New tourism strategy criticized by operators

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

A $15,000 tourism strategy paid for by the District of Squamish is getting poor reviews from some local tourism operators.

The 80-page final report, entitled Squamish Tourism Marketing Plan and Development Strategy, will be considered for endorsement during tonight's council meeting.

David Hall, director of Victoria-based Economic Planning Group, presented the company's recommended strategy during the March 11 committee of the whole meeting. Hall said Squamish needs to develop a strong marketing plan to make it a destination for tourists. The estuary and Mamquam Blind Channel should be among those Squamish assets promoted through advertising.

"It's very unique to have these," said Hall. "These are huge attractions."

He said the objectives of the plan are to stimulate the development of Squamish's, "human, natural, physical and cultural tourism resources," to highlight economic and social benefits of short and long-term residents and visitors and evaluate tourism marketing opportunities and obstacles.

But some members of a steering committee, which had been set up to give input to the strategy, said this report is just telling them what they already know. Howard Kelly, owner of Sea Dog Charters in Britannia Beach, said the report lacks specific information for tourism operators.

"It turned into a development plan for the municipality," said Kelly.

Steve Waslewsky, owner of Dryden Creek Resorts, agreed the committee wanted to see a marketing plan developed for operators.

"The consultant chose to almost entirely ignore the recommendations of the steering committee," said Waslewsky. "(Committee members) weren't looking for a philosophical document, they were looking for instruction."

Mayor Corinne Lonsdale said the report is useful and provides important resource information.

"I know there was some unhappiness with the outcome," said Lonsdale. "Some people wanted the (tourism) market clearly identified to meet individual needs. That wasn't the intent."

Lonsdale said it'll be up to council to act on the recommendations and to prevent it from sitting on a shelf unused.

The two-part plan documents the area's natural resources, tourism facilities and markets. The second part is a tourism strategy.

Marketing objectives are to improve residents' awareness of tourism and their sense of welcome, improving penetration of the pass-through market on Hwy. 99, building partnerships and doing public relations.

The report calls for improved public access and expanding the quality and range of tourism facilities.

In the areas of culture, heritage and sports, the plan is to encourage community events and festivals, improve the profile of industrial heritage and boost Squamish's reputation as a destination for sports tournaments.

It recommends expanding outdoor adventure attractions by improving Squamish's profile as a place for river rafting, eagle viewing, snowmobiling, mountain biking, rock climbing and windsurfing.

Squamish's main weaknesses, according to the strategy, are that it's too close to Vancouver and Whistler to serve as a stop-over, the limited number of tourist quality accommodations and the image of Squamish as a port and mill town.

Trustees' expense funds running out

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

With only $3,254 left in their expense budget, Howe Sound School District 48 trustees are going to have to keep their costs to a minimum.

Trustees discussed the state of the budget during Wednesday's board meeting. The remaining money is to be shared by all seven trustees until the end of this school year. Their expense budget for 1996/97 started with $52,132 and the previous and current boards have spent $48,878 combined. The money is used by trustees to cover their board-related telephone bills, travelling costs and other fees. They discussed the possibility of not attending out-of-town meetings and cutting down on the number of phone calls. But some agreed this could hurt the quality of service provided by trustees.

In order to attend the British Columbia School Trustees Association (BCSTA) annual general meeting in Vancouver, each trustee is expected to pay $300.

The board requested secretary-treasurer Nancy Edwards take a second look at the district's financial books to see if more expense money can be found.

The Sea to Sky FreeNet Association announced Monday that free dial-in access to the Sea to Sky Communities Network is now available for the Whistler and Pemberton region using telephone number 932-9699. The Squamish and area access number remains 892-3500. A user registration form must be completed to use e-mail and access the Internet. Forms can be found electronically on the Communities Network (access as a "guest") or at the Whistler, Pemberton or Squamish public libraries.

Fine named top EDO

Former Sea to Sky economic development officer Robert Fine was awarded the 1997 Bank of Montreal Economic Development Officer of the Year honors for B.C. at the recent Economic Development Association of B.C. annual meeting.

Fine left Squamish to become general manager of the Kamloops Economic Development Corporation. Just prior to his departure, the provincial government eliminated funding for the economic development function. Earlier this year the Sea to Sky Economic Development Commission was disbanded, with some of the functions being carried on by the Squamish-Lillooet Regional District.

"It was really nice to receive the award," said Fine in a phone interview. He said the award involved his work on Eco-Challenge, Squamish industrial park policy and the creation of the Sea to Sky Film Commission.

Fine's family will be joining him in the interior at the end of the month.

At the same event, the Whistler World Cup Ski Alliance was honored with the community project award. The award was accepted by Mayor Hugh O'Reilly.

Robert Fine was named Economic Development Officer of the Year.

Plan to curb homophobia sparks controversy

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

Concerned parents and teachers packed the community theatre at Howe Sound Secondary School last Tuesday to get more information on a controversial proposal for a program designed to eliminate discrimination against gays and lesbians in schools.

"The intent of resolution 102 is to ensure that students are treated equally, regardless of their sexual orientation," said Alex Miller, president of the Howe Sound Teachers' Association (HSTA).

Miller said he had been asked a few days prior to the one-hour meeting to address a small number of parents concerned about the resolution. It was scheduled to be brought forward by six teacher unions during the British Columbia Teachers' Federation's (BCTF) annual general meeting. The BCTF meeting began this Saturday and ends today (Tuesday). The result of the vote was not available before press time.

Miller said he was surprised to find out the small number of parents had turned into a theatre full of concerned, somewhat misinformed and some angry mothers, fathers and educators.

The proposed resolution read, "That the BCTF create a program to eliminate homophobia and heterosexism within the B.C. public school system." This was one of about 200 recommendations and resolutions voted on at the annual general meeting.

Miller said the BCTF's code of ethics requires teachers to treat all students equally and to encourage students to feel accepted and valued.

"Homosexual students need to be reassured that our schools offer them, as well as every other student, an open, healthy and safe place for learning," he said.

If the resolution passes, a BCTF program would be established and teacher training and workshops could follow. Miller said the program would not be part of schools' curriculum and would only act as guide material for teachers.

"There are (currently) no support systems for teachers to help them deal with students and homophobia," he said. "We do not tolerate discrimination of any kind in the classroom."

In a letter from the HSTA, homophobia is defined as, "the individual and collective fear of gays and lesbians, and the hatred, disgust and prejudice that fear brings."

The letter describes heterosexism as, "the assumption that everyone is heterosexual, and that being heterosexual is inherently better or more moral than being lesbian, gay or bisexual. It also implies that homosexuality is a life-style choice."

One parent said teachers shouldn't play such a large role in teaching family values, which should be left to parents. Another asked Miller to withdraw the resolution at the BCTF meeting.

Trenna Shaff, a concerned parent who opposes the resolution, circulated a petition gathering signatures in opposition to "anti-heterosexual education in our schools." Shaff said she will send copies of the petition to the Ministry of Education, Skills and Training, Premier Glen Clark and the BCTF.

"Why can't we stand up now and stop it from happening?" said Shaff.

Food bank didn't have enough groceries

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The Squamish Food Bank Society managed to gather 103 bags of groceries and provide them to 70 families and individuals during the group's first distribution day last Tuesday at the Elk's Hall. But soon after distribution started, volunteers ran out of food and people were turned away.

"In six minutes, we gave out 65 bags," said volunteer coordinator Pam Gliatis. "There's definitely a need out there."

Volunteers started distributing food at noon and by 1:30 p.m., the bags were gone.

Gliatis said people were not asked to show identification but they were requested to fill out a form for the society's information. She said no one opposed this request. From the submitted forms, Gliatis was able to determine certain statistics including which area people using the food bank reside.

"Most of the people came from downtown or Valleycliffe," she said. "There might be a transportation issue."

Gliatis said some of those who were unable to find transportation to the Elk's Hall had their groceries delivered to them by Joy Sawatsky.

Although not much food was donated at drop-off boxes in grocery stores, Super Valu provided 136 kilograms (300 lb.) of non-perishable foods, while IGA Plus donated 25 loaves of bread, Timber Foods gave some food and Save-On-Foods provided coffee and food. Gliatis said other stores such as Barney's Convenience Store also donated goods.

The date has not yet been set for the next distribution day, but Gliatis said it will likely be on April 9. She said future days will probably be held on the second Wednesday of every month at the Elk's Hall.

The society is still in need of donations of volunteers, non-perishable food, or cash to buy groceries. Food donations can be made at Save-On-Foods, IGA Plus, Super-Valu and Timber Foods. Cash can be dropped off at the Howe Sound Women's Centre at 38132 Second Ave. or mailed to Box 2052, Squamish, B.C. V0N 3G0.

"No one likes to pay taxes," acknowledges Cindy Blatny, manager of the Squamish H&R Block office. "That's why we make every effort to reduce the amount of tax our clients have to pay."

How? Cindy responds: "By taking advantage of every deduction and credit that is available. To do this requires an in-depth knowledge of tax law, both current and proposed."

"That's where H&R Block comes in," says Cindy. "H&R Block has a mission in our society to save tax dollars for Canadians. We believe no one should pay more taxes than required by law. By providing a quality service affordable to most taxpayers, we can accomplish our mission."

"Quality service" means that H&R Block tax preparers complete three levels of tax training before specializing in a particular field of tax law.

Shirlee has been with H&R Block for 13 years. She specializes in all aspects of small business, corporate and trust returns. Personal income tax is Alfreda's specialty. She has been working with taxes for 3 years.

For the past 3 years, Gail has worked for H&R Block as our quality control supervisor.

Cindy, manager of the Squamish H&R Block office, has been with the company for 10 years. She has operated the Squamish office for the past 5 years and says, "It's important to me to have attained knowledge in most areas of tax law. But I am particularly interested in small business, rentals, employment expense and teaching the income tax courses."

Cindy says, "Tax season is the shortest season of the year. You don't have much time to find out how you will be affected by new legislation, such as the lowering of the RRSP age limit and the new child support rules coming into effect soon. It's important to plan today how to counter the effects of these and other new tax laws that affect the amount of tax you pay. Don't leave it to chance - or until the last minute."

'She adds, "your tax preparer will be most grateful."

Soo Coalition pushes for local control of land resource use planBy Al Price
Squamish Chief

The good news which organizers hoped to present at the annual general meeting of the Soo Coalition for Sustainable Forests March 9 was overshadowed by the bad news of Repap B.C., the major forest industry employer in northern B.C., seeking bankruptcy protection. More than 2,000 jobs are in jeopardy and some Repap contractors have already lost their equipment to the banks.

"This is just another indication of what's happening in the industry," said Cheryle Bass, manager of the Soo Coalition.

Guest speaker Terry Tate of the Cariboo Community Coalition explained his area's successful land resource management plan, which identifies all the resources in the forest areas, from protected areas to mines and intensive forestry zones, ensuring the most value is received for the timber, intensive silviculture is practiced, and the forest areas are managed in a balanced way.

"We have been pushing really hard to start this process here," said Bass. "It was supposed to start last June but the spotted owl decision is not done, so we are now slated for January 1998 instead. We are pushing for a local process with local people at the table. What we are really looking at is a land use resource plan, which does not have the ability to create new parks. We have been told that with the protected areas strategy complete, there will be no more parks."

Bass said the coalition wants local control of the process because the protected areas strategy was conducted by people from outside the corridor in closed meetings.

Guest speaker Terry Tate explained how the land resource management plan works in the Cariboo.

not just along the highway. They are talking about areas which you really have to travel a long way on logging roads to find, they are now asking questions about visual impact. We're worried about that."

After acting as interim president for several months Greg Richmond has agreed to serve a full term, and three new directors have been added, said Bass. Mike Wallace, who is retiring from the Ministry of Forests, will serve on the board, along with treasurer Larry McLennan of Padgett Business Services and Judy Chumley of Pemberton, whose interest is the education of people on forestry issues.

