling, Rulka worked as a teacher in West Africa for several years. In 1959, she moved to northern Alberta where her husband and son later joined her.

Rulka moved to Squamish with her family in 1973 and worked as a teacher at Howe Sound Secondary School for 17 years. When she retired in 1990, she was almost immediately elected as a school trustee.

Rulka said she's never felt she could not continue her education and work in the field because she is a woman and has rarely experienced discrimination from her male co-workers. Continuing her own education has always given her the confidence to forge ahead.

"Education is the most important thing," she says. "That's what held women back for centuries, because they didn't have the education men had."

And Rulka has certainly not hung up her teaching cap. She teaches courses, including English literature and women in history, at Squamish's Eldercollege at Capilano College.

Rulka is also writing a book highlighting important women in history. Through her research, she's found women have long struggled for recognition for their various achievements and that struggle continues into the present. She encourages females of all ages to keep on learning.

"The worst thing that could happen for women is for them to become complacent. We can't just sit back and say we've done it all. We have to keep on."

Rulka has also served as the chairperson and vice-chairperson of the Squamish General Hospital board of directors, sat on the child and youth committee and currently participates on the healthy communities committee.

She says education will continue to be important for women well into the future, particularly in the field of science and technology.

And what inspiring words does Rulka have for women?

"Be proud of yourselves, because everything a man has achieved was usually first discovered by a woman."

Howe Sound School District #48 chair and former teacher Constance Rulka is never too far away from a school.

Join us for fitness and for friendship

A League of Their Own was a film about an all-women baseball league circa World War II but Squamish has many leagues for women whether they want to play competitively or just for fun.

The Thirty Something Women's Soccer League was started on the North Shore four years ago and now has two teams based in Squamish started by Sandie Jackson, who had played on a West Van team.

"I was having so much fun that I thought it would be really neat to start a team up here," she says.

Although teams play to win the league is not set up to be competitive. Scores are kept during the game but not recorded after and no standings are kept.

"The motto is 'For fitness and for friendship' and that's the most important thing in our league," Jackson says.

The Squamish Breakers and Squamish Second Wind are both looking for players for September. No experience is required and there is no upper age limit but players must be turning 30 during the season. Contact Sandie at 898-4030 for more information.

For more competitive soccer action Squamish Mickey D's plays in the Vancouver metro league.

