Mall gets concessions

By DARREN GALLAGHER
Reporter

Concerns expressed by Tantalus Road merchants didn't stop councillors from recommending Ebbe Syberg-Olsen be given the three variances he requested for the expansion of the Highlands Mall Sept. 21.

The 218-square-metre southern addition is primarily to accommodate a larger Extra Foods store.

The renovation will close the east entrance of the mall and create a false front along that side of the building. A new loading bay at the southwest end will be built and the western side of the mall will receive a continuous glazed canopy and with upgraded exterior finishes. The walkway between the mall and the West Western Sea to Sky Hotel to the south will also have lighting installed.

The closure of the east entrance, cutting off all traffic from merchants on Tantalus Road, is the greatest concern expressed. A 13-page petition against the closure was submitted to council from affected businesses.

Syberg-Olsen said the mall must be oriented towards the parking lot, which additional paving is increasing to 230 stalls.

"I'm not unsympathetic to the concerns of the Tantalus Road merchants," he said.

"The businesses back there are destination shops, not gift shops relying on impulse buying."

Syberg-Olsen also said parking on Tantalus would be improved and the relocated loading bay will keep the trailers from blocking the road.

Mall stores facing Tantalus will be moved to the side facing Hwy. 99, he said.

"It just makes planning sense and economic sense to have them on that side," said Syberg-Olsen.

The variances are to eliminate the setback between the mall property and the Best Western and to allow Syberg-Olsen to re-erect his sign, taken down when Garibaldi Way was widened because it was too close to the road.

The 7.6-metre high sign will have a 19 square metre face, making it the largest sign highway sign in Squamish.

"What I am concerned with is the image we present to the travelling public," Mayor Corinne Lonsdale said.

"That property has been the biggest disgrace in the municipality for the last 10 years," she said, casting the only vote against.

University VP named

By TIM SHOULTS
Editor

Squamish's future university has named its first academic appointment.

Dr. David Strangway, head of the group bringing Canada's first private non-profit university to Squamish, announced Friday that Dr. Peter C. Emberley will be the vice-president (academic) of the university effective Jan. 1, 2000.

Dr. David Strangway
University president

Emberley, 43, is a graduate of UBC and is currently a professor of political science at Carleton University in Ottawa. In his 15 years at Carleton he has published four books and several articles and reviews and has served as assistant chair of the department of political science and in the University Senate.

He also helped create and was the founding director of Carleton's College of the Humanities and has taught at Cornell College and Colorado College in the United States.

Strangway said Friday he was pleased to bring Emberley on board.

"He shares my vision of what we want to do right down the line," he said.

Strangway said besides Emberley's appointment, plans for the university are advancing quickly behind the scenes. "Some people have been a little concerned that not very much has been going on, but in fact there's been quite a lot," he said.

The Howe Sound Educational Foundation (HSEF), the group created in April to receive 1,000 acres of land donated by the Tiamo family to build the university and sell market housing to finance it, recently received charitable status.

That will allow the HSEF to start financing the project and also receive donations for an eventual endowment fund to provide scholarships for students, including locals, Strangway said.

The business plan is still waiting on the official signing of a memorandum of agreement between the District of Squamish and the HSEF, which should be complete in the next few weeks, according to Strangway.

He is still hopeful for an official land transfer and ground-breaking for New Year's Eve 1999 as he mentioned in April.

The university would be open for its first class of 200 to 250 students in September 2003, and campus buildings would be complete by 2006, the year the university will hit its cap of 1,100 students.

The university's draft academic plan is also largely complete. A copy provided to The Chief by Strangway outlines its academic principles, proposed courses and a plan for hiring faculty. Strangway said the ratio of students to faculty will be 10 to 1 or better, meaning at least 110 faculty will be hired, about half of who will be full-time.

The university will be the first in Canada to organize its academic year on a block plan, meaning that rather than taking five courses concurrently, students will take one course at a time in-depth, with each course running three and a half weeks.

The university will run year-round so students can take up to 12 courses per year and finish a degree in as little as 30 months, and the block plan will allow the university to hire special lecturers in specialty fields on a short-term basis, Strangway pointed out. "We think this will be an attraction to bring in some very interesting people as instructors."

An advisory board for the university will also be named in the next few weeks with its first meeting scheduled in January. Strangway said the board will have at least one representative from Squamish.

Pub owner 11th council candidate

By TIM SHOULTS
Editor

Eivind Tornes has joined the growing ranks of people who plan to run for council in this fall's municipal elections.

Tornes, who owns the Shady Tree Neighborhood Pub in Brackendale and also works as a forest contractor, declared his candidacy to The Chief Thursday in a letter to the editor.

Tornes, who came to Squamish six years ago, says the community needs to rekindle its optimism and spirit by welcoming investment and creating a healthy economy.

He cites Alberta premier Ralph Klein's call to get government off the backs of people. "It seems to work for Alberta and Ontario, and there is no reason why it should not work for Squamish," he says.

The full text of Tornes' letter appears on page 12.

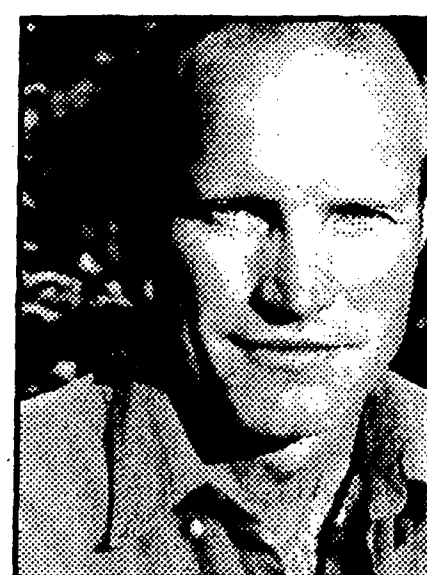

So far incumbent councillors Dave Young, Lyle Fenton, Sandra Bauer and Paul Lalli have declared their intention to run for office, as have Wendy Magee, Rick King, Bill Howard, Cheryle Bass, Raj Kahlon, Mohammad Afsar and now Tornes.

Mayor Corinne Lonsdale and Coun. Meg Fellowes are the only two people to announce bids for the mayor's chair.

Nominations close Oct. 15 for the Nov. 20 vote.

Also in elections news, the Squamish-Lillooet Regional District is open for nominations for directors for Electoral Areas A, B, C and D from 9 a.m. on Oct. 5 until 4 p.m. Oct. 15.

Nominations can be received at the SLRD office at 1350 Aster St. Pemberton.

The BBBCA will also look at forming a housing society in anticipation of a title transfer of the community-occupied lands to the current tenants by Copper Beach Estates Ltd. and will discuss an expansion of the foreshore tenure held by the BBBCA with a proposal that plans to expand upon the marine facilities and develop the commercial dock area at the south end of Britannia in partnership with local business interests.

Candidate suffers heart attack

Squamish council candidate Mohammad Afsar is in Lions Gate hospital following a reported heart attack. The severity of the attack and his current condition are unknown.

The retired district manager of special projects could not be reached for comment on whether his candidacy will be affected.

Transit petition starts

The question of direct transit to Brennan Park Leisure Centre is coming to a store near you.

Mina Dickinson is taking her petition to return direct bus service to the Leisure Centre to local businesses and malls, looking for community support.

"I think it's very important to improve the buses to the Civic Centre instead of eliminating them," she said Wednesday.

New routes begun Aug. 23 have buses coming no closer than Government Road at Centennial Way.

"I'm thinking 2-3,000 signatures," said Dickinson. "This is the first time I've done anything like this; I'm just going to do the best I can."

Accident closes highway

Commuters and travelers along Hwy. 99 had a major traffic headache to contend with Friday night.

A single-vehicle accident occurred about 1 km north of Horseshoe Bay just before 4 p.m. West Vancouver RCMP said the female driver slid off the road and collided with a rock face and landed sideways in the ditch.

The accident blocked both lanes of traffic for almost two hours as rescue crews attended to the driver and her two passengers.

After the injured were taken to hospital with non-life-threatening injuries, only one lane of traffic was opened as a police collision analysis team arrived on scene to conduct their investigation. Both lanes were reopened just after 6 p.m.

Police are still investigating the cause of the crash.

Police/fire roof to be replaced

The leaking south section of the roof of the building housing Squamish's RCMP and fire rescue headquarters is finally getting more than a patch job. Council awarded the roof replacement contract to Pacific Restorations, the only company to tender a bid, for $50,105.

A roof consultant's report has stated the 20-year-old roof will continue to leak until it is replaced.

Camp rebuilt, Interfor 'opens' forest

BY DARREN GALLAGHER
Reporter

International Forest Products (Interfor) employees are being taught how to avoid the confrontations sure to follow the re-establishment of an environmental protest camp in the Elaho Valley Saturday.

Apart from teaching loggers how protesters work and how to avoid confrontations and defuse potentially dangerous situations, Interfor erected a banner near the entrance to Tree Farm Licence (TFL) 38 Monday.

It reads: "Welcome to our Tree Farm. We the workers pledge to work safely, peacefully and responsibly in your forest."

Interfor workers and contractors signed the banner on their way into work Monday morning.

The banner, Interfor's workshop, and the Sept. 19 protest outside Sauder's home in Vancouver are all in response to an incident in the Elaho Sept. 15 that saw an anti-logging protest camp dismantled.

