Protesters took to the trees in the Upper Elaho Valley this summer in an attempt to stop logging and road-building in the area, which they want to see tu med into a national park. This summer's blockades resulted in 13 arrests and two attacks on the protest camp by loggers.

Action Network — were in the area with a similar aim, but a different method. They began blocking logging operations and road-building with tree platforms high above the ground.

That sent Interfor to court to get an injunction barring protesters from its work site — but while the company argued in court, its employees on the front lines took matters into their own hands with an attack on the camp by four employees, who were later suspended by Interfor as punishment.

After Interfor's injunction was granted, a new player entered the field — the police, called upon to enforce the civil order and arrest protesters who defied it. In the early morning hours of Aug. 17, a task force of some 30 officers, including a specialty tree-climbing team, came in a convoy of 12 vehicles and a helicopter to keep the peace.

After a 12-hour day and an estimated cost of $30,000, the force came back with

The protesters are gone, as are the logging crews, but the Elaho giants remain – awaiting the next round of the battle...

Over the next six weeks they would return seven times to arrest 10 more people, but the number of protesters only grew — and the protesters grew more bold, taunting frustrated workers who couldn't work and often returning to the scene the day after being arrested and taken to court.

The frustration of the loggers boiled over on Sept. 15 in a mass attack on the protest camp at Mile 65 by more than 60 Interfor employees, who destroyed the camp, cameras and other and the Forest three protesters under arrest. equipment and injured pro- shutting down logging in the ahead.

testers, including a WCWC employee who was in the camp at the time.

The lack of evidence of the assault worked both ways; individual loggers could not be charged, but Interfor claimed that protesters greatly exaggerated their injuries and the behavior of loggers at the camp to make a play for international sympathy including a 15-minute video distributed worldwide by Greenpeace showing the assault from the protesters'

Interfor admitted that the actions of its employees were "regrettable" and went on their own publicity campaign, holding anti-violence seminars for their employees, releasing their own video press release and setting up banners "welcoming" the public to TFL 38 — banners that were stolen twice.

The loggers' new resolve survived a challenge by protesters when they moved their blockade from the trees to the main road at Mile 21, whole TFL for two days.

This time, the loggers failed to rise to the bait, and one final protester — 71-year-old Betty Krawczyk — was arrested as the blockade came down.

The focus shifted in the fall from the woods of Squamish to Parliament Hill in Ottawa as Caccia finally introduced his bill into the House of Commons and had it selected by lottery for an hour's debate at the end of November — without a vote.

The war also moved back into the courtroom in the fall when two protesters and the WCWC employee filed a civil claim against Interfor and two logging subcontractors and several individuals in the wake of the assault.

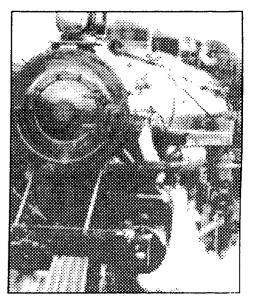

As the calendar changes from 1999 to the year 2000, all is still in the Elaho.

The protesters are gone, as are the logging crews, but the Elaho giants remain awaiting the next round of the battle that most agree is sure to continue in the year

Police on the CounterAttack

By Ian Jacques Reporter

They are Santa's little helpers dressed in blue and this holiday season they won't be handing out presents, unless you like a ticket and a night in a jail cell.

Squamish RCMP are out in full force this month to enforce the holiday Drinking Driving CounterAttack program.

CounterAttack started Dec. 8 in the Sea to Sky Corridor and concludes on Jan. 3.

So far drivers have seen stepped-up enforcement along Hwy. 99 and according to Cpl. Joe Schofield of the Highway Patrol, this year's program is going quite well.

"Our partners in this ICBC are very pleased with the information that we have collected to date," Schofield said. "They are pleased with the amount of vehicles that we have checked and how we have raised the visibility levels of this program, the goals of which are to try and prevent people from drinking and driving."

Schofield said the exact numbers of vehicles checked won't be released until after the program concludes in January.

"We're running these checks on the concept that they can happen anytime and anywhere," he said. "Drinking and driving doesn't just happen between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m. — drivers are out there all the time and so are we."

Drinking Driving CounterAttack police roadchecks began in B.C. in 1977.

Now in its 22nd year, the CounterAttack program combines highly visible police enforcement with community-based education and public awareness initiatives.

Since the start of this year's CounterAttack campaign in April, impaired driving charges are down 20 per cent compared with 1998 and 24hour suspensions are also down about four per cent.

TIM SHOULTS/THE CHIEF

In Squamish from April until Nov. 30, there have been a total of 19,568 vehicles that have gone through roadchecks resulting in one impaired charge, forty-two 24-hour suspensions, one administrative driving prohibition, seven administrative vehicle impoundments, 109 violation tickets and five other charges.

"I do believe people are much more aware, but there are others that don't seem to be getting the message," Schofield said. "We're encouraging people to plan ahead before you start drinking and while you still have a clear mind.

There are no quick fixes when you have been drinking and no amount of coffee or walks will lessen the effects of alcohol — time is the only cure.

"The bottom line is if you drink don't drive."

As for New Year's Eve, Schofield said partyers should be aware that RCMP will be out in force throughout the corridor to enforce their drinking and driving message.

"In Squamish and Whistler we will have even more enforcement on the roads," he said.

"Enjoy the New Year, but plan ahead for a safe ride home."

EDO predicts a bright future for Squamish

By Kathleen Brennan Reporter

Squamish must never forget its strengths as it moves into the 21st Century, says its economic development officer.

But what he is referring to might come as a surprise.

Brent Leigh is optimistic and determined about one of his mandates - to prevent people from leaving Squamish because of the shortage of decent jobs in the area.

He says it is crucial to find ways to support traditional industries as well as diversify and attract new companies to stop the flow of quality people out of the area.

"You don't need to do a lot to make this place hum," he says.

Leigh says the community must concentrate on developing what is best for its people, never losing sight of its history and traditions.

"Retain and respect your historic families, your historic point of view, your historic traditions," he says. "It becomes just some other place if you don't hold onto your history."

Mega-projects such as the private university (whose future is unclear with the "We've heard about the waterfront since Jesus was a baby." -Brent Leigh recent decision by Amon Lands to rescind its offer of 1,000 acres for the campus) and the proposed Garibaldi at Squamish ski resort are welcome but Leigh says they should not obliterate or shelve smaller ventures in the process.

Leigh draws a analogy to a recent nature walk he took with his young son.

First they looked at the breathtaking Tantalus Range but soon they both were just as mesmerized by the complexity of the moss at their feet.

Likewise Squamish should not lose sight of the richness and complexity lying at its feet.

"This place is like nature's Disneyland without the turnstiles."

One area Leigh is working on is to help improve the infrastructure associated with the high-tech, computer industry and Squamish, being sandwiched between Vancouver and Whistler, sis in a good position to upgrade its capacity and speed on the information highway.