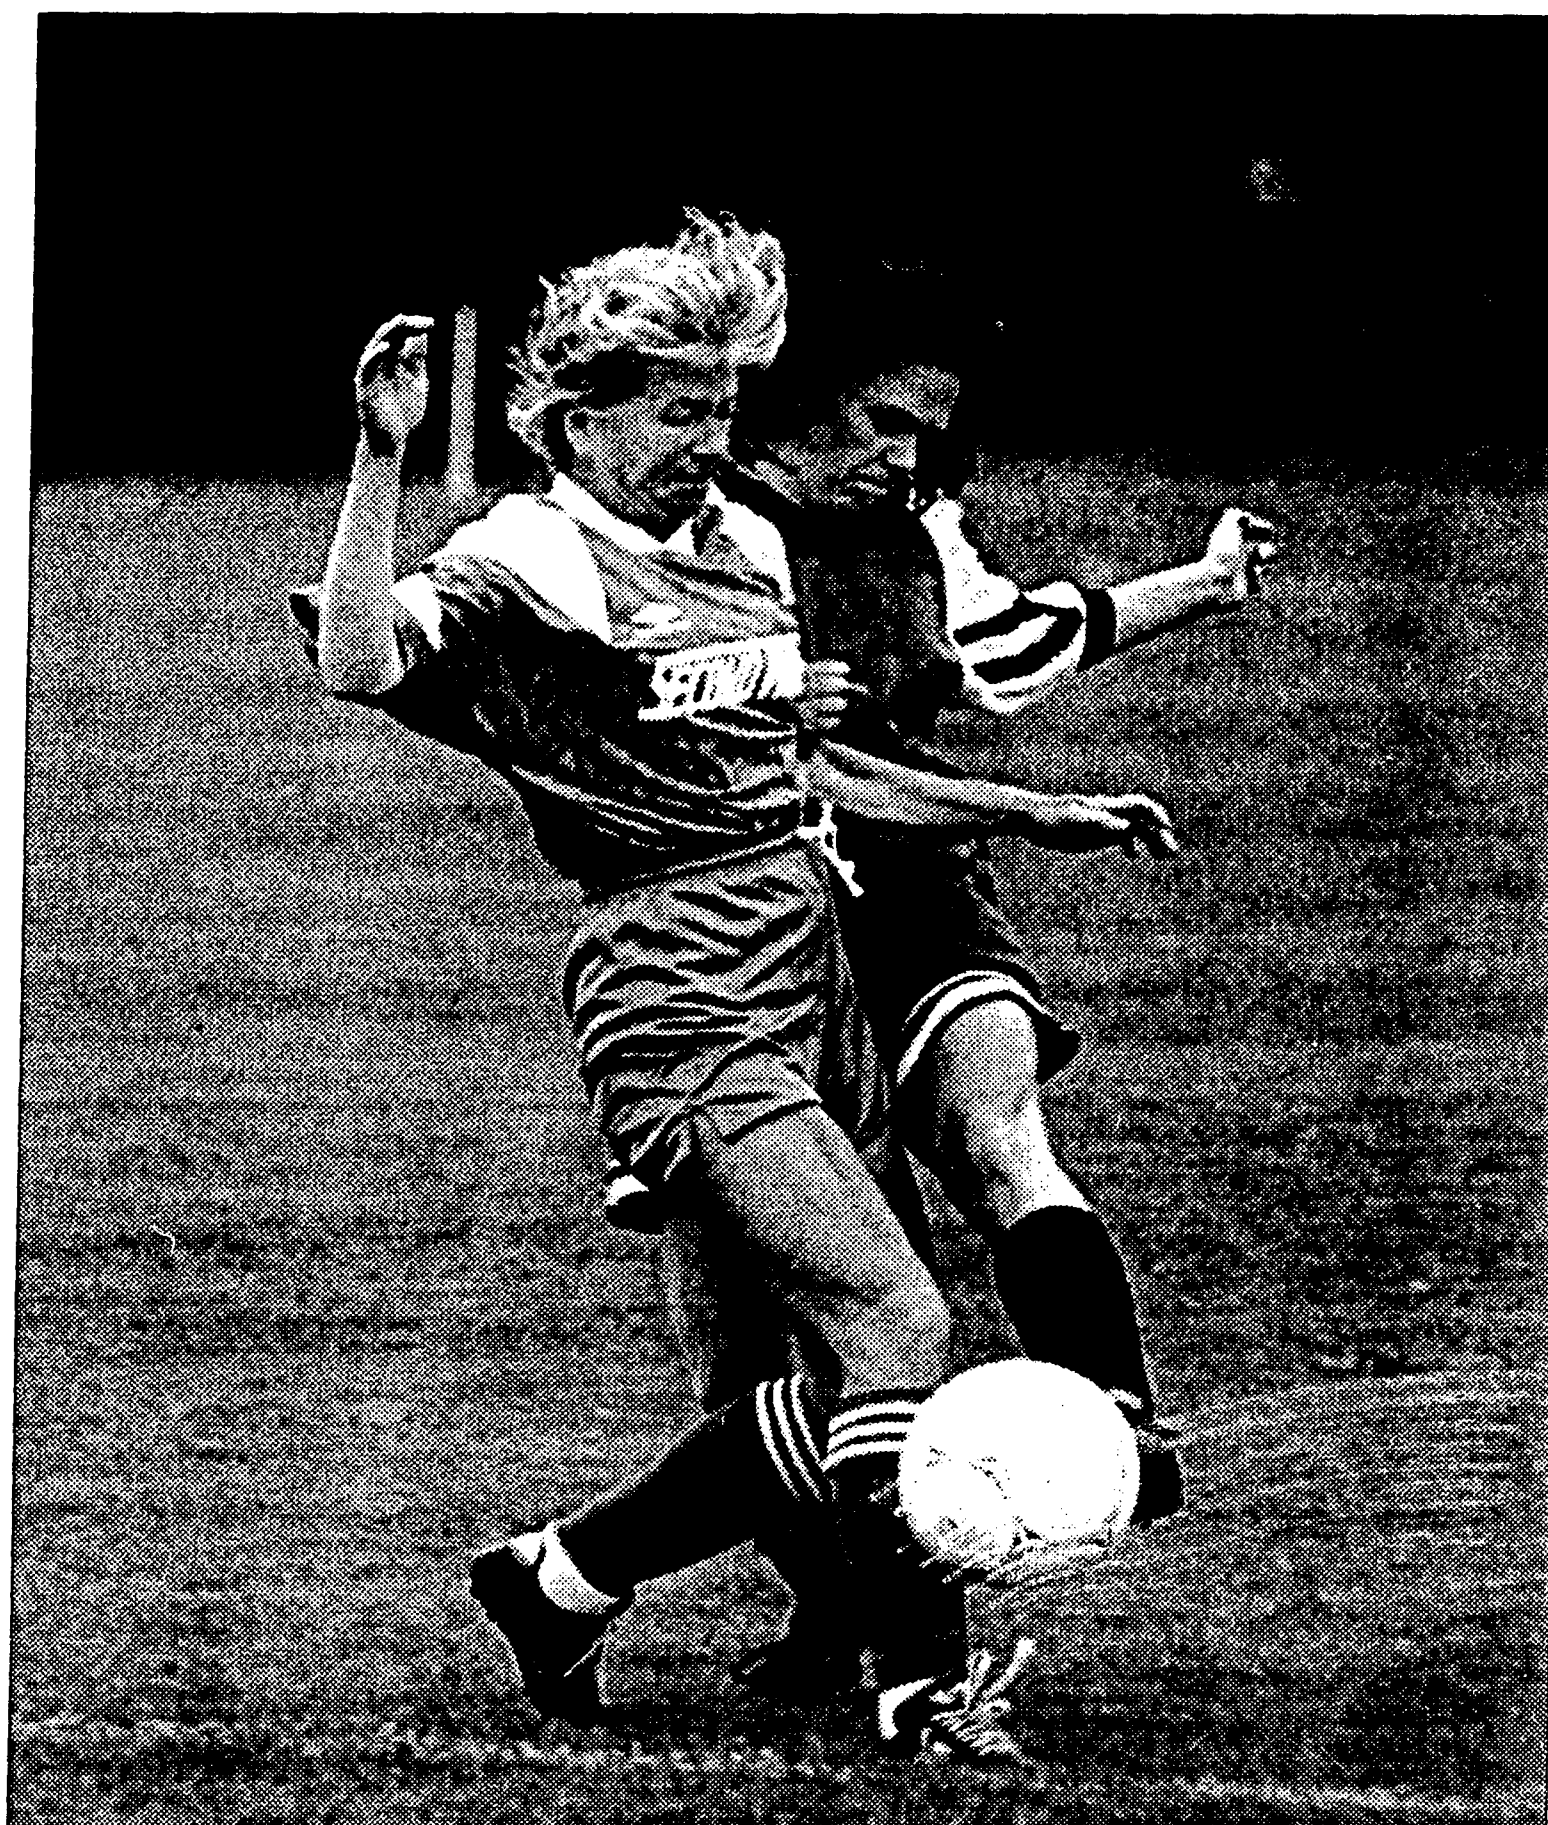

While soccer is for spring and fall, summertime is for fastball. The Howe Sound Ladies Fastpitch League has three Squamish teams with another in the works thanks to 15 new members who responded to recent advertising. There is also a Whistler team and the league is trying to put together one from Pemberton and Mt. Currie.

"It's a lot of fun and an alternative for those who just don't want to play slo-pitch," says league representative Cindy Blatny. "It's more competitive, it's something for us."

Blatny says it's inexpensive to join, all you need is a glove and some cleats, and no experience is required to join. "You don't have to be a senior A ladies ball player to come out and play with us."

For more information contact Cindy at 898-0766 or Yvonne at 898-9880.

On the cooler side, the Howe Sound Curling Club offers ladies, junior ladies and senior ladies semi-competitive and novice leagues for players of all experience levels. In the same location ladies can participate in the action at the Squamish Squash Club or, in the warmer months, the ladies leagues at the Squamish Valley Golf and Country Club.

SUE COGAR DESIGNS SUE COGAR INTERIOR DECORATOR

New resident —Sue Cogar, of Sue Cogar Designs took little time to endear herself to the children of the area, by donating a mural to the Garibaldi Health Unit, and again with a tribute to Grimms Fairy Tales in the children's room at the hospital. Inspired by the birth of her children, Sue started by designing children's rooms for friends and family, then added to her cartoon painting by studying the Art of Stenciling, Faux finishing and Trompe L'oeils. She will paint or decorate anything from interiors, to murals, cartoons, faux finishing, wood, even silk ties, like the one ordered by Mayor Lonsdale as a parting gift for Robert Fine. She is currently holding workshops at the Brennan Park Leisure Centre in crafts, interiors and cartoons for kids. Her unique talent can give your kids a room most only dream about, or help adults realize ideas in ways they can't find elsewhere. Give Sue Cogar Designs a call at 898-5044.

EDUCATION

HSSS students fascinated by Sikh food, history

Our students have very definite food preferences, and it has been known for them when travelling abroad to avoid local dishes, even if it meant going hungry. Burgers, pizza and fried chicken, as served by the best known fast food chains, spell recognizable nutrition to them.

It was quite a surprise, therefore, when students in the Grade 12 comparative civilizations class from HSSS visited the Sikh Temple in Squamish with their teacher, Ms. McLaughlin. They not only sampled the food being offered but were eager to accept seconds and even thirds. It was a new experience for them to pile vegetable curries on to chapattis, and they really liked the tea which was flavoured with cardamom and other spices. There are good things to eat besides what we are used to.

They ate after they had visited the temple itself, where they observed the custom of removing their footwear and of covering their heads with the linen squares provided. Parm Johal told them something about the history of Sikhism, going back as far as the 15th century, so they were able to fit it into the overall picture given by their textbooks. He discussed with them the main beliefs of the Sikh religion, the great leaders and the traditional festival.