Protesters and a conservationist doing research in the Elaho who was injured in the incident say at least 100 loggers attacked the camp, first destroying all camera equipment and then assaulting environmentalists at the camp before burning it to the ground.

"We don't condone what happened, but we certainly won't apologize for what happened out there," IWA Canada representative Sonny Rioux said at Interfor's seminar Friday.

"These people aren't fighting for the TFL, they're fighting for their families, their children, their jobs."

IWA local 2171 president Darrel Wong said Sunday the union "looks forward to a thorough police investigation of all the events and circumstances of what happened in the Elaho Valley."

He claimed that protesters have been regularly vandalizing equipment, assaulted police in an arrest attempt at the camp Sept. 5 and even attempted to assault the son of an Interfor staff member with a hammer.

Interfor president Duncan Davies has called for a cooling-off period and said a high-priority review of possible resolutions to the situation has been set in motion.

"We will hold off logging in a 25-acre area ... that has a concentration of about 60 very old Douglas firs," Davies said.

"We have requested UBC forest ecologists to undertake a study to determine the age, distribution and condition of these trees."

Interfor chief forester Ric

Slaco said Friday the area was not being logged, and the road building will not be affected by Davies' pledge.

"No one was working there; the message was that these trees aren't in immediate danger," he said.

Slaco also said while UBC had been contacted a couple weeks ago, before the incident, it is uncertain what would happen if environmentalist claims of these trees being Canada's oldest are confirmed.

Interfor management has said the incident was sparked by the report of a tree-sitter blocking road construction north of Lava Creek. Thirteen people have been arrested for breaking a court injunction not to interfere with the work.

The tree-sitter, an SFU student calling himself Guillermo, said Sept. 19 rocks were thrown at him for three hours by Interfor workers.

He also said the tree he was in was partly cut, and two trees were felled nearby, one hitting an Interfor truck.

"Because they had already destroyed my camera and no one was videotaping them, I truly believed they were going to kill me," he said.

Dog adopted from pound turns vicious

BY IAN JACQUES
Reporter

A trip to the Squamish dog pound to adopt a new pet turned into a huge headache for a local resident.

Dog owner Amy Huska said she recently adopted a three-year-old shepherd and was told by the dog pound staff that the dog has an excellent temperament and was never aggressive.

"I took her home and the next thing you know she was attacking my four-month-old puppy," Huska said. "When I went to put a leash on her, she tried to bite my face."

Huska said the next day she took the dog back to the pound, wanted the dog taken back and her money refunded.

"I was refused the money that I paid for her," Huska said.

"I had the dog for 48 hours and that was not worth what I went through with that dog."

Huska added that the dogs at the pound deserve a chance and a good home, but to not be told about a dog's temperament is unsafe and disgusting.

"I'm not very happy with the pound," Huska said. "It's the first dog I've adopted from the pound, and I don't know if I'll go back."

Trudy Coates, Manager of Administrative Services for the District of Squamish, said it's not in the pound staff's benefit not to disclose information about what the dog's temperament is like.

"If we know the past history of the dog, then the owner should be told," Coates said. "We're aware of this particular incident and it's unfortunate that this happened."

Coates said pet owners wishing to adopt have to sign a waiver before taking the animal home.

It reads "I understand that the District of Squamish Animal Control Officer accepts no responsibility for the present or future condition of the animal or any action of the animal."

Coates said when adopting a pet, she would like to remind people to seriously consider the choice before adopting.

"People should spend time with the pet and make sure," Coates said. "To my knowledge these people did. It was just a bad case and by no means should this incident alarm people."

FRBC money to build trails at Loggers Creek, Rose Park

BY DARREN GALLAGHER
Reporter

Loggers Creek and Rose Park trails will be constructed with $50,000 in aid from Forest Renewal B.C. (FRBC), district staff hope.

The appeal for FRBC will come in the 244 man-days of labor it will provide to displaced forest workers. They would construct 3.15 kilometres of public trail south of Finch Drive between Hwy. 99 and Loggers Lane.

The trail would split after crossing

Loggers Creek, one branch following the creek's east bank, the other circling almost all the way to Loggers Lane. The trails would meet up at the Mamquam Blind Channel and follow its bank to the Hwy. 99 bridge.

"This will be built to a standard Squamish will be proud of," economic development officer Brent Leigh told council Sept. 21.

"This trail has been a dream for at least five years," Coun. Meg Fellowes said.

The district's share will be $15,000 cash and $15,000 worth of staff time. Public works, economic development and the environmental co-ordinator will each contribute $5,000 from their budgets to cover the cash cost.

The remaining $18,000 of the project cost has been contributed by community members.

There is some urgency to the application; FRBC will be ending its funding for recreation projects next March.

Council approved making the application, though Coun. Paul Lalli was concerned the trail could impact on future development totals, including proposals for a BMX park or a pitch and putt.

"When we move forward three or four years, when people walk down those trails, will they recognize that forest industry money went into those trails?" asked Mayor Corinne Lonsdale.

Leigh said FRBC would be recognized on signs at the trail heads.

Though the trails will be very low maintenance, a budget would have to be established, he added.

Raccoon poisoning kills cats

By TIM SHOULTS
Editor

People know a fed bear is a dead bear — but did you know a fed raccoon can mean a dead cat?

Recurring raccoon problems in Timbertown and Spiral trailer courts are leading some people to take matters into their own hands and leave out antifreeze to poison the animals, said conservation officer Dan LeGrandeur.

But the poisoned water left out to kill raccoons also attracts domestic animals, and led to the death of one cat in Timbertown Sept. 20.

Raccoons have been a problem in the trailer courts for years because some individuals feed them, LeGrandeur said. While it's not an offence under the Wildlife Act to feed them, it leads to large numbers in the area burrowing into trailers and causing property damage. This summer, one raccoon was reported going into a trailer and attacking a cat.

"The residents of Timbertown are frustrated and they have good cause to be," LeGrandeur said.

Live-trapping the animals is the only way to legally remove them, and is difficult because as soon as some are removed, others move in.

But poisoning isn't the way to get rid of them, LeGrandeur said.

"It's a very cruel way. The animal dies very painfully, and it'll also kill domestic animals. This is not the proper way to go about it."

It's also an offence under the Wildlife Act and is punishable by fines of up to $50,000, six months in jail or both.

So far, LeGrandeur has no suspects in last week's poisoning.

LeGrandeur is urging residents to take preventative steps to keep the raccoons away, such as removing outdoor food sources such as pet dishes, properly storing garbage and above all, not feeding the raccoons.

Residents can call the Conservation Office in Squamish at 892-5971 for further advice on how to deal with raccoons.

Recreation patrols on in corridor

By IAN JACQUES
Reporter

Two provincial agencies are teaming up to begin regulating recreation areas in Sea to Sky Country.

The B.C. Assets and Land Corporation (BCAL) and the Ministry of Environment Lands and Parks are working in partnership to patrol the area.

According to Sandy Poggemiller, communications advisor for BCAL, the program started in 1995 when the ministry commissioned a study in the corridor at the urging of various stakeholders and recreation operators.

"The study was completed in 1996 and it showed a wide range of commercial recreation opportunities in the area," Poggemiller said Sept. 12. The study also identified potential conflicts for public recreation and commercial opportunities such as organized mountain climbing, river rafting or hiking tours.

Poggemiller said the study identified these areas and commercial operators were then asked to start applying for tenure to operate legally in the area.

Conservation officers from the ministry began using all-terrain vehicles to criss-cross through the back-country in an area that encompasses Squamish, Whistler and the Pemberton Valley. The officers look for commercial recreation operations that are doing business without permission to operate on Crown land.

"The officers are aware of who has tenure and who doesn't," Poggemiller said.

They give out written material and if they find groups that are operating without tenure, they advise them of the program.

Poggemiller said lots of interest was shown in the program, but due to government restructuring it was put on hold until May of last year.

"We're in a planning process right now," Poggemiller said. Phase One is a fact-finding mission that allows BCAL to find out where the commercial areas are, create maps, talk to user groups, First Nations and any other interested parties.

"Phase Two is now underway and the focus of this is to identify appropriate areas of commercial recreational activities so it has minimal conflict with others," Poggemiller said.

Because the planning process is underway all applications are on hold, but BCAL expects commercial recreation operations to make applications for tenure.

"If they don't establish themselves, they are in violation of the Lands Act."

Council to vote on Britannia plan again

DARREN GALLAGHER
Reporter

its Oct. 12 committee of whole meeting council will consider giving support to the Britannia remediation order after withdrawing it two weeks ago.

The motion was brought forward by Coun. Meg Fellowes, who was the only one to vote against council drawing support.

The motion's conditions included the remediation having no harm now or in the future, immediate formation of a public advisory body to monitor all stages of the project and the completion by both technical and community people of the studies required by the environment ministry.

Fellowes also wanted to see the province commit resources to solve issues not addressed in the permit application project. These include highway access, housing and title issues of Britannia Beach residents and governance.

The motion was referred to Oct. 12 to allow extended discussion of the issue.

Council will invite SLRD electoral Area D director Pam Tattersfield to the meeting.

Developer committee named

The proposed developer/liaison committee took form as its membership was appointed Sept. 21. Council voted to make it a council-related committee, giving formal minutes and giving advice to council staff, with appointments made by council rather than administrator.

The membership of the developer/staff liaison committee is meant to represent all sectors of the development community. Terms are for two years, with half the appointees changing each year. The first year, half the committee will serve only one year. Members of the public cannot serve more than two consecutive terms.