"Mike Wallace has been a long time in the forest industry, and has been involved in the spotted owl issue since the beginning," said Bass. "He is extremely knowledgeable and can give the coalition a lot of advice."

"It ended up with 24 per cent of our land base in parks, and I know local boards would have done things a little differently."

She said coalition members are concerned, even though no more parks can be created, that special resource management zones can put further pressure on an already beleaguered industry.

"The Ministry of Forests plans to recommend protection of a lot more recreation areas and expand the visual quality impacts, which goes way out back of beyond when you really have to travel a long way on logging roads to find, they are now asking questions about visual impact. We're worried about that."

Business operators concerned by sandwich board sign ban

By Al Price
Squamish Chief

Plans by the District of Squamish to enforce its bylaw banning sandwich board signs on municipal property including streets, boulevards or sidewalks has concerned some members of the Howe Sound and District Chamber of Commerce.

"Though the bylaw has been in place for many years, it has not been enforced," said chamber retail development and promotions committee chair Darcy West in a press release.

Municipal clerk Joe Barry said the district has received complaints about the signs, particularly the proliferation of them on Cleveland and Second avenues. "It first came to my attention last year when owners of some new businesses came into Municipal Hall asking for permits for sandwich board signs. There is a bylaw saying they aren't allowed, so of course they asked how their competitors have been able to get away with having them. When we refused them, they went ahead and put them up anyway."

Barry said on one recent day, a municipal staff member counted 15 sandwich board signs on a one block stretch of Cleveland Avenue and seven in one block on Second Avenue. One owner had three such signs in a quarter-block distance. He said council has to consider its liability should someone trip over one of the signs or otherwise hurt themselves.

"If someone wants to change the bylaw they are able to approach council about that, but that has not occurred."

The chamber invited the mayor and council to a meeting of concerned members Monday night at the Best Western sea to Sky Hotel to consider amendments to the bylaw. West said examples of bylaws from other communities which permit sandwich board signs would be sought and reviewed at the meeting.

Funding announcement means less money per student in September

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

Though it is difficult to immediately assess the impact, the bottom line is that the Howe Sound School District will receive fewer dollars per pupil for the 1997-98 school year than it has for the current year. The bad news was contained in a provincial government funding announcement released by the secretary treasurer for the Howe Sound district at a board meeting Wednesday.

"I'm sorry to say there's not a lot of good news announced," said Nancy Edwards.

The document gives specifics on the district's preliminary funding allocation for 1997/98 operating funds from the Ministry of Education, Skills and Training. The report highlights common core grants for various levels of schooling, specific district grants for programs, targeted grants for specific groups and the amount of a special purpose grant.

The provincial government is expected to phase out the special purpose grant over the next few years.

The preliminary total in provincial funding for the district's 1997/98 school year is $26,695,461. That figure is an increase of 1.76 per cent, or $460,455.

So what's the bad news?

The number of students is expected to also increase nearly four per cent, meaning the amount of money spent on each pupil is down two per cent. While $6,091 per pupil funding was allocated this year, $5,961 will be set aside for next year.

Edwards said she and other staff members will have to sit down and crunch some numbers before they are able to make total sense of the announcement.

"It's difficult to say what the impact will be," said Edwards. "We need to do a fairly detailed analysis first."

Exam results close to provincial average

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The results of the Grade 12 provincial examinations found students in Howe Sound School District 48 to be near the B.C. average. Corridor students scored highest in math, biology and French.

"We encouraged as many students as possible to write these exams," said Doug Courtice, superintendent of schools.

Area students did not fare as well in English, geography and history.

The average district scores for all subjects tested were 73.2 per cent for biology, 69.5 per cent for English, 80.2 per cent for French, 64.8 per cent for geography, 67.9 per cent for history and 73.5 per cent for math. The average provincial scores were 70.4 per cent for biology, 69.6 per cent for English, 75.7 per cent for French, 69.6 per cent for geography and 70 per cent for both history and math.

Courtice said some districts have only the highest scoring students write the exams so the entire district looks better. He said staff in this district tries to discourage that from happening.

Miller gambles with the truth

If deputy premier and provincial gambling czar Dan Miller's plan last week was to confuse the entire population, he succeeded beyond his wildest dreams. "Government rules out Las Vegas-style casinos and VLTs in bars and pubs", blared the headline on the government press release.

The fine print below revealed something entirely different.

In essence, the government reconfirmed its ban on video lottery terminals (VLTs), but will instead allow as many as 8,000 mechanical slot machines. The only real difference is the slots have coin hoppers for your money to always go in and occasionally come out, while VLTs are electronic, and the slip of paper which emerges when you win must be exchanged for cash. In reality and effect, there is little difference.

As to ruling out Las Vegas-style operations, when pressed, Miller couldn't really come up with a definition of what that was, other than "big." But the government announced it will allow "destination" casinos, which Miller could also not define. These operations will only be allowed in municipalities which support them, but they will also be approved for supporting native bands.

The Squamish Nation has been on record for several years as wanting to operate a casino, possibly here in Squamish. There is no doubt employment would be boosted, along with band revenue. Accompanying that, however, are the social ills such as gambling addiction, and the possibility of increased crime. The problems are difficult to quantify.

The bottom line for the province is increased revenue. Estimates range from $270 million to $450 million per year for the government coffers, depending on where casinos are located and how large they are allowed to be. Miller had none of those answers, saying the government should be applauded because the increase in gambling would be "modest."

In reality, it is anything but modest.

While trumpeting the government's oft repeated goals of preserving health care and education, Miller admitted increased gambling revenue won't be specifically targeted for those areas, and will simply go into general revenue.

Maybe it will be used to pay for the extra 1,400 civil servants who have been hired since the premier announced a 3,500 reduction in government employees last year. Or perhaps it could be used to cover the $100 million overrun the government just approved for three ministries in what was supposed to be the second "balanced" budget in a row.

This government may have ruled out VLTs, but it also appears to have eliminated that obviously outdated notion of politicians telling the truth.

When in doubt, call us

One of our subscribers brought to our attention the fact that someone was out selling subscriptions to our newspaper last week in the Valleycliffe area without our authorization. The person was apparently an older teen, well dressed, with an extremely aggressive sales pitch.

Our carriers do sell subscriptions in the areas covered by their routes. When they do, they should happily give you their name and phone number. They are generally elementary school-aged children. They carry subscription forms which are clearly identified as being from The Squamish Chief.

If anyone in Squamish is approached by someone selling subscriptions to The Squamish Chief and has any doubts at all about that person, we ask them to call our office immediately.

A wicked hockey season

When my family first informed me we were going to move to the little town of Squamish this summer, I nearly died. You see, I had everything in Surrey. I knew plenty of people, my family lived there, I had a great job, but most important, my hockey team there was always in the hunt for first place.

It didn't matter what team we played against, we always felt like we had enough strength and perseverance to pull off a victory. I didn't even want to think of what the hockey would be like in Squamish, if it even had a team.

It turned out there was indeed hockey in this town. For my age group, approximately 25 kids showed up to try out. This compared to the 120 that would try to make the team in Surrey.

The calibre of hockey here was nowhere near what it was in Surrey, but I kind of expected that. After the first tryout I had the idea placed in my mind that it would be a long, struggling year.

I made the rep team and slowly but surely met everyone on the squad. They were a spirited bunch to say the least, but every one of them loved the game. We played a few exhibition games in which we won a few and lost a few more, but everyone worked 100 per cent. Even though we didn't win all our games, I can honestly say I haven't had that much fun playing hockey in my life. There was no pressure to win because, realistically, we who I basically laughed at when I first got here, were fighting for top spot. This wasn't a usual thing for Squamish hockey, a chance like this didn't come along every year and we made the best of it.

We won all our remaining league games because of nothing but hard work. I felt like I had won the Stanley Cup, and so did everyone else. I had never had such an exciting year

Kaleidoscopes

By Kevin Hogg

weren't supposed to.

We played quite a few games during the regular season in which we improved each contest. Towards the end of the regular season, we were in a close race for first overall in the league. I thought I was dreaming.

These guys from Squamish, and such an enthusiastic team.

I am now thanking my parents for the move because this was the most fun year of hockey I had ever had, and I owe it all to everyone involved with the Howe Sound midget rep team.

Thanks for a wicked year, guys.

Britannia Beach needs to incorporate

Editor,

The Britannia Beach Community Association (BBCA) was told that the newly refurbished community centre would not be made available for this year's first public information meeting regarding logging and other issues in and around the Britannia property. When asked why the request for use of the community centre was turned down, committee member Wendy Seery indicated that the order came down from Coopers Lybrand's Eric Biagi, representative for the Britannia Beach holdings. No further explanation was given.

It's too bad. We were going to talk about our drinking water and try to get a consensus as to what the people here think about additional logging in our drinking water supply area. It's funny, because back in October 1996 we were told that after Coopers Lybrand completed renovations on the centre, they would hand over all organizational responsibility to their appointed committee and would no longer be involved.

Last year they told us that the BBBCA or any other individual or group should not be doing any fund-raising through the cutting and selling of firewood to help save our old dock. Now they're telling us we can't have a public meeting in our own community centre. I think they should change the name of it to the Coopers Lybrand Centre.

Why should the community support Forest Renewal B.C. spending on the Britannia property when the community interests don't seem to matter?

This is perhaps the most glaring reason why Britannia Beach needs to incorporate. My understanding is that the problem rolling over in his grave right now if he were here. These issues will be raised with the Civil Liberties Association and MP Herb Grubel, who is a notable proponent of free speech. It really belongs back in the B.C. Supreme Court but we would have to spend all of our money on that one.

Trash should be disposed of properly

Editor,

The Feb. 18 issue of your paper contained two items in the darts and daffodils section with the same theme. They were daffodils to a gentleman who goes for a daily walk in the estuary and picks up the litter thrown away by others. The other was a daffodil to the majority of Howe Sound Secondary School students who care enough not to litter and throw their garbage around. I too, have nothing but praise for these people.

What concerns me is the people in our community who do not care about their surroundings. They are the ones who seem to think the roadside ditches, highway, or hidden places such as the ends of the dikes, are dumps.

One Sunday afternoon, when my husband and I took the dog we are sitting for walk under the Hydro line, we actually came upon several green bags of garbage. In another place there was a discarded hot water tank, a plastic oil jug and some items of clothing that had been torn to shreds. On our return trip alongside the highway we saw paper cups, cardboard containers, styrofoam boxes and paper bags from various fast-food outlets.

It is obvious that some patrons of these establishments think containers can be dumped wherever they have stopped for a moment, opened their car windows, and heaved out the litter.

One of the biggest eyesores is just beyond the Sea to Sky Hotel, under and around the Mamquam school overpass.

Like the author of one of the daffodils, I issue a challenge to the schools to organize clean-up days. When I was an elementary school child in South Vancouver, each class took turns every week to go out after school to pick up anything that did not belong around the school grounds. We had to cover an area that was two blocks square.

Since it was in the pre-disposable society, pre-fast food era, we found very little trash.

I also issue challenges to fast-food eateries as well as to corner stores to post large signs on their premises urging their patrons to dispose of containers properly. Perhaps, in order to raise awareness in our community, they could sponsor joint poster contests for school children. They could then use these posters in a campaign to keep Squamish clean. When training new employees, they could also encourage them to tell customers to please discard their containers in the garbage cans provided or in the trash bin nearest to them.

At home, parents should set an example to their children by never throwing papers onto the streets. The way to show a real appreciation for our environment is by beginning at home.

Whenever I look after a dog that belongs to a family member, I go out for walks, armed with a plastic bag to pick up doggie doo.

I would not dream of letting a dog mess on someone's lawn or boulevard without picking up after it. Dog owners should remember that they have a responsibility to their pets, their neighbors and themselves to pick up their pets' feces.