He also described how the first Sikhs came to Canada and settled here. His audience had quite a lot of thoughtful questions to ask, and they have clearly developed a genuine interest in what they are learning about the peoples living elsewhere on the globe, who developed different beliefs from our own.

Work Experience

This has been another great session for HSSS students doing their work experience. They began Feb. 10 and continue until April 11. Ms. Firbank reports they all seem to be happy with their job placements and there is a great number of firsts amongst the employers who are accommodating the students in this very vital part of their education.

Through career programs, students can explore career choices before they make that all important decision about their future. They gain a lot of confidence and become more self-reliant as they learn to use various types of equipment and get some practical experience in real workplace situations. They make contacts for the future and can obtain references which will help them when making job applications.

What is unique about this particular group of students is that many of them are trying at least two placements. For example, Katrin Rutishauser just spent five wonderful weeks working with Dr. Vanderhook and learning what is involved in being a dentist. Now, she goes on to work at Community Futures with manager Jeff Dawson. She is trying to decide whether to pursue economics or to go into science and fulfill a longtime dream of becoming a dentist.

Tanya Rakurea is working at the B.C. Rail Museum and at Hilltop House to try out two quite different careers. Wendy Mehat worked with Lori Hayes because she plans to do her legal secretarial course at Capilano College. However, she will spend the rest of her time at the Bank of Nova Scotia to get a closer view of the banking process.

One of the students, Harjinder Heer, is an apprentice at Quattro's Restaurant in Whistler and has now completed 900 hours towards his apprenticeship in cooking. There has been an emphasis on trades, with students working at steel fabricating with B.C. Rail and learning pipefitting at Western Pulp (formerly Woodfibre), which is taking students for the first time. Other new employers include Mountain FM, B.C. Parks (Alice Lake), Squamish Tugboat Co., Interfor, Eclectic Kitchen, Alexander Developments Ltd., Bryan's Auto Body, Build All Construction, Finning Ltd., Fred Hinchcliffe Automotive, Indigo Wood Specialties, Rise and Shine Enterprises, Watson Computer and the West Coast Railway Association.

Friday, March 14 was call back day when students evaluated their placements. All were really enthusiastic.

Ms. Firbank, Ms. Tenta and Ms. McHale, the team behind all these arrangements, are truly grateful to all the new employers for their support this term.

They are doubly appreciative of all those firms, stores, restaurants, media and other businesses whose support has been continuing for some time now and whose generous interest in our students' education has been untiring.

We all have the power of resurrection in our lives

By the Rev. John Stephens
St. John the Divine Anglican Church

The season of Easter is such a puzzle to so many people. What is it all about? "After all Jesus Christ died many years ago, what has it got to do with me and my life in 1997?" we ask ourselves. I just want to enjoy my chocolate eggs and worry about the calories. We all have busy schedules and it is great to have a four-day week-end.

But is that what Easter is about? A few days away from our busy schedules to get caught up on our chores around the house and spend some time with the family? In a way it is. But let me explain. Easter, as most of us know is a Christian holiday. A "Holy Day" or holiday where we remember God's presence in our lives and the power of the resurrection. What does this mean? It means at Easter we remember that Jesus Christ who was God's Son, was killed by us, because he stirred in them something they didn't want stirred. He called to people to truly examine themselves and their priorities in life and see how mixed up they can get. People were forgetting about God, people lived their lives with no sense that they were loved by God. Jesus stirred people in their very soul so we would see that God did want the very best for us and our lives, and in return God wanted us to love Him with the whole of our heart and our neighbor as ourselves. For that Jesus was killed. But God did not allow that to be the final word. God has always had and will always have the final word. God raised Jesus from death to life.

So, at Easter we celebrate that which happened many years ago by knowing this same power of resurrection in our lives now. All of us need that sense of peace in our lives, that sense we are loved, needed, cared about, upheld. When we feel this love from God, we too have been resurrected. We have been raised up. It is a wonderful feeling. When we trust in God in this way, our faith in His love for us in this world and the next, grows to a point where we truly experience the power of the resurrection. This is what Easter is about.

So enjoy the four-day holiday, but remember the only way to truly find peace in our lives is through the power of God. So give some time back to God. Give thanks to God for the power of resurrection in your life. Give thanks to God for loving you as you are. Give thanks to God for the sacrifice of His Son so that we could have a new relationship with God. Give thanks and sing "Alleluia."

The significance of the resurrection explained

By Pastor Derwyn Costinak
Squamish Pentecostal Assembly

Christmas is more fun than Easter. Surrounded by gifts and snow, the reds and greens, elves and reindeer, anyone would feel more festive in December than during the season hosted by a bunny with eggs. Even for church-goers, watching your children portray Mary and Joseph, singing the Christmas carols, and feasting with the family tend to be the more anticipated activities over solemnly recounting the Passion Week. But without Easter, without the horrific death and glorious resurrection of Jesus Christ, Christmas would not be.

Human history is written by the lifetimes of individuals. A person is born, he lives, he dies. Though his influence may continue to affect the world after his death, that individual himself no longer directly touches the lives of those who come after him. His actions while alive are recorded in the static medium of the printed page, if he was thought to be important, and the principles by which he lived are often emulated by those who revere him. But that is where he ends. Death is final.

Or is it? Those who call themselves Christians are seen to be individuals who revere the one called Christ and live by his principles. However, if that is all there is to it, the question must be asked, which Christ? The Jesus mentioned in the Bible is at least the sixteenth individual of the time who claimed to be the Christ. Why do Christians follow this Christ and not the others?

There is one reason. All of them died, but only one came back to life. Sixteen men were born, influenced society, and passed away, but only one returned from the grave to continue his influence. In all of human history, only one individual claimed to be the Giver of Life and the proved it by reversing the finality of his own death. It is for this reason and this reason alone, that Christians revere the Jesus Christ of the Bible. All of Christianity is centered on that first Easter Sunday. Without the resurrection of Jesus Christ, there is no Christianity and no Christmas. Why celebrate the birth of impostor number 16?

That Jesus Christ is no longer dead is the foundation of Christianity, cannot be denied. As John Irving wrote in A Prayer for Owen Meany, "Anyone can be sentimental about the Nativity; any fool can feel like a Christian at Christmas. But Easter is the main event; if you don't believe in the resurrection, you're not a believer."

Congratulations to Bill Manson on being named as a

Senator of the Squamish and Howe Sound Chamber of Commerce in recognition of more than 50 years of volunteer service working towards the development of the community.

Manson served as president of the Chamber of Commerce in 1953, 1990 and 1991.

Over the years he has also served the community and the province in numerous capacities including: Brohm Lake Demonstration Forest advisory committee, Tin Wis working committee addressing forest practises, Capilano College advisory committee, an invitee to critique the B.C. Forest Resource Commission Option Paper report chaired by Sandy Peel, school trustee, college counsellor, alderman, hospital board, Credit Union director, advisory committee to Alice Lake Park, volunteer group to build the Squamish Valley golf course, action committee to build the Squamish airport, chamber of commerce economic development and forestry committees.