Meetings will be held every two months. Members missing more than half will be asked to resign.

The list includes Jorgen

Bysse for the residential sector; Ted Prior and Wilf Dowad, commercial; Ueli Liechti, industrial; Bjorn Nilsson, realty; Darwin Lamont, engineering; Michael Jorden, architecture; Graham Farstad, land use planning; and Peter Gordon and Mary Cue, general development.

A representative for landscape architecture has not yet been chosen.

Seven J's permit fasttracked by council

Council granted a request to rezone and develop the permit approval for new health services building Sept. 21.

John Lowe of Seven J's Development Ltd. appeared at council to explain the government had given his company a completion deadline of Feb. 1, 2000. He said all the local contractors and suppliers are committed a very tight time-frame and any delay at the permit stage would have large repercussions.

Lowe asked council to quickly approve the project's building permit.

District administrator Grant McRadu said accelerating the permit is not unusual in other municipalities, though not common practice in Squamish. He said there could be problems with other projects already lined up for registration and with the district's building inspector being out until October.

The one-storey building at 1140 Hunter Place will house the Coast Garibaldi Health Unit and the mental health unit, now located in separate offices on Second Avenue.

Non-profit housing plan still possible

By TIM SHOULTS
Editor

With Squamish's sawmill back in operation with two full shifts, the plan to bring a manufactured housing factory to Squamish is dead.

But the Squamish Non-Profit Housing Association (SNPHA), which hopes to build low-cost housing on Crown land in the Cheekye Fan, still hopes to profit from a variation in the plan.

Last winter, with Squamish's sawmill closed, Interfor officials and SNPHA project manager Wil Croxall were talking with Fleetwood Homes to convince them to build a factory on the sawmill site to service B.C.

The SNPHA has made a proposal to the B.C. Housing Management Commission to build up to 3,000 homes on 600 acres of government-owned land in the Cheekye Fan.

Croxall said the group also has an agreement with Fleetwood to provide the homes at cost, meaning locals could own 1,200-square-foot homes for as little as $51,000 plus $200 per month in land rent if the company sets up a factory here in B.C.

Fleetwood decided against setting up a factory in Squamish this spring, but is actively considering a site in Abbotsford, said Croxall, who visited Fleetwood head office in January.

Provincial officials are currently organizing a visit to Fleetwood by Employment and Investment Minister Mike Farnworth this fall to solidify that deal.

If Fleetwood agrees, Croxall said, the SNPHA will be the closest it's been to getting affordable housing in Squamish since it formed 10 years ago.

But once the factory is in place, the SNPHA still can't build in the area until protective dikes are built. Ron Hansen of the B.C. Housing Management Commission said the group's proposal has been received but won't receive approval until the diking issue is resolved.

Neil Peters of the Ministry of Environment, Lands and Parks said the provincial government and the District of Squamish have a policy in place not to release any new Crown land or subdivide private land for building until diking is completed.

Peters couldn't say how much such a dike would cost, but said it would be up to the municipality to spearhead the project and apply for funding through the provincial flood protection program. "There are all kinds of issues to be solved," he said.

Croxall said the province is refusing to build new dikes because the District of Squamish opposes paying for maintenance on existing dikes. "They won't be realistic," said Croxall.

The SNPHA is trying to arrange a meeting with new provincial Environment Ministry Joan Sawicki to put pressure on the province to install dikes and allow the project to go forward, as is the local Church of Jesus Christ Latter Day Saints, whose temple sits on unprotected land in the Fan, to push for diking, Croxall said.

The SNPHA has also sent information on its project to prospective candidates for the NDP leadership and to the Squamish Nation, Croxall said. It has also set up a committee to interview candidates in this fall's municipal elections.

Police Blotter

Shoplifter banned from most stores

Squamish RCMP along with the business community have gone beyond the traditional methods against a now shoplifter. Const. Dan Seward said on Sept. 18, police received a report of youths throwing mud balls at passing cars along Hwy. 99 around the Shell gas station. Cpl. Jamie Zettler said patrols were made, but none of the youths were located. "We just want to remind the public that this is a dangerous practice and the potential for a major accident is quite high," Zettler said. "A swerving vehicle along the highway could mean a lot of trouble."

Shoplifting charges are pending against two Squamish youths after they stole some items from the 7-11 food store on Cleveland Avenue on Sept. 18. Zettler said the incident took place around 2 a.m. and the suspects were located in the area a short time later.

Just before 11 p.m. on Sept. 18, police were called to a Government Road residence after a break-and-enter occurred. Zettler said CDs and alcohol were taken from the residence.

An Arizona man was charged with failing to obey a traffic light after he ran threw a red light and caused a two-car accident on Sept. 19. Zettler said the man traveling in his rental Pontiac Grand Am ran the stop light near Hwy. 99 and Garibaldi Way colliding with a Volvo driven by a Squamish man. A passenger in the suffered minor injuries, but neither driver was injured in the crash.

Impaired driving charges are pending against a Squamish man after he was pulled over by police on Sept. 19. Zettler said patrols spotted the man driving erratically along Government Road. The man was pulled over, asked to give breath samples, and he was found to be more than double the legal limit.

Seward said a probation order now exists prohibiting them from entering Squamish businesses without expressed consent of the shop owner. Police officers attended the shops and supplied a format letter with two options," Seward said. "One option was giving Julien permission to be in the shop and the other denied permission." Seward said there are over 10 shops participating in this initiative and only three businesses opted to allow Julien their premise. This is a resounding message from the business community on their zero tolerance on shoplifting," Seward said.

Rail crossing fix approved

By DARREN GALLAGHER
Reporter

BC Rail's offer to pay for a quarter of repairs to rail crossings at Cleveland Avenue and Loggers Lane and finance the district's share is a good one, council decided Sept. 21.

Council voted 4-2 to accept BC Rail's offer to fund the entire $102,000 repair in 1999. The district's $77,000 share will not be due until 2000.

Mayor Corinne Lonsdale and Coun. Paul Lalli were opposed, wanting to see if a better deal could be negotiated when Lonsdale meets with BC Rail management Oct. 8.

BC Rail has a history of paying for some or all of repairs to these crossings, though it is not required to pay anything.

"The junior party to the crossing is obligated for the maintenance and repair of the crossing [under the rail safety code]," Doug Carabetta, BC Rail's manager of engineering services, said Sept. 14.

"In this case the District of Squamish is junior to the crossing at Cleveland and Loggers Lane."

BC Rail's offer to Squamish is without precedent, he said.

"We certainly don't want to get into a situation where every municipality expects the railway to provide partial funding or interim financing," Carabetta said.

Coun. Lyle Fenton said if council decided to renegotiate the deal, BC Rail could withdraw their offer.

The $102,000 estimate is based on replacing the rubber mats with asphalt, Carabetta said. The "deluxe treatment" of laying a concrete pad under the rails is costlier and still unproven, though a two-year-old trial pad is showing no wear under similar conditions.

voted against offer

Fire prevention bylaw goes ahead

By DARREN GALLAGHER
Reporter

Council gave first three readings Sept. 21 to amendments to the fire prevention bylaw sparked by complaints from Garibaldi Highlands residents about a legal open-air burn last year.

Class A burn permits will have additional conditions, including the material must be cured at least six months prior to light-up, material must be arranged in windrows at most 100 metres long and eight metres wide and separated by at least 15 metres, a water source of at least 13,640 litres must be on site and blowers developing 139 cubic metres per minute must be used throughout the burn to accelerate the fire.

Other changes will allow selling of fireworks on occasions other than Halloween.

Deputy fire chief Ray

Saurette said Sept. 14 the celebrations of New Year's 2000 were in mind when the change was proposed.

Certification for chimney sweepers is also being deleted. Saurette said when it was first passed there were two or three certified companies in town and a number of uncertified ones doing inadequate cleaning. He said as those certified companies are no longer in business in Squamish, certification is too onerous a requirement, as homeowners must bring in an outside company.

Vehicle cost fees, which Saurette said are almost twice that of the Lower Mainland, are being lowered.

An aerial truck will now cost $250 an hour, a pumper truck $150, a rescue vehicle $100, and small vehicles $60. All but the small vehicles classification include a minimum two-hour charge.

Enviro award created

BY DARREN GALLAGHER
Reporter

Environmentally-friendly corporate and non-profit entities deserve a reward and recognition. Jas Michalski is going to give them some.

The district's environmental co-ordinator's new Environmental Achievement Award was endorsed by council Sept. 21.

"This award will serve to recognize and raise community awareness of the environmental works being undertaken in our community," Michalski wrote in a report to council. "There are numerous individuals and organizations in Squamish who actively work for the betterment of the natural environment. [They] show by example that pursuing commercial interests need

"This award will serve to recognize and raise awareness of the environmental works being undertaken..."

not be in conflict with environmental enhancement."

Awards will be presented annually in two categories, corporate (businesses, corporations, developers) and non-profit (citizens, schools, church groups, service groups). Criteria will include ecological initiatives (composting, carpooling), habitat enhancements (streamside planting, native plant gardens), volunteering and education value.

A panel chaired by Michalski will make recommendations to council for winners. Awards will be presented at a council meeting or another civic event chosen by council. Winners will have their names engraved on a plaque hung in Municipal Hall. "I think it will encourage others to build on that sort of work," Michalski said.

He added he hoped competition in the schools would help them work for big projects.