Locking cars makes no difference

Editor,

Just another follow-up to my reaction to Sgt. Wetteland's recent state of the nation address.

An article in the March 4 paper makes an obvious mockery of the good sergeant's report. I don't make the news, I just read it.

Not a bad night's work for the local moron brigade. Are the two youths mentioned going to be charged with anything? No mention as usual of criminal charges against obvious youth in possession of stolen property. Naughty, naughty.

Maybe the same morons smashed those forestry vehicles a little while ago. All I can say is thank God for the vigilance of the RCMP and the community patrol. Most of us can sleep safely in our beds knowing all that can be done is being done. Sgt. Wetteland's predictions are a little out of synch, but no one's perfect.

It is about time to "bring back the birch". The town's getting bigger. God help us all. Cars being locked don't make the slightest difference if someone wants to break into your vehicles. Crime and punishment does.

Utilities must serve all customers

Received by The Chief for publication,
Ted Nebbeling, M.L.A.

Dear Ted,

I congratulate you on your efforts to obtain natural gas distribution throughout Squamish, but I must point out a small error in your letter that was published in The Squamish Chief.

Peter Martin is not area manager for B.C. Utilities, but is the manager for My underground Gas, which makes him part of the problem, not the solution. No matter how many potential subscribers are obtained, the economic number gets advanced to something just beyond reach.

A utility does not serve only those who can make it profitable. Utilities operating only on that basis would have home owners still using whistle signals, oil lamps wells and outhouses.

Squamish council missed the opportunity when the pipeline was proposed. Had they said: "No pipeline unless we are assured of distribution," then we would have the service other British Columbians enjoy every day at a reasonable cost.

We have a second chance to use this same tactic. B.C. Gas must install a pumping station at Squamish and I suggest we say: "no gas - no pump."

Coun. Lalli speaks first sensible words on secondary suites

Editor,

As a new resident of Squamish, I have followed with some interest the secondary suite debate. It seems to me that deputy clerk Trudy Coates may have somewhat of a hidden agenda in this regard. Is the issue for her the utility billings or the illegal suites themselves?

Her comments from the last two Squamish Chief publications lead me to believe the latter.

Councillors Ron Barr and Meg Fellowes also seem to be on the "make them pay" bandwagon, but I'm sure that many of the residents they serve the issue is not that cut and dried. Coun. Paul Lalli has spoken the first sensible words on this issue when he says he supports a user pay system.

In my neighborhood, I have observed single-family dwellings at which the residents wash their two cars weekly and often have more cans on trash day than their illegal suite counterparts. My observations do not include the use of utilities inside their home, but one can imagine with two or three teenagers their water consumption is quite high.

Compare this to a home with two adults and the current system is already grossly unfair. Despite the size and progression/development in Squamish, houses still do not have water meters. Is this really 1997 or a time warp?

As the June 1996 survey by Graham Farstad Associates Ltd., proved, there is a definite need for these suites in Squamish. Housing is very expensive here and they are one way to offset the cost of purchasing a home. They may also provide a reasonably priced rental accommodation.

I'm very happy you purchased your home 10 or 15 years ago for $80,000 to $100,000, but that is not the reality today.

Squamish has boomed since my first visit to this beautiful town in 1990, and high housing prices are unfortunately a byproduct of this.

It would seem this is a very challenging issue. It is my hope that council will represent the people it serves and make every effort to find a fair and equitable solution. Anything less, in my mind, will put them on an equal footing with provincial and federal governments out to grab more cash.

Speaking on behalf of the estuary animals

Editor,

I cannot describe the sickening mixture of fear, anger and disbelief upon hearing further development of the remaining Squamish estuary is but a signature away.

The animals of the estuary cannot speak for themselves so I feel I must raise my voice in their defense.

No monetary value can replace the peaceful sound of songbirds or the delightful sight of a doe and fawn grazing in the evening light. No development can replace the salmon fry, the swans, the hummingbirds, the red-winged black birds or the myriad of other animals which call the estuary home and have nowhere else to go.

Please, for the sake of the animals, for the sake of the estuary, for the sake of the planet itself, raise your voice and voices against this heartless development.

Support appreciated

Editor,

I would like to express my gratitude to the people of this town who came out for the special advance screening of Madam Rose. We had a full house with a very warm and enthusiastic reception from the audience whose laughter will be heard long after they have left the building. (They will be heard on the broadcast tape.)

For those who couldn't make it, it will be broadcast on Cable 10 again in the near future. It is truly encouraging for an independent producer like me to see such tremendous support from the people of Squamish. I hope we gave them a home-grown product they can be proud of.

of today.

The park, opened in 1994, saw 16,000 visitors last year. Evans said he's hoping to build that number to 40,000 annually once the facility is open year-round.

WCRA has a four-phase development plan for the park which is to be completed by 2005.

Phase two of the plan transforms the park from a museum to a family attraction and education facility. This phase is expected to see the development of the remaining 2.8 hectares (seven acres) of the 4.8 hectare (12-acre) site. Some of the proposed additions include making the station a replica of the Pacific Great Eastern stations in Quesnel or Williams
Lake, a functional locomotive servicing facility, a park area, a miniature train ride encircling the park and a two-stall fire hall to provide site protection and house for a 1946 Ford fire truck. A 1914 Pacific Great Eastern car shop is also expected to be completed during the second phase.

Evans said the completed attraction will likely employ up to 16 people on a year-

Who answered stolen cell phone?

Squamish RCMP are investigating an incident in which a thief may have given his name to the owner of a stolen cell phone. Cpl. Rob Diack said a locked vehicle was broken into at the Brennan Park Leisure Centre March 7 at 7:25 p.m. Stolen were a radar detector, grey Motorola cell phone and video tapes.

"The complainant's wife called the cell number and when somebody answered she said 'Who is this?'" Diack said. The man gave her his name, which she then reported to police. The investigating officer is trying to determine if the man who answered the phone gave the caller his real name.

A container of tools and equipment was broken into at Furry Creek March 6. Stolen in the incident were a generator, jumping jack plate tamper and hydraulic fluid, with a total value of $6,000.

At 12:20 a.m. March 6, a woman looked out the window of her home on Meadow Avenue at Eagle Run and noticed a prowler with a flashlight looking in her windows. Police attended but could not locate the suspect, who is described as having a slender build and wearing a hooded jacket.

A Squamish man reported his passport and $1,275 in cash stolen from his wallet in an unlocked vehicle on Westway in Valleycliffe March 6 at 5:30 p.m.

A motorist was shocked March 8 at 6 p.m. when a rock bounced off the hood of her car as she passed under the Mamquam overpass on Hwy. 99. Two youths in the area gave the driver the names of two possible suspects, which she reported to the RCMP.

A brown Ford pickup truck was found damaged and smoldering near the B.C.

Hydro Cheekye substation at 11 a.m. March 9. By the time police attended the vehicle was completely burned, and had apparently been driven through the cement gates. The son of the owner reported the vehicle missing shortly after it was discovered.

Police Blotter

Police received a report of theft of a Pioneer stereo from an unlocked vehicle near Howe Sound Secondary School March 7 at 7 p.m.

In addition to a box full of found keys the Squamish RCMP detachment has had several valuable items turned in which they would like to return to the right owners:

- One gold ladies ring with five stones found in November, file number 9611047.
- A green pack sack full of tools including drills, possibly belonging to a drifter, file number 9611047.
- A big yellow plastic wheelbarrow found near Thunderbird Ridge November, file number 961083.
- A Toshiba cordless phone found March 8, file number 971748.
- Three pairs of prescription Vuar sunglasses found Oct. 28, file number 969116.

Good news in a propane bill?

It's true!

*Look carefully at your last propane bill.
The price of propane has dropped!*

Why? ICG is paying less for propane from our suppliers, and just as we said we would, ICG is passing the savings on to you and also our retail partners. Thanks to a warmer winter (at least in some parts of the country!) and lower demand, propane reserves in North America are increasing. In other words, there is more supply than demand for propane right now, and so prices have fallen.

What about next month? No one can predict what lies ahead, but ICG is working on innovative ways to prevent large price fluctuations in the future. In the long term, propane is still an economic fuel. The portability and clean burning factors of propane make it the best choice.

School board inquiry final report may be released soon

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

The final report of a recent inquiry into the operations of Howe Sound School District 48 may be available for public viewing as early as this week.

Constance Rulka, chairperson of the board of trustees, said during Wednesday's meeting the report may be available, "in a few days."

"We hope to let you all know something in the near future," she said.

Rulka said the board has been in consultation with lawyers about the report and the release of its contents.

She said the board has received several requests to release the document under the Freedom of Information Act.

The board issued a news release earlier this month giving an overview of the inquiry's findings.

The flow of information to the board and the payroll system were identified as having serious procedural deficiencies.

The inquiry, conducted by Graham McKinnon, associate executive director of the B.C. School Trustees Association, looked at all aspects of how the board handles its areas of finance, education and administration.

Surprise Party by brother-sister team makes its world premiere in Squamish

By Al Price
Squamish Chief

For theatre fans are in for a treat when the world premiere of a play written by Squamish resident Roseanna Rudolph and her brother John Parker takes to the stage April 1 at the community theatre at Howe Sound Secondary School. Surprise Party, by Howe Sound Players, is an adult comedy featuring 11 characters played by some well known Squamish thespians and some talented newcomers to the hot lights. The play is about a mother who, in order to get to know her daughter and her friends a little better, decides to hold a surprise party for the daughter's 18th birthday. Mother inadvertently interferes with the cosmic order of things, and thus the hilarity begins.

"John and I started collaborating two years ago with a suspense thriller called Howtime," said Rudolph, who is well known to followers of local theatre. "We thought we could write a comedy, and decided it should be produced first here. Even though there's 18 years difference between us, we laugh and joke all the time. This project gave us a chance to visit as well as collaborate, and we really had a lot of fun writing it. It was a labor of love."

Having lived in Squamish for 25 years, Rudolph has acted in Night Must Fall, Cent of Honeysuckle, and Charley's Aunt. She has directed and/or produced Suppressed Desires, The Grand Duchess, The Second Time Around, You're A

Sibling playwrights John Parker and Roseanna Rudolph both have extensive experience in all aspects of theatre. Their original play Surprise Party is being produced by Howe Sound Players at the community theatre at Howe Sound Secondary School. Photos contributed

Good Man Charlie Brown, Patio, A Marriage Proposal, Any Little Good, A Little Something For Christmas, Eulogy, Lord Arthur Savile's Crime, I Ought To Be In Pictures, The Pushcart Peddlers, Play It Again, Sam, and Steel Magnolias. Her play writing credits include a stage adaptation of Shatterproof, by Jack Ritchie.

Currently president of Howe Sound Players, Rudolph has served on the group's executive for 12 years and has been the North Shore Zone representative to Theatre B.C. She teaches piano in her "spare" time and is the office manager of Mountain Internet.

Parker also has an impressive theatre resume. He has his masters' degree in directing from the University of Washington. Vancouver theatre patrons will remember many of his 76 productions. As artistic director of ACT and Vancouver Little Theatre, he directed Luther, King Lear, Richard III, Romeo and Juliet, Indians, Boys in the Band, The Fantastics, The Price, You're a Good Man Charlie Brown, The Father, The Elephant and the Jewish Question. He has worked with many established celebrities, often giving them their professional starts: Brent Carver, Jeff Hyslop, Ruth Nichol, Joy Metcalf, Peter Jaenicke, Beverley Simons, Ed Harrington, Bob Read, and dozens of others.

Parker also acts. His most recent stage role was in The Circle Within at the Waterfront Theatre. He can be seen in TV's Poltergeist in his continuing role as Dominick, the butler at the Legacy. In addition to his theatrical work, he is the author of several English textbooks.

The Writer's Workshop has been a prescribed, high-school textbook in BC and seven other provinces since 1981.