Manson initiated the formation of a forest study group to examine Swedish forest practises.

Bill joins Dr. Laverne Kindree and Rose Tatlow as a chamber senator.

Wednesday, March 26 from 3-6 p.m. at the Best Western Sea to Sky Hotel, the Showcase B.C. mural truck and 14-metre (48-foot) trailer will be on display in the front parking lot and will be open to the public.

More than 150 Showcase B.C. exhibitors are currently creating awareness of the province as a world class destination at many of North America's finest consumer and trade travel shows.

This unique, powerful and innovative marketing program consists of a multi-media travelling exhibit designed to place tourist destinations, attractions or services in the spotlight for consumers and travel agents throughout Canada and the USA.

The Showcase B.C. exhibit is an extraordinary presentation of British Columbia, specifically highlighting the nine distinct tourism regions, participating communities, tourism attractions and services.

So far this travelling trade show has participated in seven US exhibitions from Washington to California, as well as Montana, Idaho and Alberta.

The Summer '97 itinerary includes exhibitions throughout B.C. This fall, Showcase B.C. will focus once again on the American market.

Members of the chamber's tourism committee, chaired by Howard Kelly, will meet with representatives from Showcase B.C. after the public display to explore opportunities to promote this area.

Seniors to boost food bank supplies

Branch #70 News

It was a cold, wet day for our meeting last week, so everyone enjoyed Ann Gallant's tasty, home-made soup. What an assortment of food for our pot luck lunch. It's nice to sample everyone's favorite dishes. Our meeting was well attended this month and it was nice to see so many new faces. It was suggested we each try and bring a neighbor or friend to our next meeting and spur a little more interest in senior's activities.

It was brought to the meeting's attention that the food bank ran out of supplies and the suggestion was made that perhaps we could each bring an item of non-perishable goods to our meetings to help this worthy cause.

Elaine Ramsay gave a report on the trips she has planned for the year. The next one coming up is on April 5. This is a trip to Bradner to view the daffodils, with a visit to Clayburn Village and on to Westminster Abbey.

April 28 is a full day trip to The Apple Farm in Yarrow with lunch and a side trip to the Birchwood Dairy in Sardis for ice cream. May 27, we venture off to the Burnaby Village Museum and the Dr. Sun Yat Sen Gardens. For details, please phone Elaine at 898-5463.

You still have a few weeks left to get those income tax statements in. Any seniors requiring assistance in completing their forms, please give Charles Schilberg a call at 898-9393.

The Thursday afternoon fun dart club enjoyed a birthday lunch last week at the Sea to Sky Restaurant. Guest of honor was Florence Kingston.

Last week the senior curlers wound up the season with a delicious luncheon in the lounge and various prizes were awarded. Now the brooms have been retired. Most members are looking forward to the golf season.

Walking Club News

Thirteen plus two grandchildren went out for last week's walk. This Thursday, March 27, we meet in Valleycliffe at the Stawamus Mall at 10 a.m. for a neighborhood walk.

Also on Thursday, the Wellness Centre is holding a slide show in the Tantalus Centre. Melinda Burns, travel consultant of Mandate Tours in Richmond, will be showing slides on tours for seniors at 7 p.m. Everyone welcome.

Any articles you no longer have a use for, perhaps the Hilltop House Support Society could use them in their garage sale on April 19.

For more information, call Ruth at 892-3368, Betty at 892-3888 or Jean at 892-2388.

Tantalus Seniors Centre News

Open Monday to Friday, 1-4 p.m. Closed weekends and holidays. Monday — crafts; Tuesdays — crib tournament. If interested in their pot luck lunch prior to the games, please phone Ann at 898-3388.

Wednesday, 10 a.m. - noon, sketch and paint club; Wednesday, 1 - 4 p.m., line dancing; Thursday — Wellness Centre programs; Friday, bridge club. Any day you are welcome to come in and enjoy a cup of tea or coffee.

Get well wishes to hospital patients Bill Bull and Margaret Granger.

Whips & Spoons

Easter's moveable feast of ham

There is a rather complex, not to mention forgettable, formula for figuring out upon what day Easter will fall. Unlike other holidays,

Easter is both an elusive and moveable feast. And if your holiday traditions are of Christian English origin, you'll most likely celebrate the feast itself with for this culinary bit, we can thank William the Conqueror of 1066 fame.

Before the Norman conquest of Britain, British Christians ate bacon on Easter Sunday. They did so to demonstrate their ethnic and cultural separation from the Jews who celebrated Passover at a similar time of the year, but were forbidden to eat pork.

It's difficult to imagine any one of the lower classes eating bacon or salt pork since most meat came in its form then.

Bread and ale were the daily mainstays of the Old English peasantry. Any meat was a luxury.

Regardless, when William the Norman became king of England he had higher aspirations than the typical English diet.

He apparently disliked bacon intensely and preferred m.

The British, thoroughly disagreeable about most things Norman, accepted ham as suitable for Easter eating. It has since become traditional not only in England, but in countries settled by the English. Ham refers only to the smoked hind leg of pork. Smoked shoulder or the "picnic" tastes like ham, is cooked like ham and is much more reasonably priced. Smoked shoulders always taste far better than soggy, ready-to-eat hams, especially those boneless rolls of mysterious origins.

Like real hams, smoked shoulders need a few hours cooking time.

Simmering in water is the usual method. Oven-braising in wine and spices is the luxury treatment to which few shoulders are accustomed.