"My whole mantra is 'high speed'." Leigh says the information highway is similar to the railroad 100 years ago and like the railroad will become a component of the industrial scene in Squamish if all the tracks are laid out. Companies will come here "on the strength of being able to travel down the fibre line."

And people might be more likely to stay in Squamish if they could work locally and have their commuting time to Vancouver cut to once a week.

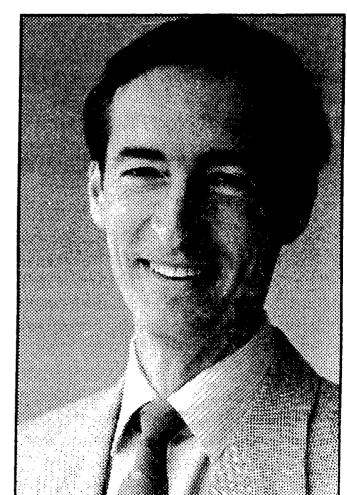

"It's a no-brainer."

Leigh says downtown development is also crucial but the key to success is to always remember to design it for its town's citizens not for the perceived tourist market.

Redeveloping the downtown and doing the job right is not something that will occur immediately as evidenced by the decades of discussion and debate on the topic of downtown revitalization, he

"We've heard about the waterfront since Jesus was a baby."

Leigh takes a more philosophical perspective towards the future rather than a pragmatic overlay of industrial ventures. Wherever the future may lead, the town must have a clear idea on peoples' opinions.

Leigh is not daunted or intimidated by change and has actually just written a novel on the very subject.

At its core lies the whole matter of change and the transitory nature of life. No publisher has been lined-up yet.

Rick Jones was pictured in last year's Year in Review issue cleaning out his locker at Interfor's Squamish sawmill when it closed in July 1998. The year-long shutdown ended and Jones and 45 other workers returned to work July 19 after a deal was brokered between Interfor, mill workers and the IWA-Canada, Mayor Corinne Lonsdale and provincial Forests Minister David Zirnhelt. The reopening followed public pressure, including a forum in April where more than 500 residents came out to urge Zirnhelt to get the sawmill reopened or penalize Interfor, which was still logging in Tree Farm Licence 38 and sending raw logs out of the community to be processed elsewhere. The mill added a planer shift later in July and then a second sawmill shift in September, bringing back 130 workers of the 185 who were laid off last July.

THE YEAR IN BRIEFS

January

• Richard Cutbush, of Vancouver is rescued after spending five days stranded in the Upper Ashlu Valley, 50 km north of Squamish without food or water and even a jacket to keep him warm. Cutbush only suffered from mild dehydration and hypothermia. He was reported missing Dec. 28, 1998 and had been last seen Christmas morning when he drove away to witness the sunrise.

- A chunk of rock about the size of a small house breaks off the face of the Chief Jan. 14 and falls 400 vertical metres, crashing into the granite monolith along the way. By the time the rock hits the ground, the largest pieces were about three metres in diameter, enough to destroy one hectare of forest. The rock was most likely loosened by years of freeze-thaw weathering.
- The body of 29-year-old Michael Raymond Bath is found in Browning Lake Jan. 18 after someone reported seeing the body floating in the lake. An autopsy showed that Bath had been severely beaten the day before and the case is being treated as a homicide.

• The new Totem Hall opens Jan. 23. Chief Gibby Jacob spoke to a full house about the pride the Squamish Nation has for the new facility, which was built by its people at the site of one of the oldest Squamish Nation villages, right before the entrance to town.

February

- The man accused of murdering Judith Howey on May 29, 1964 is finally named. Byron Blue is to be tried in adult court for first degree murder. Blue could not be named previously because he was 15 years old at the time Howey was murdered.
- L.C. "Minch" Minchin is awarded the Meritorious Service Medal, the highest level of award a Legion member can receive. Minchin was recognized for being a keynote speaker at annual Remembrance Day services in schools. Applicants must be approved by the Legion and the Pacific Command and Dominion Command levels.

- The Ministry of Education approves spending $8.5 million to renovate and expand Brackendale Secondary School to include Grade 11 and 12 students. Students should graduate from the school for the first time in 2002.
- Squamish photographer and videographer Brian Goldstone wins the Best Mountain Biking Film award at the second annual International Mountain Film Festival in Vancouver at the end of this month for his fourminute film Squamish Mountain Biking.

March

• Dan Cassell of Re/Max is named Realtor of the Year for the Sea to Sky corridor. The award, given out for the first time in 1999 recognize real estate agents who make outstanding contributions to their community.

7 The flood of 1940 was the worst local flood in recorded history — climbing as high as many people's roofs in the downtown and North Yards areas of Squamish. The flood of 1921 was memorable in that the Mamquam River changed its course.

Residents of Squamish passed a motion to incorporate into a village in 1914 but the provincial government did not officially pass the proclamation until May 18, 1948. In 1964, Brackendale, Mamquam and the downtown amalgamated to form a district municipality after 78 per cent of the valley's residents voted to merge. Prior to that, Brackendale was run by the Farmers' Institute and Mamquam by a Water Board and a Sewer Board. As a community, all residents gained access to water and sewer.

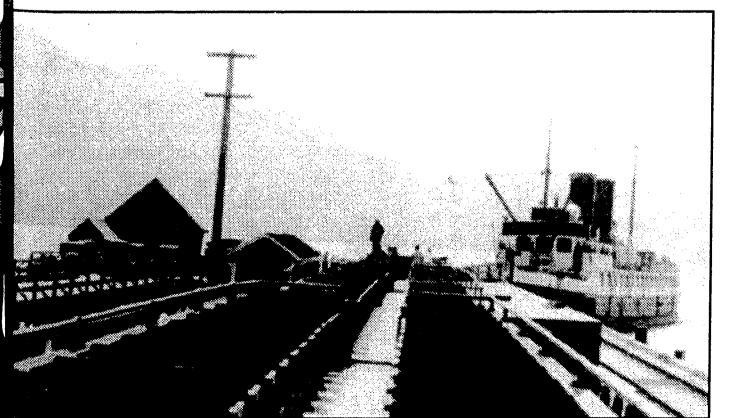

9 Squamish's first lawyer was Ian Walker, who first came to town to work part-time in 1958. Walker also served as the local provincial court judge for more than 20 years, being the first and last resident judge.

10. Five Brackendale men revived the Brackendale Farmers' Institute in January, 1992. The Farmers' Institute, founded in November 1915, had laid dormant for more than 20 years until Bill Berg, Don Ross, Thor Froslev, Nick Candy and Brian Giles reactivated the organization. It now sponsors the Brackendale Fall Fair.