"It is really great Howe Sound Players decided to produce our play," said Rudolph. "It is an honor to have it open in my home town, really special."

She said in writing the play, both she and Parker wanted something which would be easy to produce. After their initial discussions, they traded ideas by e-mail until the work was done.

Diane Gamba is producing the production, and Parker is directing. Among the cast are well known Squamish actors Kathy Daniels, Kathleen Forbes, Evelyn Dawson and Dave Manning. Cast members play characters ranging in age from 17 to their late 60s, providing a real variety for the audience. Having been locally written, there are also many local references which audience members will recognize.

Surprise Party runs April 1-5 and again April 9-12, starting at 8 p.m. each night. There will be Saturday matinees at 2 p.m. April 5 and April 12. Tickets at Mostly Books are $10 each, with Wednesday performances two-for-one.

New executive revitalizes Howe Sound Arts Council

By Al Price
Squamish Chief

After some structural changes and much soul searching, a new board of directors has been created for the Howe Sound Arts Council.

Included on the board are Mark

McConchie, Adriane Polo, Tony Biggin-Pound, Denise Cook, Dorothy Sabey, Jackie Williams, Gary Hughes, Gwyer Webber, Richard Faulhaber and Wolfgang Richter. Directors at large include Melanie Murray, Mike Yates, Bernadine Billy, Dave Fenn, Kathleen Forbes and Mary Billy.

"We are totally organized thanks to countless late nights by a lot of people who couldn't let it go," said Polo. "Their persistence paid off."

The new arts council administrator is Joel Pettit, and Meg Fellowes is the consultant.

"We welcome all these people aboard and hope that their faith and vision will translate into an integral part of this community," Polo said.

The council's new mission statement and objectives will be presented at the next general meeting Monday, March 24 at 8 p.m. at the Howe Sound Inn. Everyone is welcome to attend.

★ Brackendale Secondary School's music department is looking for musical instrument donations.

Being sought are a bass guitar and bass amplifier, stand-up acoustic string bass, small upright piano, electronic keyboard or synthesizer, tuba, snare drum, drum set, percussion instruments (shakers, cow bells), flute, clarinet, saxophone, trumpet and trombone. If you can donate any of these instruments, contact music teacher Stan Thomson at Brackendale Secondary School at 898-3671, fax 898-4672. Thomson says any donated instruments will be well taken care of and well used.

COMMUNITY

Inclusion is the key for proposed child care program

By Brigitte Petersen
Squamish Chief

Supporters of a proposed program in Squamish want children with special needs to be included in regular day-care facilities and pre-schools throughout the corridor.

Supported child care is a provincewide initiative by the Ministry of Children and Families to give parents of children with special needs a wider choice for picking the child care setting most convenient for the family.

"The goal is to provide child care for all children in community-based centres," says Jane Ballance, community liaison and development consultant for supported child care for the Sea to Sky corridor. "Inclusion is the key."

Children requiring extra help are those who demonstrate developmental delays, exceptional health care needs and mental, physical or behavioral challenges.

Funding for programs and employees to help special needs children is currently provided to only two centres in the corridor, Happy Times Preschool and Whistler Children's Centre. Ballance says other centres do have children with special needs, but they don't have support mechanisms in place. The proposed program would require all parents to pay the same amount for child care services.

Ballance says the program is expected to be in place in the corridor by 1999.

A steering committee has been meeting regularly for the past year to determine what will work best in corridor communities. The committee has a strong core group, but Ballance said it still needs more representation from parents, educators and physicians. It is expected to be turned into an advisory body once the program is up and running.

Jerri Schmidt, infant development coordinator with Sea to Sky Community Services and co-chair of the Supported Child Care steering committee, said the group is looking at how the program works in other communities and is trying to determine what the child care obstacles and successes are in the local area. What kind of program and training is necessary for each centre will depend on what the needs of the children are.

"There are children who are multiply-handicapped and those who have speech problems," said Schmidt. "There are different levels of support needed."

A parent focus group is scheduled to be held on March 25 from 6:30-8 p.m. at the Sea to Sky Community Services office on Second Avenue. The topic of the meeting is: What difference will supported child care make to my family?

Anyone who has children or grandchildren in child care is welcome to attend. Those interested should first call Ballance at community services.

"This is our chance to get specific answers and feedback from parents," said Schmidt.

The provincial government has outlined a step-by-step process for implementation of supported child care. The first step is for parents to identify the need for extra support for their children through self-referral or professional recommendation.

The parent must then approach administrators of the supported child care program. A guide is used at various stages to help identify the level of support needed.

The parent is then to find a child care centre with or without the help of program administrators. Parents can apply for day care subsidies. Details with the centre are then worked out and funding from the ministry may be negotiated.

The program consultant provides services to the child care providers and offers more informational support to parents if required.

Bowl for Big Brothers-Big Sisters

This weekend, March 21-23 is the 17th Annual Bowl for Millions fund raiser for the Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Squamish, and the action takes place at Garibaldi Lanes.

If you are not registered as yet and you have a team together of three or four people, please call the Big Brothers-Big Sisters office at 892-3125. Those with pledge sheets are asked to collect from their sponsors at the time of pledging.

There is a special prize draw for participants who take all their pledge money in at the time they bowl. Pledge forms are available at Garibaldi Lanes, All Keys and Locks, Health Food Heaven and the Pair Tree in Garibaldi Highlands.

Hilltop House will honor three residents tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. when the March birthdays are celebrated. Congratulations to Elva Friesen, Mary Vahey and Edwardo Celella. The large, decorated birthday cake is shared with residents, friends and staff.

The annual general meeting for the Howe Sound Student Loan Association will be held in the school board office on Second Avenue Tuesday, March 25 at 7 p.m.

The fund was established more than 40 years ago and has helped numerous students. Loans of up to $1,500 per student are available (interest free) for not only university students but for those attending colleges and trade schools. Graduates in the Howe Sound School District are eligible to apply, and application forms are available at the high schools.

Members of the loan Association include Rose Tatlow, Don Ross, Julia Cooley and Marg Candy. Anyone wishing to know more about the association is welcome to attend.

The Howe Sound Players are working on a new production, the world premier for this play written by the brother-sister duo of Roseanna Rudolph and John Parker. Surprise Party is an adult comedy, boasts a large cast, and guarantees lots of surprises. It opens the first week in April for a two-week run at the new community theatre at Howe Sound Secondary School.

There was an exceptionally good turnout for the first session on Canada: Home and Abroad offered by Eldercollege at the Capilano College Squamish campus March 12.

Harry Greenwood said the next session will be held on Wednesday, April 9 when guest speaker Dr. Paddy Smith of Simon Fraser University will speak on Rethinking Cascadia. Eldercollege is for residents 55 years and over.

STORK STORY - FEIST - Maggie and Bob Feist welcome with love their fourth child and first daughter, Madeline Lee, weighing 8 lb. 14 1/2 oz., born in Squamish General Hospital on Feb. 27. Big brothers, Westley, Lange and Lucas are pleased to have a wee sister. Proud grandparents are Marjory Buchanan of Squamish and Lee Feist of North Vancouver. Maggie and Bob express special thanks to Dr. Gordon Doyle and the nursing staff.

The spring garage sale at Hilltop House will be held April 19 and you are asked to keep HTH in mind when you are doing your spring cleaning.

The Hilltop House Support Society is always seeking new members in their effort to support the residents and the very caring staff.

Ruth at 898-3368, Betty at 892-3888 or Jean at 898-2388

will be happy to answer any question you may have.

The regular meeting of the Squamish and District Diabetes Association will be held tonight, Tuesday, March 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Tantalus Seniors Centre. Everyone is welcome, diabetic or not.

During this spring break week, public ice skating is scheduled for Wednesday, March 19 from 7-8:30 p.m., Thursday from 3-5 p.m. and Friday from 8:25-9:25 p.m. A new schedule of events and programs was mailed to everyone last week and the brochure from the Brennan

About Town

By Maureen Gilmour

Park Leisure Centre is most informative.

If you have any questions give the staff a call at 898-3604.

An activity the residents of Hilltop House really enjoy is bingo which is held each Tuesday and Thursday at 1:30 p.m. Volunteers are needed and if you can spare an hour or two once in a while please be at HTH between 1-1:30 p.m. on those dates.

STORK STORY - HARRY - Dale and Terry Ann Harry are pleased to announce the birth of their second daughter, Gwen Desiree, born in Squamish General Hospital on Feb. 27, weighing 7 lb. 11 3/4 oz. Seven year old Raena was happy to welcome her little sister home. Proud grandparents are Gwen Harry of Squamish (and the late Ernie Harry) and Herman and Dorothy Henry of Sidney, Vancouver Island. Dale and Terry Ann express thanks to Dr. Doran, the caring nursing staff, grandma Gwen and family.

It is income tax time once again and seniors counselor for Squamish, Charles Schilberg is available to help seniors complete their forms and also their renewal applications for the guaranteed income supplement. Give Charlie a call at 898-9393.

The Squamish Food Bank reports all 103 bags of food were distributed and their shelves are once again empty.

If you can, buy a little extra and deposit it in the boxes provided in all four grocery outlets in town. There will likely be even more of a need next time as people find out about it.

The Squamish Estuary Conservation Society's raffle was held on Feb. 28 and the winners were: D. Wright, Mike Nelson and Nowell Taylor of Squamish and Jorma Jyrkkanen of Terrace. The society thanks all who helped out and to those who bought tickets.

Having a St. Patrick's Day birthday yesterday and his first, was Joshua Thrower. On Thursday, Kaitlin Wallace celebrates her first birthday.

Do welcome a grad student when they come calling at your door soon. The '97 grad class mushroom and steer manure sale is all in support of a dry grad.

NOTICE

Anyone holding gift certificates for Red Wind Trail Rides is asked to call immediately and leave a message at 898-2813 or 898-2824. We can only honor gift certificates until April 15, 1997.

HOROSCOPE

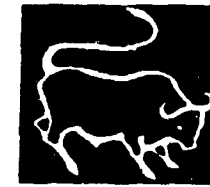

By C.C. Clark - eTVData Features Syndicate

March 16 through March 22, 1997

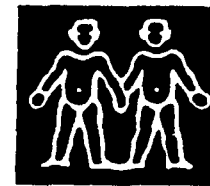

Aries (March 21 - April 20)

If someone quizzed you today about where you money was, would you know? Get your records together and plan a financial strategy.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)

If you are looking for ways to improve your diet start with the health food store. Stock up on vitamins and herbs.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

There are times when life happens too fast even for a Gemini. Take a step back and look at where you are headed.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

You've been spending too much time at the office and not enough time with loved ones. Make some changes and keep some promises.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

Caution is advised in your love sector. It's the whole "The grass is greener on the other side" scenario. Look a little closer at the situation.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

Buy yourself some flowers and make a cup of your favorite coffee or tea. You deserve a little tenderness, even if you have to give it to yourself.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

Stop looking for the easy way out and do what has to be done. You'll be amazed at how easy the job is once you've completed it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)

Get ready for some big changes in several sectors. Love, career and money all will be in play over the next few weeks.

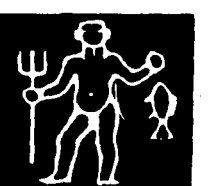

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)

Sometimes slow and steady really does win the race, but you also have to be ready to adapt to new situations when necessary.

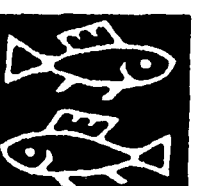

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)

Patience flies out the window when a family member rubs you the wrong way. Walk away from petty arguments; they aren't worth it.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

Trust your intuition and stop trying to second-guess yourself. Make sure your ego isn't getting in the way.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

Why is it you always try to make things more difficult than they need to be? Stop trying to do it all at once. Take one day at a time.

Darts & Daffodils

A classroom full of daffodils to Mrs. Watson and her Grade 1 class for a job well done. SLC was great. A grateful mom.