Wine Braised Smoked Shoulder of Ham

5 to 6 lb. smoked shoulder, ready to cook

2/3 cup diced carrots

2/3 cup diced onions

2/3 cup diced celery

1 bay leaf

3 whole allspice berries

1 1/2 cups dry white wine

1/2 cup dry Madeira

1 1/2 cups unsalted

or low salt chicken

stock

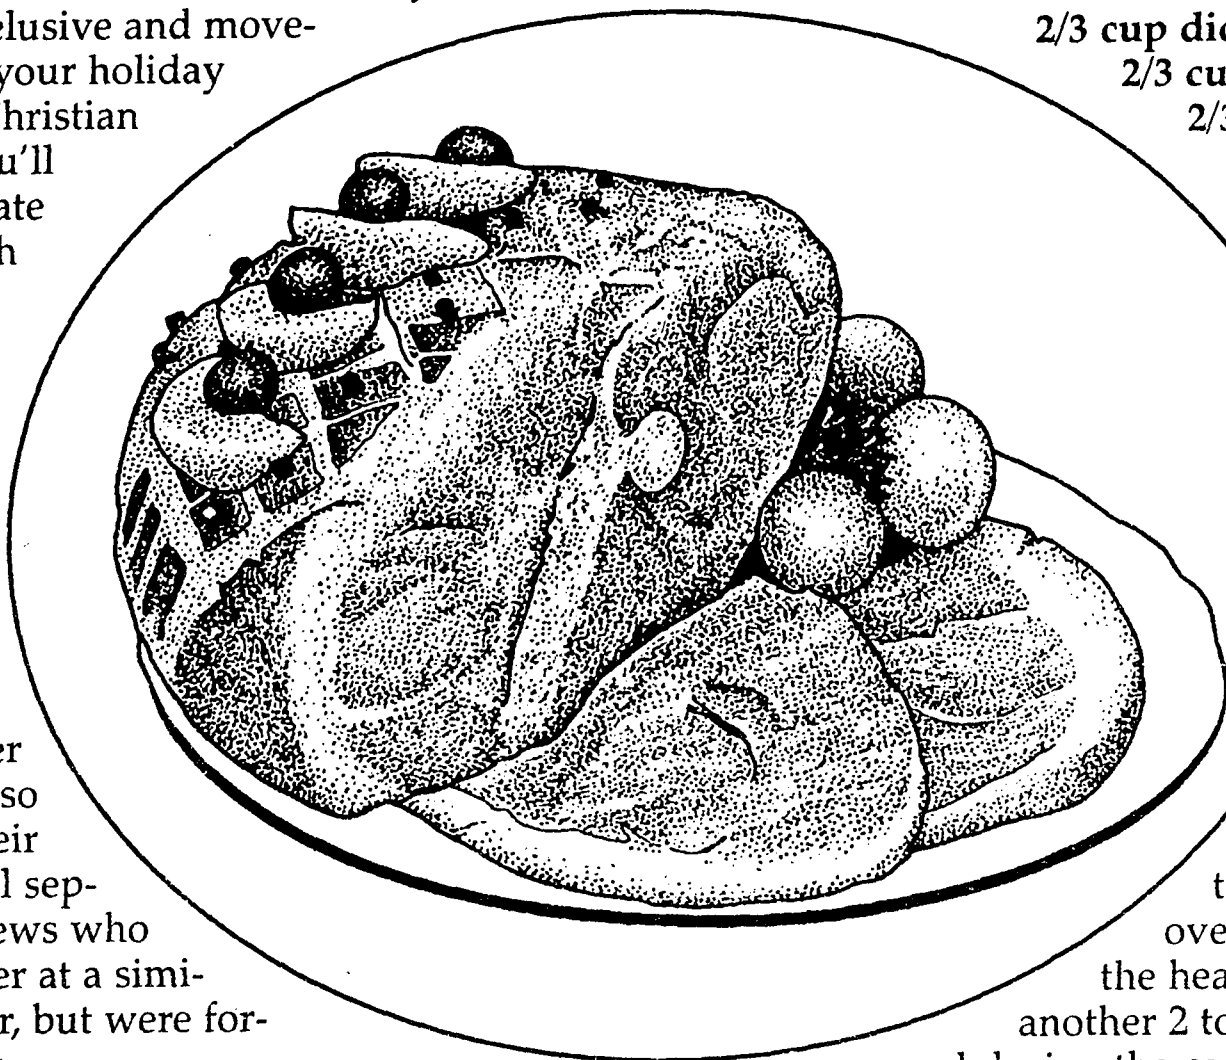

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Spread diced vegetables and spices in a large roaster, place the meat on top and pour on the wines and stock. Drape with foil and cover the roaster. Place in the oven. After 30 minutes lower the heat to 325 degrees. Braise for another 2 to 2 1/2 hours, basting several during the cooking. Lower or raise the heat to keep the liquid simmering slowly. The meat is cooked when a meat thermometer registers 160 degrees.

When done remove the meat from the roaster. Slice off the rind and all but a thin covering of fat. Raise the oven temperature to 425 degrees. Place the meat in a shallow pan and brown for 15 minutes. While the meat is browning, strain the juices. Skim off the fat, season with a few grinds of black pepper. Boil to reduce the sauce and concentrate the flavors if necessary. If desired, thicken with a bit of cornstarch dissolved in cold water. Keep warm until ready to serve with the meat.

There are some fast rules about what wines to serve with ham. Tannic reds are out as the salt in the ham can make the tannics stand out or taste disagreeably metallic. Choose a soft, fruity red like a Beaujolais or a Pinot Noir. Dry and off-dry roses tend to be exceedingly food-friendly and do wonderful things for ham.

Ham has a powerful personality, so any white wine should have lots of flavor and body, with a touch of sweetness to offset the salt. Light, crisp whites are utterly lost with ham. Gewurztraminer from B.C.'s Okanagan is perfect. They tend to be full-bodied and fruity with great aromas of flowers, spice and lychee.

Jesus was crucified because he was the perfect Lamb of God

By Pastor Vic Peters
Valleycliffe Christian Fellowship

In the summer of 1920, Adolf Hitler decided to provide the Nazi Party with an emblem that would appeal to the imagination of the people of Germany. He chose a red flag, in the middle of which was a white disk imprinted with a black swastika. And so it was that the twisted cross of Nazism was born.

Nazism passed from the world scene only to be replaced by another more deadly enemy — international communism. Like the Nazis, the communists chose a twisted cross as the symbol of their plans and purposes. This time in the form of a hammer intersecting a sickle. They promised, "if you rally to our banner we will release you from the back breaking drudgery of your labor and bring you economic salvation." Both fell short of their promises.

There is a third cross, a cross that promised eternal salvation, and this cross alone has stayed true to its mission. This cross takes us back some 2,000 years, to a place called Golgotha. It was here where we see three crosses prepared for crucifixion.

Crucifixion was one of the most cruel forms of death known to man. After having been beaten and flogged, the prisoners were either tied or nailed to the cross. From the painful wounds inflicted, the slightest movement would bring with it additional torture.

It was viewed by the Romans as the supreme penalty, the most wretched of deaths, and yet Christ gave Himself willingly so man could receive Eternal Salvation. He was not crucified being a criminal, but rather as the perfect Lamb of God. God's only Son. Good Friday reminds us of this event and shows us the price He was willing to pay.

The Gospels describe this event for us. He was flogged and beaten, a crown of thorns was pressed on to His head and the people shouted, "Hail, King of the Jews!" They spit at Him, they mocked Him and they continued beating Him to the point that He was too weak to carry His cross. And there He was crucified. The inscription above His head read, "The King of the Jews." While hanging there between two criminals, people mocked Him and hurled insults at Him and shouted, "If you are the King of the Jews, come down from the cross and save Yourself!" But His mission was to give Himself for the World. His death on the cross would mark the end of the law and bring in the era of grace.

It was there on the cross that grace was extended to that one thief because he turned to Christ and was given eternal salvation. This same grace is available to all who come to the cross of Jesus for forgiveness. He can offer Eternal Salvation because even though He died, He rose again. Christ is the author of life and death. And we can choose the cross of the world that leads to destruction or the Cross of Christ that leads to Eternal Salvation.

God Historical evidence of Christ's resurrection

ults at Him
King of the ss and save as to give ath on the he law and

Many of the finest minds have set out to prove that Jesus Christ did not rise from the dead. Get rid of Christ's resurrection and you can get rid of the other articles the pastoral leaders have written in the paper this week.

Get rid of Christ's resurrection and Christianity falls. Get rid of Christ's resurrection and you don't have to worry about the teaching of Jesus on sin, judgment, the need for forgiveness, and his claim that eternal life is only available through Him.