For this year, any project completed since 1995 can be nominated before the Dec. 24 entry deadline.

Nomination forms can be picked up at Municipal Hall, the library or at www.district.squamish.bc.ca.

EDITORIAL

Double meaning

The battle of the Elaho Valley is back to being a war of words — but the fever pitch remains — and so, it seems, does the hypocrisy.

Amongst the pages of press releases flying back and forth, one quote from Colleen McCrory of the Valhalla Wilderness Society, one of the groups jumping in to make hay out of the loggers' unfortunate attack on the protest camp Sept. 15, jumped out and begged for attention.

"We can't have a vigilante group taking the law into their own hands," she stated in calling for a full RCMP investigation.

One question: is she referring to the loggers who attacked the camp or the protesters who have been willfully breaking the law for over a month now by defying the orders of the B.C. Supreme Court's injunction — not to mention the ongoing vandalism to Interfor equipment in the area and the threats of violence by some of the tree-sitters when faced with arrest?

Obviously she's referring to the loggers — but when you think about it, it's just as appropriate when applied to the protesters. Rather than lobbying the provincial government or Interfor's head office for changes, they're out there in the faces of the people trying to do their jobs, not the people paid to make the decisions the environmentalists want made. And they're breaking the law.

Joe Foy of the Western Canada Wilderness Committee is guilty of the same type of selective vision. Last month in this paper Foy called the protesters in the PATH camp "Canadian heroes" for their non-violent civil disobedience, while emphasizing the WCWC's policy on staying within the boundaries of the law. But WCWC's association with PATH — and a WCWC member's presence at the protest camp at the time of the attack — speak louder than Foy's words.

Conservation groups who cry non-violence and legal tactics are sadly all too willing to turn a blind eye to the tactics of the extremists on their own side of the issue — but let a logger or an RCMP officer step over the line and it's abominable.

In the end, that argument won't wash. Illegal activity is either condoned or it isn't — and association of "legal" protest groups with those who break the law will tar both with the same brush. The contention that environmentalists can flaunt the law and the loggers can only sit there and take it is a "heads-I-win, tails-you-lose" argument.

This is by no means a justification of what that group of loggers did in the Upper Elaho two weeks ago — as we noted last week, not only were their actions morally and legally wrong, they also created more sympathetic press for their opponents in a few hours than a month and a half of tree-sitting had accomplished.

But some of the complaints from the "good" environmentalists, for lack of a better term, smack of hypocrisy.

Part-time minister, full-time campaigner

Like many in the workforce, Gordon Wilson is moving from full-time work to part-time work. The problem is, the part-time job is being B.C.'s Minister of Education, a job he traded with Paul Ramsey for Finance last week as the NDP clears the decks for a long, drawn-out leadership campaign.

Voters might be surprised and/or offended to see Education being treated as a ministry that can be run by a minister whose highest priority is campaigning to become premier, while Finance is deserving of full-time attention.

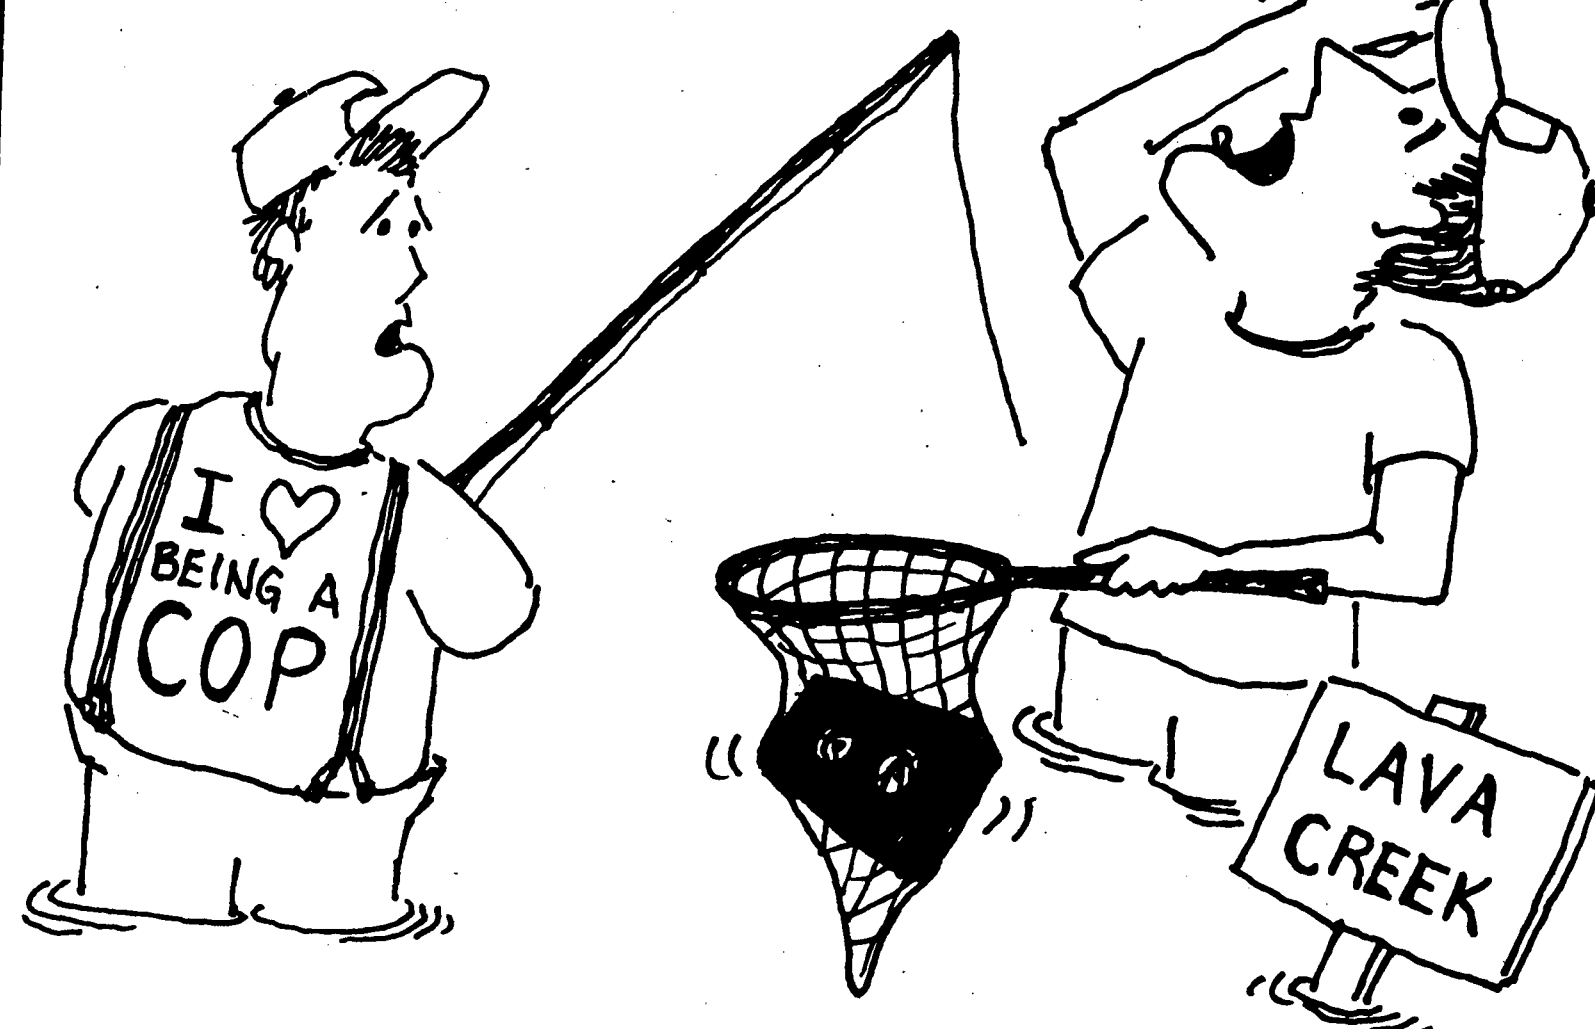

Of course, Wilson's trading Finance for Education wouldn't have anything to do with the fact that some of the government's biggest embarrassments have to do with bungles like the provincial deficit and the "fudge-it" budgets of the past.

That's if it was, indeed, his choice rather than a demotion orchestrated by those opposing his leadership bid as is suspected. Either way, campaigning is getting in the way of governing this province.

In the end, though, it won't make much difference which portfolio Wilson takes on; nobody in the NDP is likely to be doing much governing between now and February.

Maybe that's just as well, given their track record.

Tale of the tapes

If words are weapons, then the video camera is the big gun in the 1990s. The proliferation of inexpensive, portable recorders means just about anybody can tell — and show — a story more clearly and with more impact than ever before.

That's especially true in the struggle between loggers and protesters in the Elaho Valley. Every time a logger or a police officer has faced a protester since this began there's been a camcorder pointed back at them — and it's no coincidence that the first things the loggers went after Sept. 15 were the cameras.

But the lack of video evidence works both ways: the loggers I've spoken to say that environmentalists' claims of savage beatings and even attempted rape are huge exaggerations of what actually happened on that day.

But even when it's there the camera is still as subjective an eye as any, and "impartial" videos can be used to spin one side or the other.

That's clear from the tape dropped off at our office last week by the Western Canada Wilderness Committee. The Greenpeace-produced 14-minute tape interviews those assaulted in the Sept. 15 incident, interspersed with audio clips of protesters being arrested and sweeping helicopter shots of the valley.