A tow truck full of daffodils to the friendly operator who got mom safely off to Squamish and daughter safely home to Whistler. Keep smiling. Many thanks.

Black and white daffodils to all my piano students who have worked diligently this term, learned lots and made my job a pleasure. This one's for you, L. H.

Daffodils to the supervisor who is taking a stand to ensure safety for the employees and clients which, in the end, will enhance job performance and consistency in care.

A hospital room full of daffodils to all the nurses and especially to Dr. Morum for the care given to Justin during his stay in hospital, and to Sherry and Carmen for their support. Daffodils also for the thoughts of others with your calls, and especially the anonymous sender of the lovely basket which brighten a little boy and his mom's spirits. A super big daffodils to grandma and granddad for the support and a shoulder to cry on, especially at night. I love you both.

A friendly helicopter full of daffodils to Rachelle, our student and the forestry staff, especially Elsa, Betty, Lawrence and Shane for taking the time to show 21 very excited children how a helicopter flies. We had a whirl of a time. From the little giants at the Friendly Giant Daycare.

A bunch of ever grateful daffodils to my neighbors for looking after my daughter when I was sick. This just goes to show that the Bicads on Braemar are really the best. Thank you.

Darts to the driver of the truck with the dog in the back, who felt it necessary to tell me I was following too close and then use profane language in front of my daughter. Just remember, what goes around comes around.

A library full of daffodils to Brian and his staff at Save-On-Foods for kindly donating the hot dogs, buns, drinks and chips to help raise the much needed cash for the new public library. With thanks from the Squamish Public Library Board.

An emergency room full of daffodils to the nurses and Want to say thanks and make sure everyone knows why? Or maybe offer a little constructive criticism without confrontation? Send your Dart or Daffodil to The Editor, The Squamish Chief, Box 3500, Squamish, B.C. V0N 3G0 or drop it off at our office at 38113 Second Avenue, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. You can also fax your message to 892-8483 or e-mail to: sqchief@mountain-inter.net.

doctors of Squamish General Hospital, and many thanks to the police and ambulance attendants who helped our son in a difficult situation. God bless you all from two grateful parents.

A song full of daffodils to a dynamic couple. Loveyamyssyameanit. Top hat rules.

A dark blue cruiser full of daffodils to the RCMP officer who was southbound on Hwy. 99 just north of Squamish March 11 at 11 a.m. You really helped me out day when I needed it most. Those who have any negative opinions about the police should have the opportunity to meet one like yourself. Thank you again. The blue K-car.

A hot tub full of daffodils to Brad, Rob, James and Sean for their help with our move. It wasn't far but you all helped make it very easy. Special thanks to Sean the carpet man for your expertise in cleaning up the blood problem, and to Brad for tidying up. Such a nice surprise on our return from the hospital. You are a great bunch of guys.

Darts to the managers of Britannia Beach. If a community hall can't be used for a community meeting, then what's it for?

A gymnasium full of daffodils to the dad of one of the Grade 7 Brackendale boys basketball team members for going above and beyond his duty by coaching the team throughout the season. Many thanks and much appreciation for all your time and patience. We couldn't have done it without you.

Metres of daffodils to Lori from Needles and Pins for the fabric she gave me for the chemo hats and skeins of daffodils for Vivian, Mary, Betty and Jean from The Manor for the afghans they donated to me for the chemo ward at Squamish General Hospital. Dollie.

A truckload of daffodils to Dean of the repair shop in the industrial park. A new, overconfident Squamish resident had 4x4ed herself (without a 4x4) snugly into a rocky, sandy slope in Paradise Valley. I flagged Dean down on the road and asked him to drive me to the nearest phone.

He proceeded to halt his plans for the day and haul me out of my sandy home without a hitch. In business they call this added value. Thank you, Dean. I am reminded again of how different it is to live in Squamish compared to the city.

By giving thanks each day and counting your blessings, you are creating positive energy for yourself. Is your cup half empty or half full?

Putting focus and energy on the things that are going well in your life will accentuate the positive output, and what you put out you get back. It is a universal right to have a roof over your head and food on the table.

Many people take this for granted, especially in our western culture where we are most affluent and fortunate. A good daily affirmation, to be repeated as often as possible, is as follows:

"I am healthy, prosperous and balanced, and I give thanks for all the wonderful gifts given to me by the universe."

Write this down and stick it on the bathroom mirror. Make it a morning ritual to speak it out loud many times, indeed at any time of the day.

Positive results occur over time.

Dear Diane,

Most people know me as quite easy going and helpful. I am a wife and mother and work full time and feel happy in this respect. However, I suffer from weight-eating disorders and emotional problems. Can I conquer these problems and come to grips with the ghosts that haunt me? Signed, So near yet so far.

Dear So Near,

This will be a testing year for you. Don't let that scare you, because it is time to deal with these issues that are haunting you. Over the next 18 to 24 months you will delve into your past, where these ghosts originate.

We are not given anything we can't handle, and so now your call for help indicates you are ripe for dealing with this. I would suggest therapy, and to start putting yourself first. You have been giving too much away to other. Don't be too concerned with how others perceive you. Be real.

Dear Diane,

Do you see me staying with my partner? We are going through a little bit of turmoil.

Signed, Capricorn.

concerns. I feel that you have been fooling yourself over this one.

It is time to see the relationship for what it is. Your key word for this is change. You will change many things including whatisname.

Dear Diane,

I have recently started dating a man whom I find very interesting. What do you see happening between us? Signed Wondering.

Dear Wondering,

Eagle's Eye

Look for the little things

Often the simple subjects can be the most striking. The small feather, captured on the Squamish River by photographer Al Price, is almost abstract in its contrast of colors and texture.

Photographers Wanted

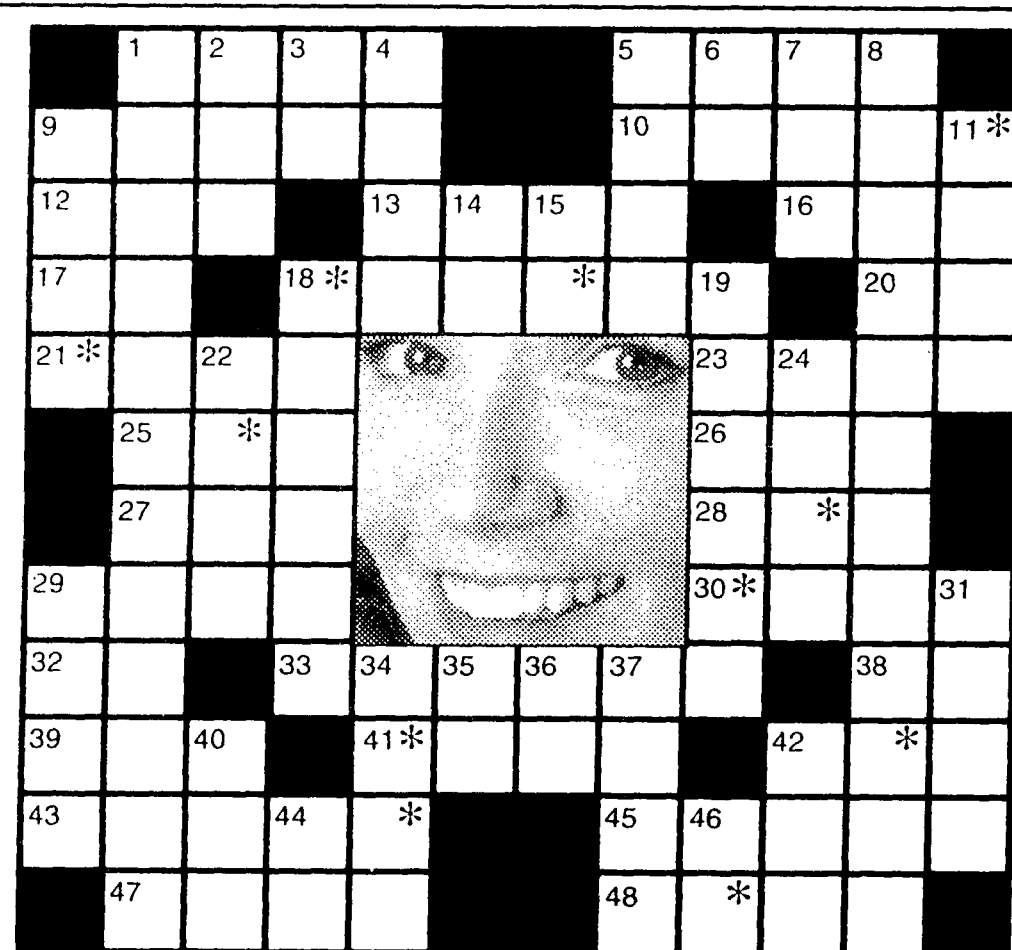

We welcome submissions to the Eagle's Eye from anyone, any age — and you don't have to be a professional photographer either. Mail to The Squamish Chief, Box 3500, Squamish, BC V0N 3G0, or drop it off at 381 Second Avenue.

Those who are published will receive a FREE 5x7 enlargement (from 35 mm neg).

Business Works program helps people get back into the workforce

The Squamish and Howe Sound Chamber of Commerce has recently become a supporter of an unprecedented workplace-based training initiative designed to alleviate chronic unemployment in our community.

Business Works represents business, government and community working together to get people back into the workforce. It is a community-based program which addresses unemployment and the issues surrounding it right where we live.

Business Works helps match employers with eligible, highly-motivated employees who have demonstrated job-readiness and great attitude, the number one criteria identified in Moving Forward, an in-depth study of business.

Employers can access up to $3,250 as a training allowance for eligible new or current employees. They can gain access to job-ready employees with the right attitude to help business grow. There is no fee to become part of Business Works. Employers avoid the cost of advertising for new employees and having to review hundreds of resumes for employees who may or may not be qualified.

Business Works makes it easy for employers to participate. They understand that the last thing employers need is more paperwork. This business-driven initiative makes hiring simple.

Employers have the opportunity to offer hope to people and to make a significant contribution to their communities.

Business Works employers receive assistance setting up training programs and also receive regular follow-ups from trained, fully qualified Business Works support staff.

For more information on how your business can access this program call the chamber at 892-9244 or Business Works at 1-800-965-5627.

Only 67 more days until the 14th annual Sea to Sky Trade Fair. Booths are selling quickly. Call the chamber today to reserve your space. Last year the trade fair was sold out before the end of April.

On Wednesday, March 26, Showcase BC, a new, innovative provincial tourism promotion will be on display in Squamish at the Best Western Sea to Sky Hotel parking lot from 3-6 p.m. This mobile display, including three semi-trailers, will travel the Pacific Northwest promoting B.C. tourism attractions and facilities throughout the summer. Squamish gets a sneak preview. There is no charge and everyone is welcome.

The Sea to Sky Trade Fair gives businesses both big and small a chance to explain their goods and services to thousands of residents and visitors. Chief file photo

March is the month for brewers

To every thing there is a season. Make that used to be. At one time beer could not be made after spring, making March the last month for brewing. Technology, especially refrigeration, changed all that. Vestiges of the past linger in Marzenbier and old ale. March was the last month for making beer when brewers had no refrigeration to prevent summer's wild yeasts from souring the brew. March-brewed beers were strong, meant to be laid down in cold cellars, drawn upon during the summer and finally exhausted in September or October.

Brewers in the Munich area understood in the 1400s that a stock of beer stored in icy caves in the foothills of the Alps remained good throughout summer. One reason was the cold was not a welcoming environment for wild yeasts. Another was that the yeast already in the beer had sunk to the bottom, out of the way of interbreeding with the wild intruders. This bottom fermented beer became known as lager, after the lagering, or cold storage. Marzen Oktoberfest beer meant lager brewed in March and ready in time for the festival beginning in September and running into October. While March's lagers once signaled the end of the brewing season, the British were just finishing up strong ales brewed specifically to fortify themselves against their dimly raw winter weather.