Three strands of historical evidence of Christ's resurrection stubbornly refuse to go away — the empty tomb, the total change in the apostles, and the witnesses that saw Jesus alive from the dead.

If Jesus did not rise and the Jews or Romans had the body of Jesus, they would have displayed it for all to see. They would have clear proof he was dead. Be quiet Christians. Why did all the opposition fail to bring forth clear evidence that Jesus Christ was not alive?

The Jews and Romans were unable to produce the body of Jesus even though they had sealed and guarded it with utmost military care. The empty tomb is historical evidence of the resurrection of Jesus.

If the disciples had the body of Jesus, why did they change from being scattered and confused at Jesus' death to fearlessly proclaiming Jesus was the risen Christ? Why were the apostles willing to die for their claims that Jesus was alive? The total change in the apostles argues for the resurrection of Christ. They had seen the risen Christ and it set them ablaze with total conviction that all Jesus said was true and he was worth dying for.

Why did thousands upon thousands across the Roman Empire turn to Jesus as the Messiah if there was no convincing evidence he was alive? Is it all a scam? No. There were many witnesses who were able to convincingly testify that Jesus rose as Lord and Savior.

Jesus appeared to a group of 500 at one time after he rose. Even 25 years later the apostle Paul could say that most of those 500 people were still living. This is like having many eyewitnesses today who could testify that they saw John Kennedy shot, even though it was more than 30 years ago. The many witnesses are historical evidence of the resurrection of Christ.

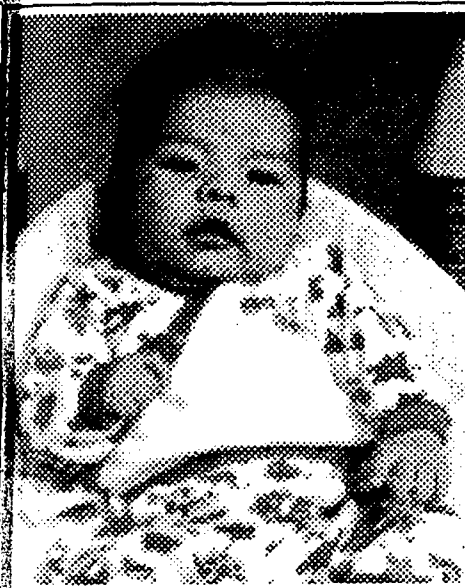

I encourage you to trust that all Jesus said is true, not only because of the historical evidences of his resurrection, but also because of the historical evidence of his amazing miracles and the predictions in the Old Testament that the Messiah would suffer and rise from the dead.

Happy Easter.

Flyers finally break their jinx

After more than a decade in the league dedicated players win championship

By David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

"Get out your broom, it was a clean sweep," said an elated Steve Hadden of the Grizzly Bar and Grrrill Flyers' playoff victory over the Squamish Tire Red Wings.

The Flyers blanked the Red Wings in three games to become the Howe Sound Men's Hockey League playoff champions for the first time in their 15 years with the league. Hadden, the team's goalie, said the victory was especially sweet because the Flyers, even in their previous incarnation as the Hawks, had come so close year after year but "something always jinxes it" like key players getting injured or being called away to work.

Most of the players on the Flyers have been in the league for at least 10 years and none of them had ever won the championship cup before, said coach Rick Smith. "I felt almost more relieved than happy. The jinx is over."