The spin is clear from the moment that the narrator tells you the protest camp "had been there for years" until the Sept. 15 attack — this is no impartial documentary; this is a video press release.

It's been said recently that the environmentalists have been much more media-savvy than the loggers in this recent conflict — but that's changing. Yesterday I was invited up to Interfor's shop at Mile 22 to take pictures of their "Welcome to our Tree Farm" banner — and met a cameraman filming footage for Interfor.

Dal Shemko, who organized the shoot, freely admits the loggers are behind in the spin struggle: "They've documented every bad thing we've ever done and we don't have a thing — and there's been a lot that's happened to us."

Now they're closing the gap besides taking pictures of loggers signing the banner and shots of loggers reasonably explaining their frustration and their simple desire to work, they were up at the newly-reestablished protest camp documenting what they claim has been ongoing vandalism of Interfor equipment, including human feces left in seats of vehicles and machines.

It was interesting getting the behind-the-scenes look at the making of a video press release. I'm looking forward to seeing the finished version.

LETTER OF THE WEEK

Illegal immigration defrauding Canada

Editor,

Congratulations to Bill Howard on his recent letter on immigration. May I reiterate, no, it does not take a rocket scientist to know what is happening here. Canadian people have long been aware of the fraud that is taking place. Some time ago one of Canada's foremost authorities on immigration, Kimberley Abbott of Balderson, Ont., began speaking out with on the fraudulent immigrants and illegal refugees entering this country. Very few citizens and bureaucrats were listening. Canadian citizens, legal landed immigrants and some politicians are more than bullish on this issue, but we know it is not "politically correct" to flaunt the flag in the name of justice.

There is an abundance of statistics that point to the drain on our health care, education, welfare, police force and military funding that is scraping the bottom of the barrel for funds to stretch the band a little further. We in this country are at the last step to the altar where we have begun to shed the cloak of nicety.

Let's do battle with this federal government, let the Minister of Immigration, Elinor Caplan and the Prime Minister, Jean Chretien, know where you will place your vote come the next federal election. Listen, think and make yourself aware of the fraud that we are embellished with, be it deception at the accountability level or are we being depreciated to believe the infiltration of scum, illiterate, illegal refugees that are criminals to begin with and be given the utmost kid glove treatment on arrival. My opinion is be swift, kind, respectful, and state the empirical law of this nation. Yes, Mr. Howard after re-reading this I sound like the rest of the 'so political' Canadians. Our ancestors came and saw and conquered a land with dignity and respect with the Bible in one hand and a plough in the other. Shame on us to let our government lead us to the Fourth World. Take up your pen and write to your Member of Parliament (it costs not one penny) or Immigration Minister Elinor Caplan.

Community hospitals need support

Editor,
"community hospital" now has a meaning...
I never wanted to die in a hospital — he had worked in one for over 30 years. He loved his family dearly, the open space of his farm, and the beauty of nature. A husband of 49 years, a father of five boys, and a grandfather of four children, he died at 81 years of age, while receiving the best care possible in a small community hospital.
Until last week, when I witnessed the passing of my father-in-law in a hospital in a rural town one hour northeast of Toronto, I never realized the unique services and quality of care available in a small community hospital. Previously my belief was that larger city hospitals, with high technology equipment and specialized services, were where I would receive better health care — yet I now know that this is not necessarily so. After sleeping on a cot alongside of my husband and his dying father in room 106, my eyes opened to more clearly see the unique services and quality of care provided to families and communities by these smaller local hospitals.

The Port Perry Community Memorial Hospital, which boasts of strong community support, embraced our family as we sought to create a "home away from home" for our dying father.

Over the course of 13 days, 13 members of the immediate family routinely frequented room 106 and were active participants with the health care professionals in delivering compassionate and top quality care during the final days and hours. The hospital garden offered healing moments and tables for our numerous family picnics.

The medical library became our living room, bedroom and office as we sought to support our father and each other as we prepared for his death. I learned a lot about my husband's family, about love, life and dying, about compassion and quality nursing care.

During the continuous process of health care rationalization and budget reductions, of facilities and services are mandatory as we (through our government) focus on better care in a more cost-effective manner. In so doing I now wonder and encourage you to consider if our community hospital is at risk?

A "community hospital" has a new meaning to me, and I wish to extend my gratitude to all the staff and health care professionals at the Port Perry Community Memorial Hospital. I also now believe, with greater wisdom and experience, in the value of our community hospital, and in the contribution of the staff and health care professionals who work to provide us with quality care.

I encourage everyone to support our community hospital in whatever way you can, to enable Squamish General Hospital to be the best it can be — to continue to provide local health care services to our community.

Eco-terrorists go home

Editor,
The Protected Area Strategy and the Core Process were conducted by the Provincial Government to determine which ecosystems should be preserved in British Columbia. Both processes were based on scientific facts and all interested parties were invited to participate in the discussions and the decisions. Everyone involved compromised in order to find workable solutions and reach consensus. No party was completely satisfied but the process was finished.

Some preservationist groups refused to participate in the process. They were not interested in finding solutions. They were only interested in confrontation. Their goal is to obtain media coverage to enhance their fundraising ability. They have created an industry for themselves at the expense of our forest industry, an industry that supports our province.

The preservationists have no right protesting in Tree Farm License 38. The Protected Area Strategy has been completed. The Clendenning (an entire watershed, approximately 30,000 hectares) and other parks have been created in TFL 38 and the Squamish Forest District through that process. The eco-terrorists should go home, find something productive to do with their time and let the loggers go back to work so our province and our citizens can prosper.

Britannia cleanup fast-track alarming

Editor,
The proposed Britannia landfill toxic dump site proposal presented by Copper Beach Estates Ltd. is currently, in my opinion, being fast-tracked at an alarming rate, with the apparent approval of the Ministry of the Environment (MOE). It is imperative that we demand a full and thorough environmental assessment of these dubious proposals. Copper Beach Estates Ltd. and Mr. Drummond claim that they will lose their potential investors if approval isn't granted without the necessity of an environmental assessment. This notion in itself could serve as a warning as to the nature of the beast, which left unchecked, would create a dangerous precedent setting scenario, by which any foolhardy, potentially environmentally damaging proposal could claim equal consideration. Without delving into the hypocrisy and downright ludicrous options being proposed, I would demand that the proponents be afforded the same environmental assessment process as any other potentially environmentally hazardous proposal would receive, without any option for exception, and if this makes the investors back out, we won't need to continue with the process.

I would also suggest, that in light of the recent criminal charges brought against Mr. Drummond, any potential investor would be insane to invest until Mr. Drummond has had the opportunity to answer in a court of law.

There isn't anybody that wouldn't love to see the continuing toxic run-off problem in Britannia Beach be resolved, but I cannot accept the proponents hypotheses that dumping toxic wastes from various industrial operations throughout the Pacific Northwest, including the USA through Free Trade demands, will in any way help to resolve the existing problem. Their proposal also gives CBEL the perfect set-up to deflect a responsibility or repercussions for their planned action, and leaves everyone else trying to sort out whose mess it is. Where toxic heavy metal runoff is concerned, Mother Nature will eventually take care of it. We can assist her by establishing a series of artificial swamps, each interconnected to each other and engineered specifically to biologically extract the contaminants.

Buses to Brennan

Editor,

One of the reasons that people like myself were not using the bus to Brennan Park Leisure Centre was because the time of the programs available at the centre seldom coincided with the bus schedule. So we had to rely on our friends or family to get a ride. Sometimes we enrolled in a program and then hoped that someone who lives close to us is taking the same thing and we can catch a ride with them.

Instead of fixing and improving the problem and encouraging people to take the bus by having more direct buses from downtown to the Leisure Centre and back, they eliminate what is available. Whose logic was that? Do you know how many programs get cancelled because there are not enough registered? Why do you think that is? Only people who have a vehicle are able to take advantage of the programs. The funny thing is that they sell the bus passes and have the Rider's Guide available at Brennan Park. What for or who for?

I have a four-year-old and enrolled him in a couple of programs. Now I have to catch the bus from Dentville, go all the way to the Highlands and back to be dropped off by Centennial and the highway, then try to run across the highway because the overpass is not passable. I don't know how much money we are saving, but even one child's safety is more important than any amount of money.

All of this bus adventure would take at least three to four hours because we will get there early and have to wait a couple of hours to catch the bus back home. Do you think my son would want to go back after such a tiring day? Seniors go to Brennan Park for different activities as well and there are few of them who have to rely on the bus. What are we doing to make it more accessible for them?

I can go on and talk about the problems with the current bus schedule, but I decided to do something about it. I am starting a petition to ask council not only to put the Leisure Centre back on the bus route, but also to make the trip more frequently. After all, we have only one Leisure Centre in Squamish and it is the place that the election will take place. So it only makes sense to make it more accessible to the public, unless we prefer fewer voters.

Halt protests now

Editor,

Re: article in the Province, Sept. 20: (Elaho protester says she'll sue International Forest Products Ltd.)

This woman, and her group, can't expect the public to take her seriously. Just think for one second the damage and cost to all us taxpayers that these groups create. Some of these environmental issues are getting to the point of ridiculousness, and it's got to come to a halt. Not next week, not next month, but now!