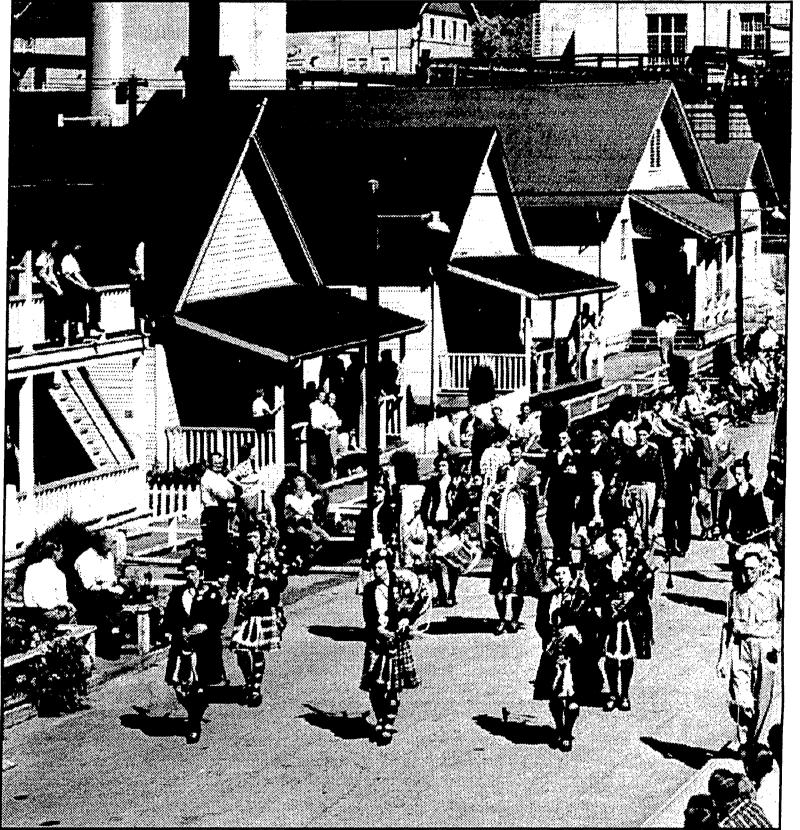

11 The Castle Rock low-cost housing project was opened in early 1992. The 40-suite project began in 1989 when the Women's Centre was approached by a developer to prepare a proposal for B.C. Housing. It cost $5 million and took two years to construct.

12. The CanOxy site (formerly the FMC plant) was closed in 1992.

The 25-year-old chlor-alkali plant was located at the head of Howe Sound and to this day, officials are grappling with ways to clean up the site because of mercury contamination in the area.

13. The Cheekye Fan was identified as an area extending from Brackendale to Whistler where debris flow is predicted to occur once every 10,000 years from possibly Mt. Garibaldi or Dalton Dome. The findings of the $274,000-Cheekye Fan Terrain Hazard study commissioned by the Ministry of Environment and the District of Squamish has led to the severe curtailment of development in the Brackendale area.

An emergency shelter for women was opened in the spring of 1992 by the Howe Sound Women's Centre. It has been named Pearl's Place in honor of Pearl Souster. Until then, women needing to seek refuge from a violent partner had to flee to North Vancouver's Emily Murphy House.

Souster was an active member of the Howe Sound Women's Centre and promoted women's rights until her death in 1992 at the age of 82. She was also known for opening her home to women in need of a safe place to stay.

15. The Squamish Chief first published May 7, 1991. It follows the Squamish Advance which ran in the 1940s and 1950s, the Squamish Times which first appeared May 7, 1957 under the leadership of Publisher Claude Hoodspith and the Squamish Citizen which went head-to-head against the Times from November 1967 to December 1973. The Citizen was owned by Hal Straight, publisher of the North Shore Citizen.

16. Nancy Greene-Raine was one of the judges of the Timber Queen contest the year that Donna Billy was crowned queen.

18 The Loggers' Sports Day has been filmed by Thrill of a Lifetime, the sports channel TSN and ex-Monty Python member Michael Palin for part of his Pacific Rim series televised on PBS.

19 Local logger Chris Arnet put on a heartstopping performance on the spar tree climbing event at the 1960 Loggers' Sports Day by falling more than 65 feet while racing down a 90-foot pole and then walking away.

20. The Royal Hudson No. 2860 first chugged down the tracks on June 20, 1974. The steam engine hauled tourists from the BCR station in North Vancouver to downtown Squamish daily during the summer months. Engine 2860 was saved and restored by the provincial government to promote tourism. It had originally run from Vancouver to Revelstoke in the 1940s and 1950s.

A new link was opened to the Cariboo in the summer of 1972. The Duffy Lake Road was a gravel road over the Duffy Pass and was first accessible March 1, 1972. The modern-day road is paved and heavily used.

Young computer whiz David Slik is recognized for his genius even at the age of 15 when he was awarded the gold medal at the Canadian National Science Fair in 1993 after winning both the IBM medal and the gold medal in the computer science category at the 1993 Greater Vancouver Regional Science Fair.

His project, dubbed Address-Based Interfacing, is a method computers use to control devices. Slik went on to win first place in the computer science category for his project 3-D scanning at the International Science and Engineering Fair in Hamilton, May, 1995. More than 1,100 students representing 36 countries competed at the Fair. Today Slik works for Squamish Media Group.

23. The very first school in Squamish was built in 1895 on Government Road just above the old Mamquam Bridge. The next school, called the New School, was a one-room schoolhouse built in 1904 for $1,000 and was located just north of Leski's Crossing. The Mashiter School, named after a pioneer store owner, was then built in 1915 at the present site of Howe Sound Secondary. Eventually the New School became the Brackendale School.

In the early days, students had to move out of the Squamish Valley if they wanted to complete high school. Furthermore, the family had to own property and pay taxes in the city to make their children eligible to enroll in the Vancouver school district.

In 1849, for a short time, Squamish had 24 In 1849, for a short time, Squamish had a taste of gold rush fever as miners claimed to have discovered gold on the Squamish River. After the short-lived gold rush, a cattle trail was built from Lillooet to the coast. Alex and Myrtle Philip, who later built Rainbow Lodge, first visited Alta Lake by walking the trail from Brackendale in 1911.

The Stawamus Chief is one of the Largest pieces of granite in the world and was created about 10,000 years ago when the Juan de Fuca plate collided with the Pacific Plate under the Earth's crust. It originally formed about 10 km below the surface of the Earth and was not exposed until the end of the last Ice Age when glaciers dug out the Squamish Valley and created Howe Sound.

In recognition of its uniqueness, the ∠U. Chief and 700 hectares surrounding it were given provincial park status in 1996. The area is renowned for its free-standing granite monoliths, some as high as 600 metres above the valley floor, which provide some of the best rock climbing in the world.

77 A world record was set January 11, ∠ / •1994 when 3,701 bald eagles were counted in the Squamish Valley, surpassing the previous world record of 3,495 bald eagles set in Haines, Alaska in the mid-1980s. 70 Jim and John Hurren were the first 29. twins born in Squamish — Feb. 21, 1921. At the time, there was only one doctor and one midwife for all 900 residents of Squamish and Brackendale. The boys were born at home and delivered by Dr. Paul and their Aunt Flossy.

2 The Stawamus Chief was first scaled 3U. by Jim Baldwin in 1961. Baldwin, of Prince Rupert, and Ed Cooper, of Seattle, took six weeks to climb the Chief's Grand Wall, starting in May, 1961. Supplies and assistance poured in from the town. People like jack-ofall-trades Ross Barr hammered out pitons and Mackenzie's store keep the young men supplied with groceries. Today, the same climb is done in a day.