British ales are a far older style of beer than lagers. Ale yeasts are top-fermenting, active at warmer temperatures. Unlike lagers, they require no cold storage and are ready much sooner. The need for summer storage lead to another type of "old ale", ones that benefited from long aging, sometimes years.

"Old" also implies a style of the past, nostalgia-soaked and better than anything the present has to offer. It also lends itself well to the cheekily irreverent names so beloved by the Brits. Theakston's Old Peculier is famous, then there's the affectionate Owd Roger and Old Jock, as wholesome to the Scots as it's bewildering to North Americans. Of course the lineup of "Olds" had to include Old Fart, a touch of earthy low humor from Yorkshire.

The beer for the following recipe needn't be an ale or old. This winter warming dish of pork simmered in ale is the answer to March's unpredictable weather. Use a good, malty pale or amber ale with lots of body and fruity aromas. Try Okanagan Spring Pale Ale, Big Rock Traditional Ale, Vancouver Island Piper's Pale Ale or Granville Island Anniversary Amber Ale. These all have a creamy, malty smoothness with only enough hops for a lively finish.

Pork and Red Peppers in Ale

- 4 thick pork chops
- 1 sweet red pepper, sliced
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 1 large clove garlic, pressed
- 1 Tbsp. Hungarian paprika
- 1 cup ale
- 1 ripe tomato, diced
- 1/2 cup sour cream

Fry the chops until brown in a large skillet. Remove to a side dish and add the pepper and onion. Fry gently until soft, adding a bit of butter to the pan if the chops gave up no fat. Stir in the garlic and paprika. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Pour in the ale and add the tomato. Lay the chops on top of the vegetables. Cover and simmer gently for about one hour. When meat is tender, remove to a warm platter. Raise the heat and boil down the liquid until reduced to a syrupy consistency. Remove from heat and stir in the sour cream. Do not boil. Season with salt and pepper. Pour the vegetables and sauce over the chops and serve with potatoes or noodles.

EDUCATION

Reading transports you to magic places in your mind

There is nothing quite like being read to. You see the places in our own mind, and the people in the story look just the way you want them to. Indeed, you yourself are usually the hero, to whom all the adventures are happening, and you have more control over this pretend world than you have over the one on the TV screen.

The Grade 3 students at Garibaldi Highlands Elementary were tucked cozily into the reading pit in the library while Ms. Doyle read to them about Matthew's adventure in the far north. His dad was a geologist and a prospector and was searching for copper. He had gone out in a helicopter and had not returned. The planes that were searching for him had to give up when a thick fog reduced visibility. Matthew's dad had not told the truth about the direction he would be flying in, because he wanted to keep his ideas about the location of the copper a secret. Only Matt knew the truth. He and his friend, Kayak "borrowed" a Skidoo and set off on the rescue mission themselves. I left as they were trying to negotiate dangerous tracks in the ice.

Before they were absorbed into the story world, students had spent a few minutes talking about books of adventure in general. They offered the idea that the hero or heroine (Hardy Boys, Carol Keene and so on) is usually somebody who is not being controlled by an adult. That struck me as a novel idea, but a true one, and showed considerable acumen in judging the books they are reading.

The library displays at the moment are focused on Egypt, travel in time rather than space, and there are pyramids and scarabs, copies of the Pharaoh's jewellery, model canoes for sailing down the Nile, and a most fearsome crocodile made out of an egg-carton.

Substance Abuse

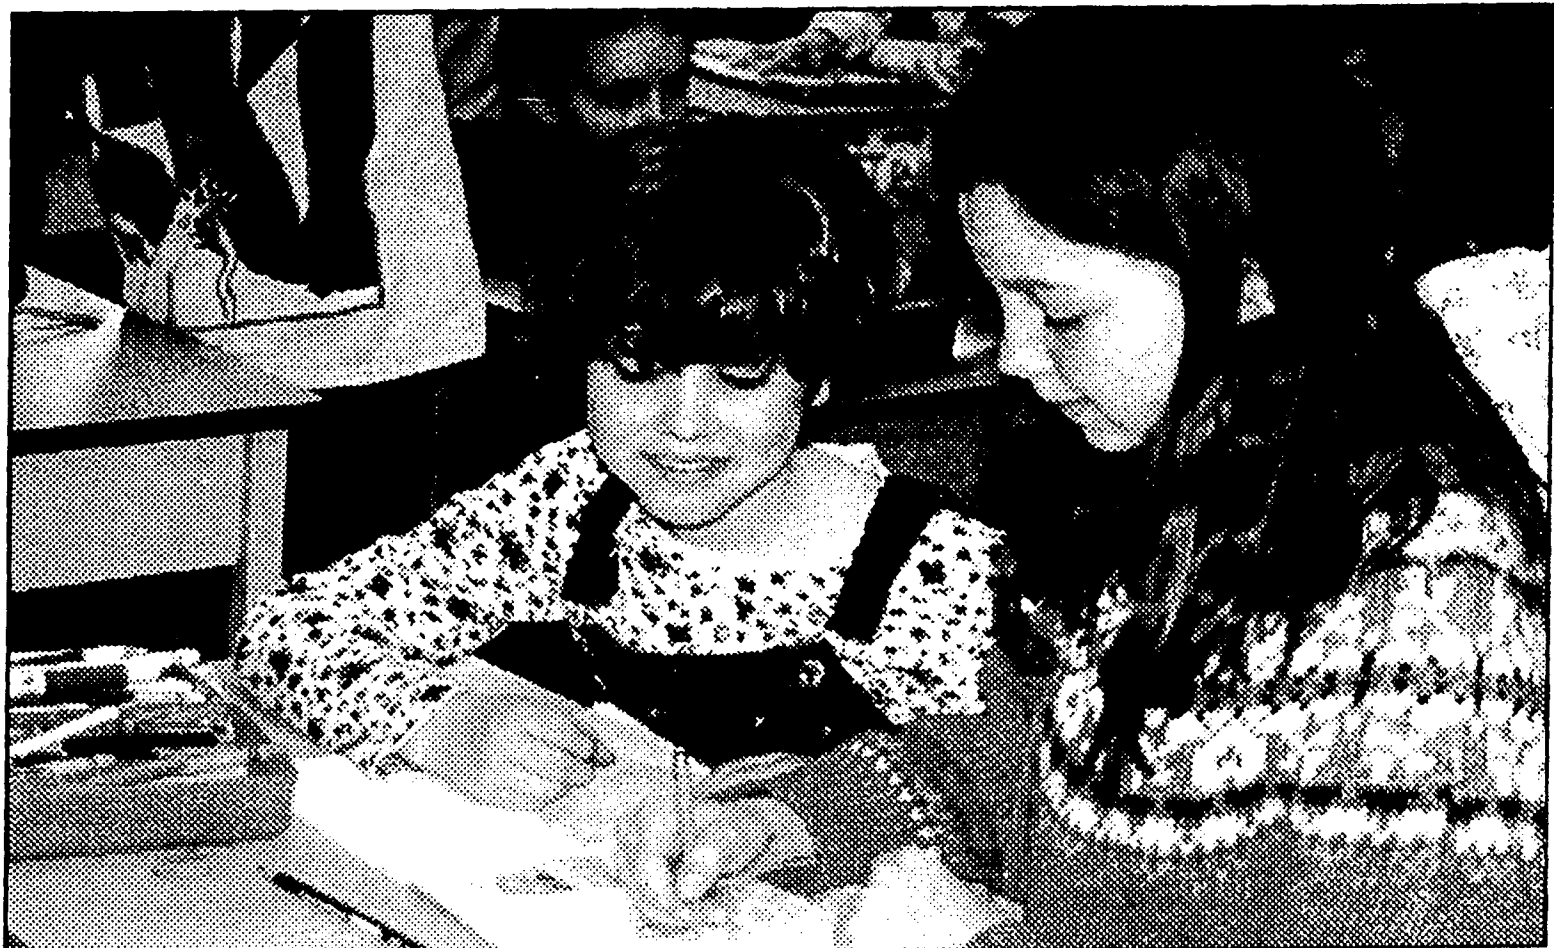

Senior students at HSSS had a day of workshops last Tuesday in connection with the CAPP program.

The sessions lasted about 90 minutes each and dealt with a variety of subjects, ranging from eating disorders to making the transition to post-secondary, from time management to dealing with grief, including a session on the medicine wheel.

In the morning there was a seminar on sexuality in the '90s given by Alice Bell, who has a good sense of humor and a no-nonsense approach that presented the facts without embarrassing anybody.

At the seminar I attended, 100 Grade 12 students heard a panel discuss the impact of substance abuse on our community and had the added bonus of learning more about each speaker's career and what was involved in training for it.

Cpl. Gary Brine, for example, described his job as "awesome" and a policeman's work as the best in the world. He has lived in seven different communities during his 20 years as an officer. The number of residents in them ranged from 200 to more than 100,000. A person going into the police force has a wide variety of areas to choose from.

For those who are good with animals, it is possible to become a dog-trainer or to be involved in the musical ride.

There is the forensic section, learning to work at the scene of the crime. Plainclothes officers check drug dealing. There are plenty of jobs in accounting; and the RCMP will even pay for continuing education for its recruits.

Although it is not necessary to move around constantly, there are plenty of opportunities for travel.

He spent seven months in Bosnia with the peacekeeping force, along with civilian police officers from 19 other countries.

As for his main topic for the day, substance abuse, Brine said he would not talk statistics but would deal only with the problems of real people. It is helping to solve those that gives him his greatest job satisfaction. He talked about the many substances that can be abused and said people are responsible for the choices they make.

What matters most, though, is the impact those choices make on the people around them. In the workplace, people under the influence of drugs or a hang-over jeopardize the safety of other workers.

Any substance that is misused, he warned the students, can alter the kind of person one is.

Whooping cough cases rise in Squamish

The whooping cough bacteria, also known as pertussis, is spread through coughing and sneezing. The disease starts with a runny nose, then fever, then severe spells of coughing, which can cause vomiting or make it very difficult for the person to catch their breath.

In people who have had all their vaccinations, the symptoms can be less severe. Often, the only symptom is a persistent cough that lasts more than two weeks.

"In Squamish, since Dec. 1, there have been six children ill with laboratory confirmed pertussis. Another child tested positive in September. The last time there was an increase of pertussis cases in Squamish, was in 1991, when there were five laboratory confirmed cases," said public health nurse Pamela Dithurbide, in a press release from the Squamish office of the Coast-Garibaldi Health Unit.

The best way to stop the spread of pertussis is to make sure that any child under the age of seven has received at least four doses of a pertussis-containing vaccine. "Since pertussis can be very severe in infants, and can cause lifelong problems, preventing infants from catching pertussis is very important," said Dithurbide. "If other children are sick with a severe cough, please keep the infant away from these children, especially during the first two weeks of the child's illness. Also, make sure that an infant has their pertussis doses on time. Pertussis is treated with antibiotics."

Once pertussis is spreading in the community, it is important for people to watch for the symptoms in themselves, their family and friends, she said. If the symptoms are seen, then make an appointment with a physician for testing and treatment. People who have symptoms should stay at home till they have seen their physician.

Call the Coast Garibaldi Health Unit, at 892-3585, to ask any questions about the disease.

Seniors appreciate visit from music students

The seniors from The Cedars and The Manor spent an enjoyable evening last week when Svea Mountenay had her piano students play for them in the Cedman Lodge. There were 18 children ranging in age from six to 13. It was Dianna Gladman's birthday (one of Svea's students) and Amy Clarkson played Happy Birthday and all sang. Tea, coffee, juice and cookies were served to all parents and residents. A big thank you to you Svea from all the residents.

At the camp they are under the direction and supervision of a medical team comprised of endocrinologists, nurses, dietitians, medical interns, nursing and dietetic students. Camp Kakhamela is held at Camp Elphinstone on the beautiful Sunshine Coast near Gibsons.