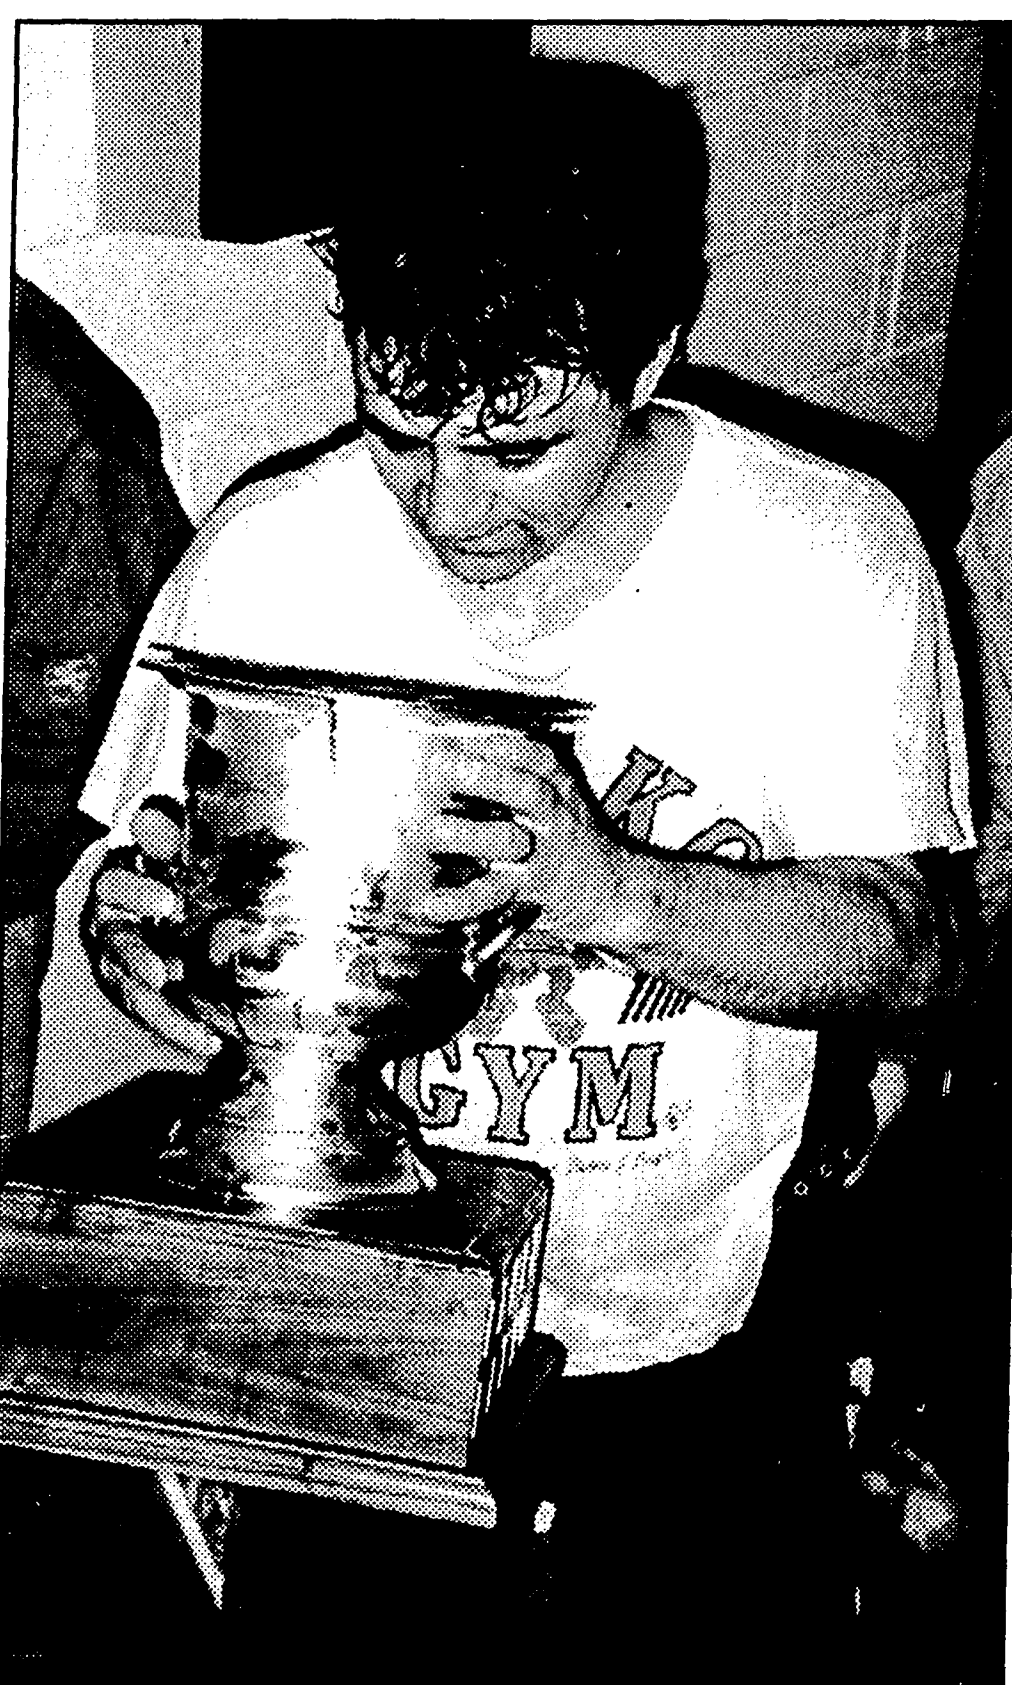

In his nine years of coaching, Smith said this has been the best season ever, with only three losses in 36 games. "The final was the easiest game I've ever had to coach, everyone played their roles."

The Flyers were leading the series with an 8-3 and a 5-2 victory when they went into what would be the final Wednesday night for "the best men's league game of the year," said Hadden.

It was looking good for the Wings. Scott Hunter put them on the board first seven minutes into the first period, assisted by Al and Paul Schulte. Despite many chances, that was the only scoring in the first period.

The second period opened with Calem Gardner scoring unassisted just 40 seconds in to put the Red Wings up 2-0.

"The best men's league game of the year," — Steve Hadden

Rhe Lacoursiere takes his turn with the well-earned championship cup. He scored the winning goals in two of the final games and set up the winner in the third.

The play got a little choppy as both teams fought an opening but a break didn't come until just before halfway mark when the Flyers finally got on the board with a goal from Myles Rosser, assisted by Randy Leblanc and Mike Rickert.

The Flyers went on a power play a minute later and Rosser scored again, from Rickert, to tie the game with 7:09 to go. Events repeated themselves as the Red Wings incurred another penalty and Leblanc scored the winning goal, on a set up from Rhe Lacoursiere. The Flyers incurred some penalties of their own and went shut out for the last 3 1/2 minutes but were able to fend off the Red Wings attack, including a breakaway from Jason James with the shot bouncing off the post, for a 3-2 victory.

After the game Myles Rosser was voted playoff MVP. According to Smith, "Myles played like a demon" that night because he had a special incentive to win: he was leaving town for work at 5:30 a.m. the next morning and he didn't want his team to win the cup without him.

Top kayakers competing for B.C. team positions

The Sea to Sky Kayaking School is hosting a selection race for the B.C. whitewater kayak teams March 29-30 at the Mamquam River training site.

Although this is a qualifying race for elite paddlers, all classes of boaters are encouraged to participate. In addition to the qualifying event there will be a recreational division and a Saturday morning racing clinic. The race usually attracts approximately 50 competitors with more boaters coming out to take part in the clinics and to try a half-course fun race.

Margaret Langford of Lions Bay and Keith Klapstein of Chilliwack are favorites to watch.

Both are national champions and represent Canada in many world class races. One of Canada's top junior racers, Nathan Davis, originally trained by the Sea to Sky Kayaking School, is a favorite in the junior division. For more information call Don Jamieson at 898-5498.

The Women's Festival of Martial Arts returns to Squamish for the fifth year April 18-20.

The not-for-profit weekend retreat is open to all ages of women in all levels of skills. Disciplines to be explored include t'ai chi, aikido, kung-fu, quigong and a Brazilian martial art called capoeira, which incorporates cartwheels and drum music.

"We love putting on the Women's Festival of Martial Arts," says Whistler t'ai chi and aikido instructor Roxanne Chappell, founder of the retreat. "Everyone in our teaching and planning team enjoys the weekend as well."

For more information call Roxanne at 932-0621.

Grant Golaiv of Squamish is going to the Number Seven Eightball Challenge provincials in Surrey April 21 after winning the zone play-off.

Four people played off for the provincial berth at the Ocean Port Hotel in Squamish March 18, where the zone qualifying tournament was also held.

Humes earn top results in recent ski contests

Squamish J2 skier Scott Hume took third place in the J2 Canadian juvenile alpine ski championships at Whistler Mountain on Thursday. Whistler's Ben Thornhill finished second, just two seconds behind the leader, Ryan Semple of Quebec, who finished with a time of 55.42.

On Friday Hume earned B.C.'s highest placement in Super G with a fourth place finish. Thornhill was second and Whistler's Matthew Woods was seventh.

Hume's older brother Jeff of the B.C. Ski Team, finished eighth in men's slalom at the Jeep Eagle Nationals alpine Juniors in Fernie March 15.

Jeff Hume was eighth in the alpine junior nationals.

Squamish FC just one point

By David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

Squamish FC edged ever closer to first place with two home wins Saturday and Sunday. If the team can win its division it will move from second division to the premier division of the Vancouver men's senior soccer league next season.

Squamish notched a 1-0 victory over Lobbans Saturday, the goal scored by Todd Braumberger on a penalty kick after Christian Oreamuno made a run into the penalty box and was hauled down. Lobbans also had a chance to score on a penalty with 15 minutes left in the game but the kick went about 10 feet above the net.

On Sunday Squamish played the current first place team, Bosna, who really made Squamish work for the 2-1 win.

"We played well enough to win but not up to our potential," said coach Tom Johnstone, adding it was only their second or third time over Squamish this year while the other teams in the league have been playing outdoors in Vancouver since February.

Braumberger scored the first goal for Squamish in the first half when he split two defenders and took the ball right to the net and put it in the goal.

Men's soccer heads into playoffs

By David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

The Mountain Building Centres Men's Soccer League finally caught a lucky break in the weather and enjoyed a sunny Sunday afternoon of soccer action.

The most intense game had to be the match between Squamish Khalsa and the Squamish Sikh Society, a splinter from the Khalsa team.

The newer team proved to be the stronger one this time and the Sikh Society bested Khalsa 2-0.

Continental Power Services proved they have what it takes to beat the new kids on the block, besting Whistler's Emerald FC 5-1.