The Squamish Highway was officially J • opened Aug. 7, 1958 and originally named Seaview Highway. Prior to that, transportation to Vancouver and the rest of the world was via Union Steamships, starting with the Saturna for 60 years until the P.G.E. line was built in 1956.

The $11.5-million highway was opened by Highways Minister Phil Gagliardi, who led a 1,000-car cavalcade (now repeated every weekend) up the road from Horseshoe Bay to Squamish. In the first four days, 7,018 cars motored up the road. Colin and Leslie Chapman, of Squamish, won $50 for their closest guess of 7,033. Charlotte Innes, in her late 60s, and her son Charles were the first people to walk the highway, completing it in 10 hours and one minute that weekend.

2 In May 1972 Amon Lands purchased J∠.1,850 acres of land between Valleycliffe and Garibaldi Highlands from Rayonier for $2 million. The Tiampo family, owners of Amon Lands, had promised to donate 1,000 of those acres to a private university but rescinded the offer in December 1999.

2 Capilano College officially opened its I new doors in April 1995 with its new $1.48-million campus located behind Howe Sound Secondary.

The college, located at the old Loggers Sports grounds, is 760 square metres and can support 40 full-time equivalent students.

The permanent campus replaced a satellite campus which has operated in Squamish at various locations since 1973.

The road from Squamish to Britannia •was built in the 1930s by men living at a relief camp who were given a dollar a day and a shovel to break through the rock.

35. Squamish fighter pilot John Ashby Quick was killed in his Spitfire in England during World War II and a memorial forest was planted by school children in Brackendale.

The first few miles (as far as the JU. Mamquam River) of the P.G.E. track was actually laid by the Howe Sound and Pemberton Valley Northern Railway which was incorporated as a private company in 1907.

The P.G.E. became the first crown cor-• poration as the province of British Columbia in 1918 had to bail out the company as it was teetering on the edge of bankruptcy after building the rail line from Squamish to Pemberton.

Walk

A slide in 1963 caused a creek to overflow and flood the community of Woodfibre. Despite the raging waters, flood damage to the area was minimal.

Tragedy struck Jan. 3, 1950 when PGE • engineer Alex Munro, the same man to start the fire brigade, and fireman Harry Seymour, both of Squamish, hit a slide at Seton Lake. The train, No. 53, derailed and plunged 90 feet down on a shelf 150 feet from shore. Seymour's body was recovered but no trace was found of Munro or No. 53. Another train met a similar fate nearly 10 years earlier when Engine No. 56 hit a slide Aug. 8, 1944 after an unexpected summer squall loosened rock above the line at Anderson Lake. Engineer Mike Powell and fireman P. Mulhern still lie at the bottom of Anderson Lake after their train plunged into it. None of the 35 passengers aboard were injured in the crash.

39 The first steam engine donkey came to the Squamish Valley just after the turn of the century. It was brought in by the Barbour brothers, who later lost it in a poker

Some of Squamish's more interesting • street names and place names are:

- Cleveland Avenue was named after E. A. Cleveland, the surveyor who mapped the downtown streets in 1912;

- Bughouse Heights — now known as Hospital Hill or the Smoke Bluffs.

- Skunk Hollow — would you prefer to live there or in Valleycliffe?

- Dentville — named after the Dent family who moved into this downtown area in the 1930s. — Buckley's Crossing and Buckley Avenue were named after Frank Buckley, who came to Squamish in 1903. During his lifetime, Buckley worked for 35 years with the railway and served as village commissioner in 1954.

- The Stawamus Chief was once known as Goose Rock.

- Mamquam — believed to be Indian word for smelly water.

- Whistler - originally known as London Mountain. Renamed for the hairy marmots which live on the scree slopes above the timber line.

- Mt. Garibaldi — name chosen by an Italian who was serving as a sailor on a survey ship in

- The grounds of the B.C. Mining Museum are being transformed into a busy film set for the production of a new television series called Hope Island. The one-hour comedy/drama series will be a family-oriented show with a "Northern Exposure" style. The main character is a young Congregational minister who moves to a West Coast fishing village.

May

- Applause fills Squamish's council chambers as councillors unanimously pass the 1999 Squamish Estuary Management Plan draft May 18. Opposition by Mayor Corinne Lonsdale and councillors Ted Craddock and Paul Lalli dissipated after meetings held between BC Rail, the log handing group and the district removed the obstacles.
- Squamish youth take over part of downtown May 8 for the second annual Pride in Youth March and Rally. Cheering, waving signs and honking horns, about 100 youths plus a few adults walked from Howe Sound Secondary to the Squamish Pavilion. The rally was a culmination of a week's worth of activities celebrating Youth Week.
- MLA Ted Nebbeling says he is opposed to using a land-fill to finance the Britannia Beach Mine cleanup. Copper Beach Estates Ltd. wants to treat polluted water draining out of the mine into Howe Sound by building a treatment plant to be funded by an industrial landfill in the Jane Basin mine openings.
- Crown Counsel decide not to proceed with another trial against Henry Gerard Cuerrier, formerly of Squamish, who was charged with assault for having unprotected sex without disclosing his HIV-positive status to his partners. After several acquittals at lower levels, the Supreme Court of Canada overturned his acquittal and ordered a new trial last year.

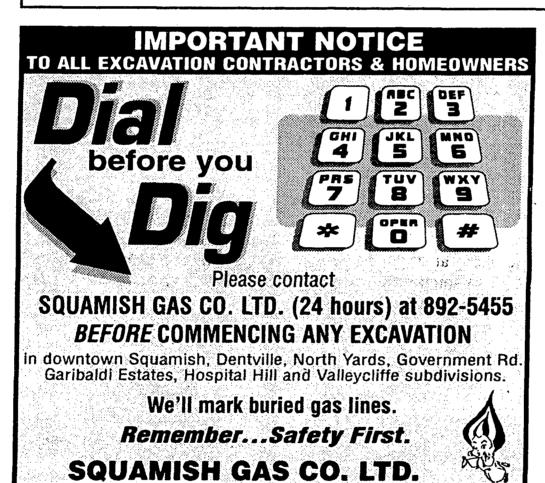

June

- Local band Mayhem Aquarium is gearing up for the launch this month of its first full-length CD, which has been dubbed Built Up Issues. The band was formed in 1993 and by September 1997 had produced a demo CD out of a North Vancouver studio.
- Composer Michael Plowman of Squamish is awarded the Leo by the British Columbia Film and Television Award committee for his original TV score music for the show Storm Warning.

Paula (a.k.a Paul McKenzie) performed at logging shows all over North America for more than 40 years after getting his start in Squamish.