Hopefully you were all out for our pot luck lunch and meeting today (Tuesday). Elaine Ramsay's trip to the Westminster Quay and Fraser River cruise is this Sunday, March 23.

Elaine has also planned a slide show on trips in B.C. for seniors at the Tantalus Seniors Centre on Thursday, March 27. Please phone Elaine if you are interested at 898-5463.

Reg Huether was the guest of honor last week when fellow workers and friends gathered at the Loggers Inn to help him celebrate his retirement from Western Pulp. After a delicious smorgasbord, Reg was good naturedly roasted by Larry MacDonald, Gerry Rattray, Frank Brunn and Alan Sinclair. Len Smith presented Reg with a gold watch from the company and a gift from the employees association. A gift of a computer work station and chair from all his friends was presented by George Antonios.

Flyers leading the way in playoffs

by David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

The Grizzly Bar and Grrill Flyers have taken the lead in the Howe Sound Men's Hockey League playoff race after knocking out the Pair Tree Thunder in the semi-finals and leading the Squamish Tire Red Wings two games to none in the finals.

The Flyers bumped off the Thunder in three games, knocking them 12-0 in the first, 6-2 in the second and winning a hard-fought battle 9-4 in the third game.

"The last game against Thunder was great," said Flyers goalie Steve Hadden. "Orest (Semeniuk) was great in goal and the team worked really hard. We were trying to keep the tempo to prepare for either the Red Wings or McDonald's, and they stayed with us and worked us hard."

In the other semi-final series, the Red Wings took McDonald's after four games. The first was a 7-4 victory for McDonald's but the Wings came back with a vengeance to win 4-1, 6-3 and 7-2 to win the series and go to the finals against the Flyers.

The teams first met Friday with the Flyers taking the lead straight away and going up 3-1 in the first period with goals from Randy Leblanc, Myles Rosser and Don Sargent. The Red Wings goal came from Barrie Woodard.

An early goal from Scott Hunter in the second period saw the Wings narrow the gap, but Rhe Lacoursiere opened it up again for the Flyers at 15:20. Tom Eudo gave Hunter the puck in the Flyers end and he snaked past the defence to put one past Hadden at 12:08 for the Red Wings' third goal.

But the Flyers machine was just getting in gear and scoring from Jason Vanzella and Sean Casey put them up 6-3. The Red Wings came back with some more chances but couldn't score and two more in the last two minutes from Scott Rabb and Leblanc made the final 8-3.

Sunday's rematch went much the same way. Hunter put the Red Wings on the board first at 14:29 and Vanzella tied it at 12:40. The Flyers went ahead with a goal from Lacoursiere with 4:21 to go.

The Flyers dominated the second period with scoring by Lacoursiere, who has scored both game winners in the finals, Rosser and Leblanc while the Red Wings managed one more with Jason James' goal with 2:05 to go.

The teams meet again Wednesday at 8:45 p.m. in what could be the deciding game. If the Red Wings win, the series could go to four or five games, but if they lose, the Flyers are playoff champions.

The men's league held its annual awards banquet Saturday night, with awards voted by the players of the league.

Red Wings' Scott Hunter was named league MVP, Mike Rickert of the Flyers was voted best defenceman and Paul Savage of McDonald's was named best goalie. Build-All Construction's Scott Sherk was the only double winner, earning rookie of the year and most sportsmanlike player. The Phil Lacoursiere Memorial Award for talent, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey was given to Myles Rosser.

Volunteers needed to make Test of Metal a success

by David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

With this year's Squamish Test of Metal mountain bike race just a tight twist through the trees away, organizers are gearing down to make preparations for the June 14 event.

One of the most important aspects of running such a large, complex event successfully is volunteers. Anyone who has raced or been involved in the organizing of a race will tell you it can't be done without the vols.

Michael Owen-Evans is the volunteer coordinator for this year's Test of Metal and he's looking for up to 100 people for duties including course marshalling, registration, start/finish setup and takedown, timers' assistants, concession and souvenir sales, and prize distribution.

"It's easy and it's fun," says Owen-Evans, who's been volunteering on a practically professional basis for the past few years."

Once again Squamish Search and Rescue and the Squamish Amateur Radio Club will be providing communications and safety services, and the young offenders from the Maple Ridge Wilderness Program at Camp Porteau will be working on the trails and at the water stations during the race.

Another area volunteers can help out is the trail maintenance days, being held every other Sunday until the race, to get the course in tip top shape. Owen-Evans hopes to see "as many people as possible come out and get dirty" at the maintenance sites in the Alice Lake and Valleycliffe trails areas.

Those who want to volunteer and enter the race as well can be accommodated. Participating in the trail maintenance days prior to the race can count as your volunteer hours and working four out of the six days earns a free race entry, excluding Cycling B.C. licence.

Although the volunteer duties are important, the atmosphere is casual. Organization will be tighter this year with more meetings prior to the race, but organizers will make sure vols will go to the areas they want and can do the best work.

"You get to see what it's all about, how it comes about and you have the satisfaction of knowing that without you the race doesn't go on," Owen-Evans says. "You have fun and get a job done at the same time."

Volunteers will be well-rewarded too. In addition to being fed during the day and getting an official Test of Metal T-shirt, there will be a special volunteer appreciation evening at the Howe Sound Inn to go along with the other apres race festivities.

The first volunteers information meeting is at the Howe Sound Brew Pub Thursday, March 20 at 7:30 p.m. For more information or to volunteer phone Michael at 898-9744 or leave your name at either Corsa Cycles or Tantalus Bike Shop. For information about trail maintenance days call Brad at 898-9855.

Bowler strikes out for provincials

By David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

John Spargo finally struck gold to win the Youth Bowling Council Zone Championship and advance to the provincial finals in Kelowna.