This woman, if I may call her that, is a sight for sore eyes. She looks more like a starving artist who has lost her way. Any violence shown this group is only brought on by themselves. They are interfering in someone's livelihood, and have done for years and have had a big impact on ruining the forest industry in B.C.

The forest industry have cleaned up their act tremendously in the last couple of decades and they still have to put up with these hooligans, and it's about time they were put in their place, or better yet put to work crushing rock or making licence plates, at least they would be doing something beneficial for themselves and this country.

These loggers are only trying to make a decent living to keep food on the table for their families. That's more than these people will ever do for society. Most of them don't know what working for a living means. This is their life and I for one am sick and tired of seeing their pictures and stories in the daily papers, besides living off the taxpayer, either welfare or government grants.

I wonder who supports their "cause" behind the scenes that keep all these people protesting everything that comes along. Someone is and I think the public should know. I feel this is the issue and the facts should be brought to light. When are the daily newspapers going to do the job they're supposed to do, bring out the truth with facts and print it. Let's demand this and quit giving people like this painted artist space in the paper for her dastardly cause, when she should be doing something beneficial to help her country instead of destroying it along with the rest of the protesters.

Why Ternes is running

Editor,

Why run for council?

I came to Canada from Norway 20 years ago in search of new opportunities, high spirits and an open and proactive people. I found all of that, as well as the most beautiful nature right here in Squamish, a community I have had the pleasure to be part of for six years.

Somehow I now feel that some of the optimism and spirit has gone. Most of this can be blamed on the lack-luster local economy we are experiencing, resulting in many people having to move outside the community to find work, or do the tough commute to Whistler or Vancouver.

Snow-capped mountains, clean air and amazing scenery is great, and also one of the reasons why I moved to Squamish. But one cannot live on air and scenery alone, we also need a healthy economy, where people can work and live within the community.

Lately this has been lacking, taking away part of the optimism and positive thinking we treasure the most.

To become part of the council I hope to turn this around and start to say yes, we do welcome investments and companies that bring with them jobs and activity. Yes, we can make good decisions without spending taxpayer's money on consulting fees and endless studies.

Yes, we can create a healthy economy, lower taxes, and build our infrastructure and recreation facilities without going further into debt. Alberta's premier Mr. Ralph Klein summarized much of the public's opinion when he said, "There are enough rules and regulations, and the people just want the government to get off their backs."

It seems to work for Alberta and Ontario, and there is no reason why it should not work for Squamish. If they can do it, so can we!

I see no conflict between having a healthy forestry and fully explore our recreation potentials, or welcoming new development and still keep the community identity.

Let's turn positive thinking into action, use the yes word more often, and make Squamish grow and prosper.

The sweet sounds of Squamish songstress Laura Dorosh will echo through the halls of the Stanley Theatre for the next month.

Dorosh is one of seven members of the chorus in the Stanley Theatre's production of Sweeney Todd, the Demon Barber of Fleet Street.

The production starts its run with previews on Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 with the production ending on Oct. 30.

"It's an amazing thing to be a part of," Dorosh said. "I'm really excited about the play and I'm getting the chance to work with one of the best directors in Canada in Morris Panych and musical director Bruce Kellett.

"It's been a lot of work, but it's going to be all worth it once the curtain rises on opening night."

Dorosh, who had her debut solo recital on a Squamish stage at the Eagle Eye Community Theatre in May, auditioned for the part in Sweeney Todd in the summer.

"I got the audition through Capilano College where I'm in an acting program," she said. "I had to sing 16 bars of music and I picked one of my best. A few days later they called me back and I had to sing one of the pieces from the musical and I got the part."

This is Dorosh's first major paid theatre production with the hopes of this just being the start of something big. "I hope that this is a stepping stone for me," she said. "I'm waiting for a callback on another audition and I'm thinking about auditioning for Fiddler on the Roof later on in the year."

The storyline of the musical follows the return of a convict and former barber (Todd) to his home in Victorian London after being unjustly imprisoned in exile.

When he returns home and finds out that his wife is dead and his daughter is a virtual prisoner of the judge who passed sentence on him, he plots schemes against his collaborators with Mrs. Lovett, a baker and former friend.

"It's not for the faint of heart," Dorosh said. "It's a horror story and some of the schemes that are cooked up between the two are pretty wild."

Dorosh said her character in the play doesn't have a name, but she will be very recognizable on stage.

"It's all singing. I have no speaking parts in the production," she said.

"The seven members of the chorus are city folk in London and we sort of help to tell the story through the music and when we're on stage through our actions and our expressions in the background of the scenes."

"The music is very opera-like singing, but trust me, no one will be bored. It's very entertaining."

Dorosh said tickets for Sweeney Todd are selling out fast.

"We're setting record numbers as far as ticket sales go so far," Dorosh said. "Opening night has been sold out for a long time."

Black on books and beer — and Squamish

BY TIM SHOULTS
Editor

When asked if it was the books or the beer that drew him to Squamish, Arthur Black said: "I think I'd have to give the edge to the beer. I've never turned down a beer tasting in my life."

Black, the host of CBC Radio One's national Saturday morning show Basic Black, is the third "B" in the Squamish Public Library's Books and Beer festival being held next Thursday (Oct. 7) at the Eagle Eye Community Theatre.

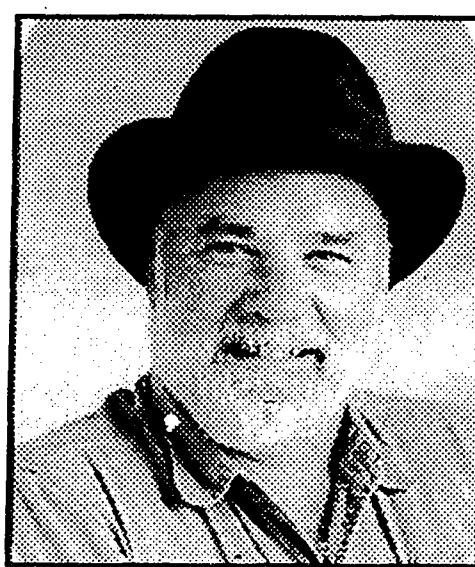

The event to raise funds for future projects at the library starts at 7 p.m. and features samples of beverages from the Howe Sound Inn and Brewing Company and Whistler Brewing Company, unlimited hors d'oeuvres from the Howe Sound Inn and a free tasting glass.

It's all hosted by the charming, effervescent Black, who also plans a reading from his soon-to-be published eighth book Black Tie and Tales.

Like his previous books, Black Tie and Tales is a compilation of Black's musings from his radio show and his syndicated newspaper column, which runs in community newspapers across Canada.

"Every couple of years I look back at the stuff I've written and pick out the bits that are still funny and sling them together into a book," he said.

CBC Radio host
Arthur Black

It must be working: one of his previous works, Black in The Saddle Again, was funny enough to win the 1997 Stephen Leacock Medal for humor.

While he's up here, Black will also be recording some segments highlighting Squamish for the nationally-broadcast show, including a segment with local guide and rock-climber Kevin McLane — "I hope we're not actually climbing rocks, because I'm getting on a little for that," Black laughs — and another at the West Coast Railway Heritage Park.

Those and other snippets of life in Sea to Sky Country will be appearing on Black's show as segments during the coming radio season — and they're one of Black's favorite parts of the job, since they let him out of the studio.

"We do these whenever we get the chance," he said. "Having a weekly show ties you down, but when something like this comes along we jump at the chance."

Squamish has been a drive-through for Black up until now, but he's been looking forward to finding out more about Sea to Sky Country since moving to Salt Spring Island from Toronto five years ago.

"I've always been fascinated by that incredible piece of rock you've got up there. I've nearly driven off the road four times before just looking at it."

"I'm looking forward to finding out more about it."

Tickets to the Books and Beer festival are $20 each and are available in advance only at the Squamish Public Library on Second Avenue and at the Howe Sound Inn on Cleveland Avenue.

The event is selling fast — organizers say there are only around 50 tickets left — so get yours soon.

Football back on the gridiron

BY IAN JACQUES
Reporter

Squamish football players returned to the gridiron on Sunday as another season of Gordon Sturtridge League (GSL) football kicked off at Centennial Fields.

Four games highlighted the day with Squamish teams picking up one win while dropping three games.

In the first game of the day the Pee wee Titans (9-11-year-old) dropped a 36-6 game to the North Vancouver Cobras.

"We got our butts whipped today and it was a good eye opener," said head coach Steve Twilley after the game. "We have a lot to work on and we've scheduled four practices this week to get the team in gear."

Twilley said there were some positives to the game making note of strong performances by Travis Burr, Brent Twilley, Justin Veltman and Rory Reece.

With the loss the Titans start the year at 0-1, but overall sit at 1-1 after picking up a 12-0 win over the North Vancouver Thunderbirds last week in an exhibition game in North Van.

The Minor Spartans were up next as they took on the North Vancouver Steelers.

The Spartans led for most of the game and picked up an 18-6 win.

Gary O'Neil led the way with a pair of TDs and one interception.

Jordon O'Neil scored the other Spartan touchdown.

Defensively, Sam Wilson grabbed two interceptions and Kyle Chadwick recovered a fumble.

"We picked up a win, but we

still have lots to work on," said coach Wayne Chadwick.

"We have half new guys and half returning players, so we need to get everyone out to practice, so we can work on these things."

The Spartans sit at 1-0 in league play and 2-0 overall after picking up a 24-0 win over the Vancouver Hellcats last weekend in exhibition play.