- The Western Canada Wilderness Committee sets up camp near Lava Creek in the Upper Elaho Valley in Tree Farm Licence 38 during the August long weekend. The Millennial Tree Camp, named for the reputed age of the fir trees in the area, is there to do research, to catalogue and measure trees. They hope to find enough evidence to support giving the area protection from logging activity.
- The Brightbill House, long a fixture at Stan Clarke Park, is to be moved to the West Coast Railway Museum. Municipal council approved spending $17,500 to move building, which at one time housed the museum. The Brightbill House was originally located on Second Avenue.
- Squamish helicopter pilot Colin Banner and four Vancouver residents die after Banner's helicopter crashes in the Tantalus Mountains range Aug. 15. The Glacier Air A Star helicopter disappeared after Banner flew his four passengers for a tour of Lake Lovely Water.

September

- The Alex Munro Firehall is unveiled Sept. 4 in Valley-cliffe. The hall was named in memory of pioneer Henry Alexander Munro, who formed the first fire brigade in Squamish and was the fire chief from 1912 until 1950. The new hall replaces the downtown hall, which was located behind the library on Third Avenue.
- John Ryan is greeted by thousands of supporters in Squamish Sept. 7 after hand-cycling across Canada for four months to raise awareness and funds for spinal cord research. Ryan's Regeneration Tour raised more than $! million in cash and in-kind donations.
- A suspicious plane crash on Government Road just past Brackendale Secondary School on the first day of school Sept. 7 leads to the arrest of two men. They were later charged with possession with intent to traffic after a large amount of marijuana was found in the cockpit of the Cessna 172.
- The West Coast Railway

Squamish Fire Rescue battled a few blazes in 1999, but the biggest one was one they set themselves — part of their annual practice structural fire on a Squamish Nation house in Brackendale July 5. Squamish Fire Rescue's other highlight of the year was the opening of a new firehall, the Alex Munro Firehall in Valleycliffe, which opened its doors in September.

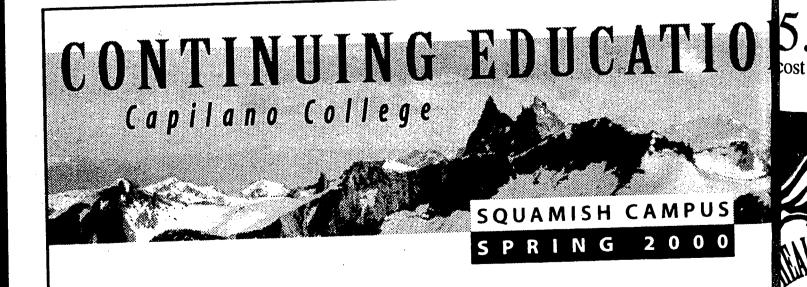

Roger Crowther of the Canadian Auto Workers with Jennifer Wiebe and Tessa Lowinger at a press conference in March. Squamish McDonald's workers, unionized last August, but a decertification vote passed July 2 45 to 26.

pleted four months earlier but remained vacant until the province provided operational funding.

56. Iy opened Aug. 15, 1973. Owner Thor Froslev said he bought the land Feb. 17, 1970 from Harry Simms. Over the years, the Art Gallery has featured a diversity of musical performers such as the Purcell String Quartet, Pied Pumpkin, Norm Foote, Anne and Jane Mortifee and Bill Henderson.

57. The Weldwood sawmill downtown opened in 1964. The mill, now owned by International Forest Products, received word of a $1-million upgrade in November 1999. The projects include a new twin-band resaw to improve lumber recovery, an upgrade of the computer controls of the mill's edger system and improvements in planer-sorter controls.

58 Centennial Field was Squamish's project for provincial centennial. A $5,000 grant was secured but to the town's credit, it was built mostly by donation and hard work. Even school children spent their P.E. time picking rocks off the fields.

59. The golf course is also a tribute to community spirit. Businesses and individuals donated many supplies and time to make the nine-hole golf course a reality in 1967. The course, snaking alongside the Mamquam River, was later expanded into an 18-hole course.

60 Squamish has had its fair share of characters but one man brought new meaning to April Fools in 1969 and 1970.

Helmut Scherer buffaloed the entire town on April 1, 1969 when he and cohort Dennis Grefford, armed with a transit, traffic cone and paint pots rerouted traffic along Cleveland, finally advising Mayor Pat Brennan that BCR was building a spur line right through the centre of town to the port. Brennan lost his temper and word has it that he even called Premier Bennett, who needless to say, did not know what the mayor was talking about.

The following year Scherer again hood-winked the entire town about erecting a very professionally-designed sign at the spot where McDonald's restaurant now sits, saying it was to be the future home of the Army and Navy Department Store.

61 Developer Pat Goode, the man who built the Garibaldi Highlands, came to Squamish in 1959. Roadways such as Ayr Drive and Perth Drive were built on old logging railway beds, on land purchased from Merrill and Ring.

62. The ferry to Woodfibre commenced in 1958 from Darrell Bay where Capt. George Vancouver first landed in June 1792 to seek refuge from a storm and to replenish his ship's supplies.

Railwest, a subsidiary of BC Rail, was opened in 1974 at the site of the present railyards to design and build railcars. The plant only lasted four years because it was unable to compete internationally.

64 Cattermole Timber, in partnership with Star Shipping, built a deep sea port on P.G.E. land at the estuary in 1971 to ship pulp brought by train from the Interior.

The first vessels arrived in 1972.

65 Bill Manson and Pat Brennan spear-headed a group to build an entire diking system in the 1970s to run from Brackendale right down to the Estuary. The project was done locally and received high commendations by the province after it was completed at 30 per cent below budget.

66 Mayor Pat Brennan and the town of Squamish drove Gordon Shrum, then head of B.C. Hydro, into a rage in the summer of 1971 causing him to drink a beaker of herbicide as a publicity stunt to show people that the chemical was harmless. Squamish residents were in an uproar because Tordon 10K, used in the Vietnam War to defoliate the jungle, was being used to kill underbrush on Hydro right-of-way. Brennan was able to use the Municipal Act to serve a temporary restraining order placed directly on Shrum.

67 The first Squamish volunteer fire department was started by Alex Munro. The new firehall located in Valleycliffe, opened in August 1999, was named in his honor. Munro was the fire chief from 1912 until 1950.

The old Galbraith hotel, built by Dave Galbraith, was situated on what is now the Interfor log sorting grounds. The hotel, the first built in Squamish, was the site for the film McCabe and Mrs. Miller. It was torn down in 1973.

The new Squamish Public Library opened its doors Oct. 1, 1997. The 12,000-square-foot structure replaces the cramped quarters at the municipal office. The original library was a centennial project and officially opened its doors February 1959, another example of how the people in Squamish worked together for the betterment of the town. Rolf Fougherg excavated the foundation for free and Johnny Hunter offered to donate the hauling of cement gravel.