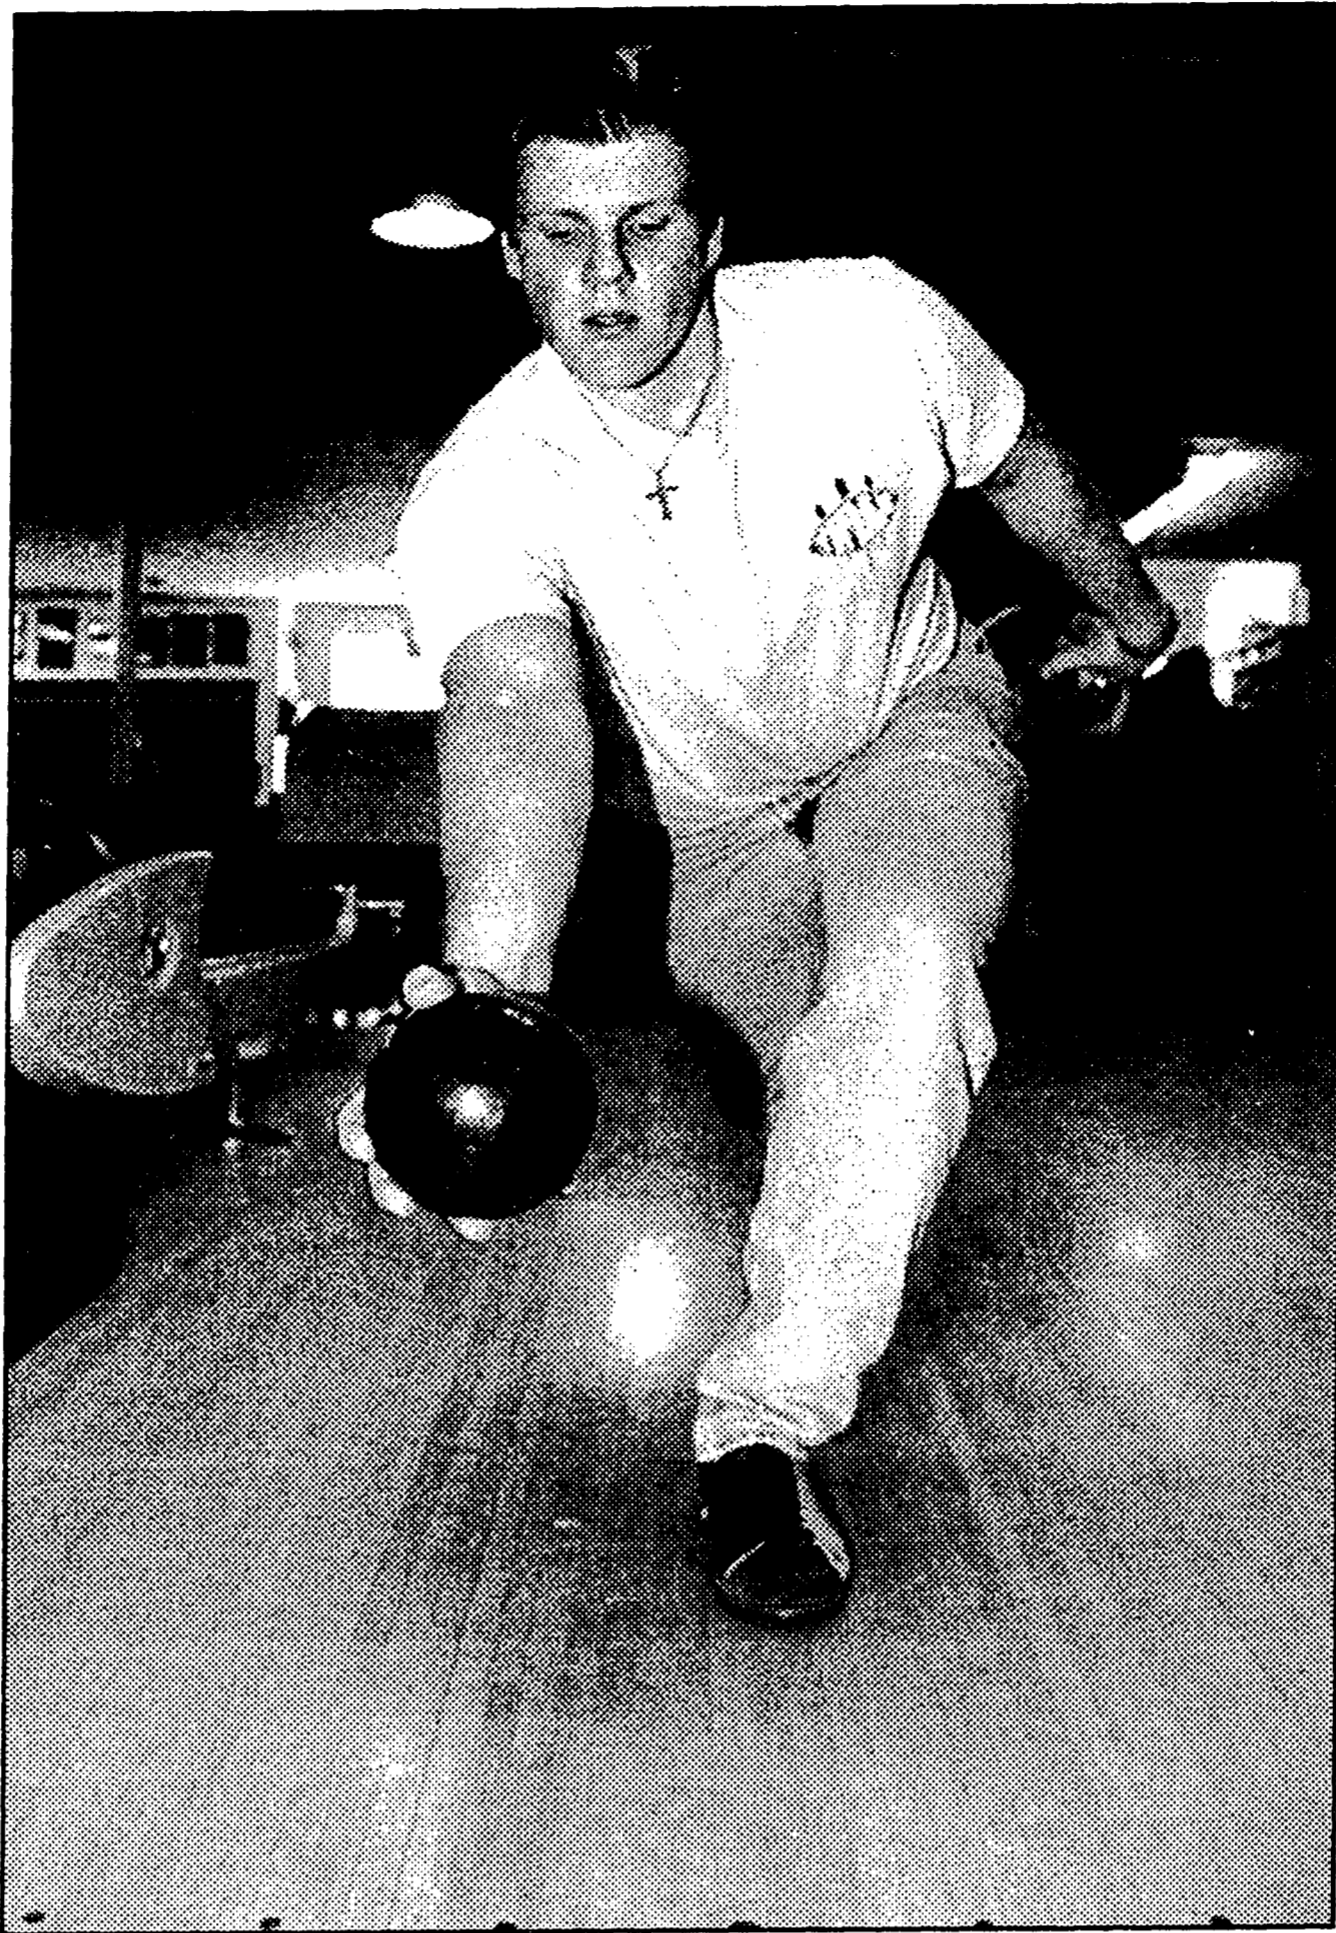

The 16-year-old bowled a 269 average over five games in zone championship March 2 at Vancouver's Hastings Bowl to win the gold medal in senior boys singles. He will be among 336 athletes and coaches from all over B.C. to compete in the 1997 YBC 5 Pin Bowling Championships March 21-23.

Spargo, who has been competing in the YBC for 12 years, said it felt good to win the gold after many second and third place finishes over the years.

He says 269 is a high average for him — he usually averages 210 in regular league play. "I was doing pretty good," he says.

Spargo says the competition in the provincials will be tough, many of his opponents are 18-year-olds in their last year of the YBC. In preparation he's practising up to six times a week at Garibaldi Lanes to keep his game up.

Spargo wasn't the only Squamish bowler to earn a medal at the zone finals. The bantam boys team of Chris Matheson, Matt Delikatney, Daniel Harry, Jeremy Ladeur and Jason Copp brought home a silver medal, as did Jonathon Fraser in bantam boys single.

The bantam girls team of Brittany Yaky, Shelby Yaky, Lindsay Gallagher, Robyn Hunt and Nicole Harry won the bronze medal.

Volleyball club scoops silver in provincials

The Squamish Squish Volleyball Club captured the silver medal in the B.C. Provincial Championships in Vancouver March 9.

The team, sponsored by IGA Plus and the Howe Sound Inn, is only in its first season of competitive play.

Although the squad had placed well in all previous tournaments, Squamish was seeded at the bottom of the pack. But Squish Squash came through the round robin playdowns undefeated, led by the stellar setting of Michelle Suter and the powerful spikes of Mike Arsenault and Brian Jahnke. The team continued dominating with some timely hits by Jas Michalski and stuff blocks by Chris Barone until meeting their arch rivals from White Rock in the final.

This was a classic match-up, pitting the size and experience of the White Rock squad against the speed and determination of Squamish. White Rock prevailed in the first set but Squamish rallied to capture the second set, led by the big blocks of John Armstrong and Brian Cruickshank. In the third set, played in a rally point format, the Squamish side dug up everything White Rock spiked down and responded with some thundering kills of their own, but finally succumbed to a finish in second place for the silver.

Sports Shorts

In his first-ever competition, 12-year-old Miles Gillingham won third place for sparring in his division at the 24th annual Steveston Karate Tournament March 8. Steveston hosts the largest karate tournament in Canada.

Miles is a member of the Squamish Karate Club under sensei Rudy Adams.

Last issue's figure skating report failed to mention Gordon Harrison was among the skaters competing in the North Shore International. He won the gold medal in the junior men category.

Squamish runner Margaret Palm was among the 20,000 starters in the 12th annual Los Angeles Marathon March 2. With a time of 3:49:23 she finished third in her age group and was the 229th fastest woman.

Girls teams join high school soccer league

By David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

The sport of soccer continues to expand in Squamish with two new high school girls teams entering the North Shore league.

Brackendale Secondary School has a junior team made up of girls from grades 8-10 and Howe Sound Secondary School has a team of grade 11/12 girls.

The season officially begins after spring break but the two teams met for exhibition matches Tuesday and Thursday. Howe Sound won both games 4-0 but Brackendale coach Christophe Henry said his team "played a lot better the second time, more as a team. Both teams played tougher."

Henry says Brackendale decided to form a team "because the community soccer is so strong...and the girls were really, really keen to having a team." He had 26 girls show up to the first meeting.

The exhibition games were set up for additional practice and trouble-shooting, and although Brackendale lost to Howe Sound, "they have the older bunch, we don't have those to pick from," Henry says. "So (Brackendale is) a really good team for their age."

"We'll get there in a couple of years. Hopefully things will be fun this year so we'll get more interest next year and develop a good soccer program here at Brackendale."

The BSS girls have been practising for three weeks and Henry is impressed with their skills. "A lot of them have played together in the community league and have a really solid background in soccer. They've had some good coaching."

The North Shore league plays until the end of May with games Tuesday and Thursday but neither Squamish team will be playing at home. Henry would like to invite some teams up to Squamish in the future for a tournament.

"It's my first year here in Squamish," he says, "and I'm really impressed with the quality of soccer and the part it plays in the community."

Atom reps tier III champs

The Howe Sound Hurricanes atom rep hockey team won the recent tier III playoff tournament by winning all three games in the round robin competition. The team had finished second in league play with a record of 12 wins, seven losses and three ties.

The Hurricanes started the playoffs by defeating Sechelt in two straight games. Advancing to the round robin finals, they met the Kerrisdale Thunderbirds. Lead by a four-goal performance from David Watson, Howe Sound was victorious by a 6-3 score. Kyle Halvorson supplied four assists while Scott Sellers, Travis Penrose and Gurdeep Grewal provided solid support.

In their second game the Hurricanes defeated East Vancouver 6-2. Two goals each from Jeremy Banting and Sellers paced the team. The defence of Justin Keeler, Clark Jensen, Garrett Rutten and Chris Heesterman shut down the East Van attack. Strong checking was provided by the line of Ryan Toth, Evan Moore and Jackson Doyle.

The final game matched Howe Sound against the Grandview Bulldogs, the league champions with a record of 16 wins, five losses and one tie. The Hurricanes got off to a quick start with two goals from Keeler and a single from Jensen. Grandview battled back to tie the game 3-3 in the third period. The strong goaltending of Cody Shmoorkoff kept Howe Sound in the contest until Grewal was able to net the winner with two minutes left in the game. Halvorson ensured the victory with an empty net goal to make the final 5-3.

Squamish FC in the running for first place

By David Donaldson
Squamish Chief

Squamish FC has had little practice in preparation for their most important game of the year coming up on Sunday.

The second division Vancouver metro soccer team won the last two games by default when only one player from Ethnikos showed up for last week's game and nine from the North Van Soccer Club came out the week before.

Squamish is in the running for first place if they win all their remaining games, including the match against current first-place team Bosna Sunday. If Bosna loses or ties one other, Squamish goes ahead and will move back into the premier division next year.

Squamish first plays Lobban Saturday and team manager Tom Johnstone says they feel "pretty confident" going into that match, "especially with the men's league rule change."

At the beginning of the season, players in the Mountain Building Centres Men's Soccer League who wanted to play for FC could only play five games with the rep team. This was later changed to two. But with continued field closures postponing their games, the league has decided its players can play with FC as much as they want for the remainder of this season.

"Hopefully it's the same for next year because it's for the better of soccer," says Johnstone. "It really helps us a lot because there's a handful of players in the men's league who will make a big difference playing with us."

Both of Squamish FC's games are at home this week at 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at Centennial Field.

CARD OF THANKS

Many thanks to everyone who offered sympathy and support at the time of Dale Petterson's death. Your kindness and concern have meant so very much and will always be remembered. Myrna MacCallum and Brent Petterson.

The family of the late George Schulte wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our family and friends for their help and support shown during his illness and at his death. Special thanks to all who sent flowers, cards, food, visited, phone calls, memorial donations and mass offerings. Thank-you to Dr. R. Cudmore, the nursing and all hospital staff at Squamish General Hospital. Thanks to Father Angelo of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, the C.W.L. for the lunch, Theresa Schulte, Elaine Bleckinger, for reading, Joe Bukowsky for singing, Denis Chamberland, Myles Bukowsky for serving mass and Gregory Schulte for the eulogy and for playing the organ at communion and all those that attended the funeral mass. Thanks to George McKenzie at the Squamish Funeral Chapel for his kindness and help. Everyone's kindness and support is greatly appreciated and will always be remembered. Bernice, Paul, Alan, and Lori Schulte.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that the public including all persons who deem their interest in property affected by the following proposed bylaw will be afforded an opportunity to be heard respecting matters contained in the proposed bylaw at a public hearing to be held at 3:30 p.m. on Tuesday, the 1st day of April, 1997 in the Council Chambers of the Municipal Hall, 37955 - 2nd Avenue, Squamish, British Columbia.

In general terms the purpose of the proposed District of Squamish Zoning Bylaw No. 1342, 1995, Amendment Bylaw (Big Chief Developments Ltd.) No. 1455, 1997 is as follows:

1. To amend the Industrial 1 (I-1) zone to permit a Fitness Centre use on the parcel of land legally described as: Lot A (See BJ213532), Block 22, District Lot 486, New Westminster District, Plan 3960, as identified on the following map.
2. To include in the Zoning Bylaw and define Fitness Centre as "means a building or portion of a building used to provide equipment and training to improve athletic condition and health".

Persons interested in specific particulars are directed to obtain a copy of the proposed bylaw as indicated below. Also available for inspection are copies of the District of Squamish Zoning Bylaw No. 1342, 1995 which would be amended by the proposed bylaw and various reports and plans which have been considered by Council.

A copy of the proposed bylaw and an information package may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, 37955 - 2nd Avenue, Squamish, British Columbia, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday inclusive, excluding statutory holidays from March 18th, 1997 to April 1st, 1997 inclusive.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that anyone who wishes to comment on the proposed District of Squamish Zoning Bylaw No. 1342, 1995, Amendment Bylaw (Big Chief Developments Ltd.) No. 1455, 1997 may do so by:

1. Making a written submission to the Council of the District of Squamish; and/or
2. Appearing as a delegation before the Council of the District of Squamish on the 1st day of April, 1997 at 3:30 p.m. in the District of Squamish Council Chambers.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that no verbal or written communication will be received by the Council of the District of Squamish after the close of the hearing.

Margaret-Ann Thornton,
Community Planning Director

J.E. Barry,
Clerk

THIS IS THE FIRST OF TWO SUCH NOTICES OF PUBLIC HEARINGS.

Dated this 6th day of March, 1997 at Squamish, British Columbia.