The Titan Junior Bantams played the third game of the day, struggling to a 44-12 loss to the West Vancouver Huskies.

Royce Reece led the way for the Titans offensively scoring both touchdowns. The first a long kick-off return while the second one came on about a 50 yard quarterback keeper late in the game.

"West Van has been together for years and they're a powerful team," said coach Rory Woods. "At half-time we told the kids to forget about the first half and concentrate on winning the second. The kids dug in and did a much better job."

The Titans are still looking for their first win of the season after playing to a 0-0 tie with the North Van Rebels last week in exhibition action.

The final game of the day saw the Bantam Titans take on the North Van Stamps.

True to their name the Stamps came out hard and pulled out a 26-0 win.

Coach Rex Reece said they need to get some bodies out to practice in order to improve.

"We had 12 guys at practice and 21 for the game," Reece said. "You can't improve in the games unless you work on things in practice."

On a positive note, Reece highlighted the play of Dion Romano on offence, Jack Shillito, Sean Roberts and Ryan Reece on defence.

The Bantam Titans are also still searching for a win after dropping a 20-0 game to the North Van Warriors in exhibition play last week.

The Squamish Cowboys Flag squad was scheduled to play on Sunday, but had their game postponed due to a scheduling conflict.

All Squamish teams return to action next week with games down on the coast.

The next home games are Sunday Oct. 10 starting at 9 a.m. before all the teams return back to North Van to play on Oct. 11.

Squash club set to serve up another season

BY IAN JACQUES
Reporter

The sounds of bouncing balls and fierce competition is back at the Squamish Squash Club.

Saturday evening marked the opening of the 1999/2000 season in Squamish as the club held their annual Fall Social.

At this meeting, club members were presented the calendar of events and other plans for the millennial season.

So far key dates to circle on the calendar include Oct. 17 as fall leagues start, Oct. 20 is the first day of the Junior program, Nov. 30 is the annual Handicap Tournament, and in mid-December it's the Christmas Social.

"Last year we had just over 100 players, but we're always looking for new members," said Heidi French, club vice-president. "We have lots of things planned and we're looking forward to the season."

French said with the success of last year's introductory offer, resulting in a boost to membership, the introductory offer is once again being extended to those who are new to squash and the club.

Anyone who has never been a Squamish Squash Club member is entitled to a one-time offer to try out the club for a minimum of three months, at a cost of $50 per month.

"The club executive will be spreading the word as far and wide as possible to attract new players," French said. "It's hoped that this new inexpensive offer will attract players who otherwise wouldn't purchase a membership. Our objective is to grow the club by having some of these newcomers return next year and become full squash club members with us."

Plans are also currently underway to stage an exhibition match between a top ranked Canadian and provincial player at the club on a Friday night.

"It's going to be quite an exciting match," French said, adding that more details will follow once they've been finalized.

As for the Junior program, Peter Staton and Don Gunn are back to help share the talents of a keen group of junior squash players.

The pair will pick up where they left off in the spring with weekly coaching and round robin play for those between the ages of 12 and 18.

The courts are booked exclusively for juniors on Wednesdays between 3:45 and 6 p.m.

The drop in fee for interested young players is $2 and all junior players need to bring are non-marking shoes, shorts and t-shirt, the club provides rackets and safety glasses.

"The junior program is excellent," French said. "Don and Peter are both fabulous. The respect that is shown by them and the junior players is just amazing."

For more information about the junior program call Staton at 898-9789 and for more information about the game of club activities call French at 898-3195.

Men's soccer heating up

By IAN JACQUES
Reporter

It was a wild day of play as the G&T Pool and Spa Men's Soccer league took to the pitch in week three action Sunday at Centennial Fields.

The action took a back seat, though, as a major injury took centre stage.

In one of the more heated contests of the day Squamish FC Khalsa battled Cliffside Pub.

About 15 minutes into the second half Khalsa got on the board with a neatly placed ball off the foot of Rui Pierra.

With Cliffside pushing to score the equalizer, Matt Kinnear found an opening and looked to be going in for the kill when he collided with a Khalsa player.

Kinnear's leg seemed to twist on the play and both teams stopped play immediately as Kinnear laid motionless on the field.

Paramedics were called as players from both sides attended to Kinnear.

After about 20 minutes, he was taken off the field and transported to Squamish General Hospital with what looked like a broken ankle.

"The game is secondary when something like that happens," said Cliffside's Rick Grant. "It was his first game with us. This isn't Metro Premier soccer. We're all out here to have some fun. These types of things shouldn't happen."

After the game resumed, Khalsa picked up a second goal from Steve Malenica to take the game 2-0.

Longhorn Pub remained undefeated with an impressive 7-1 romp over Mt. Currie.

Peter Andrew led the way with three goals with singles going to Al Knox, Don Honeyball, Eddie Celella and Mitzu Tauvuta.

Ellis Moving and Storage picked up a tight 2-1 win over Amsterdam FC.

Amsterdam opened the scoring in the second half with a goal from Mirek Svejksky, but Ellis responded with a penalty shot from Fabrice Roche. Brad Sherry scored the winner.

In the final game of the day, Orange Crush beat the over-35 squad 7-3.

Students go to Ottawa

By IAN JACQUES
Reporter

An exchange of ideas, culture and loads of fun took place last week in Squamish. Students at Brackendale Secondary School welcomed nine Grade 9/10 students from St. Matthew's High School in Ottawa for a week-long student exchange. St. Matthew's will return the favor when BSS sends the students back east in February. The Ottawa students arrived Sept. 11 in Vancouver and left Squamish to head home on Sept. 19. During their stay in Squamish and B.C. the students were treated to wide range of activities that included hiking to Elfin Cove, horseback riding at Sky Stables, rock climbing on the Smoke Eaters, a sight seeing tour of Vancouver, a trip to the Vancouver Aquarium and a theatre performance at the Grand Theatre on the Beach. The whole exchange just went great," said Anne Bracey, who coordinated the exchange for BSS. "It was about getting to know other students, seeing different cultures and a different way of life." Bracey said this was the first exchange program ever done at BSS.

She said the idea came about through a mutual friendship with Ottawa teacher Chris Hughes.

"I went to school with Chris, he loves Squamish and he's always wanted to do an exchange here," Bracey said. "We just both thought that it would be a great opportunity to bring students to both locations to experience something new."

"The kids get really close, really quickly. Teenagers like to share and talk in a healthy atmosphere. The exchange provided that and more."

When the students from BSS head east they will be participating in Winterlude 2000 — a huge winter carnival, tour Parliament Hill, tour the Canadian Mint, sample French cuisine in Hull, Quebec and other activities.

"All the students are looking forward to Ottawa," Bracey said. "A lot of work goes into these things from a lot of people, but in the end the students reap the rewards and that's what it's all about."

Decentralization strategy positive, says school board superintendent's report

By DARREN GALLAGHER
Reporter

Howe Sound school trustees received their first report on decentralization at its meeting Sept. 15 — and overall the report is positive.

All the schools ended the year with surpluses ranging from 0.5 per cent to 6.5 per cent, a district total of about $675,000. The report from Superintendent Mike Fitzpatrick and Secretary-

Treasurer Nancy Edwards stated principals indicated they were particularly frugal as they were unsure of their ongoing financial status.

A new accounting system was required to provide site specific reports, which impacted dramatically on central office staff, the report said. Staff time was also needed to meet the reporting requirements of the newly-introduced Provincial Agreement in Committee. This provided more targeted funding, but reduced flexibility, which decentralization is attempting to increase.

Principals said, however, the flexibility in decision-making at the school level, the ability to address needs at their schools quickly, being able to introduce new, school-specific programs and involving staff and parents in actual spending for specific school needs were all positive developments.

Some are still concerned about equal allocation of funds between the schools, and have suggested revising the distribution formula.

Recommendations for the coming year include identifying specific information required by the district in order to provide accurate cost reports to schools, ensuring authority is commensurate with responsibility and accountability, and deciding if Education Ministry budgetary targets and caps should be passed onto the schools.

DONT LET GETTING BACK TO SCHOOL BECOME "BACK BREAKING"

by Dr. Lori Broker

Backpacks are a much better way to carry life's necessities than a briefcase or shoulder bag, especially for long periods of time - but there are concerns too.

Backpacks that are too heavy or improperly worn can harm joints, muscles and nerves - especially in young people.

What can you do...?? The American Chiropractic Association and its council on occupational health offers the following tips:

1. Make sure that the backpacks are NOT too heavy. Elementary students should not carry more than 10% of their body weight - older students should not carry more than 15%.
2. Backpacks with individual compartments help position its contents so that pointy or bulky objects don't rest on your child's back, which could create painful blisters.
3. Wear both straps. Slinging a backpack over one shoulder can cause your child to lean to one side to compensate for the uneven weight. Over time, this can create muscle imbalances which may be associated with lower and upper back pain, sore shoulders or neck, aching knees and possibly headaches.
4. Backpacks with wide straps are better than ones with narrow straps. The narrow straps can dig painfully into shoulders as well as hinder circulation causing numbness in your arms, which over time may lead to weakness in your hands. The latest backpacks with one strap that runs across your body may be fashionable, but they are not really functional because one shoulder still bears the weight of the bag.
5. Encourage young people to make stops at their lockers to avoid carrying all their books at once, and leave non-essentials at home.
6. Talk to your children about the proper use of backpacks and explain why ergonomic issues are important. A child who is educated early in life on these issues can apply this knowledge later in life...and as a result you have a child that is healthier and happier.