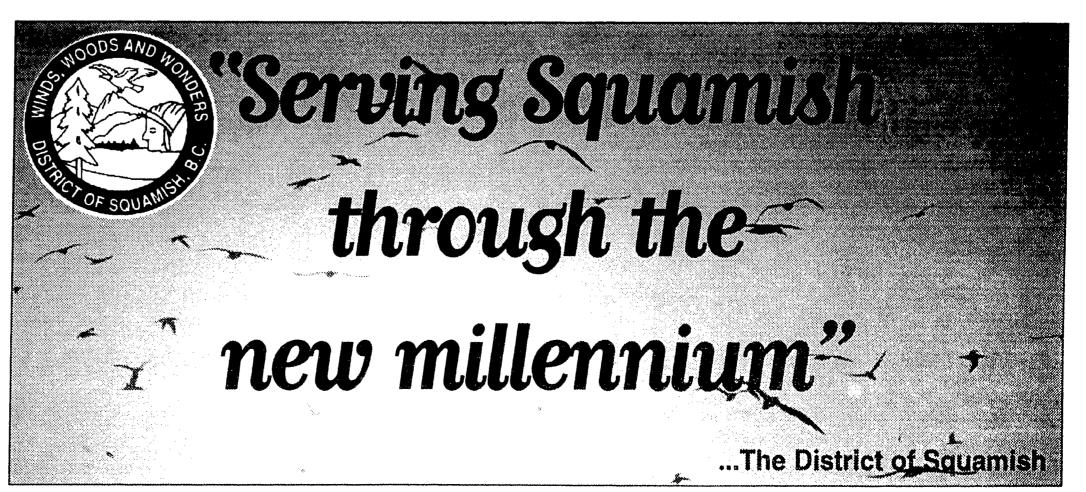

Right across from the Brackendale Store sits an old fireplace, all that remains of the Bracken Arms, an elegant hotel that has long since burned down. The hotel was built just after the turn of the century by John Bracken, Brackendale's first postmaster.

71 The first non-aboriginal to make the overland trek into the Squamish Valley was John McKay, who led a survey party from Anderson Lake south to Squamish in 1858.

72. Local artisan Marty Thorne's woodwork was chosen to be given as gifts to President Bill Clinton and delegates at the 1997 APEC conference in Vancouver. Thorne creates wooden bowls, some as thin as 1/8th of a inch thick.

73. The airport's history goes back to the late 1950s when B.C. Aviation first met with village council to discuss options for a site for the airport. In 1963, B.C. Aviation favored a spot along the 7th Avenue dyke, which at that point lay just outside village boundaries. In 1963, Baron Von Puttkammer headed the first aero club in town and Chris Arnet with the first graduate of the flying program. By the summer of 1971, the Flying Club had opened its airstrip located at the site of the present airport

74. The first piano to be hauled along the overland route through the Rockies is sitting in a Brackendale home. Grandson Jon Davis and his wife Sandra are heirs of the original owners Gilbert and Mary Elizabeth who brought the piano-organ to Revelstoke in 1898 from Toronto. The piano is an Otto Hebron'Leipzig instrument.

The Chieftain Hotel opened its doors Jan. 15, 1958. The one-storey building holds 27 rooms with 21 having baths. It cost about $300,000 to build.

The Lions was the first service club to /O.come to Squamish. It was initially led by Pat Flack.

The Easter Seal camp has undergone / / • many transformations in its short history. It was originally the site of the Squamish Valley Hop Company and then in the 1960s was purchased by Baron Jesco Von Puttkamer from Eric Axem and Manual Seymour and used as a riding stable. In the 1970s the grounds were then converted into St. David's, a private boys school. The buildings were designed by Erickson-Massey Architects and Planners.

70 Von Puttkammer also purchased 430 / O acres at $100 an acre in Paradise Valley in 1961. The following year the convention and banquet hall he built was opened. The Paradise Valley Horse Ranch is now known as the North Vancouver Outdoor School.

70 Squamish resident Hank Love lived • to the ripe old age of 102. He passed away Oct. 21, 1963. On his 100th birthday on May 24, 1961, he received telegrams from the Queen and Prime Minister John Diefenbaker. Love was born at Boblo Island in the Detroit River in 1861.

Notorious child murderer Clifford OU. Olson actually appeared in Squamish court in January, 1981 before Judge Ian Walker before he went on to kill at least 10 young people. Olson was charged in Squamish on two counts of assault on two young women who had been hitchhiking with him. Olson was brought before the judge but Walker had to release him when the witnesses failed to appear at court. It was later revealed that Olson had killed one teenager and went on to kill at least 10 more. In Feb. 14, 1982, he pleaded guilty to 11 counts of first degree murder and given a life sentence of minimum 25 years without parole.

Television arrived precisely at 9 p.m. Squamish got its first broadcast signals that fall. Televisions first went on sale in December, 1957 at Howe Sound Electric, Mackenzie's Department Store, Johnny's TV and through George Turnquist. Howe Sound Electric also placed 10 television sets at the Elks Hall for public viewing.

Officials predicted Squamish would O ___ get dial telephones by the end of 1960. In fact, direct distance dialing arrived in September 1962 to replace the municipality's 670 magnetotype telephones. At that time, all telephone numbers had to be changed to seven digits, all starting with 892.

Q2 Larry Laramee, originally from O.J. Ladner, purchased the old Rae Dairy in Brackendale and started his own dairy, renamed the Squamish Dairy. By 1963, Laramee had formed a subdivision on the 30 acres at the end of Judd Road.

84 The 2010 Olympic bid is not the first time Whistler has offered to host the Winter Olympics. In 1968, it received official endorsement from the Canadian Olympic Committee in 1968 but lost out ultimately to Grenoble, France where Nancy Greene-Raine dominated the ski hill for Canada.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau and his bride O. Margaret were married March, 1971 in a secret ceremony in West Vancouver and had their honeymoon in Whistler. Squamish also has its part to play in the Prime Minister's wedding. Sgt. Ted Mason, from the Squamish detachment, issued the marriage licence and was sworn to secrecy by high officials in Ottawa. Sinclair's father, former Liberal cabinet minister Jimmy Sinclair, came to Squamish to pick-up the licence.

Squamish athlete Roger Mercier set a Oo new Canadian broadjump record of 20' 2" in the Midget division at Brockton Oval on March 30, 1959. Mercier was named All-Around Athlete for 1961 and 1963 for B.C. by the Vancouver Olympic Club. He later placed second in the high jump at the Canadian championships, jumping 6'3". In June, 1963 he set a new B.C. record of 6'51/2" at the age of 19.

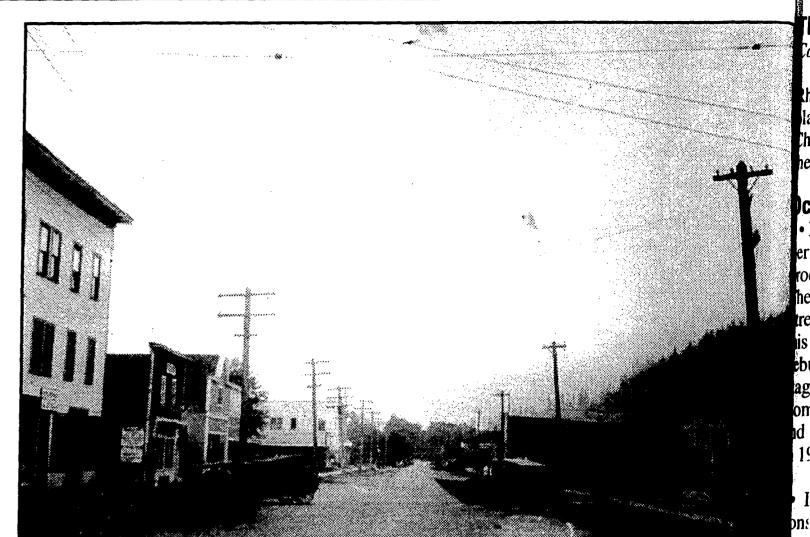

Q7 Premier W.A.C. Bennett came to 8 / Squamish in September, 1961 to witness the demonstration of a "unique" electronic level crossing signal, the first one of its kind on the continent. The new system is tamperproof and is more efficient in warning traffic about oncoming trains.