The Thunderhawks also outdid a team new to the league this year with a 6-1 victory over the Steelheads.

Cheeky Charlie's United bested Local 170 2-0 and Ellis Moving Eagles earned a win by default when Whistler Painting FC couldn't bring down enough players for the match.

This was the last week of regular season play. Beginning Easter Sunday the top five teams play a five-week round robin playoff for the Premiership Cup while the bottom five vie for the Divisional Cup.

A new rule that awards quarter-points for games played without fouls affects the stats but that information is not available so the following stats are approximate.

	W	L	T	PTS
Squamish Sikh Society	8	1	0	17.25
Whistler Painting FC	6	2	1	14.75
Ellis Moving Eagles	6	2	0	13.25
Cheeky Charlie's United	6	2	0	13
Squamish Khalsa	4	2	2	11.5
Continental Power Services	4	4	0	9.25
Local 170	2	5	1	6.25
Steelheads	2	8	0	5.25
Emerald FC	2	6	0	5
Thunderhawks	1	7	0	3.25

Agenda Packages for regular meetings of Council are available for viewing at the Municipal Hall.

Anyone wishing to be placed on the agenda to address Council at a regular meeting may do so by delivering a request in writing to the Clerk not later than 12:00 noon on Tuesday preceding the day of the Council meeting.

Committee of the Whole Meetings will be held on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month if required. Please contact the Clerk's Department at 815-5005 to confirm.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that the public including all persons who deem their interest in property affected by the following proposed bylaw will be afforded an opportunity to be heard respecting matters contained in the proposed bylaw at a public hearing to be held at 7:00 p.m. on Tuesday, the 8th day of April, 1997 in the Brennan Park Leisure Centre Auditorium, 1009 Centennial Way, Squamish, British Columbia.

In general terms the purpose of the proposed "District of Squamish Official Community Plan Bylaw No. 1034, 1989, Amendment Bylaw (1406 Repeal) No. 1450, 1997" is as follows:

1. The District of Squamish Official Community Plan Bylaw No. 1034, 1989, Amendment Bylaw (1406 Repeal) No. 1450, 1997 has been drafted to have the affect of "repealing" the District of Squamish Official Community Plan Bylaw No. 1034, 1989, Amendment Bylaw (Airport Runway) No. 1406, 1996.
2. The District of Squamish Official Community Plan Bylaw No. 1034, 1989, Amendment Bylaw (1406 Repeal) No. 1450, 1997 amends the Official Community Plan to have the land use designation changed from "Industrial" to "Limited Use" for the Airport Area. The wording for the "Squamish North" Sub-area designation has been amended to not identify the Airport Area for future development.

Persons interested in specific particulars are directed to obtain a copy of the proposed bylaw as indicated below. Also available for inspection are copies of the District of Squamish Official Community Plan Bylaw No. 1034, 1989 which would be amended by the proposed bylaw and various reports and plans which have been considered by Council.

A copy of the proposed bylaw and an information package may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, 37955 - 2nd Avenue, Squamish, British Columbia, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday inclusive, excluding statutory holidays from March 25th, 1997 to April 8th, 1997 inclusive.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that anyone who wishes to comment on the proposed District of Squamish Official Community Plan Bylaw No. 1034, 1989, Amendment Bylaw (1406 Repeal) No. 1450, 1997 may do so by:

1. Making a written submission to the Council of the District of Squamish; and/or
2. Appearing as a delegation before the Council of the District of Squamish on the 8th day of April, 1997 at 7:00 p.m. in the Brennan Park Leisure Centre Auditorium.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that no verbal or written communication will be received by the Council of the District of Squamish after the close of the hearing.

Margaret-Ann Thornton,
Community Planning Director

J.E. Barry,
Clerk

THIS IS THE FIRST OF TWO SUCH NOTICES OF PUBLIC HEARING.

Dated this 12th day of March, 1997 at Squamish, British Columbia.

CEMETERY ANNOUNCEMENT

Artificial flowers or plants may only be placed on graves during the period November 1st to March 31st. Please ensure artificial flowers or plants are removed by Monday, March 31st. Thank you for your co-operation.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that the public including all persons who deem their interest in property affected by the following proposed bylaw will be afforded an opportunity to be heard respecting matters contained in the proposed bylaw at a public hearing to be held at 3:30 p.m. on Tuesday, the 1st day of April, 1997 in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Hall, 37955 - 2nd Avenue, Squamish, British Columbia.

In general terms the purpose of the proposed "District of Squamish Zoning Bylaw No. 1342, 1995, Amendment Bylaw (Big Chief Developments Ltd.) No. 1455, 1997" is as follows:

1. To amend the Industrial 1 (I-1) zone to permit a Fitness Centre use on the parcel of land legally described as: Lot A (See BJ213532), Block 22, District Lot 486, New Westminster District, Plan 3960, as identified on the following map.
2. To include in the Zoning Bylaw and define Fitness Centre as "means a building or portion of a building used to provide equipment and training to improve athletic condition and health".

Persons interested in specific particulars are directed to obtain a copy of the proposed bylaw as indicated below. Also available for inspection are copies of the District of Squamish Zoning Bylaw No. 1342, 1995 which would be amended by the proposed bylaw and various reports and plans which have been considered by Council.

A copy of the proposed bylaw and an information package may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, 37955 - 2nd Avenue, Squamish, British Columbia, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday inclusive, excluding statutory holidays from March 18th, 1997 to April 1st, 1997 inclusive.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that anyone who wishes to comment on the proposed District of Squamish Zoning Bylaw No. 1342, 1995, Amendment Bylaw (Big Chief Developments Ltd.) No. 1455, 1997 may do so by:

1. Making a written submission to the Council of the District of Squamish; and/or
2. Appearing as a delegation before the Council of the District of Squamish on the 1st day of April, 1997 at 3:30 p.m. in the District of Squamish Council Chambers.

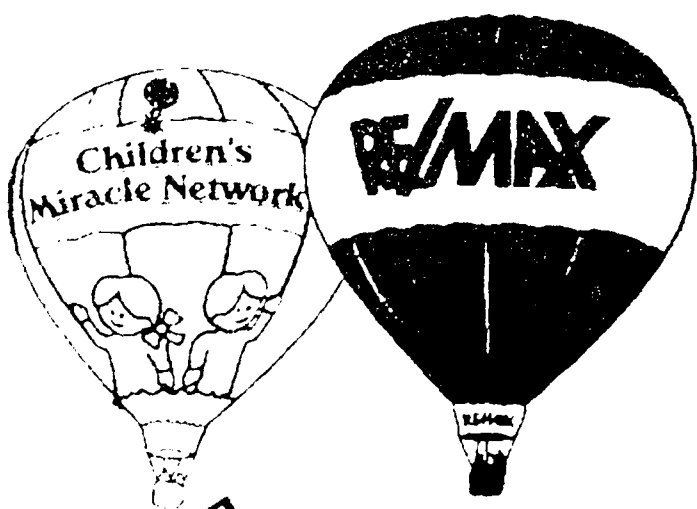

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that no verbal or written communication will be received by the Council of the District of Squamish after the close of the hearing.