If you have questions or concerns about your family's health make sure to visit your local chiropractor for the answers!

Brew Pub becomes arts centre?

Is it me, or is the Howe Sound Inn and Brewing Company becoming a visual and performing arts centre? Films, painting, poetry...oh, yeah, and you can have a beer, too. Not a bad setup...

This past weekend featured the Sea to Sky Film Festival overflow evening and a slide show by local artist and Emily Carr student MaryAnn Kym, and next Monday (Oct. 4) there's poetry in motion in the Brew Pub starting at 9 p.m. with Shealagh. All you budding poets are welcome to come read your prose or poetry or play guitar!

The original artistic event, Paintin' in the Brew Pub with Karen from Paintin' Place, is still on every Tuesday. Get painting your mug and then fill it with Howe Sound Ale for $1 off when it's done.

The Cliffside Pub in Valleycliffe keeps rolling on with daily specials and great prices. Don't miss the taped local soccer games shown every Sunday night or call to reserve for your birthday or stagette and they'll arrange Karaoke for you (Sunday to Thursday).

Carmelle at the Grizzly Bar and Grrrill reports that the boys are getting a little nervous, since rounds one and two of the Grizz's NFL football pool went to women — but will this week be revenge time?

Come down to watch football or NHL hockey at the Grizz (at the invitation of the Grizzly Flyers) on the big screen and enjoy some specials Monday to Thursday.

The stage is hopping too as the Cal Batchelor Band, last seen in Squamish in July, return for a foot-stomping pair of sets Friday and Saturday — and mark your calendar for Oct. 8 as the popular banter of Tim Brecht graces the Grizz.

Well...nobody seemed to want to put books and beer together and win free tickets to the Squamish Public Library's Books and Beer Festival for next Thursday (Oct. 7) at the Eagle Eye Community Theatre.

So here's the deal. Be the first one in the Chief office Thursday morning (we open at 9 a.m.) to tell us who's going to be the host of Books and Beer and you'll get the tickets, valued at $40.

I'm sorry, I can't make it any easier than that...

IAN JACQUES/THE CHIEF

Michelle Raye and her trio rocked the Grizz Friday night.

Prevention of cruelty to animals is a community affair. Each year thousands of unwanted and homeless pets are humanely put to death in animal shelters across Canada. If you are concerned about this situation, if you want to see stronger legislation to protect all animals, if you feel that every animal - wild or domesticated - has the right to a life of dignity, please become involved. You can help by...

1. Ensuring your pets are spayed or neutered.
2. Keeping your pets at home and off the roads.
3. Updating your pet's vaccinations on a regular basis.
4. Keeping current, traceable identification on your pets at all times.
5. Educating friends and neighbours about responsible pet ownership.
6. Becoming a member or volunteer of your local SPCA or humane society, or by supporting a special animal cause.
7. Reporting animal cruelty to your local SPCA or humane society.

SPCA • 898-9890

Add a new member to your family.

Consider adopting one of the many homeless adult pets available at the SPCA. To view call ahead. Adoption fee includes spaying or neutering.

GEORGIA NICHOLS

(March 21 - April 19)

Love virgin territory. This is the new turf you can be right in your proverbial back yard. All the important relationships in your life now are new ways of being. You may be less energetic than before because the Sun is as far from your sign as it gets. This far-away Sun is to throw your focus on you. You see close friends and partners with greater sympathy and understanding. This comes as a surprise unless you are frozen in your perception of your close contacts. Be open to what you can learn from those who are closest to you. You might discover a crossroad where you least expect-

(April 20 - May 20)

Cap time. Let's hope you have your size because in the next few weeks you have the opportunity to impress others where you work by turning a human dynamo. Your cards for yourself and others suddenly take a quantum leap forward. (A quantum leap is a minimum amount by which the properties of a system change.) This shift takes place because of your desire to size your environment. Get shelves, hooks, filing cabinets. You'll clean, sort and out. You'll find the top of your desk and your bedroom. While you're busy getting life in shape, expect to turn attention to the old bod as exercise, diet and vitamins suddenly a priority. These delayed New Year's resolutions. You have decided it is to manage your life. Voila!

(May 21 - June 20)

On opportunities to travel and leisure are on the horizon. Nothing unexpected or out of the box is in the mix - but it's new. You may have a chance to escape somewhere to explore education and the questions in life like - toothpaste show up less often? Towels? Some will be unlikely romantic liaisons, others will spice up existing relationships with a little variation. (You always did like Parents may be excited about educational opportunities for children. In general, life is on a more electric note and you love it. The sizzle is good. Business with the realty industry, the entertainment world and the media are unprecedented profit opportunities.

(June 21 - July 22)

Completely different messages are influencing you now. In the hand, you want to hunker down at home more. You want to curl up with your baby blanket, read and watch Electronic Nipple. Memories of the past rise. You may feel withdrawn. Conversations with family members are meaningful. But you may not get the chance to shuffle off to make it in the kitchen because of an explosive, dynamic, spinning on things brings the wealth or goodies to your doorstep. Unusual real estate deals may transpire. New ways of sharing resources and possessions may be discovered. Thoughts about sex and life make you ponder.

(July 23 - Aug. 22)

Deeds stimulate your mind in a way that is exhilarating. It's as if a fresh breeze was blowing away the cobwebs. New faces, new contacts, and all kinds of new phenomenon appeal. Travel entices you because you want to be free. You might take off on an adventure with someone who is different from your normal daily fare. Be open to this possibility because you will probably learn much and expand your habitual routines. (Remember it's the velvet rut that makes you stop growing.) Partners, close friends, a customer or someone you deal with in the public might be your buddy in crime. Go along with this increased tempo. Life is sending you a wake-up call. Are you going to answer?

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)

Yowzers. You are in a position to make some do re mi right now. You might boost your earnings, get a new job or sell something. Employment opportunities are exciting and may involve science, technology and computers. If you leave a job now, it's simply a break for freedom that you had to take - no looking back. You see that money is simply energy to make things happen and get things done. This realization is liberating. Your ideas about finances and earnings are worth acting on, even if others cannot appreciate them. Your mind is breaking boundaries now. (And they said it couldn't be done.)

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

Fabulous month ahead for you. You feel tuned in to the world. People and opportunities flow your way; naturally, you handle them with grace and charm. Unexpected romance surfaces now for many of you whether you are in a partnership or not. If you are in something stable, don't risk it for a mere bon bon. On the other hand, if you are single - this is not time to stay on a diet. Accept all invitations. You are in party mode at the moment and can expect to enjoy outlandish and different forms of amusement. Basically, the universe is telling you to shake it up. Activities with children are fun. You feel creative. Now is the time to impress the fashion cognoscenti.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)

You've just entered a month long period where you need to rest more. You need time out. Because you have made your debut into the world in a real way this year, its exhausting just living up to your resume. You need to seek some solitude and relax and remind yourself that no one lives up to their resume. Fact. You deserve the recognition you are getting. Fact. Meanwhile, unusual secrets or private activities add a little spice to life. Take some time to contemplate them. Do not confuse solitude with boredom. Busy jobs and wild parties can be boring, and time alone can be refreshing and restorative. Pass those salted peanuts. Fact.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)

You don't have to stand and shout "All hail, group sex!" On the other hand, it's a great opener, so you may want to keep it in mind because group activities, sports, outdoor events, club meetings, conferences, practices and schmoozing with friends is where it's at for the next four weeks. You feel hey nonny nonny in an upbeat way. In a more serious vein, this is one of the best times of the year to think about your long-term goals and objectives. Since you are more future-oriented than others, has it occurred to you that the future - in large measure - is being created by whatever you are doing now? And while you ponder your tomorrow, give some thought to your friends for they, perhaps even more than you, are also creating your future. And so it goes.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)

Your sense of destiny is stimulated in the next few weeks. Focus on the outward aspects of your life - career, life direction, your role in society and how you want to be perceived by your others. You know you need the respect of your peers because your reputation is important to you. Because the Sun is crossing the top of your chart, you can't help thinking about these things. Perhaps you are focused on a parent more than usual as well. Important people, VIPs, bosses and those who have influence are in your life now. Accept the increased responsibilities that are offered to you in the weeks ahead. Exciting, perhaps different ways to earn money await you. If it feels good - do it.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

Travel and dealing with foreign countries can be thrilling. New ideas expand your world through travel, higher education or being exposed to different philosophies. You're up for it, in fact you're pumped about it. Media and publishing are pulsing. This next month is a fabulous time to undertake any new course of study because you're turned on by new ideas. You want to experience life in a fresh way. Continue to work on repairs at home or plans to secure your home base. Old patterns are breaking down as you continue to break through old boundaries. This can be unsettling or liberating. Since freedom is a survival issue for you - you'll take the risk. Heed Jonathan Swift: May you live all the days of your life.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

The next four weeks hold a mysterious bag of tricks for you. Some of you may inherit or receive something. Many will be focused on debt, wills and financial transactions about shared resources. You're thinking about support from your partner or someone else is. However, at another level, you are connecting with an inner drive to somehow make yourself a better person or improve yourself in some way. This is good. You're more than just a pretty face. And the initial desire or impulse is what starts you on the road to making your life better. Without the desire to stop doing what is harmful to you, or begin doing what is beneficial for you - how could you improve your life? (Other than buying neat shoes, of course.)