OO Premier Bennett came again to OO. Squamish when Engine No. 2 was donated to the town and set up at Stan Clarke Park right downtown. The train, built in Philadelphia in 1910, was the first to be used in Squamish from 1911 to 1913 and Fred Downer, the first engineer to operate the train, was the line between Horseshoe Bay and North Vancouver. It was sold in 1920 to the Comox Logging and Railway Company and its last owner was Crown Zellerbach. The train is now back in Squamish at the West Coast Railway Heritage Park.

89 Squamish also gained notoriety when a terrorist gang was dubbed the Squamish Five in the early 1980s after bombing a B.C. Hydro substation and three Red Hot Video stores. Police arrested the five at a lookout point just north of Brohm Lake. They also seized rifles, shotguns and handguns in the raid. Arrested were Brent Taylor, Gerald Richard Hanna, Ann Brit Hansen, Caroline Belmas and Douglas David Stewart. They were charged, tried and convicted in Vancouver.

On The Village Square, on the corner of • Second and Winnipeg, opened its doors March 4, 1967. It housed the Royal Bank, still located there, Town and Country Shoes, Alta Lake Electric Ltd., R.S. Bishop Realty Ltd., Fenton Jewelers, Andy's Barber Shop and Olga's Style Shop.

Prior to the move, the Royal Bank was located in the Chieftain Hotel for the first 10 years of its existence in Squamish.

91 If you look past the magazine rack at the Squamish Public Library, you will If you look past the magazine rack at see an unusual clock on the wall. It has two faces — one that tells regular time and one that is a calendar clock. This clock was donated to the library in 1967 by H.H. Bailey, who had rescued the clock from destruction when the PGE was going to demolish an old fish hatchery at Seton Creek near Lillooet. The clock face was made by the Waterbury Clock Co. from Pennsylvania. Its patent reads 1898 and instructions that came with the clock are dated 1907. L.C. Minchin was head of the library board when the clock was gifted to the library.

Rayonier, formerly known as Alaska 7 Pine and Cellulose, spent $15 million in the late 1950s to convert Woodfibre to a kraft pulp and paper mill. The mill was shut for three years during the conversion and reopened June 22, 1961.

\(\) Woodfibre was the theme for a song 9 by Charlie "Whitewater" Conroy and produced in 1971 by Terry Jacks of the Poppy Family fame. The song was dubbed "The Ballad of Woodfibre" and written by Terry Jacks and Wylie Costain. Conroy had previously owned Brandywine Falls and later died while holidaying in Hawaii with Terry and Susan Jacks. All monies raised from song royalties were donated to the environmental group SPEC.

Brenda Hinds, Miss Timber Queen 94. Brenda Hinus, Iviss Timos. 2111974, was chosen Miss PNE later that summer. A special homecoming parade was held Aug. 29, 1974 in her honor put on by the town. Hinds was met by an honor guard of the RCMP led by piper Judge Ian Walker. Hinds was given a lifetime pass to the Loggers Sports

MORE THAN WORKWEAR

1440 Winnipeg St. 892-5646

WAYNE JACKSON

Athlete of the Month

Morris' More Than Workwear Athlete of the month is Wayne Jackson.

Jackson just returned from Campbell River and the Canadian Amateur Boxing Championships where he competed hard and came home with a bronze medal. It's the third bronze medal for Jackson to go along with a silver medal that he has captured in previous events.

Jackson still has a shot to continue his qualifications for the Sydney Olympics next year at a box-off in January.

Congratulations Wayne and keep on reaching for that Olympic gold.

If you know a local athlete of any age who deserves special recognition, send your nomination with a brief description why to The Chief: Box 3500 Squamish, B.C. VON 3G0, or fax it to 892-8483.

The Athlete of the Month receives a $25 Gift Certificate from Morris' More Than Workwear

Year in Review – Sports

• Girl power at Howe Sound Secondary takes centre stage as both the girls volleyball team and girls field hockey team play host to weekend tournaments. The senior volleyball team comes in third while the field hockey team wins their tournament.

November

• The cross-country running season comes to a close at Alice Lake as Squamish plays host to the 1999 North Shore Zone finals. Competitors from both Howe Sound and Brackendale Secondary School's compete in the event

• The Goldberg team from the North Shore Winter Club captures the top prize at the 1999 Ladies Open Bonspiel at the Howe Sound Curling Club.

• The Howe Sound Sounders Senior boys soccer team captures the 1999 B.C. AA High School soccer title with a thrilling shoot-out win over Seycove in front of a jubilant crowd at Centennial Fields.

December

• Squamish Figure Skating club stand-out Keegan Murphy strikes gold at the Western Divisionals to punch his ticket to the Canadian Championships in January.

• Squamish boxer Wayne Jackson sees his Olympic boxing hopes hit a snag as he loses in the semifinals of the Canadian Amateur Boxing Championships in Campbell River.

Jackson wins a bronze medal in the process and he can still qualify for the next round of the trials by winning a box-off in January in Ontario.

The hosts with the most the Howe Sound Hurricane played host to the 1999 Peewee C girls provincial softball championships in July. The team from Squamish played hard and finished with a 1-3 record.

Year in Review — Sports

More than 800 riders took the Test — but only one could win. Whistler's Chad Miles, last year's second-place finisher, moved up to number one with a time of two hours, 42 minutes and 59 seconds in the 1999 Test of Metal mountain bike race June 26. Miles' time in the 67-km epic race was four minutes faster than Victoria's Geoff Kabush, last year's winner, while Gibsons' Ruedi Schnyder was third with a time of 2:48:40.

quamish's Juvenile hockey players were awarded their first-ever Tier 2 pennant in their first season, sending the Equamish's Juvenile hockey players were awarded then mistered empetition flying through the air at the Brennan Park Leisure Centre.

enthused and secretly hoping that an unexpected escapade will bring an exciting zing into your life. You need it. You want it all. Your mind is hungry for study, new philosophies, religious concepts, metaphysical discussions and of course - travel and adventure. Do not dismiss this as wishful thinking. Your sign had a lot of luck right now and you are also in a position to ask for what you want. If you really want to explore new horizons and broaden your mind and your experience of life - then do it. It was

Taurus (April 20 - May 20)

An excellent week for business and commerce. Attend to insurance, taxes, debts and establishing credit. What you share with another is under discussion but your POV is upbeat. Consensus will be reached and all parties will be happy. You feel encouraged by this. Essentially, what you are learning to appreciate is how to work with the values of others. (This is awfully handy because physical fights are so hard on one's wardrobe.) Listen to your own instincts because you are wise about money. Thoughts of your own mortality can be enlightening now. (In astrology death and taxes are linked.)

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

Fabulous week for you. You feel optimistic, confident and even more clever and witty than usual. Give yourself every opportunity to enjoy the company of othbuddies. Your ability to convince someyour ideas if challenged. This is a wonsomeone, they're up for it. You will be great, but there's lots of it.

Cancer (June 21 - July 22)

Make future plans for your career now Research pays off. Work with others.

Leo (July 23 - Aug. 22)

You're entertaining at home. You're in the mood to decorate and fix your place up. It's easy for you to express your week starts out with tension at work ers, especially friends and groups. Make plans to travel with partners and close one of something is extraordinary now. You're in the groove. You will defend derful time to sign contracts or enter into deals. Others are ready to learn from you. If you suggest travel plans to notice that life is like a buffet - it may not because your thinking can be trusted. Your ideas at work are brilliant right now. But will anyone listen? (including yourself?) Many areas of your life are coming together beautifully. Romance is favoured. You're up for fun and good times. Conversations with partners, children and close friends are smooth. And in the midst of this - all matters with your career and your job are quite blessed. If you are thinking of changing work or making an adjustment, voice these plans now. You are convincing on the job, and others will definitely listen to you.

HURUSCOPES BY GEORGIA NICHOLS which in turn stresses your health. Don't

Aries (March 21 - April 19)

This is an exciting week. You're Richard Bach who said, "Argue for your limitations - and they're yours."

affection to family members now. This get your belly in a rash. It all falls into place, even though you feel caught off guard about too many things. Go ahead with ideas and plans for travel. Publishing and the media are particularly promising this week. You can get an enormous amount done because you feel optimistic about the future and you have a strong desire to get your life organized. Write on. Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)

You're ready for fun and pleasure this week. Do not be put off by any jarring notes between you and a romantic partner. Stress in dealing with children, friends and groups is likely as this week begins, however it melts away by the weekend. Be patient and forgiving. This doesn't mean that you lose, or that you are giving anything up - on the contrary, it means that you win. Your patience and tolerance make your own life easier as well as the lives of those around you. Family discussions about money, inheritances, estates and shared property go well now. Make your point. Listen to your own ideas about how to improve your wealth. Shape dough into balls. Roll in sugar and bake on ungreased cookie sheet. Either that, or put it in the bank so you can take it out and spend it.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

For the most part, you welcome opportunities to entertain others at home. You enjoy creating an attractive living environment and this is the holiday season to show off what you can do. (Lighting is everything.) This is a busy week for you. But you are competent and extremely confident. You are eager for new information about practically anything that interests you, especially travel and other cultures. Conversations with partners and close friends are enlightening. Go ahead with contracts and new deals now with a partner or client. Whatever you enter into will be profitable and advantageous for you in the future. Money comes easily now which means you can spend on pleasure, loved ones and yourself. And why not? Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)

You're mentally energetic right now. Your mind whizzes along from subject to subject. Even though many people are taking time off for the holidays, accomplish as much as you can at work because your ideas are spot on and productive. Your ability to plan for the future, especially in financial terms, is excellent right now. Your strong energy shows itself and you easily organize the activities of family members and loved ones at home. And they don't mind, in fact, they're relieved. (Unless they have Scorpio in them too which means that they want control.) Get out. Run around. The pace is busy; you cannot deny it. Talk to everyone. In a few weeks - you financial stress that you feel in the earlier part of the week, especially at work, things begin to shape up nicely. You have great ideas about how to have fun. By all means voice them. Your energy is acke high and you have tons of suggestions t. 85 about how things should go - either and Dr socially or professionally. If you work in $8-41; the arts, or entertainment or in education or the hospitality industry, you're on a roll. You defend your interests. You convince others of your point of view. You gather new information and run with the ball. You're eager for life right now because your optimism is contagious liet r and this allows you to successfully organize everything around you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)

As this weeks slides by, matters improve ofess for everyone, but you in particular, are in erson the right place at the right time saying the right thing to the right people. And this is just how you like it. Something or someone behind the scenes is helping you. Money from the government or the approval you need is forthcoming. This Bn. 1. can favourably impact your family, your mone { home or your real estate. Friends are helpful and supportive. Get out and schmooze now. You can talk people into spending money and you yourself are more large with cash than you usually are. It's not extravagance. You are simply open-handed right now. (A million) there, a million here, pretty soon we're talking real money.)

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) You can really rouse the troops. Your agility to communicate to friends and groups is excellent this week. Your outof-the-box thinking impresses others. You find this amusing because ten years go no one wanted to listen to you - now Bach you're practically a guru. Everyone, particularly VIPs, bosses and parents is impressed with you. Unfortunately, you don't have the energy to dazzle your fan club. Therefore, steal every private moment that you can to do your own thing and relax. You have always found this time of year exhausting and a bit overwhelming. Physical activity, exercise, group sports and sex are what you need. Not necessarily in that order.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

Your ideas about how to increase your earnings are excellent. Even though many people are goofing off with holiday spirit, you should talk to others and make financial plans for the future. You can organize others at work now and organize your efforts to either find new employment or make the changes you want where you work. For many of you, 📳 a change in residence or jobs is imminent early next year. Travel brings pleasure and enjoyment now. You are nearing the end of a period where your responsibilities have been great and your activities have been limited. The year 2000 is definitely a watershed year for you. It marks the ending of one phase in your life, and the beginning of a new

Come counting Jan. 2

The next monthly estuary count will be embedded in the Annual Squamish Christmas Bird Count (CBC) to be held on Sunday, Jan. 2, 2000. Participants meet at the Brackendale Art Gallery at 7 a.m., divide into parties, birdwatch all day, and meet back at the Art Gallery around 4 p.m.

for a final tally. The boundary of the count area is a circle 24 km in diameter. One party goes north as far as the Tenderfoot Creek Hatchery, one as far south as Britannia Beach, one skis eastward to Red Heather Meadows, and six other parties count what's in between. The CBC covers the same area as the Eagle Count except for the Upper Squamish Valley, so it provides another snapshot of eagle numbers as well as all other bird species.

Insulated boots, head-to-toe raingear, warm layers, and a packed lunch are recommended. The $5 participant fee goes to the Audubon Society to support this 100-year-old effort that covers North America and some of Central and South America, providing an important scientific tool for analyzing population and distribution trends. All levels of birders are welcome. Preregistration is appreciated. Call 898-2000 and leave a message for coordinator Jim Wisnia.

For those who prefer to watch from the comfort of homes, feederwatcher re are also valuable. Simply re all species seen at the feede the count day and, for species, note the highest nu of birds seen at one time. call 898-2000 with your r on the evening of Jan. 2.
